Ruḳa'āt-i-Jāmi (رقعات جامی).

Jāmi's standard-letters and specimens of refined prose-writings, beginning: بعد از انشاء صحائف لنا و محمدت لله الذی انزل علی عبده الكتاب الخ; see Bodleian Cat., No. 894, 35; No. 895, 35; No. 896, 20; and No. 965; G. Flügel i. pp. 264 and 265, and iii. p. 542; Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 371, No. 7. These letters have been edited in the 'Selections for the Use of the Students of the Persian Class,' vol. vi, Calcutta, 1811. This collection also bears the title of دیوان الرسائل جامی, and sometimes انشاء جامی منشآت جامی. The present copy, which contains a great number of interlinear glosses and paraphrases, is dated the 12th of Dhū-alḳa'dah, A. H. 1039 (A. D. 1630, June 23).

No. 1691, ff. 121, ll. 11; Nasta'lik; size, 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

A slightly defective copy of the same.

This copy begins abruptly with the last words of the introduction : داده آمد شاید که بدین وسیله . . . بر خاطر الع, corresponding to fol. 2^a, l. 4 in the preceding copy.

Dated the 24th of Jumâdâ-alawwal in the 48th year of 'Âlamgir's reign (=A.H. 1116, A.D. 1704, Sept. 24), by 'Abd-alnabi ibn Shaikh Ibrâhîm bin Muḥammad Murâd. Some pages slightly injured.

No. 497, ff. 85, ll. 14-15; Nasta'liq; size, 8 in. by 5½ in.

A still more defective copy of the same.

This copy is defective both at the beginning and end; it opens abruptly, just five words before the beginning of the preceding copy : جمع کرده شد و ترتیب داده . . . آمد الع, and breaks off on fol. 82^b. The exact words, with which this copy ends, cannot be traced in the two preceding copies, as the arrangement of letters differs in some points, but fol. 82^a, l. 8, corresponds to fol. 78^a, l. 3 in the preceding copy. Many pages are slightly injured. The proper order of the leaves is : ff. 1-15, 17-20, 16, 21-82; there are besides lacunas after ff. 6 and 15. Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2484, ff. 1-82, ll. 13; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Bâgh-i-Iram (باغ ارم).

The garden of Iram, or the story of Bahrâm and Bihruz, an epic poem by Maulânâ Kamâl-al-din Bannâ'i of Harât, who was killed in the massacre of Shâh Isma'il at Samarkand, A.H. 918 (A.D. 1512, 1513); comp. on the poet's life and works Bodleian Cat., No. 987; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 372; A. F. Mehren, p. 41; Notices et Extraits iv. p. 289; see also Haft Iklim, No. 635 (col. 424 in this Cat.); Safinah, No. 35 (col. 213 in the Bodleian Cat.); Âtashkada, No. 291 (ib. col. 273), etc. The poem is usually styled بهرام و بهروز (see also Rieu i. p. 351^b); but the genuine title appears here, on fol. 33^a, l. 6:

نام او شد نهال باغ ارم - تاکه, روشن کند چراغ ارم

(the word نهال being an apparent misspelling for نهاده, as the Bodleian copy has); in his lyrical poems Bannâ'i used Hâli as takhalluṣ (see Âtashkada and Sprenger, loc. cit.). Beginning of the poem, on fol. 1^b:

ای وجود تو اصل کل وجود - هستی و بود و خواهی بود

(an initial bait which has been closely imitated by Hilâlî in his شاه و گدا, see further below, Nos. 1426-1429); on fol. 1^a, the author is called by mistake

Thanâ'i instead of Bannâ'i. The right order of ff. 262-265 is : 262, 264, 263, 265.

No. 273, ff. 269, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'liq; collated throughout; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

1391

A fragment of the same.

This fragment of the باغ ارم, which is by mistake inserted in a copy of three mathnawis by Sanâ'i (see No. 915 above), comprises fol. 93^b, l. 6, to fol. 116^a, l. 2 of the preceding copy.

First bait :

هر کجا فتنه شدی پیدا - بود چون فتنه در میان بر پا

Last bait :

هر که او از خدای ترسان نیست
شک میاور درین که انسان نیست

How the mistake of this insertion came about is easily explained. On fol. 1^a of the present MS. the name of Sanâ'i appears as Thanâ'i, and as the same error is sometimes committed with regard to the author of the باغ ارم (see the preceding copy), the transcriber of this copy must have assumed that all the various extracts collected in this volume belonged to one and the same poet.

Dated A.H. 1061 (A.D. 1651).

No. 1991, ff. 316-331^a, 2 coll., each ll. 19; Nasta'liq; size, 9½ in. by 4½ in.

1392

Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 886 and 887; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 21, No. 176, and pp. 403-404; Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 384; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. ii. p. 122; J. Aumer, p. 34; Bland, Century of Persian Ghazals, No. 9. Wrong dates of his death are A.H. 911 (A.D. 1505, 1506) in Safinah, No. 3 (col. 212 in the Bodleian Cat.), and A.H. 915 (A.D. 1509, 1510) in the Khulasat-alafkâr, No. 198 (ib. col. 309). He was a court-poet of Sultân Ya'kûb; compare on his poetical style and the great number of imitators he found, the Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1869 (col. 359 in the Bodleian Cat.). The ghazals are arranged alphabetically and begin :

ای سر نامه نام تو عقل گره گشایرا

Lailâ u Majnûn (لیلی و مجنون).

The loves of Lailâ and Majnûn, an epic poem by Maulânâ 'Abdallâh Hâtifi of Jân, Jâmi's nephew, who died A.H. 927 (A.D. 1521), according to the ta'rikhs شاعر شاهان and شاعران, quoted in the Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 3036 (col. 393 in the Bodleian Library), which may serve as corrective for the slight error in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 87, ll. 22 and 23. This mathnawī is the first of his projected Khamsah, of which, however, only four poems are extant, viz. the present one, the تیمور نامه (Nos. 1410-1416 below), the هفت خسرو و شیرین (or شیرین و خسرو and منظر Iklim, No. 671 (col. 427 in this Cat.); Safinah, No. 45 (col. 213 in the Bodleian Cat.); Âtashkada, No. 158 (ib. col. 267); Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 76 (ib. col. 301), etc.; comp. on Hâtifi and his poems, Bodleian Cat., Nos. 996-1016; Rieu ii. p. 652 sq.; W. Timûrnâma (تیمورنامه).

Hâtifi's famous mathnawî on the warlike exploits of Timûr, an imitation of Nizâmî's Iskandarnâma, styled تیمورنامه (or rather, to suit the metre, تیمورنامه), also sometimes ظفرنامه تیموری (see Haft Iklim, No. 671), or ظفرنامه منظوم (see Zeitschrift der D. M. G. xiii. p. 340, No. 252, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 891, No. 908 and note 2), or simply ظفرنامه (see H. Khalfâ iv. p. 176, No. 8017, and fol. 1^a in the present copy, probably on account of the verse in the khâtimah of the poem itself, fol. 115^b, l. 9, ظفرنامه یافتم بی دروغ, where the ظفرنامه, however, clearly refers to Sharaf-al-din 'Alî Yazdî's well-known history of that title, Nos. 173-187 in this Cat.), or even, with an allusion to Nizâmî's poem, اسکندرنامه تیموری (so in the Raudat-alsafâ, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 892, note 2); see, besides the general references given above in No. 1398, H. Khalfâ ii. p. 489, No. 3820; and iv. p. 176, No. 8017; Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 381; and J. Aumer, p. 34; the Hamburg collection also contains several excellent copies of this mathnawi; and there is one copy in the Library of the D. M. G. (Pers. 23). Lithographed in Lucknow, 1869, under the title of ظفرنامه هاتفی.

This copy, undated like the two preceding ones, lacks some baits at the end; a comparison, moreover, with No. 2568 (1410 in this Cat.) shows, that the last sixteen verses appearing here, are quite different from those in that copy; the last bait, that is the same in both copies, is on fol. 185^a, l. 6 in the present copy, and on fol. 116^b, l. 6 in No. 2568.

فسونی دمیدم زبان بندرا - بیستم زبان حاسدی چندرا

Futûḥ-alḥaramain (فتوح الحرمين).

A poetical description of the two holy cities, Makkah and Madinah, and of the observances during the pilgrimage, by Muḥyi Lâri, one of the pupils of the learned Dawâni (who died A. H. 908 = A. D. 1502, 1503, see Haft Iklim, No. 167, col. 390 in this Cat.). A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 451, ascribes this poem wrongly to Jâmi (see on the origin of this mistake Rieu ii. p. 655), and the same has been done on fol. 1^a of No. 887 (1420 in this Cat.). According to the Vienna copy (G. Flügel ii. p. 122) it was composed A. H. 911 (A. D. 1505, 1506); the poet died A. H. 933 (A. D. 1526, 1527); see Haft Iklim, No. 268 (col. 398 in this Cat.), and H. Khalfa iv. p. 385, No. 8922; comp. also for further details on Muḥyi and his work, Rieu ii. p. 655; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 260 and 261; Wiener Jahrbücher, vol. 71, Anzeigeblatt, p. 49, and Schefer, Sefer Nameh, Paris, 1881, Introd., pp. 57 and 58. It has been lithographed at Lucknow, A. H. 1292.

Beginning:

ای همه کس را بدرت التجا - کعبه دل را ز تو نور و صفا

The author's name, Muḥyi, appears on fol. 3^b, l. 2. In an entry, on fol. 1^a, this poem is incorrectly styled مناسک الحج. It is dated the 10th of Sha'bân, A. H. 1006 (A. D. 1598, March 18), at Makkah, by Imâm Kûli Kaḍari (Kunduzi?) bin Daulatqadam; it was bought of Sayyid Ḥusain at Milâpûr the 11th of Rabî'-alawwal, A. H. 1187 (A. D. 1773, June 2). College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2344, ff. 41, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Nasta'liq, ff. 1-4 supplied by a more modern hand on white paper; many leaves of the older part greatly injured, half of fol. 5 being torn away besides; illustrations on ff. 20^b, 22^a, 23^a, 24^a, 24^b, 26^a, 26^b, 27^b, 28^a, 31^a, 32^a, 34^a, 36^b, 39^a, 39^b, 40^b, and 41^a; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Another copy of the same.

Beginning the same as in the preceding copy; the poem concludes on fol. 56^b, and is followed, on ff. 57^b-73^b, by the same anonymous prose-treatise on the holy places of Makkah, which is noticed in No. 426 of the Bodleian Cat., beginning here: بدان ایدک الله بنیل هذه السعادات والكرامات که این کلمه چند مسطور شده در بیان ذراع حرم مکه معظمه حرّمها الله تعالی عن

آفات و البلیات و مساحت مسجد الحرام که عبارتست از حرم کعبه معظمه مشرفه زاد الله تعالى تعظيماً و تشریفاً. Both the poem and the prose-treatise are written A. H. 1070 (A. D. 1659, 1660) by Nūr Muhammad, the author of a حافظ (see No. 1273 in this Cat.), who may be himself perhaps the compiler of the latter.

No. 208, ff. 1-73, ll. 12 (2 coll. on ff. 1-56); Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece; illustrations on ff. 24^a, 24^b, 27^a, 27^b, 31^a, 32^a, 33^a, 33^b, 38^a, 39^b, 42^b, 48^b, 51^a, 53^a, 53^b, 55^a, and 55^b; fol. 54^b left blank; many pages damaged with wet; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

The same.

This very clear and distinct copy is dated the 10th of Jumādā-althāni, A. H. 1185 (A. D. 1771, Sept. 20).

Beginning as in the preceding copies. College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2251, ff. 36, 2 coll., each ll. 13; distinct Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece; illustrations on ff. 11^b, 13^a, 13^b, 14^b, 15^b, 16^b, 17^b, 18^a, 20^b, 22^a, 23^b, 24^b, 27^b, 30^b, 33^a, 34^a, 35^a, and 35^b; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

The same.

This copy is wrongly styled, on fol. 1^a, فتوح الحرمین (see No. 1417 above); but on fol. 1^b the proper statement appears, كتاب فتوح الحرمین مولانا. The beginning is different here from that in the preceding copies, the first bait runs thus:

ای دو جهان غرقه آلائی تو— کون و مکان قطره دریاى تو
(corresponding to the initial bait in the Berlin copy, and to the twenty-second verse in the preceding copy, No. 2251, fol. 2^b, l. 1). The author's name appears here, on ff. 4^a, l. 12, 43^a, l. 4, and 54^a, l. 3.

No date.

No. 887, ff. 55, 2 coll., each ll. 14; clear Nasta'lik; illustrations on ff. 14^a, 25^b, 27^a, 32^a, 36^b, 38^a, 39^b, 46^b, 49^a, 51^a, 51^b, 52^a, 52^b, 54^b, and 55^a; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Naẓm-aldurar (نظم الدرر).

A didactic mathnawī, illustrating, like Sanā'i's Ḥadīkah, Sa'di's Būstān, and similar poems, various moral and religious maxims, interspersed with short tales, by a poet with the name of Muwālī (see, for instance, fol. 47^b, l. 10, fol. 48^a, lin. penult., fol. 122^a, l. 6, etc.).

According to the ta'rikh at the end, on fol. 123^a, گشت فیض الهی تاریخ, it was composed A. H. 936 (A. D. 1529, 1530); it is dedicated to Shāh Tahmāsp, see fl. 48^b, l. 8, and fol. 122^b, l. 2. The author is probably identical with Muwālī Tūni, who died, according to Taqi Kāshi (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 45, No. 649), A. H. 949 or 959 (A. D. 1542, 1543, or 1552); the same poet is mentioned in Haft Iklim, No. 817 (col. 437 in this Cat.). Another Muwālī, viz. Muwālī Lāri, a great admirer of Ḥāfiẓ, is quoted Haft Iklim, No. 269 (col.

398 in this Cat.); Safinah, No. 31 (col. 213 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Ātashkada, No. 693 (ib. col. 285, where he is said to have been called Khurāsānkhān); a third Muwālī or rather Muwwālī, a Turkman under Shāh 'Abbās II, is quoted in W. Pertsch, Turkish Cat., No. 168, and Berlin Cat., p. 701 (No. 41).

This copy, the only one hitherto known, is unfortunately defective both in the beginning and in the middle. It opens abruptly with this bait:

این نگارنده سید و سیاه — هر دو عالم بهستی تو گواه
(there seems to be one page missing).

A lacuna of two leaves, besides, after fol. 90.

The title of the work appears on fol. 47^b, l. 11:

خواستم نام این کتاب از غیب
گشت نظم الدرر خطاب از عیب

Dated by Cand Muhammad bin Jamāl Muhammad Nausari, the 22nd of Jumādā-alawwal, A. H. 1030 (?) (A. D. 1621, April 14), comp. No. 1297 in this Cat.

No. 2108, ff. 46-123, 2 coll., each ll. 13; Nasta'lik; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Mirāt-alḥaqā'ik (مرآة الحقائق).

The mirror of truth, another short didactic poem in the form of a kašidah, by the same Muwālī, beginning:

سخن را ابتدا کردم بنام حی متانش
علیم عالمش میدانم و قیوم رحمانش

The title occurs in the last bait but one, on fol. 128^a:

بمرآت الحقائق شد مستی این کلام من
خداوندا بکن نامی زفرط و فضل احسانش

Dated by the same transcriber, on the same day in the same year, as the preceding درد, and concluded by a few baits from the copyist's pen.

No. 2108, ff. 123^b-128^a, ll. 13; Nasta'lik; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Hilālī (Nos. 1423-1431).

Diwān-i-Hilālī (دیوان هلالی).

Lyrical poems of Maulānā Badr-al-din Hilālī of Astarābād, who was put to death by order of 'Abdallāhkhān (so in the Ātashkada and Sprenger, correctly 'Ubaiddallāhkhān) Uzbek at Harāt, A. H. 939 (A. D. 1532, 1533); this date is given by the poet's intimate friend Sām Mirzā, and in the Ātashkada, No. 81 (col. 265 in the Bodleian Cat.), comp. also Haft Iklim, No. 1170 (col. 466 in this Cat.). Almost all the other tadhkiras fix Hilālī's death in A. H. 936 (A. D. 1529, 1530); see, for instance, Safinah, No. 60 (col. 213 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khazāna-i-'amirah, No. 131 (ib. col. 260); Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 77 (ib. col. 301), etc.; and comp. Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 126, l. 4 ab infra. Other copies are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1019-

Lithographed, Lucknow, A.H. 1263 and 1281; Cawnpore, A.H. 1281.

Hilâlî's diwân consists of ghazals, arranged alphabetically, and a few kit'as and rubâ'is at the end.

Beginning of the ghazals, on fol. 1^b:

The second ghazal corresponds to fol. 3^a, l. 3 ab infra in the preceding copy.

After the alphabetical ghazals there follow, on ff. 107^a–110^a, three kit'as and a series of rubâ'is. Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

It has been translated into German verse by H. Ethé (Morgenländische Studien, Leipzig, 1870, pp. 197–282); see also Ethé, 'Ueber persische Tenzonen,' in 'Abhandlungen des fünften internationalen Orientalisten-Congresses,' Berlin, 1882, vol. ii. pp. 130–135. A slightly defective copy of the same.

This copy which, according to a note on fol. 1^a, was finished the 4th of Muharram, A.H. 1148 (A.D. 1735, May 27), is a little incomplete at the end; the last bait appearing here corresponds to fol. 52^b, l. 10, in No. 2092 (1426 in this Cat.).

Sifât-al-'âshiqîn (صفات العاشقين).

Another mathnawi of ethical contents, styled 'the qualities of lovers,' by the same Hilâlî; as the date of a copy of this poem, noticed in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 427, proves, it must have been composed before A.H. 913 (A.D. 1507, 1508); comp. besides, Bodleian Cat., No. 1026; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 64, No. 9, c, and 895; G. (کلیات اہلی شیرازی) Kulliyât-i-Ahli Shirâzi.

An extremely valuable MS., the original copy of the poetical works of Maulânâ Ahli of Shirâz, who died in his native town, A.H. 942 (A.D. 1535, 1536), written by the poet himself for his patron Sultân Isma'il Safawî, A.H. 920 (A.D. 1514), see the colophon: قد کتبہ الفقیر المتخلص بالاہلی هذه الکلیات للسُّلطان اسمعیل الصفوی فی سنة عشرين و تسع مائة هجری, and a second one of the same contents on the margin. Ahli Shirâzi must not be confounded with Ahli Tûrânî, a pupil of Jâmî, who died A.H. 902 (A.D. 1496, 1497), see Safinah, No. 4 (col. 212 in the Bodleian Cat.), or Ahli Khurâsânî, who died A.H. 934 (A.D. 1527, 1528), see A. A.H. 933 (A.D. 1526, 1527).

The present autograph contains:

I. Centre-columns:

1. Kaşâ'id-i-mašnû' (قصائد مصنوع), three highly artificial kaşidas in honour of Mir 'Alishir, Sultân Isma'il Safawî, and Sultân Ya'qûb Âk-koynulû (who died A.H. 896=A.D. 1491), or rather, as Rieu states, Ya'qûb's brother, Yûsufshâh, respectively; they are very close imitations of the artificial kaşidah of Salmân of Sâwa, described in detail in No. 1241 above; see for a full explanation of the manner of taushih, practised in these three kaşidas, Bodleian Cat., coll. 652 and 653. Each of the three kaşidas is preceded by a dibâca in prose.

Diwân-i-Hairati (دیوان حیرتی).

Ghazals by Maulânâ Muḥammad Taki-al-din Hairati of Tûn, who flourished under Shâh Ṭahmâsp. and died in Kāshān, A.H. 961 (A.D. 1554), comp. Haft Iklim, No. 816 (col. 437 in this Cat.), and Khazāna-i-ʿamīrah, No. 30 (col. 256 in the Bodleian Cat.); only the Ātashkada, No. 148, and the Safinah, No. 253 (ib. col. 267 and coll. 219 and 220), fix the poet's death at later dates, viz. A.H. 970 (A.D. 1562, 1563) and A.H. 989 (A.D. 1581), during a journey to Kashmīr in Akbar's reign, respectively. The Muntakhah-alash'ar, No. 166 (ib. col. 243), makes the poet a native of Transoxania, and the Makhzan-algharā'ih, No. 572 (ib. col. 327), fixes distinctly Bukhārā as his birthplace; the Ā'in-i-Akbārī (English translation by Blochmann, Calcutta, 1873, vol. i. p. 187) calls him Samarkandī, but see the foot-note on the same page; other tadkiras, for instance, Ilāhī's خزینة گنج (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 75), style him Hāirātī Marwī. For other copies see Bodleian Cat., No. 1031; Rieu ii. p. 874, and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 424. The ghazals in this copy are arranged alphabetically, but only go down to the letter ع.

copyist is Shaikh Maṣṣūr, who transcribed this MS. at Bardawān (بردوان).

The five epic poems of Mirzā Muḥammad Kāsim alḥnsainī of Gūnābād (or Junābid) in Khurāsān, with the takhalluṣ Kāsimi, who flourished under Shāh Tahmāsp (A.H. 930-984=A.D. 1524-1576); the date of his death is not absolutely fixed; as he is spoken of as still alive in the Nafā'is-almaāthir (compiled between A.H. 973 and 979=A.D. 1565-1571, 1572, see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 52), he cannot have died before A.H. 979, comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 513-517; Rieu ii. pp. 660 and 661; G. Flügel i. pp. 602 and 603; A. This copy contains:

A short preface in prose, by the author himself, beginning, on fol. 1^b: بعد از حمد و سپاس الهی و درود
بی قباس بر حضرت رسالت پناهی صلی الله علیه وآله
نموده می آید الخ

The five mathnawis in the following order:

1. Shāhnāma or Shahnāma (شهنامة or شاهنامه), also styled شاهنامه اسمعیل; اسمعیل نامه (so in No. 515 of the Bodleian Cat.); شاهنشاه نامه (so in Taḳī Kāshī, A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 44, No. 609, and in No. 514 of the Bodleian Cat.); شاهانشاه نامه (so in Ilāhī, ib. p. 83). It contains a poetical history of Shāh Ismā'il Ṣafawī, and was completed A.H. 940 (A.D. 1533, 1534), see Rieu ii. p. 661^a.

Beginning, on fol. 3^b:

خداوند بیچون خدائی تراست
بر اقلیم جان پادشائی تراست

The continuation or second daftar of this epos, containing the poetical history of the greater part of Shāh Tahmāsp's reign, seems to be really extant only in one copy of the British Museum Collection (see Rieu ii. p. 661^b). According to Ilāhī, loc. cit., both parts of this epos, together with the شاهرخ نامه (No. 5 below), formed one great historical mathnawī in three کتاب.

2. Lailā u Majnūn (للیلی و مجنون), beginning, on fol. 58^b:

ای نامه بنام تو مستجل - مجنون ره تو عقل اول

3. Gūi u Caugān (گوی و چوگان), or 'the ball and the hat,' also styled Kārnama (کارنامه), beginning, on fol. 92^b:

این نامه که هست حسب حالی
طغرائش بنام ذو الجلالی

4. Khusrau u Shirin (خسرو و شیرین), composed A. H. 950 (A. D. 1543, 1544), beginning, on fol. 106^b:

الهی قاسمی را دیدور ساز
بروی گلرخانش کن نظر باز

5. Shāhrukhnāma (شاهرخ نامه), a poetical history of Sultān Shāhrukḥ (A. H. 807-850=A. D. 1405-1447), composed in the same year, A. H. 950, but after the preceding mathnawī, since both that and Lailā and Majnūn are mentioned as previous poetical achievements by the author in the preface of this work. Beginning, on fol. 146^b:

الهی بحق پادشائی تراست
همه بنده ایم و خدائی تراست

No date.

No 888, ff. 202, 4 coll., each ll. 21; Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece at the beginning of the preface and of each mathnawī; miniature paintings on ff. 6^b, 16^a, 18^b, 19^a, 22^b, 25^a, 28^a, 29^b, 34^a, 35^b, 37^a, 38^b, 40^a, 42^a, 43^b, 51^b, 65^b, 68^a, 71^a, 73^b, 76^b, 78^b, 79^b, 81^a, 98^a, 109^b, 115^b, 124^b, 131^b, 133^b, 135^b, 140^b, 159^b, 162^a, 164^b, 166^a, 168^a, 169^b, 173^a, 175^a, 177^a, 178^b, 186^a, 193^a, 194^b, and 197^a; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Another copy of Kāsimi's Shāhnāma.

No date; some pages injured; beginning as in the preceding copy. The transcriber was Muḥammad alkiwām of Shirāz. College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2140, ff. 216, 2 centre-coll., each ll. 9, with a third on the margin of ff. 196-216, ll. 18; the first two pages richly illuminated, but rather effaced, like the text of the first baits; clear and distinct Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Diwān-i-Rahā'i (دیوان رهایی).

The lyrical poems of Shaikh Sa'd-aldin Rahā'i of Khwāf (or, as the Muntakhab-alash'ar, No. 258, col. 245 in the Bodleian Cat., states, of Harāt), a descendant of the famous saint Zain-aldin Khwāfi (who died in the beginning of Shawwāl, A. H. 838=A. D. 1435, last of April, see Blochmann, Ā'in-i-Akbari, English translation, vol. i. p. 592 and note; another Zain-aldin Khwāfi was the oldest translator of Bābar's memoirs, and died A. H. 940=A. D. 1533, 1534, see No. 215 in this Cat.); he came to India under Akbar and spent his life in the emperor's service; he was still alive A. H. 983 (A. D. 1575, 1576), as the chronogram at the end of this copy

سال اتمام آن اگر جوئی - رشتۀ جان چاک الخ

(the end of the second hemistich is injured) proves; consequently the date of his death, as given in the Nafā'is-almaāthir and in Badā'uni (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 49. l. 3 ab infra, and p. 58. l. 7 ab infra), must needs be wrong; comp. on this poet, Bodleian Cat., No. 1037 (a much fuller collection of poetical works by Rahā'i); A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 545; Safinah, No. 398 (col. 225 in the Bodleian Cat., where he is said to have written an imitation of Nizāmi's Khamsah); Ātashkada, No. 173

(ib. col. 268), and Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 833 (ib. col. 333); see also Blochmann, Ā'in-i-Akbari, vol. i. p. 592.

This copy, in which the proper order of leaves is as follows: ff. 1, 113-119, 2, 4, 6, 5, 3, 7-17, 25, 19-24, 18, 26-112, 120, contains:

Nos. 1115 and 1116). Hijri died A. H. 984 (A. D. 1576, 1577), comp. besides the Haft Iklim, loc. cit., Takī Kāshi, No. 573 (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 42); Nafā'is-almaāthir (ib. p. 55. l. 3); Ilāhi (ib. p. 87. l. 8 ab infra); Safinah, No. 190 (col. 217 in the Bodleian Cat.); Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 3051 (ib. col. 394), and Rieu i. p. 335^b. 1441

Diwân-i-Hijri (دیوان هجری).

The lyrical poems of another poet, with the same takhlilus, Hijri, who was, as the contents of this diwân prove, one of the court-poets of the emperor Akbar, and is probably identical with the Khwâjah Hijri, mentioned by Badâ'ûni (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 65, ll. 5 and 4 ab infra) as a descendant of Shaikh Aḥmad-i-Jâm Nâmaḳi (see the Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 308, col. 305 in this Cat.), comp. also Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 3047 (col. 394 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Safinah, No. 189 (ib. col. 217), where he is called Hijri of Farghâna, and stated to have been in Akbar's service.

This diwân contains:

Kāshidas and tarkibbānds, mostly in honour of the emperor Akbar, beginning, on fol. 1^b:

ملك هندوستان كه برخويان زنگی پيكر است
اصل آن خاک و زمين گویا زمشك و عنبر است

This first poem is introduced by a rubā'i, beginning:

این نسخه كه وصف ملك هندوستانست
نورس چمن بر از گل و ریحانست

Similar headings in form of rubā'is and even of kit'as are given to most of the poems. At the end of this part is a ta'rikh for the death of the emperor Humāyūn: حیف زان پادشه عارف دانای حکیم = A. H. 963 (A. D. 1556).

رسید آن تازه آبامی كه گل در بوستان آبد
زشاخ سنبل تربوی زلف دلستان آبد

Muḳaṭṭa'āt and rubā'is, beginning, on fol. 34^a (not on fol. 34^b, where the heading is placed by mistake):

شها و شهریارا بر تو یا رب — مبارك مقدم فرزند بادا

No date; among the many entries and notes on fol. 1^a, the oldest appears to be A. H. 1015, 19th of Jumādā-alawwal = A. D. 1606, Sept. 22. This copy belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson.

No. 791, ff. 40, 2 coll., each ll. 17; clear and distinct Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispiece; size, 9½ in. by 6 in.

Diwān-i-Mushfikī (دیوان مشفقی).

The first diwān of Mullā Mushfikī of Bukhārā, who went twice to India under Akbar, but returned again to Bukhārā where he died, comp. Blochmann, Ā'in-i-Akbari, English translation, vol. i. p. 583. He was born A.H. 945 (A.D. 1538, 1539), and died A.H. 994 (A.D. 1586); his family was of Marw; see also A. This first collection of his lyrical poems was made, according to the ta'rikh at the end (اتمام یافت), A.H. 973 (A.D. 1565, 1566), and contains chiefly ghazals in alphabetical order, with a few kit'as, a muthallath, and a short series of rubā'is at the end. Beginning:

A copy of the second diwān of Mushfikī, collected A.H. 983 (A.D. 1575, 1576), is described in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1044; and in A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 508 and 509.

Diwān-i-Muhtasham (دیوان محتشم).

A defective copy of the complete lyrical poems of Maulānā Muhtasham Kāshi, the teacher and friend of Ṭaqī-al-din Kāshi, the author of the famous tadhkirah; he flourished under the Shāhs Tahmāsp, Isma'il II, and Muḥammad Khudābāuda, and died A.H. 996 (A.D. 1588), see Rieu ii. pp. 665 and 666; G. Flügel i. p. 591; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 23 and 500; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1050 and 1239, 45; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 35, No. 13 (where a تاریخ on the accession of Shāh Isma'il II is noticed), pp. 101, No. 12, and 543 (a مرثیه on the death of Ḥasan and Ḥusain), p. 723, No. 8 (Kašidas), and p. 724, No. 10 (another مرثیه); and H. Khalfa iii. p. 312, No. 5655. The Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 250 (col. 311 in the Bodleian Cat.), fixes the poet's death wrongly in A.H. 1000 (A.D. 1591, 1592).

This copy contains:

Kašidas, on fol. 1^a, beginning:

ای گوهر نام تو تاج سر دیوانها
ذکر تو بصد عنوان آرایش عنوانها

This series breaks off in the letter م, on fol. 87^b, in consequence of a large lacuna after fol. 87; the last bait appearing here, corresponds to fol. 114^b, l. 4 ab infra, margin-column, in the following copy, being there the last bait but one of the ghazal in question.

Ghazals, second series, likewise in alphabetical order, on fol. 88^a, beginning: تا همتم بدست طلب زد در بلا الخ.

This second series breaks off in the letter د, on fol. 116^b, in consequence of another large lacuna.

Risāla-i-Jalāliyyah (رساله جلالیه), on fol. 117^a, defective at the beginning; comp. on this series of sixty-four ghazals with a preface in prose and aesthetic remarks at the head of each, Bodleian Cat., No. 1050, and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 500. The remark in the latter work, that this series was composed A.H. 997, must be an error, as the poet died A.H. 996. The first ghazal here begins: بودی در چمن ای کعبه حاجتمندان الخ.

No date. The copy was received into the Library Oct. 29, 1838, presented by Mr. Hawkins.

Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 902, last line, his father's name was simply Khwājah Balawī) of Shirāz, with the takhalluṣ 'Urfi, who came to India A. H. 994 (A. D. 1586), and died at Lāhur in Shawwāl, A. H. 999 (A. D. 1591, July, August), not 1002, as Takī Kāshī wrongly asserts (see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 37, No. 494); coup. 1. Ḳaṣīdas, on fol. 1^b, beginning (as in the British Museum, Bodleian, and Berlin copies):

ای متاع درد در بازار جان انداخته
گوهر هر سود در جیب زبان انداخته

The second ḳaṣīdah, on fol. 2^b, انبیا کرم الخ, is the initial poem of the following two copies and of that in A. Sprenger's Catal.

Special collections of these ḳaṣīdas are noticed in W. Pertsch, p. 65, No. 11; p. 696, No. 3, and p. 714, No. 1 in 686; one particular ḳaṣīdah, styled همراہ مہماس, is mentioned, ib. p. 74, No. 3, and p. 79, No. 3. Persian commentaries on 'Urfi's ḳaṣīdas by Munir Mirzâ Jân (the latter styled مفتاح التکات, and completed A. H. 1073=A. D. 1662, 1663), Kutb-al-dīn (A. H. 1101=A. D. 1689, 1690), and Rājū 'ulwī (styled نگارنامہ فیضی, A. H. 1111=A. D. 1699, 1700), are described in No. 1054 of the Bodleian Cat.; in Rieu ii. p. 668^b; and in A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 529 and 530 respectively; five different Turkish commentaries on certain ḳaṣīdas and mukatta'ât in G. Flügel i. pp. 594 and 595. The ḳaṣīdas have been printed in Calcutta, A. H. 1254 (A. D. 1839), with a commentary by Ahuad ibn 'Abd-alrahīm (also noticed in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 530); and (with some mukatta'ât and tarjī's) in Lucknow, without a date; a شرح قصائد عرفی and a دیوان عرفی also appeared in Lucknow, 1880; an English translation of selected ḳaṣīdas of 'Urfi was published in Calcutta, 1887.

2. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 55^b, beginning:

تحفہ مرہم نگیرد خاطر (سینہ افکار ما
سانہ گل بر نتابد گوشہ دستار ما

comp. A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 529, l. 3, and Nos. 1052 and 1053 in the Bodleian Cat.; other collections of 'Urfi's ghazals are noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 62, No. 3. b; and p. 701, No. 40.

3. Kit'as, on fol. 151^b, beginning: ای که در آئینه ام خود را سیه رو دیده‌ای

The usual initial poem of this part ای دل رازن الخ is found here, on fol. 152^a, l. 4 ab infra.

4. Rub'is, on fol. 160^b, beginning:

یا رب نفسی ده که ثنا بردارم
و بن نغمه باهنگ سزا بردارم

see No. 1052 in the Bodleian Cat.

5. Majma'-alabkâr (مجمع الایکار), a mathnawî in imitation of Nizâmî's Makhzan-alasrâr (but not with the same title, as is wrongly stated in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 529), on fol. 176^b, beginning:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - موج نخستست ز بحر قدیم

see H. Khalfa v. p. 389, No. 11416; Krafft, p. 69; and an additional copy in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 64, No. 8. c.

6. Farhâd u Shirîn (فرهاد و شیرین), or, as it is styled in the colophon of the following copy: Khusrâu u Shirîn, another mathnawî, on fol. 215^b, beginning:

خداوندا دلم بی نور تنگست
دل من سنگ و کوه طور سنگست

Both the prose-preface and the Sâkinâma (see the following copies) are wanting in this collection.

Dated by Shaikh Muḥammad Sa'id of Bukhârâ, A. H. 1021 (A. D. 1612. 1613); at the end of this copy there appears the same chronogram, which is noticed in G. Flügel i. p. 593, in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 529, and in Rosen, p. 263, viz.:

این درج (طرفه) نکات سحری و اعجازی
چون گشت مکمل زرقم (برقم) بردازی
مجموعه طراز قدس تأرخست گفت (یافت)
اول دیوان عرفی شیرازی

which gives as date for the completion of this collection, A. H. 996 (A. D. 1588), not 986, as Sprenger erroneously states, nor 995, as Flügel asserts, nor 997 or 998, as the transcriber of this copy and the copyist of No. 85 in Rosen's MSS. add. The number of the kaşidas is expressed in this ta'rikh by the units, viz. 1, 6, 4, 6, 1, 1, and 7 = 26; the number of the ghazals by the tens, viz. 30, 10, 50, 70, 80, 10, 10, and 10 = 270; the number of the rub'is and kit'as by the hundreds, viz. 200, 300, and 200 = 700 (i.e. 380 rub'is and 320 kit'as). The further remark of the transcriber of this copy, that this ta'rikh also gives the date of the poet's death, is wrong; the proper chronograms for his decease, viz. 999, are استاد البشر (see A. Sprenger, Cat., p. 112, last line) عرفی جوانه مرگ شدی (quoted in Badâ'ûnî, see Rieu ii. p. 667^a). corresponding to the third ghazal in the preceding copy (fol. 113^a). At the end of the ghazals, the last of which is unalphabetical and rhymes in 1, there are found one ḳaṣidah and two short mathnawîs. Beginning of the first mathnawî, on fol. 100^a:

Latîfa-i-Fayyâdi (لطيفة فياض).

It is styled here simply فياض; the proper title, as given above, is a chronogram for the date of the collection. Hakim 'Ain-almulk of Shirâz, the father of the collector, died the 27th of Dhû-al-hijjah, A.H. 1003 (A.D. 1595, Sept. 2), see his biography in Blochmann, Â'in-i-Akbari, pp. 480 and 481; he had married a sister of Faiḍi and Abû-alfadl.

The work is divided into five chapters, called لطيفه, viz.:

1. Letters addressed to the Emperor Akbar (عرائض فياضى بوالا درگاه خلافتى بنه ظل الهى شاهنشاه جلال الدين والدنيا اكبر بادشاه), on fol. 7^b.

2. Letters addressed to 'Ulamâs and Sûfic Shaikhs (مفاوضات فياضى بشرفاى عظام و علمای علام و عرفاى), on fol. 51^b.

3. Letters addressed to contemporary physicians (مفاوضات كه بحكماء معاصر قلمى شده), on fol. 93^b.

4. Letters addressed to Amirs, Khâns, etc. (بامراء), on fol. 116^a.

5. Letters addressed to his father, brothers, and other relatives (رئائى كه بوالد بزرگوار و اخوان و اقارب قلمى شده), on fol. 129^a; the last letters are all addressed to his brother Abû-alfadl. Another brother of his was Abû-alkhair. The five latîfas are preceded by Faiḍi's preface to his diwân (see No. 1464 above), beginning here with the initial bait of the first kašidah: يا ازلى الظهور يا ابدى الخفا الخ.

The three mantûkas and the khâtimah which, according to Faiḍi's own statement, were to follow after the five latîfas, are wanting in this copy, just as in Rieu's.

Dated the 22nd of Shawwâl, in the fourth year of 'Âlamgir's reign (= A.H. 1072, A.D. 1662, June 10).

Sprenger, loc. cit., the collection of Sahâbi's rubâ'is is styled حقائق معنوى.

The quatrains are arranged alphabetically, and begin:

Diwān-i-Āṣaf (دیوان آصف).

A defective copy of the lyrical compositions of a poet, who, according to a number of chronograms on fol. 67^b, and the names of the distinguished persons mentioned there, must have flourished under Shāh 'Abbās the Great in the beginning of the eleventh century of the Hijrah. His ghazals, all consisting of a very short number of haits, contain no takhalluṣ; but from the frequent appearance of آصف and آصاف in the beginning of haits, on fol. 66^b, ll. 5, 9, and 12, and fol. 67^a, l. 10, we conclude, that he styled himself Āṣaf, but he is decidedly not identical with Āṣaf Ḳummi, or Nizām-al-din Āṣafjāb, with the takhalluṣ Āṣaf, both of whom belong to a much later period and lived at the court of the Moghul emperors in India (see the other Diwān-i-Āṣaf, further down). The dates appearing on fol. 67^b are: A. H. 1008 (ماوای خوشدلی), on the laying out of a garden by Āḳā Khidr; A. H. 1012 (منزل خدای), on the building of a mosque by the same; A. H. 1018 (حیف از اعتماد الدوله ایران پناه), on the death of Shāh 'Abbās' famous wazīr I'timād-aldaulah Ḥātim-heg (otherwise fixed in A. H. 1019, see Rieu i. p. 185^b); and A. H. 1019 (جانشمین پدر مدام شدی), on the appointment of Ḥātim-heg's son Ṭālibkhān (otherwise called Abū Ṭālibkhān, see Rieu i. p. 187^a), as his father's successor; an earlier date, viz. A. H. 1005 (چشم من بینور شد), on the death of Amir Nūr-al-din Muḥammad Ṭabāṭābā'i, appears, on fol. 68^a, l. 3.

This diwān contains:

Ḳaṣīdas, kiṭ'as, and tarkibbands, with the before-mentioned chronograms at the end, on fol. 57^a, beginning abruptly in the middle of a poem.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, intermixed with and followed by rubā'is and fards, on fol. 68^b, beginning:

ای زو بند بر زبان نطق سخن سرای را
فکر تو باعث جنون عقل گره گشای را

No date.

No. 284, ff. 57-95, 2 coll., each ll. 15; very careless Nasta'liq; size, 7½ in. by 4 in.

Diwān-i-Sanjar (دیوان سنجر).

Complete poetical works of Mir Muḥammad Ḥāshim, with the takhalluṣ Sanjar, the son of Mir Rafī'-al-din Ḥaidar Mu'ammā'i of Kāshān, with the takhalluṣ Rafī' (the great riddle-writer, who died A. H. 1032 = A. D. 1622, 1623, see Safinah, No. 394 in Bodleian Cat., col. 224). Sanjar came to India A. H. 1000 (A. D. 1591, 1592), where the emperor Akbar bestowed upon him the takhalluṣ Farāghī (used by him in some ghazals); after being imprisoned by Akbar and finally released, he went to Ibrāhīm 'Adīlshāh's court in Bijāpūr and died there, A. H. 1021 (A. D. 1612, 1613); comp. Blochmann, Ā'in-i-Akbari, p. 595; Rieu ii. p. 675^a; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 909; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 123 and 571; see also Safinah, No. 366 (col. 223 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khazāna-i-āmīrah, No. 58 (ib., col. 257), and Ātashkada, No. 574 (ib. col. 282). Sanjar's brother, Mir Ma'sūm (who died A. H. 1052 = A. D. 1642, 1643), was likewise a good poet, see Safinah, loc. cit., No. 395.

Contents:

Kaṣīdas (in honour of Akbar, Sultān Khusrau bin Jahāngīrshāh etc.) and kiṭ'as, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 44^b, beginning:

اختیاری (اختیار) خود داری هر چه میکنی یارِ الخ

At the end of this part some rubā'is.

A mathnawī, without any title (probably a sāqinama), on fol. 125^b, beginning:

الهی سینۀ درد آشنا ده
غم از هر دل که بستانی بما ده

This last part is much injured.

Dated A. H. 1041 (A. D. 1631, 1632).

No. 1088, ff. 143, 2 coll., each ll. 16; Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b, 44^b, and 125^b; size, 7½ in. by 4 in.

Diwān-i-Nāziri (دیوان نظیری).

The lyrical poems of Mullā Muḥammad Husain Nāziri of Nishāpūr, a pupil of Maḥshari of Khwāndsār in Gujarāt (see Safinah, No. 362, col. 223 in the Bodleian Cat.). He lived some time in Kāshān, where he had poetical contests with contemporary poets, and went then to India, where he entered the service of the Khānkhānān. In A. H. 1012 (A. D. 1603, 1604) he performed the pilgrimage to Makkah, and afterwards went to Gujarāt. He died in Aḥmadābād, A. H. 1021 (A. D. 1612, 1613), according to two ta'rikhs, viz. دُنیا, رفت حسان العجم آه, quoted in the Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 2738 (col. 385 in the Bodleian Cat.); the date A. H. 1022, as given in Blochmann, Ā'in-i-Akbari, p. 580 note, arises from the incorrect reading of the chronogram as از دُنیا الخ, which is against the metre (هزج), and مرکز دائرۀ بزم کجا است, by Dāghistāni (see Blochmann, loc. cit.); the Khazāna-i-āmirah also fixes his death in A. H. 1021 (No. 124, col. 259, in the Bodleian Cat.). Other, incorrect, dates given are A. H. 1019 (in the Tabakāt-i-Shāhjahāni = A. D. 1610, 1611) and A. H. 1023 (A. D. 1614), see Safinah, No. 552 (col. 229 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Ouseley, Biographical Notices, p. 252. The Hamisha Bahār (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 130) assigns the poet's death, quite wrongly, to the beginning of Shāhjahān's reign. Other copies of Nāziri's diwān are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1074 and 1075; Rieu ii. pp. 817^b and 818^a; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 515, 516; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 701, No. 37, and p. 908; comp. also Haft Iklim, No. 764 (col. 433 in this Cat.); Ātashkada (No. 284, col. 272 in the Bodleian Cat.); and A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 65 and 114. Nāziri's brother, Maulānā Sharaf of Nishāpūr, was a famous musician in the service of the Khānkhānān, see Blochmann, p. 613, note 3.

This diwān contains:

Kaṣīdas and tarji'bands, without any order, beginning, on fol. 1^b:

ای جلالت خلوت از اغیار تنها ساخته
حکمت تو از کرم دی کار فردا ساخته

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 114^b, with some rubā'is at the end (on fol. 276^b sq.). Beginning of the initial ghazal:

اذا ما شئت ان تحیی حیوة حلوة الحیا
برسوائی بر آور سر ز مستوری برون نه پا

Beginning of the initial rubā'i: از دوست منادی است:

از (correctly اندر as in No. 3341) رگ وبوست الخ

Dated at Haidarābād the 8th of Jumādā-alākhār, A. H. 1062 (A. D. 1652, May 17).

No. 85, ff. 286, 2 coll., each ll. 17-18; careless Nasta'lik; size, 9 in. by 5½ in.

Another, very defective, copy of Nāziri's diwān.

Contents:

Kaṣīdas and tarji'bands, on fol. 1^b, beginning as in the preceding copy. This part breaks off already, on fol. 54^b, in consequence of a very large lacuna, in a kaṣīdah in praise of 'Alī; the last bait appearing here corresponds to fol. 7^b, l. 9 in the preceding copy.

Ghazals, on fol. 55^a, defective at the beginning, in consequence of the same lacuna; they begin here with the last hemistich of a poem, rhyming in ش, viz.:

شود پروانه را بال و پَرانش corresponding to fol. 206^a, l. 3 ab infra in the preceding copy.

Rubā'is, on fol. 127^a, last line, beginning: آن کیست که بازم الخ, corresponding to the second rubā'i in the preceding copy.

This part too is incomplete at the end, and breaks off on fol. 137^b.

No. 296, ff. 48-137, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Nasta'lik; size, 8 in. by 4 in.

Nāziri's ghazals and rubā'is.

The ghazals, arranged alphabetically, begin, on fol. 1^b, with the usual initial bait: اذا ما شئت الخ.

Rubā'is, on fol. 150^b, beginning:

ای از تو صور نگار هر جا کوری
زب از تو دهد بعاریت هر عوری

This is the fifth rubā'i in No. 85 (1489 in this Cat.), and the first in No. 1074 of the Bodleian Cat.

No date.

No. 474, ff. 156, 2 coll., each ll. 15; clear and distinct Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

1492

Anotber, slightly defective, copy of the same.
Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning as usual.

Rubā'is, on fol. 190^b, beginning: از دوست منادی است الخ.

This part is incomplete at the end; the last rubā'i, on fol. 192^b, يك قوم مسافر الخ, corresponds to fol. 278^a, last two lines in No. 85 (1489 in this Cat.). Ff. 91^b and 92^a are left blank; some slight injuries here and there.

No. 3341, olim 13. J. 20, ff. 192, 2 coll., each ll. 14-15; careless Nasta'liq; size, 7 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. by 4 in.

Ghiyāthbeg died in Rabi' I, A.H. 1031 (A.D. 1622, Jan.-Feb.), see Blochmann, Ā'in-i-Akbari, p. 509. The exact date of Wasli's death is not known, see Haft Iklim, No. 1116 (col. 461 in this Cat.); Safinah, No. 191 (col. 217 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 2971 (ib., col. 391).

This collection contains:

Ghazals, rubā'is, and fards, in alphabetical order, on fol. 61^b, beginning:

خوشوقت و خندان بگذران خوشوقت و خندان صبح را
شاید که تا صبح دگر در یافت نتوان صبح را

Tarjī'at and some rubā'is, on fol. 82^b, beginning:

چه کرده ام که دگر مهر بر دهان داری

Another mathnawī, entitled خسرو و شیرین, 'the love-story of Khusrau and Shirin,' on fol. 101^b, beginning:

الهی شیوه طاعت عطا کن - بنور خود دلم را آشنا کن
This poem is incomplete in consequence of a lacuna after fol. 108.

Another series of ḳaṣidas, tarjī's, ḳiṭ'as, ghazals, and rubā'is, beginning abruptly (in consequence of the same lacuna), on fol. 109^a, in the middle of a ḳaṣidah, rhyming in ی.

Dated by 'Abd-alrakib, the 24th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1069 (A.D. 1659, July 15).

Zulālī (Nos. 1494-1498).

Sab' Sayyārab (سبع سیاره).

The seven mathnawīs of Ḥakim Zulālī of Kbwānsār in 'Irāq, who flourished under Shāh 'Abbās I and died soon after the completion of the best known among his epopees, the محمود و ایاز (No. 2 in this collection), which was finished A.H. 1024 (A.D. 1615), but left unarranged, that is to say, either in the same year 1024, or in A.H. 1025 (A.D. 1616), see the remarks in Tāhir Naṣrābādī's tadhkirah (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 91), where, however, the wrong date of A.H. 1020 (A.D. 1611, 1612) is given for the completion of that mathnawī. The earlier date of Zulālī's death, given in the Safinah, No. 382 (col. 224 in the Bodleian Cat.), as well as in the Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 32 (ib., col. 297), viz. A.H. 1016, is an evident mistake for 1026 (A.D. 1617); likewise wrong is the later date, A.H. 1031 (A.D. 1622), which is found in the Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 116 (ib., col. 306); the Haft Iklim, which was completed A.H. 1002 (A.D. 1593, 1594), mentions Zulālī in No. 976 (col. 449 in this Cat.), but, of course, without any reference to his mathnawīs which were not yet written at that time. Comp. on Zulālī and his mathnawīs Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1081-1084; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 592 and 593; and Rieu ii. pp. 677 sq. According to the Ātashkada, No. 436 (col. 277 in the Bodleian Cat.), Shaikh 'Abd-alḥusain of Kamrah put Zulālī's works in order, and Mullā Tughra of Mashhad wrote a preface to them (see below in No. 1497). The seven mathnawīs, which are also styled هفت سیاره, سبعة سیاره, آشوب, or, as here (and in No. 1497 too), آشوب نامه, are arranged in the following order in this copy:

1. Sulaimānnāma (سليمان نامه), also styled Sulaimān u Balkis (سليمان و بلقيس), the story of king Solomon and the queen of Sheba, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

بنام جهانگیر دلهای تنگ - که آمد سلیمانش يك مور لنگ

Of the author's prose-preface to this mathnawī only a portion is left, on fol. 1^a, beginning: سواد مبارك مدتی الخ, corresponding to No. 253 (1496 in this Cat.), fol. 48^b, l. 5 ab infra.

2. Maḥmūd wa Ayāz (محمود و ایاز), the story of Sultān Maḥmūd of Ghazna and his beloved slave Ayāz, preceded on fol. 20^b by a preface, which combines the general دیباجه of the seven mathnawīs with the special short preamble, belonging to this poem exclusively (as a comparison with No. 1496 in this Cat. and with No. 1081 in the Bodleian Cat. proves, comp. also Rieu ii. p. 677^b), beginning:

و. تصویر صنعت صانعی و قادری را مقدور و مصورست الخ
The special preface (not separated from the other) begins on fol. 21^b, l. 11, the mathnawī itself on fol. 22^b:

بنام آنکه محمودش ایازست - غمش بتخانه ناز و نیازست
This mathnawī was commenced in A.H. 1001 (A.D. 1592, 1593) and completed A.H. 1024 (A.D. 1615), see the chronogram in Rieu and Sprenger, loc. cit. The poet was therefore engaged in it for twenty-three years, not merely for thirteen, as the Safinah and the Khulāṣat-alkalām assert (see above). It was edited Lucknow, A.H. 1290 (A.D. 1874). A defective copy of the same is also noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 910.

3. Shu'la-i-Didār (شعله دیدار), 'the flame of vision,' a mystical and didactic mathnawī in forty-nine شعله or flames, preceded, on fol. 174^b, by a preface, beginning: سبحان الله از تنبیه این آیه در فهرست نظر. شعله دیدار الخ. Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 175^b:

نام او تاج سر هر نامۀ - شعله دیدار هر هنگامه

4. Maikhāna (میخانه), 'the wine-tavern,' in forty قح or cups, preceded, on fol. 194^b, by a preface, beginning: الحمد لله از دوستکانی این آیه الهی پیمانه الخ. Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 196^b:

نام او باده سینه میخانه - دهن هر که هست پیمانه

5. Ḥusn-i-Gulūsūz (حسن گلوسوز), 'the sweetest beauty,' in forty-one جلو or effulgences, preceded, on fol. 218^a, by a preface, beginning: تعالی شأنه ازین آیه. مطالعه فیروز در شان فهرست الخ. Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 219^b:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - نص صحیح است کلام قدیم

The initial bait in No. 1081 of the Bodleian Cat., viz.:
بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - تیر شهابست بدیور رحیم is found here on fol. 220^b, l. 5 ab infra.

6. Ādhar u Samandar (آذر و سمندر), 'fire and salamander,' preceded, on fol. 243^b, by a preface, beginning: آه ازین آیه دلسوز اثر در جگر گدازی الخ. Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 245^b:

نامش عشقست و حسن دفتر - آتش ساقیست کوسمندر

7. Dharra u Khwushid (ذره و خورشید), 'moth and sun,' preceded, on fol. 260^b, by a preface, beginning: ما شاء الله ازین آیه بیم و امید در فهرست نثر الخ. Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 261^b:

سخنم کرد بنامش جاوید - ذره را جوهر تیغ خورشید

The initial bait in No. 1081 of the Bodleian Cat. (quoted in Sprenger, loc. cit., too), viz.

نام او کرد مرا شعله فروز - نتوان گفت باتش که مسوز

IND. OFF.

is found here, on fol. 261^b, lin. penult., as the twelfth verse of the poem. In the same copy of the Bodleian Cat. an eighth mathnawī, without title, is noticed.

No date.

No. 403, ff. 271, 2 coll., each ll. 21; Nasta'liq; size, 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

1495

Another copy of Zulālī's seven mathnawīs.

All the prefaces are wanting in this copy, which is dated A.H. 1155 (A.D. 1742, 1743) by Kāsim bin 'Aziz-allāh of Jarbādḡān.

The seven mathnawīs are here arranged in the following order:

1. Maḥmūd wa Ayāz, on ff. 1^b-106^b, centre-columns.
2. Husn-i-Gulūsūz, on fol. 1^b sq., margin-column.
3. Dharra u Khwushid, on fol. 31^b sq., margin-column.
4. Ādhar u Samandar, on fol. 45^b sq., margin-column.
5. Shu'la-i-Didār, on fol. 51^b sq., margin-column.
6. Sulaimānāma, on fol. 62^b sq., margin-column.
7. Maikhāna, on ff. 97^a-106^b, margin-column, and ff. 107^a-113, both centre-columns and margin-column. The beginnings are the same as in the preceding copy.

No. 1909, ff. 113, 2 centre-coll., each ll. 23, and a margin-col., ll. 20; small, but clear Nasta'liq; size, 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 5 in.

The same, without the Maikhāna.

Contents:

The general preface or دیباچه by the author, beginning, on fol. 1^a, as in No. 1494, fol. 20^b sq.: نقییر قدرت و تصویر صنعت صانعی و قادری را الخ. The special preface to Maḥmūd wa Ayāz begins on fol. 1^b middle.

The six mathnawīs, with their prefaces, contained in this copy, are in the following order (all of them in a somewhat short and abridged form):

1. Maḥmūd wa Ayāz, on fol. 2^a.
2. Shu'la-i-Didār, on fol. 37^b (headed نسخۀ دوم).
3. Ḥusn-i-Gulūsūz, on fol. 40^b (headed رسالۀ سیم), beginning here as in No. 1081 of the Bodleian Cat., see above, No. 1494, 5. The usual beginning is here the thirteenth bait, with this modification, however, in the second hemistich: نص صحیحست و کلام کلیم.
4. Ādhar u Samandar, on fol. 44^b (headed رسالۀ چهارم).
5. Dharra u Khwushid, on fol. 47^b (headed رسالۀ پنجم), beginning, as in No. 1081 of the Bodleian Cat.: viz. نام او کرد مرا شعله فروز الخ, comp. above, No. 1494, 7, where this bait is the twelfth of the mathnawī.
6. Sulaimānāma, on fol. 49^a (headed رسالۀ ششم), beginning as usual, but with this slight modification in the second hemistich: که آمد سلیمانی یک مورنگ. Instead of the seventh mathnawī of Zulālī, the Maikhāna, this copy contains Wahshi Bāfī's فرهاد و شبرین, beginning, on fol. 50^b, as in Nos. 1444 and 1445 above, viz.: الهی سینه ده آتش افروز الخ. Wahshi's is nevertheless designated here as رسالۀ هفتم.

No date. The right order of ff. 2-10 is: 2, 6, 4, 5, 8, 9, 7, 3, and 10.

On Mullā Ṭughrā of Mashhad, who died somewhat before A.H. 1078 (A.D. 1667), see Bodleian Cat. No. 1389, and the various collections of his poetical and prose works further below in this Cat., Nos. 1586-1591.

This copy is dated the 27th of Rabī' al-thānī, A.H. 1092 (A.D. 1681, May 16), at Ibrāhīmābād, usually called Sodharah (سودهره), in the district of Lāhūr. Collated. It belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson, A.H. 1194 (A.D. 1780).

Kullīyāt-i-Malik Ḳummi (کلیات ملک قمی).

The poetical works of Malik Ḳummi, who went about A.H. 987 (A.D. 1579) to the Dakhan, where he lived nearly forty years, first in Aḥmadnagar, later on in Bijāpūr in the service of Ibrāhīm 'Adilshāh II (A.H. 988-1037=A.D. 1580-1627), and died A.H. 1024 or 1025 (A.D. 1615 or 1616), according to some two months, according to others one year before his son-in-law, the poet Żuhūrī (see No. 1500 sq.); a few tadhkiras even state, that both poets died in the same affray, A.H. 1025. The latter date is, as far as Malik Ḳummi is concerned, corroborated by the following chronogram: او سراهل سخن بود, comp. A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 125, 151, and 481; Safinah, No. 560 (col. 229 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 262 (ib., col. 311); Beale, Oriental Biogr. Dictionary, p. 168^a; see also Rieu ii. p. 678, and iii. p. 1091^a. A son of Malik Ḳummi, Maulānā 'Abd-alkhālik Samandar, who excelled as poet also, died, according to the Safinah, No. 565 (col. 229 in the Bodleian Cat.), A.H. 1029 (A.D. 1620); according to the Makhzan-algharā'ib,

No. 1089 (ib., col. 338), already A.H. 1016 (A.D. 1607, 1608), nine years before his father.

This collection of the poetical works of Malik Ḳummi contains:

1. A mathnawi, on fol. 90^b, different from both the mathnawis, noticed in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 482; it begins:

بنام آنکه در دلها وطن ساخت
صنم را قبلگاه برهن ساخت

Fol. 103^b is left blank.

2. Kaṣidas, on fol. 121^b, beginning as in Sprenger: دل استاد رموز و خامشی آبات برهانش الخ.

3. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 178^b, beginning:

ای بنامت لوحه دیباچه دیوان ما
صفحه دیوان عشقت چهره ایمان ما

4. Ḳiṭ'as and rubā'is, on fol. 325^a, beginning:

دوش کز مورد بهشت شفا - یافت بیماریم گل بیمار
No date.

No. 240, ff. 90-342, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Nasta'lik; the first two and the last four leaves supplied by a later hand; worm-eaten throughout; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Żuhūrī (Nos. 1500-1514).

Kullīyāt-i-Żuhūrī (کلیات ظهوری).

A large (but by no means complete) collection of the poetical and prose-works of Maulānā Nūr-al-dīn Muḥammad Żuhūrī of Tarshiz, or rather of Khujand near Tarshiz, in Khurāsān, who went in early life to Yazd and betook himself A.H. 988 (A.D. 1580) to the Dakhan, where he, like Malik Ḳummi, first settled in Aḥmadnagar, and afterwards in Bijāpūr. He married Malik Ḳummi's daughter and died, according to most tadhkiras, A.H. 1025 (A.D. 1616), see the preceding copy of Malik Ḳummi's Kullīyāt; only Beale, Oriental Biographical Dictionary, p. 286^b, gives the later date, A.H. 1026 (A.D. 1617), and the Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 44 (col. 298 in the Bodleian Cat.), fixes his death in A.H. 1025 or 1027 (A.D. 1618); see besides Safinah, No. 559 (col. 229 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khazāna-i-'āmirah, No. 75 (ib., col. 258); Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 167 (ib., col. 308); Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 1503 (ib., col. 349), and A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 44, 112, 125, and 151; other copies of Żuhūrī's works are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1076-1080; Rieu ii. pp. 678 and 679, 741 and 742, etc.; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 580; Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 264; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 909 and 910, etc. 'Abd-alrazzāk Sūratī's notice of the poet, under the title of مَقَدِّمَاتُ ظَهْرِي (written A.H. 1212=A.D. 1797, 1798), has been lithographed in Cawnpore, 1873.

The present collection contains:

1. A prose-treatise of the same character as Żuhūrī's well-known prefaces to the Nauras, the Gulzār-i-Ibrāhīm, and the Khwān-i-Khalīl, but different from these three and from all the other treatises hitherto known as con-posed by the same author, in spite of the frequent mention of the گلزار ابراهیم, see fol. 1^b, ll. 4 and 5: گلزار: آب بگلزار ابراهیم; fol. 2^a, l. 4 ab infra: ابراهیم نام نهاد داد, and fol. 4^b, last line: که شد گلزار ابراهیم نامش (the genuine preface to the گلزار ابراهیم follows in No. 4 of the present copy). Beginning, on fol. 1^b:

ای نورس گلزار ابراهیم از تو
وی آتش نمرود تفت بیم از تو
بیرانه داد و زنت عدل توئی
تمکین سرر شان دبهیم از تو

This treatise, in ornate prose, interspersed with verses, seems like the three, mentioned above, written in homage of Ibrāhīm 'Ādilshāh II (see No. 1499).

2. Manba'alanhār (منبع الانهار), a mathnawī, which is ascribed in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 482, to Malik Kūmmī, and appears there in the Kulliyāt of that poet; but the Khulāṣat-alkalām (see above) gives extracts from this poem under Zuhūri, see Elliott Coll., No. 184 in the Bodleian Library, ff. 40^b-44^b. Beginning, on fol. 5^b:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - اهدنا الصراط المستقيم

The title (not mentioned in the Khulāṣat-alkalām) appears in the last bait: منبع انهار ببايان رسيد. It is divided into eighteen نهر, with numerous subdivisions. As a strange coincidence it may be noted, that on fol. 11^a, l. 11, the same bait is used which appears in Zulālī's حسن گلوسوز, see No. 1494, fol. 220^b, l. 5 ab infra, and No. 1496, fol. 40^b, viz.:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - تير شهابست بدو رجم

3. Tarkibbands, tarji's, and ḳasidas, intermixed with some ḳit'as and ghazals, and concluded (on fol. 130^b sq.) by various strings of rubā'is. Beginning, on fol. 66^b:

فتحست کلبد بر گشادیم - بر نه در چرخ در گشادیم

This initial poem has the following heading: بفتح ذر نه تو کلبد گشایش از قلعه گشای فکر گرفتن و ذبل مدحت عادلحدو بر کمر ترکیب بند کرده از خاتمه گرفتن.

4. Preface to the گلزار ابراهیم, in ornate prose, mixed with verses, beginning, as in all other copies of this prose-treatise, on fol. 138^b: خرمی چمن سخن بطراوت: حمد بهار برائست که گلزار ابراهیم در رخسار یوسف طالقان الخ. It is in praise of Ibrāhīm 'Ādilshāh II, and concludes with the following bait:

داستان شد خنم بستان رخس - غیرت گلزار ابراهیم ناد

5. Another series of tarkibbands, tarji's, and ḳasidas, beginning, on fol. 146^b:

ای شده سود از تو زبان همه - جنس غمت زب دکان همه

The initial ḳasidah of No. 1076 of the Bodleian Cat., and of No. 931 in the Berlin Collection cannot be traced in either series of tarkibbands and ḳasidas; nor is the long tarji'band found here, which appears in the same copy of the Bodleian Library, fol. 24^b sq.

6. Ghazaliyyāt (غزلیات), beginning, on fol. 224^b:

بر داشتی نصاب زدیدن برآمدم
در گشتن آمدی زشنیدن برآمدم

The usual initial ghazal, viz. آنکه (or خواهد), is not found in this copy; (see No. 1505), is not found in this copy; all ghazals, however, exhibit the takhalluṣ ظهوری.

7. Another very large collection of rubā'is, divided into twenty-two sections, beginning, on fol. 236^b:

بر مهر زعارض تو تقدیم خوشست
بیش تو زمه سجدۀ تعظیم خوشست

There are also some additional rubā'is on the margin of ff. 244^a-246^b.

This copy is not dated, but is decidedly one of the oldest we possess, since there are, on fol. 1^a, several seals of the emperor Shāhjahān, to whose library this MS. belonged, with the dates A.H. 1045 and 1046 (A.D. 1635-1637).

No. 327, ff. 284, 2 coll., each ll. 18; distinct Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b, 5^b, and 138^b; size, 10½ in. by 5½ in.

Ash'ār-i-Zuhūri (اشعار ظهوری).

A collection of poetical works only by Zuhūri, containing:

1. Tarkibbands and tarji's, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

ای نام تو بر سر زبانها - وی یاد تو در میان جانها
see No. 1076 in the Bodleian Cat.

2. Sākināma (ساقی نامه), the famous mathnawī which Zuhūri dedicated to Burhān Nizāmshāh II of Aḥmadnagar (who reigned A.H. 999-1003=A.D. 1591-1595), on fol. 130^b, beginning:

نناها همه انزد پاکرا - نرتا ده طارم تاکرا

It has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1849. Special copies of this mathnawī are mentioned in the Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1078 and 1079, and col. 766; Rieu ii. pp. 678^b and 679^a; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 64, No. 10 a, and p. 697, No. 11.

3. Ḳasidas, mixed with some ḳit'as and arranged alphabetically, on fol. 275^b, beginning:

ای تشخص ده فنا و بقا - بر بغایت فنای جمله گوا corresponding to fol. 21^b, first line, in the following copy.

This copy, in which Zuhūri's ghazals and rubā'is are entirely wanting, is dated by Darwish Ibn Muḥammad Ṣalīh the 20th of Jumādā-alawwal, A.H. 1116 (A.D. 1704, Sept. 20), in Kashmir.

A ظهوری was lithographed at Lucknow, 1879.

No. 763, ff. 505, 2 coll., each ll. 16, and a loose leaf without a catchword, evidently belonging to the Sākināma; Nasta'lik; an illuminated frontispiece at the beginning of each part; size, 10½ in. by 6 in.

Diwân-i-Žuhûrî (دیوان ظهیری).

A collection of Žuhûrî's lyrical poems, which, however, consists of tarkibbands, tarji's, and kaşidas only, in four distinct sections, viz.:

1. On fol. 1^b, beginning as in the preceding copy:
ای نام تو بر سر زبانها آید

2. On fol. 116^b, beginning:
فصل ریحان و یاسمین آمد - مغز ایام ناه چبن آمد corresponding to fol. 202^b in No. 1500.

3. On fol. 175^b, beginning:
معلم نشاء توفیق و قعد دل دبستانش
مسائل اتحاد حسن عشق و وصل برهانش

4. On fol. 261^b, beginning:
ایام ماتمست بماتمسرا نشین
روز خدای آمده از خود جدا نشین

This last section or series contains exclusively tarkibbands.

Collated. On fol. 1^a there is given as date of this copy the 1st of Rabi'-althâni, A.H. 1071 (third year of 'Ālamgir's reign) = A.D. 1660, Dec. 4. It belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson.

No. 330, ff. 277, 2 coll., each ll. 19; Nasta'lik; size, 10½ in. by 5½ in.

The same.

This very large collection of Žuhûrî's lyrical poems contains, in contrast to the preceding copy, only ghazals and rubā'is.

Beginning of the ghazals, on fol. 1^b:

مستی شده خوش محتسبی شور و شرم را

Beginning of the rubā'is, on fol. 332^a:

ای از تو همه نهان و پیدا پیدا
در مدت تو همیشه فردا فردا

Copied by 'Ibād-allāh bin Sayyid Luṭf-allāh alḥusaini almadani for Mir Muḥammad Ḥusain alḥasani, and dated the 25th of Jumādā-alūlā in the forty-first year of—(probably 'Ālamgir's reign = A.H. 1109, A.D. 1697, Dec. 9).

No. 196, ff. 418, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'lik; size, 9¼ in. by 4¾ in.

The initial ghazal of the preceding copy is found here on fol. 13^b, l. 5; that of No. 196 (1503 in this Cat.) on fol. 5^a, l. 7, beginning here: می امن وامان الخ.

corresponds to the eleventh verse in the usual copies (see fol. 2^a, l. 3 in the preceding copy).

The Nauras was, according to Rieu ii. p. 741^b, a treatise on Indian music, composed by Ibrâhîm 'Âdilshâh II himself, to whom this and the following two prefaces were dedicated; but comp. Rieu iii. p. 1091^a, where a Kitâb-i-Nauras is mentioned as the joint work of Malik Kumûni and Żuhûri.

Diwân-i-Muḥammad Sharif (دیوان محمد شریف).

The lyrical poems of Muḥammad Sharif Kâshî, with the takhalluṣ Sharif, born according to the Safiuh, No. 579 (col. 230 in the Bodleian Cat.), in Bâdkân in Kâshân, went to India A. H. 994 (A. H. 1586), after staying some time in Sistân and Harât during the siege by 'Abdallâhkân Uzbeg, joined the Khânkhâuân's service in Sind, or as the Âtashkada, No. 579 (col. 282 in the Bodleian Cat.), asserts, that of the Kuṭbshâhs, and settled afterwards in Gulkundah, where he died in Jahângir's reign, see besides the Safinah, A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 26, 124, and 567. He was still alive in A. H. 1026 (A. D. 1617), as the date of this copy, which is the poet's autograph, proves. Whether he be identical with the author of the کتاب سراج المنیر (the book of the shining lamp, a collection of moral anecdotes in imitation of Sa'dî's Gulistân), styled Ibn Shams-al-din Muḥammad Sharif, see Bodleian Cat., No. 1241, 9, and Rieu ii. 861^b, is impossible to say; in case he should be, he could not have died before the middle of A. H. 1030, as the date of composition of the سراج المنیر seems to be the end of Rabi'-alawwal of that year (A. D. 1621, Feb.).

Khawrshid u Mâh (خورشید و ماه).

A mystical mathnawi, entitled خورشید و ماه مثنوی خورشید و ماه, قصه خورشید و ماه, composed, according to the colophon, 'sun and moon,' composed, according to the colophon, قصه خورشید و ماه, by a poet of the same name, as the author of the preceding diwân, viz. Muḥammad Sharif Badâ'i Nasafi, who, however, seems to introduce occasionally in this poem the name جامی as a sort of takhalluṣ, viz. fol. 12^a:

درین گلشن بجای خوشدلیم دار

دل افکارم دل افکارم دل افکار
fol. 32^a:

بجای خاطر را جمع گردان

بریشانم بریشانم بریشان

Nân u Halwâ (نان و حلوا).

'Bread and Sweetmeat,' a poem on ascetic life, meant for a sort of introduction to Jalâl-al-din Rûmî's mathnawi, by Shaikh Bahâ-aldin Muḥammad 'Amilî, the son of Mir Sayyid Husain bin 'Abd-alṣamad of Jabal 'Amil in Syria, with the takhalluṣ Bahâ'i: he was born A. H. 953 (A. D. 1546, 1547), went in early youth to Isfahân and flourished in the reign of Shâh 'Abbâs the Great; he died, according to the best authorities, the 12th of Shawwâl, A. H. 1030 (A. D. 1621, Aug. 30); only in one copy of his work on Shi'ite law, the Jâmi'-i-'abbâsi (in Add. 23,578 of the British Museum), in a preface to the sixth bâb, A. H. 1031 (12th of Shawwâl) is given as the date of his death; he was buried at Mashhad by order of Shâh 'Abbâs. See on his life and works Rieu i. pp. 25 and 26; Khulâsat-alkalâm, No. 12 (col. 296 in the Bodleian Cat.), where the following works of the author on Shi'ite law and tradition, mathematics, and astronomy are enumerated:

تشریح، شرق الشمسین، رسالۃ اضطراب، جامع عباسی الافلاک، and خلاصۃ الحساب; besides the present mathnawi, another mystical mathnawi, شیر و شکر or 'milk and sugar,' and the کشکول, a large collection of Analecta; Safinah, No. 572 (col. 230 in the Bodleian Cat.), where to the works just mentioned are added a مفتاح القلاع and a مشرق العین; Âtashkada, No. 360 (ib., col. 275); Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 43 (ib., col. 304); A. Sprenger, Catal. pp. 368 and 369; Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 238; and Malcolm, History of Persia, i. p. 558. Other copies of نان و حلوا are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1085-1088, No. 1239, 29, and col. 768; Rieu ii. p. 679; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 368; W. Pertsch, Turkish Cat., No. 3, 5; Berlin Cat., pp. 116, 1; 668 and 698, 18; and fragments of the same, ib., pp. 30, 1 and 2; and 726, 2; J. Aumer, p. 4, etc. The mathnawi was lithographed in Constantinople, A. H. 1268 and 1282. Copies of the شیر و شکر are noticed in Rieu ii. p. 831^a, No. xxix; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 699, 21; J. Aumer, p. 4. It has likewise been lithographed in Constantinople, A. H. 1282.

The mathnawi is preceded by a few lines in prose, beginning: أما بعد حمد الله تعالى على أفضاله والصلوة : والسلام على أشرف الخلائق الأنبياء.

Beginning of the poem itself, on the same page:

Diwân-i-Ghiyâth (ديوان غياث).

Lyrical poems by Maulânâ Ghiyâth-al-din, who according to the contents of his diwân flourished both under Shâh Ṭahmâsp and Shâh 'Abbâs the Great (A. H. 996-1038=A. D. 1588-1629); both these sovereigns are frequently praised in his poems, for instance, fol. 101^a, l. 5:

شاه گردون شکوه دریا دل - شاه طهماسب مرشد کامل
fol. 111^a, last line:

شاه جوانبخت خلایق بنده - خسرو جم کوکبه عباس شاه
fol. 125^a, l. 2:

عباس پادشاه جوانبخت کامگار etc. He cannot be identical with Ghiyâth or Ghiyâthâ-i-Ḥalwâ'i of Shirâz, who died under Shâh Ṣafî (A. H. 1038-1052=A. D. 1629-1642), as the contents of his diwân entirely differ from ours, see Rieu ii. p. 682^b, and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 412; but he may very well be the same as Khwâjah Ghiyâth Naqshband of Yazd, who is mentioned in the Safinah, No. 590 (col. 231 in the Bodleian Cat.), as a poet of 'Abbâs' reign. Another poet of the same period and the same name, viz. Khwâjah Ghiyâth-al-din of Tabriz, is mentioned in the Safinah, No. 538 (col. 228 in the Bodleian Cat.). This diwân consists of ghazals, qasidas, a few short mathnawis, kit'as, and rubâ'is, all mixed together without any order, and beginning: نمیگویم چنین کن یا چنان کن (the second hemistich is unfortunately damaged by worms).

No date.

Lyrical poems by Mirzā Abū Turābbeg of Anjudān, who likewise flourished under Shāh 'Abbās, see Safinah, No. 607 (col. 231 in the Bodleian Cat.); he appears to be identical with the poet of the same name and birth-place, the son of Mirzā 'Alikhān, mentioned in the Muntakhab-alash'ar, No. 479 (ib., col. 249), and the Ātashkada, No. 497 (ib., col. 280), where it is stated, that his first takhalluṣ was Kāmi, his later one Firḡatī, that he flourished in Kāshān (therefore often styled Kāshī), and was wazīr of Maḡṣūd beg.

Extracts from three mathnawis of Shifā'i.

This copy contains:

a. Extracts from the نمکدان حقیقت (styled here: (منتخب کتاب نمکدان الحقیقة), beginning, on fol. 1^b:

ای بنهد سخن ملاحت سای - بنمکدان طرز راهنمای

see No. 2 in the preceding copy.

b. Extracts from another mathnawi (without a heading), which, to judge both from the metre and the contents, must be identical with the مهر و محبت, or love and affection (see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 914, No. 2, and A. Sprenger, Catal., loc. cit.). Beginning, on fol. 16^a:

بنام آنکه دل (دلرا) برگزیدست

محبت را بدعوی آفریدست

The usual initial bait of the poem is not found here; it was composed A.H. 1021 (A.D. 1612, 1613).

c. Extracts from the mathnawi دیدۀ بیدار, the watchful eye, or, as Sprenger calls it دیدۀ بیدیدار, the sightless eye (likewise without a heading); beginning, on fol. 56^a, l. 4 ab infra, the same as in the Bodleian, Berlin, and Oudh copies:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - تیغ الهیست بدست حکیم

It was composed A.H. 990 (A.D. 1582).

At the end, on fol. 87^b, all the three different extracts are (wilfully or by ignorance) represented as parts of the same نمکدان حقیقت, in spite of the various metres employed; the copy was transcribed at Tattah by Muḥammad Fayyād Bakri; as date appears the 11th of Safar only, see the Persian text of the colophon:

بنا بر یازدهم صفر نمکدان شغائی در بلدۀ تته بید فغیر
لخفیر محمد فیاض بکری صورت انعام یافت و الله اعلم
بالصواب.

No. 267, ff. 1-87^b, 2 coll., each ll. 15; distinct Nasta'liq; a little worm-eaten; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

1533

Ghazals of Shifā'i.

An extensive collection of ghazals by Shifā'i, arranged alphabetically and beginning, on fol. 3^b (like the Bodleian copy and that of the Moty Mahall, mentioned in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 570):

ای زده برتر از گمان خیمۀ کبرای را

دست بتو کجا رسد عقل برهنه (شکسته)
پای را

The copy concludes with four mathnawi-baits.

No date. The proper order of the leaves, which are misplaced in a rather bewildering way, is: ff. 3-25, 32-48, 26-28, 1, 2, 29-31, 49-112, 117, 118, 113, 115, 116, 114, 119-206.

No. 224, ff. 206, 2 coll., each ll. 15; careless Nasta'liq; size, 9 in. by 5 in.

Diwān-i-Nizām (دیوان نظام).

The lyrical poems of Mirzā Nizām Dast-i-Ghaib, of Shirāz, one of Shāh 'Abbās' poets, who died, only thirty years old, A.H. 1039 (A.D. 1629, 1630); see Safinah, No. 606 (col. 231 in the Bodleian Cat.); Muntakhab-alash'ar, No. 671 (ib., col. 253); Ātashkada, No. 683 (ib., col. 285); A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 92 and 518; Rieu iii. p. 1091^b. An earlier date of his death, viz. A.H. 1029 (A.D. 1620), is given in the Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 281 (col. 312 in the Bodleian Cat.); see also W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 58, No. 6. On fol. 129^a this diwān is wrongly ascribed to Nizām-almulk, the famous wazir of Alp Arslan and Malikshāh.

ز دیده بیرخ او دل نمی شود روشن which is not found in this collection, is noticed twice in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 31, No. 8, and p. 32, No. 19.

Tarjīhands, on fol. 175^b, beginning:

ساقی بده آن باده که رنگ لب یارست

No. 267, ff. 129-184, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Kuliyāt-i-Bākirkhān (کلیات باقرخان).

Works in prose and verse by Bākirkhān, with his full name: Mirzā Muḥammad Bākīr Najm-i-thāni (the second star), who went to India during Jahāngir's reign (A.H. 1014-1037 = A.D. 1605-1627), and flourished in that emperor's time, see Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 307 (col. 322 in the Bodleian Cat.); he is probably identical with the Bākirkhān, with the takhalluṣ Bākīr, called in the Safinah, No. 703 (col. 235 in the Bodleian Cat.), one of Jahāngir's and Shāhjahān's Amīrs. The exact date of his death is not known. Another poet of the name of Maulānā Muḥammad Bākīr, of Kāshān, who died in the Dakhan, A.H. 1034 (A.D. 1624, 1625), is mentioned in the Safinah, No. 585 (ib., col. 230); a third Mir Muḥammad Bākīr with the takhalluṣ Isbrāk, renowned by a number of Arabic works and a Persian diwān, lived in Astarāhād and died A.H. 1040 (A.D. 1630, 1631). see the same Safinah, No. 623 (col. 232 in the Bodleian Cat.); a fourth and much younger Maulānā Muḥammad Bākīr died A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670, 1671), see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 104.

Poetical works by Muḥammad Hakim Amin or Aminā (so in the colophons on ff. 235^a and 285^a), with the takhalluṣ Ātashī, who was a court-poet of the Sultān of Bijāpūr, Muḥammad 'Ādilshāh bin Ibrāhīm 'Ādilshāh (A.H. 1036 or 1037-1067 = A.D. 1626 or 1627-1656); none of the tadhkiras seems to mention this particular poet, unless he is identical with Aumnā of Farāhān, who flourished in Shāh 'Abbās' reign, see Safinah, No. 674 (col. 234 in the Bodleian Cat.). Another Muḥammad Amin or Aminā, but with the takhalluṣ Khāzin, is mentioned there in No. 738 (ib., col. 236).

Contents:

1. Kaṣidas and kiṭ'as, on fol. 1^b, beginning: بس که شد از غافل نامۀ عمرم سیاه. Several of these poems were composed in praise of Nawwāb Muṣṭafākhān; fol. 33^b is left blank.

الهی از می معنی لبالب ساز جامم را
منور چون چراغ صبح گردان شمع شامم را

3. Rubā'is, on fol. 101^a.

The whole diwān was completed (whether by the poet himself, as we are inclined to assume, or by the transcriber of this copy Shaikh Muḥammad Ṣadiqī, the wording of the colophon leaves entirely uncertain) the 10th of Safar, A.H. 1034 (A.D. 1624, Nov. 22).

4. A mathnawī, entitled 'Ādīnāma (عادینامه), and praising the exploits of Sultān Muḥammad 'Ādilshāh bin Ibrāhīm 'Ādilshāh, on fol. 108^a. The beginning is apparently missing; the first bait which occurs here runs thus:

ازو شمع را شعله بر سر کلاه

Diwān-i-Ridā (دیوان رضا).

H. 1028 (A. D. 1619) is quoted. Our copy contains two chronograms, for A. H. 1039 (A. D. 1629, 1630), and A. H. 1046 (A. D. 1636, 1637), on ff. 113^a and 116^a. Khusrau u Shirin (خسرو و شیرین).

A mathnawī, in imitation of Nizāmī's poem of the same name, by Rūḥ-alamin (see fol. 6^b, l. 5, and fol. 7^a, l. 5), i. e. Mir Muḥammad Amin Shahrastāni, a Sayyid of Isfahān, with the honorary title of Mir Jumlah, who went A. H. 1010 (A. D. 1601, 1602) to the Dakhān, rose to the highest dignity under Sulṭān Muḥammad Kulī Kutubshāh of Ghalakūda (who reigned A. H. 988-1020 = A. D. 1580-1612), entered afterwards the service of the emperor Jahāngir and died A. H. 1047 (A. D. 1637, 1638), see Rieu ii. pp. 675 and 676, and Safinah, No. 704 (col. 235 in the Bodleian Cat.). According to the latter authority he went twice to India, and in the interval between both sojourns he occupied an important position at the court of Shāh 'Abbās too. The present work, which is preceded by a prose-preface on ff. 1^b-7^a, is dedicated to his patron Muḥammad Kūlī Kuṭbshāh, and forms the first poem of Rūh-alamin's Khamsah. Beginning of the preface, on fol. 1^b: ای بسته بدست قدرت قطب کمر روی مکرمتم نهاده تاجش الخ.

Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 8^b:

الهی همچو صبحم سینه بگشای
زچاک سینه ام خورشید بنمای

No date.

No. 205, ff. 317, 2 coll., each ll. 14; distinct Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b and 8^b; size, 9 $\frac{5}{8}$ in. by 5 $\frac{7}{8}$ in.

1540

Lailā u Majnūn (لیلی و مجنون).

Another mathnawī by the same Rūh-alamin, the loves of Lailā and Majnūn, likewise an imitation of one of Nizāmī's masterpieces, and dedicated to the same Muḥammad Kūlī Kuṭbshāh; it forms the third poem of the author's Khamsah (the second being styled مطمع, see Rieu, loc. cit.); the poet's name appears here on fol. 4^a, l. 8; fol. 28^a, l. 5; fol. 35^a, l. 7, and fol. 189^a in the colophon. It is preceded by a preface in prose and verse, beginning, on fol. 1^b:

ای قدم پلّے زیایه تو - کف دستی فلک زسایه تو

Beginning of the mathnawī, on fol. 6^b:

ای حسن طراز عشق پرداز - انجام نمای کار از آغاز

The fourth poem of the Khamsah, the آسمان هشتم or فلک البروج, is described in Rieu, loc. cit., it was composed A.H. 1021 (A.D. 1612); the fifth is not mentioned anywhere; but the diwān, styled گلستان ناز, is noticed in Rieu.

No date.

No. 690, ff. 189, 2 coll., each ll. 14; clear and distinct Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b and 6^b; size, 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Jalāl Asir (Nos. 1541-1551).

Diwān-i-Asir (دیوان اسیر).

The poems of Mirzā Jalāl Asir bin Mirzā Mu'min of Isfahān, who was an intimate friend of Shāh 'Abbās and a great drunkard; most of his verses he wrote in a state of intoxication. He never went to India, and died, according to the best authorities, A.H. 1049 (A.D. 1639, 1640), comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1096-1100; Rieu ii. p. 681; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 149 and 342, 343. The Mirāt-af'ālam and the Hamisha Bahār (see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 117) fix his death in A.H. 1040 (A.D. 1630, 1631), which is obviously wrong, see Rieu, loc. cit. A much later date, viz. A.H. 1069 (A.D. 1658, 1659), is given in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 915, on the authority of the صحف ابراهیم (No. 663 in the Berlin Cat.), which seems a mere mistake for 1049; see also Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 24 (col. 303 in the Bodleian Cat.). A condemnation of the low tone and the vulgar jokes in Asir's poems, as well as in those of Zulālī (see Nos. 1494-1498), Shaukat of Bukhārā, and Mir Najāt, by the author of the ریاض الشعرا, is quoted Rieu ii. pp. 821^b and 822^a. Asir's works were published in Lucknow, 1880.

Kudsi (Nos. 1552-1557).

Kulliyât-i-Kudsi (کَلِّیَّاتِ قدسی).

A collection of epical and lyrical poems by Hâjī Muhammad Jân Kudsi of Mashhad, who went to India in the fifth year of Shâhjahân's reign, A.H. 1041, 1042 (A.D. 1631, 1632), and was greatly favoured by that monarch. The Kalimât-alshu'arâ (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 113), the Khulâsat-alkalâm, No. 57 (col. 299 in the Bodleian Cat.), and the Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 214 (ib., col. 309), assert that he rose to the dignity of a king of poets at Shâhjahân's court, but this is denied by the author of the 'Amal-i-Şâlih (see above, Nos. 332-336), who says, that he was forestalled by Abû Tâlib Kalim (see further below, Nos. 1563-1570). He died, according to the best authorities, A.H. 1056 (A.D. 1646), either in Lâhûr, as is stated in Safinah, No. 728 (col. 236 in the Bodleian Cat.), and in the Khazâna-i-'âmirah, No. 96 (ib., col. 258), or in Kashmir. Other, less trustworthy, dates of his death are A.H. 1055 (A.D. 1645), in the Khulâsat-alafkâr, and after A.H. 1069 (A.D. 1659) in the Mirât-alkhayâl, No. 69 (col. 209 in the Bodleian Cat., the latter date being quite impossible, as Abû Tâlib Kalim, who died A.H. 1061 or 1062=A.D. 1651, 1652, wrote an elegy on Kudsi's death, see below, No. 1569); compare besides Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1102-1111; Rieu ii. p. 684^a sq., and iii. p. 1001^b; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 917 and 918; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 90, 128, 151, and 536.

Contents:

A. Epic poetry:

1. Preface in prose or encomium of Kudsi, by Jalâl-aldin Muhammad Tabâtâbâ'i, who came from Isfahân to India in A.H. 1044 (A.D. 1634, 1635), and became a court-chronicler of Shâhjahân, see Rieu i. p. 258. He finished this preface in Âgra, the 11th of Rabi'-alawwal, A.H. 1048 (A.D. 1638, July 23). Beginning, on fol. 1^b:
سخن آفرینی که بحکم اقتضای حکمت مدار تکوین پرکار
آفرینش الخ

2. Zafarnâma - i - Shâhjahân - i - Pâdishâh (ظفرنامه شاهجهان پادشاه), or simply Zafarnâma-i-Shâhjahâni (ظفرنامه شاهجهانی), a mathnawî in honour of the exploits of the emperor Shâhjahân, comprising about 8,000 baits, beginning, on fol. 5^b:

بحمد خدائی زبانم گشود
که شد منکسر در وجودش وجود

This mathnawî was left unfinished by the author; according to the Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2067 (col. 365 in the Bodleian Cat.), Abû Tâlib Kalim completed it, but see Rieu ii. p. 686.

3. A second mathnawî, apparently a ساقی نامه, on fol. 147^b, beginning:

بنام خدائی که روز نخست
به بیمانه ام کرد پیمان درست

4. A third mathnawî, in praise of Kashmir, entitled, according to other copies: در تعریف کشمیر دلپذیر (comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1104), beginning, on fol. 190^b:

بنام پادشاه پادشاهان - سرافرازی ده صاحب کلاهان

It ends on fol. 206^b and was completed A.H. 1044 (A.D. 1634, 1635), according to the chronogram: سربر پادشاه بزم آرای. The portion from fol. 202^a margin to 205^b centre appears as a separate poem in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1105, beginning: تعالی الله ازین باغ دل افروز: but a comparison with this copy as well as with No. 1102 in the Bodleian Cat., fol. 8^b sq., shows that it is only a continuation of the تعریف کشمیر دلپذیر. Some mathnawî-baits at the end of this poem, on fol. 206^b, in praise of a princely mansion in the same metre, are probably also an appendix to the poem on Kashmir.

5. A fourth mathnawî, on human frailty, entitled, according to the Bodleian Cat., No. 1107, ff. 1-5^a, according to the Bodleian Cat., No. 1107, ff. 1-5^a, beginning, on fol. 207^a:

مسلمانان فغان زین ناتوانی
که دارد در گمانم زندگانی

6. A fifth mathnawî, on fol. 208^b margin, beginning:

زنده دلی بهر تماشای هند
رفت زکشمیر باقصای هند

The same is found in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1102, fol. 45^b sq., and No. 1107, fol. 21^b sq.; a portion of it, viz. ff. 210^a-213^a, is repeated in the lyrical poetry, on fol. 301^b sq., beginning: دوش برسوا شدن عالمی الخ.

B. Lyric poetry:

7. Another preface, in prose, as introduction to the diwân, beginning, on fol. 214^b, with two baits, the first of which runs thus:

جلّ من لا اله الا هو - لا نقل کیف هو ولا ما هو

The prose-text commences thus: گائی که دیباچه کلام قدسی الخ.

This preface is dated A.H. 1117 (A.D. 1705, 1706).

8. Kaşidas, in alphabetical order, beginning, on fol. 218^a:

من آن نهم که کنم سرکشی زنیغ جفا
چو شمع زنده سرخوش دبدۀ ام دریا

9. Tarkibbands, beginning, on fol. 277^a: ای دل چه شوی شاد که اتمام بهار است الخ

On ff. 301^b-306^b the above-mentioned portion of the fifth mathnawî is repeated.

10. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with a series of rubá'is at the end, beginning, on fol. 307^a: داده عشقم :
بادۀ نابی که میسوزد مرا الخ
No date.

No. 929, ff. 354, 2 coll., each ll. 17, and a third column on the margin of ff. 26^a-212^b, ll. 24; Nasta'lik; small illuminations throughout; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

1553

Another copy of Kudsī's Kulliyāt.

Another collection of Kudsī's poems, in a rather confused and fragmentary state, containing:

1. Jalāl-al-din Muḥammad Ṭabāṭabā'i's preface, beginning, on fol. 1^b: سخن آفرین که بحکم اقتضای
حکمت مدار الخ

On fol. 7^a, l. 4, appear the author's name and the date, A. H. 1048, 11th of Rabi'-alawwal.

2. Detached fragments of the ظفرنامه شاهجهانی, beginning, on fol. 8^b, with the same bait as in Rieu ii. p. 685, and No. 1106 of the Bodleian Cat.:

بنام خدای که داد از شهان
جهان بادشاهی بشاهجهان

The first fragment begins with the eleventh year of Shāhjahān's reign (آغاز داستان سال یازدهم جلوس).

3. Kaśidas, upon the whole in alphabetical order, with this exception only, that the rhyme-letter د is placed between ز and ش and that at the end after ی another poem in ر appears. Beginning, on fol. 87^b:
من آن نیم که کنم سرکشی ز تیغ جفا الخ preceding copy, fol. 218^a.

At the end, on fol. 173, a few mathnawi-baits which probably belong to the ظفرنامه.

4. A large coherent portion of the ظفرنامه, on ff. 174^b and 177^a-279^b, beginning, as in the preceding copy:
بحمد خدائی زبانم گشود الخ

On ff. 270^a margin-270^b margin, the same chapter is found as on ff. 8^b-10^a, l. 6.

5. The ساقی نامه or second mathnawī, on ff. 280^a-286^b, 175, 176, and 287^a-296^b, beginning, on fol. 280^a:
بنام خدائی که روز نخست الخ

6. The mathnawī in praise of Kashmir or the third mathnawī of No. 929, on fol. 297^b, beginning: بنام
پادشاه پادشاهان الخ

7. Another mathnawī, identical with the fifth of the preceding copy, beginning, on fol. 313^b: زنده دلی بهر
تماشای هند الخ

First heading, on fol. 313^b: حکایت آن قاطع طریق
صلالت و رسیدن وی از توجه خضر توفیق بسرجشمة
زال هدایت.

Second heading, on fol. 314^b: در شکایت ابنای زمان.

Beginning: دوش برسوا الخ (see ff. 210^a and 301^b sq. in the preceding copy).

Third heading, on fol. 315^b: در شرح حال خود.

Fourth heading, on fol. 316^a margin: در مذمت
مردم سنجید.

8. Kaśidas in honour of Shāhjahān, 'Alī, etc., and Tarjībānds, among which an elegy on the death of the poet's son (on fol. 335^a), see No. 1557 below, Rieu ii. p. 685, fol. 4^b sq. in Or. 351 and No. vii in Or. 323. Beginning, on fol. 318^a (as in No. 1109 of the Bodleian Cat.):

فراغ بال کرا در سراچه دنیااست
درین قفس نبرد چشم بسکه تنگ فضااست

9. Another portion of the ظفرنامه, probably a continuation of No. 4, on fol. 361^a. Beginning: دلم چون

Extracts from Kudsī's mathnawis.

This مُنتخب contains extracts from Kudsī's mathnawī in praise of Kashmir (see Nos. 1552, 4, and 1553, 6), on fol. 1^b, beginning: بنام پادشاهی (پادشاه الخ) پادشاهان الخ from the Żafarnāma-i-Shāhjahānī; and probably also from the Sākināma, which is written in the same metre as the Żafarnāma.

The Żafarnāma begins, on fol. 9^a, as No. 2 in the preceding copy:

بنام خدائی که داد از شهان
جهان پادشاهی بشاهجهان

Dated, on fol. 27^a, the 14th of Rajab, A. H. 1093 (A. D. 1682, July 19), by Abū Muḥammad bin Sayyid Muḥammad.

On ff. 27^b-29^a a kaśidah and a ghazal of Muḥammad Riḍā ibn Mullā Fauj-allāh and two rubá'is of Mullā Fauj-allāh are added, written A. H. 1118 (A. D. 1706, 1707), by Shams-al-din Muḥammad Lāri.

No. 1312, ff. 29, 3 coll. in diagonal lines, ll. 12-16; Shikasta; size, 9½ in. by 5¼ in.

Diwān-i-Kudsī (دیوان قدسی).

Tarkibbands and elegies, on fol. 89^a, beginning:

از کسی گردیده ام رو تیغ جانانست و بس الخ

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with a series of rubâ'is at the end, on fol. 122^b, beginning:

زود به کردم من بیصبر داغ خویشرا
اول شب میکشد مغلّس چراغ خویشرا corresponding to fol. 308^a in No. 1552.

No date.

No. 915, ff. 219, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

1556

A defective copy of the same.

Contents:

Kasidas, on fol. 1^b, in alphabetical order, beginning:

من آن نیم که کنم الخ

This part breaks off, on fol. 46^b, with the last bait of a kasidah, rhyming in z; the beginning of this kasidah, on fol. 46^a, corresponds to fol. 270^a, l. 9 in No. 1552, where it forms the fifteenth verse of it, but by a slight modification in the first hemistich it has been made here to resemble a proper initial bait; the last verse, on fol. 46^b, agrees with fol. 270^b, ll. 11 and 12 in No. 1552; fol. 47 contains the fragment of another kasidah, rhyming in r, corresponding to fol. 251^b, l. 4 to fol. 252^b, first line in the same copy.

Tarji'bands, on fol. 48^a, beginning abruptly (in consequence of another lacuna after fol. 47): گفتم به بت :
خویش که ای ترک جفاکش الخ
l. 13 in No. 1552. There is again a lacuna in this part, viz. after fol. 51, which comprises fol. 296^b, l. 12, to fol. 298^a, l. 1 in No. 1552.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 55^a, beginning:
داده عشقم الخ

Short mathnawis, on fol. 94^a; the second, on fol. 97^b, is در تعریف کشمیر; on ff. 105^b, 106^b, 108^a, 108^b, and 109^a there are mathnawis on certain gardens and its palaces (see Rieu ii. p. 686^a), viz. باغ فتح بخش, باغ فیض بخش, and باغ نسیم, باغ جهان آرای, باغ فیض بخش, بحر آباد.

یار شدم الخ, corresponding to fol. 351^a, l. 12 in No. 1552.

Dated A. H. 1142 (A. D. 1729, 1730), by Muḥammad Ṣalāḥ bin Mullā 'Abdallāh Kātib, in the service of Bākibeg bin Hāji Atāligh (اتالیغ). Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

Kulliyyât-i-Salim (کلیات سلیم).

The poetical works of Muḥammad Kuli Salim of Tahrân (called Durushti or Turushti, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 31 and 919), who came from Irân to India under Shāhjahân, entered the service of the Ṣubāhdār of Bangālāh, Islām Khân, and died A. H. 1057 (A. D. 1647), see Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1112-1114; Rieu ii. p. 738^a; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 90, 111, 123, and 556; Safinah, No. 731 (col. 236 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 36 (ib., col. 298), and Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 136 (ib., col. 307).

Contents:

1. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

دلا توئی که بکار خودت گزیده خدا
برای عشق بتانت نیافریده خدا

2. Rubâ'iyât, on fol. 222^a, beginning:

در بحر بیاید اگر از فیض تو قوت
اورنگ صدف شود گهر را یاقوت

3. A short story, in prose, entitled 'Complaint of the mouse and request of the cat' (در شکایت موش) صاحب سلیم, on fol. 231^b, beginning: (واستدعای گربه سلامت فریاد ازین فوج الخ)

After this there follow a number of short mathnawis, viz.

4. Kharr-i-dalâl (خر دلال), the ass of coquetry, or, as W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 668, ff. 18^b and 62^b, suggests to read: Kharr-i-dallâl (خر دلال), the broker's ass, on fol. 233^b, beginning:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم - هست عمای ره طبع سلیم

No heading or title appears here, but as parts of this mathnawī are quoted in the Khulāṣat-alafkār, loc. cit., there can be no doubt about the designation given to it. It consists of two parts, the first of which occurs in No. 1112 of the Bodleian Cat., fol. 19^a, and bears the title: نقل از جود حاتم طائی (a story of Hātim Tā'i's liberality); the second in the same copy, fol. 23^b, is headed در تعریف خر (description of the ass); the former begins in the Bodleian copy with the second bait of our own, viz. راوی افسانه اهل کرم الخ. In A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 556, the same mathnawī is designated as a 'mathnawi in praise of Shâhjahân, on the expedition against Âshâm;' that seems to be an error, as the poem, dealing with Islâmkhân's victories over the people of Kûc and Âshâm, A.H. 1051-1052 (A.D. 1641-1643), which bears, according to the Khulâsat-alkalâm, the title of جنگ اسلامخان, and is described in Rieu iii. p. 1032^a, is written in quite a different metre. The second part begins here on fol. 237^a.

5. Kadâ u kadr (قد و قدر), on predestination, on fol. 240^b, beginning:

شنیدم روزی از خونابه نوشی
چو گل از باره تن خرقه بوشی

comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1113 and 1114, and 1241, 47 (coll. 765-767); Rieu ii. p. 796^b, No. VIII; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 31, No. 11; p. 67, ll. 9-12; p. 668, ff. 65^a and 91^a, and p. 697, No. 12; J. Aumer, p. 4.

6. Ta'rif-i-bahâr (تعریف بهار), description of spring, on fol. 250^a, beginning:

سخن هر جا زمیع کردگارست
گواه پای بر جا کوهسارست

A mathnawi, by Salim, with the same beginning, is designated in the Bodleian Cat., col. 767, as a 'description of the mountain of Kashmir' (در تعریف کوه کشمیر), and may therefore be identical with at least a part of the poem تعریف کشمیر, quoted in the Khulâsat-alkalâm, loc. cit. According to Tâhir Naṣrâbâdî's tadhkirah (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 90, ll. 3 and 2 ab infra), this mathnawi was originally a description of Lâhijân (both Safinah and the Khulâsat-alkalâm mention a special (تعریف لاهجان), the heading of which the author changed into a description of Kashmir when he came to India.

7. Hikâyat (حکایت), on fol. 265^b, beginning: شنیدم
حیلہ برداری زاحشام الخ, see the same in Bodleian Cat., col. 766.

8. Dar muhit-i-sâl (در محیط سال), on fol. 267^a, beginning: زبس شد فعل بد غماز چون مشک الخ.

9. Another short mathnawi (headed توصیف ورم بود در زیر زینم بادپائی), on fol. 285^b, beginning: (و سن!) الخ, see Bodleian Cat., No. 1114. It is not impossible that Nos. 7-9 are merely parts of the قد و قدر of No. 5, as this mathnawi in A. Sprenger's copy comprises 134 pages, each ll. 13; even No. 6 may belong to it, the metre in all these detached pieces being the same.

10. Fi-alhajw (فی الهجو), a satire, on fol. 288^a, beginning: خامه ام بر خلاف عادت خویش الخ, comp. Bodleian Cat., col. 768 d.

11. Kasidas, on fol. 295^b, beginning:

اگر برم بسوی چشم اشکبار انگشت
چو ماه نو شود آلوده غبار انگشت

A poem in praise of Shâh 'Abbâs is found on fol. 316^a (در ستایش شاه عباس).

12. Mukatta'ât, on fol. 344^a, beginning:

ای سواد هند از کلکت نگارستان چین
کار و بار ملک هرگز این سروسامان نداشت

Extracts from Salim's diwân are mentioned in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 31, No. 10; rubâ'is by the same, ib., p. 57, No. 5. Four short mathnawis, not found in the present collection, are noticed in the Bodleian Cat., col. 767, ll. 6-8, and col. 768.

No date.

No. 371, ff. 353, 2 coll., each ll. 15; large and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 6 in.

Diwân-i-Hindû (دیوان هندو).

Lyrical poems by Hindû, who is probably identical with the author of an epic poem لیلی و مجنون, composed in Shâhjahân's reign, before A.H. 1055 (A.D. 1645, 1646), and described in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1101. He seems also to have written a mathnawi, خسرو و شیرین, see ib. No biographical notices of this poet can be found in the tadhkiras. This diwân contains:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

بیا ای دل هزاران شکرگو آن کردگار را الخ.

Rubâ'is and fards, on fol. 79^a, beginning: ای عشق
تو سرمایه ایمان منست الخ.

No date. A seal of Jalâl ibn Shaikh 'Abd-alwahhâb with the year A.H. 1118 (A.D. 1706, 1707), on fol. 1^a.

No. 1172, ff. 88, 2 coll., each ll. 15; careless Nasta'liq; size, 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Diwân-i-Fiṭrat (دیوان فطرت).

Lyrical poems, by Wisbeg Fiṭrat, who was, according to his own statement in two chronograms, on fol. 199^a, born A.H. 1007 (A.D. 1598, 1599), and can scarcely be identical with a better-known poet of the same takhallus, Mir Mu'izz-al-din Muhammad Fiṭrat (who died A.H. 1106=A.D. 1694, 1695; see Bodleian Cat., No. 1993; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 408, etc.), although there is written on fol. 1^a دیوان معز فطرت. The present writer must have flourished at the court of Shâh 'Abbâs the Great in his early years, and afterwards gone to India, as there are chronograms on Shâh 'Abbâs, Sulṭân Muhammad 'Âdilshâh of Bijâpûr, the death of the emperor Jahângir, etc. His first son, Sanjarbeg, was born A.H. 1025 (A.D. 1616), and went to India A.H. 1046 (A.D. 1636, 1637); his brother Muhammadbeg was born A.H. 1023 (A.D. 1614); his brother Karimbeg A.H. 1030 (A.D. 1621); another of his sons A.H. 1044 (A.D. 1634, 1635); his first grandson (Sanjarbeg's son) likewise A.H. 1044; his brother Hamzabeg died A.H. 1033 (A.D. 1623, 1624); his brother Hashimbeg A.H. 1041 (A.D. 1631, 1632), and his father A.H. 1040 (A.D. 1630, 1631). He composed a great number of chronograms, which begin with A.H. 1022 (A.D. 1613) and go down to A.H. 1059 (A.D. 1649). Beyond that date no ta'rikhs are found, and we may consequently assume that the poet died soon after.

Diwān-i-Muḥammad (دیوان محمد).

Lyrical poems, exclusively ghazals, by a poet called Muḥammad Miskīn or Miskīn Muḥammad, also the second Muḥammad (see the title given to this collection on fol. 39^a: دیوان محمدی (محمد read دوم), not mentioned in any tadhkirah. But besides Muḥammad there appears also in some poems (see, for instance, ff. 39^b, l. 1; 43^b, l. 12; 51^b, l. 11; 52^a, ll. 4 and 10; 55^b, l. 14; 103^a, l. 11; 129^a, l. 15, etc.) the takhalluṣ 'Abdī, and it is possible that this diwān is due to the same 'Abdī who composed, A.H. 1051 (A.D. 1641, 1642), the ترجمه تکمله, or poetical paraphrase of Yāfi's خلاصة المفاحر, or legends of the Kādirī saints, particularly 'Abd-alkādir Jilānī; see above, No. 643, and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 307. The religious character of these lyrics well agrees with such a supposition. Beginning, on fol. 39^a:

الهی ببرکت زعنوان فرقان را

فزونی برة دین بده اهل ایقان را

The arrangement is alphabetical.

No date. Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2760, ff. 39-131, 2 coll., each ll. 19-20; careless Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Manḥa'-alkhairāt (منبع الخیرات).

A mathnawī, celebrating the life and miracles of the great Ṣūfī Shaikh Muḥyi-alkhaṭṭ wa-aldīn Abū Muḥammad 'Abd-alkādir Jilānī, see the title on fol. 20^b, l. 3, and compare Safinat-alauliyā, No. 36 (col. 278 in this Cat.), composed by Shaikh Sulaimān al-kurdi alkādirī alkhurāsānī allāhūrī alaḥmadābādī, the spiritual successor of Shaikh 'Abd-alkhaṭṭ bin Saif-aldīn alturk aldiḥlawī albukhārī (who died A.H. 1052=A.D. 1642, 1643, see above, Nos. 290, 640, and 720). Beginning:

بهترین عکسی که در چشم شهود

روی بنماید زمرآت وجود

The copy was collated throughout by a great-grandson of the author, Muḥammad Riḍā bin Maulānā Ghulām bin Maulānā Aḥmad bin Maulānā Sulaimān (see fol. 1^a, fol. 22^b margin, etc.), with the poet's own copy and annotated in A.H. 1159-1160 (A.D. 1746, 1747). The copy itself, worm-eaten here and there, hears no date.

No. 1028, ff. 94, 2 coll., each ll. 19; Nasta'liq; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Kalim (Nos. 1563-1570).

Diwān-i-Kalim (دیوان کلیم).

The diwān of Mirzā Abū Ṭālih Kalim of Hamadān, who lived for some time in Kāshān, went to India in the beginning of Jahāngir's reign, attached himself to Rūḥ-alamīn (see above, No. 1539), whom he accompanied A.H. 1028 (A.D. 1619) to 'Irāq, returned two years after to India, rose at Shāhjahān's court to the dignity of a king of poets (see above, No. 1552), and died, according to the oldest authorities, the Pādishāhnāma, and the Mirāt-alkhayāl, No. 71 (col. 209 in the Bodleian Cat.), A.H. 1062 (A.D. 1652), in Kashmir. Most of the other and more modern tadhkiras fix his death in A.H. 1061 (A.D. 1651), for instance, Kalimāt-alshu'arā (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 113); Safinah, No. 747 (col. 237 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khazāna-i-āmīrah, No. 101 (ib., col. 259); Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 223 (ib., col. 310), and Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 2189 (ib., col. 369), where a chronogram on the poet's death by Mullā Ṭāhir Ghānī is quoted, viz. طور معنی بود روشن. (see the same in the Hamisha Bahār, A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 128), and where, besides, the curious statement is made, that he succeeded Kudsī as king of poets at Shāhjahān's court; see also the Ātashkada, No. 588 (col. 282 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 60 (ib., col. 300), where a full list of his mathnawīs is given. Other copies of his diwān are described in the Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1116-1121; Rieu ii. p. 686 sq.; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 453 (comp. also pp. 90 and 151); and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 920 and 921. Kalim's diwān, also mentioned in H. Khalfā iii. p. 304, No. 5636, has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1878.

No. 469, ff. 360, 2 coll., each ll. 12; very careless and unequal Nasta'liq, written, as it seems, by different hands; size, 9 in. by 5½ in.

Another copy of the second half of Kalim's diwān.

This copy, dated the 9th of Sha'bān, A.H. 1148 (the eighteenth year of Muḥammadshah's reign, as it is called here, but more correctly the seventeenth, since Muḥammadshāh was not crowned emperor before the month Dhū-alka'dah, A.H. 1131) = A.D. 1735, Dec. 25, contains the ghazals (on ff. 1^b-192^b) and rubā'is (on ff. 192^b-202^b) only.

Beginning of both sections the same as in the preceding copy. On fol. 1^a the last ten baits of Kalim's short mathnawis are found, a clear proof that this copy is the second half of a complete diwān of the poet.

No. 3500, olim 19. J. 19, ff. 202, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 8 in. by 5½ in.

Kalim's ghazals and rubā'is.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 10^b, beginning :

بدل کردم بمستی الخ

Ruhā'is, on fol. 169^b, beginning : از راز دو کون هر که
آگاه افتد الخ, corresponding to the second ruhā'i in No. 469 (1563 in this Cat.), where, however, کس is read instead of که.

Fol. 98^a is left blank.

No date.

No. 1159, margin-column, ff. 10-173, 14 baits in a page, written in a strange style of Nasta'liq.

1566

A defective copy of the same.

This copy is incomplete both at the beginning and end, and commences in the middle of the rhyme-letter 1 with the last bait of a ghazal, corresponding to fol. 130^a, last line in No. 1563.

The ghazals, arranged alphabetically, end on fol. 172^b, and are followed by one kiṭ'ah and a series of rubā'is, beginning : هر چند که مرد الخ, the second is the initial rubā'i of the preceding copy. This part breaks off on fol. 180^b with the first bait of a rubā'i, corresponding to fol. 358^b, lin. penult. in No. 1563. There are besides two lacunas, one after fol. 5 and the other after fol. 178. The last bait on fol. 5^b corresponds to fol. 140^a, l. 7 in No. 1563, the first on fol. 6^a to fol. 135^b, l. 8 in the same copy; the last bait on fol. 178^b is identical with fol. 356^b, lin. penult. there, and the first bait on fol. 179^a with fol. 350^a, l. 4.

No. 511, ff. 180, 2 coll., each ll. 15-17; unequal Nasta'liq; slight injuries in several pages; size, 8 in. by 4½ in.

A selection from Kalim's ghazals.

The ghazals are arranged alphabetically and begin in the usual way : بدل کردم بمستی الخ.

Dated A.H. 1138 (A.D. 1725, 1726), at Shāhjahānābād.

A similar selection of Kalim's ghazals is noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 702, No. 43.

No. 725, ff. 90-135, 2 coll., each ll. 12, and a third on the margin of ff. 100^b-108^b, and 111^a-134^b, ll. 14-38; distinct Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispiece; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

A fragment of Kalim's ghazals.

The ghazals, arranged alphabetically, break off already in the middle of the rhyme-letter ت. Beginning as usual.

No. 114, ff. 1-16, 2 coll., each ll. 17-18; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

A short fragment of Kalim's diwān.

This fragment contains a few kaşidas, and an elegy on the death of the poet Kudsī (see above, No. 1552), headed : مرثیة حاجی محمد جان قدسی از تصنیف ابو طالب کلیم, on fol. 134^b.

No date.

No. 891, ff. 129-136, 2 centre-coll., each ll. 11, and a third column on the margin, ll. 26; Shikasta; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Two mathnawis by Kalim.

Both these mathnawis celebrate the exploits of the emperor Shāhjahān and are very likely parts of one and the same epic poem, viz. the پادشاهنامه (as it is styled on fol. 1^a), also called شاهنامه or شاهنشاهنامه, the imperial book, see Khulāṣat-alafkār, loc. cit.;

A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 454, and Rieu ii. p. 687^a; comp. also J. Aumer, p. 96. The first begins, on fol. 1^b:

بنام خدائی که از شوق جود
دو عالم عطا کرد وسائل نبود

the second, with the special heading, as it seems, of اقبال شاهجهان (see fol. 118^b, l. 7), begins, on fol. 105^b:

سخن آن شهنشاه فرمان روا
که نه تخت چرخش بود زیر پا

The poet's takhalluṣ Kalim appears several times, for instance, on fol. 104^a, margin-column, l. 15: باین لطف; کلیم ارچه قادرالبح; and on fol. 113^a, l. 4: کلیم دارم کلیم.

According to the colophon, on fol. 104^a: نقل خط مرزا طالب (ابو طالب) کلیم که بدست خود نوشته بودند, this copy appears to have been made from the poet's autograph; the first seven leaves seem to be supplied by another hand.

No. 367, ff. 300, 2 centre-coll., each ll. 12, and a third column on the margin, ll. 26; Nasta'liq; size, 10 in. by 5½ in.

Diwân-i-Amâni (دیوان امانی).

Lyrical poems by Amâni, who cannot be identical with the poet Amân-allâh Amâni, since the latter died A.H. 1044 or 1046=A.D. 1634-1637 (see Bodleian Cat., No. 1095; Rieu ii. p. 509, and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 330), and the former, the author of the present diwân, composed, according to his own statement, in a chronogram, on fol. 75^b, A.H. 1047 (A.D. 1637, 1638), a work on medicine (کتاب در علم طب); there are besides chronograms for A.H. 1049 (A.D. 1639, 1640), 1055 (A.D. 1645), 1057 (A.D. 1647), 1060 (A.D. 1650), and 1061 (A.D. 1651). 1061 seems to be the last date mentioned in his ta'rikhs, and one may conjecture from that, that he died a year or two after. He appears to have been a native of Mâzandarân.

Contents of the diwân:

Kasidas in praise of the twelve Imâms, of 'Abdallâh Kuṭbshâh (A.H. 1035-1083=A.D. 1626-1672), of Mirzâ Ḥabib-allâh Ṣadr, Mirzâ Kâdi, Amir Timûr of Mâzandarân, etc., intermixed with tarjî's, tarkibbands, kiṭ'as and ta'rikhs, on fol. 1^b.

The first hemistich of the initial poem is missing; the second runs thus: ز تو چرخ را مدار و ز تو خاک را مدارا البح.

The second kaṣîdah, on fol. 2^b, begins:

فروغ عارض شکرت چراغ چشم قلم
نسیم کاکل وصفت شمیم زلف رقم

(a certain reminiscence of the first of Ahli Shirâzi's artificial kaṣîdas is obvious here, see above, No. 1432).

A short mathnawî (در مناجات), on fol. 79^b, beginning:

• خداوند تو ستار عیوبی
قسیم رزق و غفار ذنوبی

Another larger mathnawî, a sâkinâma (ساقینامه), on fol. 80^b, beginning:

زهی مست پیمانه ات روزگار
جوانبخت میخانه ات نوبهار

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 112^b, beginning:

ز حسنت گل تازه روئی جهانرا
زهستی تو زندگی آسمانرا

Rubâ'is, on fol. 238^b, beginning:

ای حسن تو شمع محفل هستی را
لطف تو شراب ساغر مستی را

Dated, at Haidarâbâd, A.H. 1070 (A.D. 1659, 1660); the first leaves a little injured and worm-eaten.

No. 2694, ff. 419, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b, 112^b, and 238^b; size, 11½ in. by 6¼ in.

Diwân-i-Masîḥ (دیوان مسیح).

Lyrical poems by Hakim Rukn-aldin Mas'ûd, commonly called Hakim Ruknâ, with the takhalluṣ Masîḥ, a native of Kâshân, who was first in Shâh 'Abbâs' service, but feeling offended by him went to India and found great favour with Jahângir as well as with Shâhjahân, whose court-poet he became; at the advanced age of 105 lunar years he returned to Irân and died there, according to most tadhkiras, A.H. 1066 (A.D. 1656), see A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 90 and 151; Khazâna-i-'âmirah, No. 112 (col. 259 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 259 (ib., col. 311); and Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2426 (ib., col. 376); comp. besides Âtashkada, No. 589 (ib., col. 282); Rieu ii. pp. 603^a, 688, and 689; and Bodleian Cat., No. 1115. The Mirât-al-'âlam fixes his death in A.H. 1057 (A.D. 1647); the Khulâsat-alkalâm, No. 68 (col. 301 in the Bodleian Cat.), as late as A.H. 1070 (A.D. 1659, 1660); in Beale's Oriental Biogr. Dictionary, p. 226^a, A.H. 1056 (A.D. 1646) is given as an alternative for 1066. Besides his lyrical poems he composed a mathnawî قضا و قدر, see Bodleian Cat., loc. cit., Khulâsat-alkalâm, loc. cit., and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 34, No. 10, and four others, among them رام و سینا, see Rieu ii. p. 688^b sq. Takî Kâshî (see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 24, No. 254) mentions also from his pen an Arabic work on medicine, entitled ضابطة العلاج. The poet Sâ'ib (see below, Nos. 1606-1623) was his pupil.

Contents:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order on fol. 1^b, with some kiṭ'as at the end (on ff. 142^b-149^b). Beginning of the initial ghazal:

نیارم گفت ذکر پیر دوام و بر مراد اورا

دیدیم برون ز راه و در خدا
گفتیم رموز عشق او را

Mathnawiyât-i-Mullâ Shâh (مثنویات ملا شاه).

A large number of religious or Sûfic mathnawis, composed by Mullâ Shâh Muḥammad bin 'Abd Muḥammad (called in Rieu ii. pp. 690, 691, Mullâ Shâh, originally Muḥammadshâh, with the epithet Lisân-allâh, son of Mullâ 'Idi), a great Indian Sûfi and spiritual guide of prince Dârâ Shukûh, born in Arksâ (ارکسا, in Rieu, loc. cit., Ark), near Rustâk (رستاق) in Badakhshân, comp. the prose-preface of the last poem in this copy, on fol. 334^b, where the author enumerates all his works, and states the exact number of baits and the metre of each of them. He went to India A. H. 1023 (A. D. 1614), and took as his spiritual guide the great saint of Lâhûr, Mir Muḥammad Miyân Mir, or Miyânjiv, who died A. H. 1045, 7th of Rabi'-alawwal (A. D. 1635, Aug. 21), see Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 65 (col. 282 in this Cat.). He afterwards settled in a monastery in Kashmir, and died there, or in Lâhûr, A. H. 1072 (A. D. 1661, 1662). He initiated Dârâ Shukûh to the Kâdiri order in A. H. 1049 (A. D. 1639, 1640), and the former has given a full account of his Pir's life in the special work سکنه الاوليا (not Safinat-alauliyâ, as is by mistake printed in Rieu ii. p. 691^a), see ib. i. pp. 357 and 358. This copy is of unique value, as it contains a complete collection of Mullâ Shâh's mathnawis, not found anywhere else; on the other hand, the kašidas, ghazals, rubâ'iyât, and sharḥ-i-rubâ'iyât, referred to in the above-mentioned preface, on fol. 335^a, are entirely wanting here. Copies of these lyrical poems are found in the British Museum (Rieu ii. p. 690 sq.) and in the Berlin Library (W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 921 and 922); comp. besides on the author Mirât-alkhayâl, No. 77 (col. 209 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1248 (ib., col. 342). Some of these mathnawis were composed A. H. 1055 (A. D. 1645); they are arranged here in the following order:

1. Risâla-i-walwâlah (رساله ولوله), the treatise on lamentation, on fol. 1^b, in the metre of Khâkânî's Tuh-fat-al-'irâkain (see above, Nos. 950-960), containing 1506 baits, and beginning:

Both Nos. 2 and 3 are in the metre of Jâmi's Subhat-alabrâr (see above, No. 1300, 5 sq.), and contain together 2,862 baits.

4. Risâla-i-Nisbat (رسالۀ نسبت), the treatise on relationship, on fol. 62^b, in the metre of Sanâ'î's Ĥadîkah (see above, No. 914 sq.), containing, together with No. 8 below, which is in the same metre, 10,374 baits, and beginning:

حمد را نسبتی است با تو دُرست
بر در هر که رفت بر در توست

5. Risâla-i-Murshid (رسالۀ مرشد), the treatise on the spiritual guide, on fol. 139^b, in different metres, containing 678 baits, and beginning:

Both Nos. 6 and 7 are in the metre of Nizâmî's Khusrau u Shirin (see above, No. 972, 2 sq.), and have together 5,727 baits.

8. Risâla-i-shâhiyyah (رسالۀ شاهیه), the royal treatise, on fol. 226^b, beginning:

ای تو شاه جهان و تو دارا
وی تو دارا و تو جهان آرا

Comp. No. 4; this mathnawî was composed A. H. 1055.

9. Risâla-i-hamd u-na't u mankabat (رسالۀ حمد و نعت و منکبت), treatise on the praise of God, the encomium of the prophet, and the eulogium of the Imâms, on fol. 284^b, in the metre of Firdausî's Shâhnâma (see above, No. 860 sq.), containing 3,654 baits, and beginning:

بیائید یاران محمود من

It is preceded, on fol. 334^b, by a preface in prose, which begins: احمد لمن قال بسم الله الرحمن الرحیم وعلم: احمده لدفع الشیطان الخ.

The mathnawî itself is divided into five different parts, viz.: (a) در تعریف مجموع بسم الله الرحمن الرحیم, on fol. 335^a (100 baits); (b) در تعریف در, on fol. 336^a (2,200 baits); (c) در تعریف خلوت, on fol. 364^a (300 baits); (d) در تعریف خاتمه, on fol. 367^b, last line (312 baits); (e) خاتمه, on fol. 372^a (100 baits). This poem was completed A. H. 1057, or rather, in the first seven days of A. H. 1058 (A. D. 1647-1648, beginning of Febr.). This copy seems to be the great Shaikh's autograph. Mullâ Shâh also wrote prose-works, viz. a تذکره شعری معاصرین, see H. Khalfa ii. p. 263, No. 2820; Bland in Journal of Royal Asiat. Soc. ix. p. 167; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 922, l. 3, and an unfinished commentary on the Kurân, see Makhzan-algharâ'ib, loc. cit.

A collection of lyrical poems by Āshnā, i. e. Muḥammad Tāhir 'Ināyatkhān bin Zafarkhān bin Khwājah Abū-alḥasan, who died A. H. 1077 (A. D. 1666, 1667), the author of a history of Shāhjahān to the close of the thirtieth year of his reign, styled Shāhjahān-nāma or ملکس, see No. 331 in this Cat., and Rieu i. p. 261, and iii. p. 1083^b; W. His father Zafarkhān, with the takhalluṣ Aḥsan, was likewise a renowned poet (see below, in No. 1601). The present collection of Āshnā's poems was already made during the author's lifetime, probably by himself, as it is dated the 1st of Shawwāl, A. H. 1060 (A. D. 1650, Sept. 27), and consequently there are after every part several leaves left blank for future additions; the same occurs after every rhyme-letter in the ghazals and rubā'is.

Kiṣṣa-i-Muḥammad Hanif (قصه محمد حنیف).

A Persian romance on the warlike exploits of Muḥammad Hanif (or as he is invariably called here, to suit the metre, Muḥammad Hanfiyah, see, for instance, fol. 3^a, l. 7; fol. 5^a, l. 1; fol. 10^b, l. 3; fol. 16^b, l. 1, etc.), the third son of 'Alī (comp. fol. 5^a, l. 1: محمد حنیف), by Muḥammad 'Ashik (see the poet's name on fol. 137^b, l. 5), who is probably identical with Shaikh Nūr-al-dīn Muḥammad 'Ashik, the author of the mathnawī عیش و طرب, composed A.H. 1079 (A.D. 1668, 1669), see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 339, and comp. W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 923. At the end of this poem the great Shaikh Zain-al-'ābidīn, properly called Shaikh Ṣadr-al-dīn, is praised (see fol. 137^b, l. 9 sq.), and we may perhaps identify this Shaikh with the well-known Mullā Ṣadr-al-dīn Muḥammad bin Ibrāhīm Shirāzī, commonly called Mullā Ṣadrā, who died A.H. 1050 (A.D. 1640, 1641), see Rieu ii. p. 829^a. This Persian romance, which is undoubtedly the original and prototype of a mathnawī in Dakhnī verses styled ظفرنامه or جنگنامه or جنگنامه محمد حنیف, composed A.H. 1095 (A.D. 1684), by a poet with the takhalluṣ Laṭīf and the epithet Miftāḥ-al-'āshikīn, who, in a note on fol. 1^a of No. 3036 of the India Office Collection, has been identified with Ghulām 'Alī, and dedicated his poem to Abū-al-ḥasan Kuṭbshāh who, succeeding 'Abdallāh Kuṭbshāh, ascended the throne of Gulkundah in Ḥaidarābād, A.H. 1083 (A.D. 1672), and was taken prisoner by 'Ālamgir, A.H. 1098 (A.D. 1687). A shorter redaction of the same Dakhnī version is preserved in No. 2721 of the India Office Collection.

Beginning of 'Ashik's mathnawī, on fol. 1^b:

سر نامه کنم نام خدائی
که نتوان گفتنش چون و چرائی

It is slightly defective, owing to a lacuna on fol. 134^b (fol. 135 is entirely left blank) and a few missing verses at the end.

He commenced the poem in A.H. 1058 (A.D. 1648), and completed it A.H. 1072 (A.D. 1661, 1662); he died A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670, 1671), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1130; Rieu ii. p. 692; W. Mirzâ Muḥammad 'Alî Ṣâ'ib of Isfahân, who is usually called the greatest among the modern Persian poets, was born about A.H. 1012 (A.D. 1603), went at an early age to Kâbul, where he became the favourite of the governor Zafarkhân, betook himself afterwards to Shâhjahân's court and returned, after some stay in Kashmir, to his native country, where Shâh 'Abbâs II (A.H. 1052-1077 = A.D. 1642-1666) made him 'king of poets.' He died, according to a chronogram of Wâ'iz, A. H. 1088 (A. D. 1677, 1678), comp. Rieu ii. p. 693 sq.; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1131-1137; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 930 sq.; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 384 sq.; other dates of his death are A. H. 1080 (A. D. 1669, 1670), see Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 157 (Bodleian Cat., col. 307), and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 151; A. H. 1081 (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 112); A. H. 1087 (A. D. 1676, see H. Khalfa iii. p. 290, No. 5506); or even A. H. 1089 (A. D. 1678, as in the Mirât-al'âlam); see besides Ouseley, Biogr. Tornberg, p. 110; some of his poems have been translated into German by Tholuck, Blüthensammlung, p. 288 sq. The diwân has been lithographed in Lucknow, A. Miscellanies in prose and verse.

The main portion of the MS. (ff. 21-36) is filled with extracts from the diwān of Šā'ib, made by Muḥammad Ṭāhir Naşrābādī, the author of the famous tadhkirah (see No. 669 above), and entitled دیوان صائب انتخاب. These extracts were made by the compiler after the completion of his extracts from the Shāhnāma, styled برزای ارباب هوش: انتخاب شاهنامه روشن باشد که این درد نوش بنم نامردی محمد طاهر نصرابادی الخ.

Ff. 22-27 are turned upside down and must be read from fol. 27^b backward.

The remainder of the MS. contains:

1. Scattered pieces of poetry from the diwāns of Naşir 'Alī, Rafī, Faīdī, and Shaikh Taj-al-din, on ff. 4^b-6^a, 12^b-14^b, and 15^b-16^a. An Arabic kaşidah by Farazdaq (died A.H. 110=A.D. 728), in praise of the legitimate successor to the prophetic office (قصیده فرزدق), is found on fol. 11^b.

2. Small prose-pieces, chiefly traditions of the prophet, 'Alī, and other saints, some theological tracts in Arabic, on fol. 6^b; another tract, styled الفایطة الغریبة, on fol. 7^b; one in Hindūstānī, on fol. 10^a; the story of Solomon and the birds, in Persian, on fol. 10^b; again an Arabic treatise, فی الروع وقت التحرر, dated Rajab, A.H. 1103 (A.D. 1692, March-April), on fol. 17^b, and a letter by Šā'ib (رعة مرزا صائب), on fol. 20^b.

The extracts from Šā'ib's diwān are dated, on fol. 36^a, the 19th of Rabī'al-awwal, A.H. 1095 (A.D. 1684, March 6), at Sūrat, by Abū Muḥammad bin Muḥammad Ṭāhir alkuṭbī.

Diwān-i-Sābik (دیوان سابق).

Lyrical poems of Hāji Faridūn or Ākā Faridūn Husain, with the takhalluṣ Sābik, who went to India under 'Ālamgīr and was still alive in Lāhūr A.H. 1103 (A.D. 1691, 1692), as a short postscript of the poet himself, on fol. 209^b, is dated Jumādā-alūlā of that year. Sâbiḡ is mentioned in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 123, l. 8 ab infra; in the Ṣuḥuf-i-Ibrâhim, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 644, No. 92; and in the Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1048 (col. 337 in the Bodleian Cat.). This very rare diwân, which is moreover the poet's autograph, written in the twenty-eighth year of 'Âlamgir's reign (A. H. 1096=A. D. 1685), is found in no other collection described hitherto, and contains:

Ḳaṣidas, tarkibbands, and ḳiṭ'as, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

منادیت در آنکو که هر که کشته ماست
بروز حشر زما خونها نخواهد خواست

Some leaves are left blank at the end of this part, for future insertions.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order (also with some partly or wholly blank leaves for additions), on fol. 61^b, beginning:

خون وحدت میزند جوش از رگ زتار ما
نالۀ ناقوس می آید زاستغفار ما

Rubâ'is, on fol. 203^b, beginning:

سلطان سرپر لی مع الله علیست
در مملکتی هستی ما شاه علیست

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2829, ff. 209, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'liḡ; small illuminated frontispieces, on ff. 1^b and 61^b; size, 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

Diwân-i-Kirâmi (دیوان کرامی).

The lyrical poems of Kirâmi (Girâmi in A. Sprenger, pp. 128 and 412, and in Rieu ii. p. 714^a, and iii. p. 1092^a; Karâmi in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., Index, p. 1172^b, or Kurrâmi, ib., p. 1189^b), whose autograph this copy seems to be, since there are many blanks left between the single poems, probably with the intention of filling them up afterwards with poems of the same rhyme-letter; according to the chronogram in the last verse on the last page, آخر شد, it was finished A. H. 1105 (A. D. 1693, 1694). The poet must therefore have flourished towards the beginning of the twelfth century of the Hijrah, and may be identical with Mirzâ 'Abd-alrahmân Kirâmi, the son of Amânatkhân (who was in 'Âlamgir's service); see the Hamisha Bahâr in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 128; Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2200 (col. 369 in the Bodleian Cat.), and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 655, No. 38. Another well-known poet, with the same takhallus, is the Kashmirian poet Mirzâ Kirâmi, son of Mirzâ 'Abd-alghanibeg Kabûl and brother of Mirzâ Arjumand Âzâd (the father died A. H. 1139=A. D. 1726, 1727; Mirzâ Kirâmi himself A. H. 1155=A. D. 1742, comp. Rieu, loc. cit.; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 128, where it is stated that he was a young man in A. H. 1136=A. D. 1723, 1724; and Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2198). Besides these two there are mentioned in the various tadhkiras: Hasanbeg Kirâmi Shâmlû, who was a high official under Jahângir, see Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 434 (col. 314 in the Bodleian Cat.); Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2126 (ib., col. 367); and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 655, No. 37; Kâsimbeg

Kirâmi, see Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2204 (ib., col. 369); Maulânâ Kirâmi of Tabriz, see Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2188, and W. Pertsch, loc. cit., No. 40; Allahwirdibeg Kirâmi, see W. Pertsch, ib., No. 39; Mullâ Kirâmi Kâshî, ib., No. 36; and a Mirzâ Kirâmi, without any further designation, ib., No. 41. This copy contains:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

شست و شوی ده بخون عاشقان میخانه را الخ

Mukhammasât, on fol. 309^a, beginning:

دختر زر بسوی پیر مغان خواهد شد الخ

Rubâ'is and fards, on fol. 317^a, beginning:

Tarkibbands, ḳiṭ'as, ḳaṣidas, and short mathnawis, on fol. 380^a.

No. 882, ff. 404, 2 coll., each ll. 9; large and distinct Nasta'liḡ, illuminated frontispiece; size, 10 in. by 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Another copy of the same diwân.

This copy, not dated, contains:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, intermixed with rubâ'is and fards, on fol. 1^b, beginning as in the preceding copy. Here too blanks are left at the end of several rhyme-letters.

Mukhammasât and rubâ'is, on fol. 242^b.

No. 1820, ff. 265, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'liḡ, mixed with Shikasta; waterspots; size, 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Diwân-i-'Îsâ (دیوان عیسی).

Lyrical poems by 'Îsâ, who flourished under Shâh Sulaimân Şafawî of Persia (A. H. 1077-1105=A. D. 1666-1694), as several of his ḳaṣidas are in praise of that monarch; he therefore cannot be identical with an older poet, Kâdî Masîḥ-al-din 'Îsâ of Sâwa, who flourished under Sultân Ya'qûb, and was killed A. H. 898=A. D. 1493 (see Muntakhab-alasb'âr, No. 436, Bodleian Cat., col. 248; Âtashkada, No. 473, ib., col. 279, and Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1596, ib., col. 352). This diwân contains:

A short preface in prose, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

خورشید سپاس متکلم بچون از آن رفیقہ است کہ
مسیح قلم بدستیاری مریم افکار الخ

Ḳaṣidas (several in honour of Shâh Sulaimân), ḳiṭ'as, and short mathnawis, on fol. 3^b, beginning:

میزند آئینۀ حسن بتان جوش صفا
تا غباری هست از خاکستر دلها بجا

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, followed by rubâ'is and fards, beginning, on fol. 65^b:

یا رب از رنگ هوس پاک کن آئینۀ ما الخ

No date.

No. 507, ff. 124, 2 coll., each ll. 16; clear Nasta'liḡ; size, 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Shaukat (Nos. 1628-1633).

Diwân-i-Shaukat (ديوان شوکت).

Lyrical and epic poems by Maulânâ (Khawâjah or Mullâ) Muḥammad Ishâq (or Abû Ishâq), or—according to others—Muḥammad Ibrâhîm, with the takhalluṣ Shaukat of Bukhârâ, who went, A. H. 1088 (A. D. 1677), to Harât, later on to Mashhad, and finally settled in Isfahân, where he died, A. H. 1107 (A. D. 1595, 1596). He collected his diwân in A. H. 1093 (A. D. 1682); comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1145 and 1146; Khulâṣat-alafkâr, No. 151 (ib., col. 307); Rieu ii. p. 698; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 934; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 568; Krafft, p. 69, etc. The statement of the Muntakhab-alash'âr, No. 330 (col. 246 in the Bodleian Cat.), that he was a native of Isfahân, went to India and was killed by a young Hiudû, is obviously wrong. Equally wrong are the data of his life both in G. Flügel i. pp. 588 and 589, where he is, on the authority of H. Khalfa vi. p. 575, No. 14708, represented as a contemporary of Shâh Isma'îl II, and in the Hamisha Bahâr (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 124), where he is said to have been probably alive as late as A. H. 1136 (A. D. 1720, 1721). A Turkish commentary on Shaukat's diwân is noticed in G. Flügel i. p. 590.

Contents:

A large mystical mathnawî, without any special heading, on fol. 2^b, beginning:

حمد و شکر اورا کہ ہرچہ هست اوست
دام هستی حلقہ ازہای و ہوست

The first page of this poem is repeated on fol. 1^b; ff. 168 and 169 are misplaced, and must, as belonging to the lyrical portion of this MS., be inserted between ff. 187 and 188.

Ghazals, intermixed with rubâ'is and fards, all in alphabetical order, on fol. 186^b, beginning:

خدایا رنگ تأثیری کرامت کن فغانم را
بموج اشک بلبل آب ده تیغ زبانم را

Dated the 2nd of Dhû-alhijjah, A. H. 1138 (A. D. 1726, Aug. 1).

No. 708, ff. 346, 2 coll., each ll. 12-14; written by at least three different hands on different paper in partly careful, partly careless Nasta'lik; many pages greatly injured; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Another copy of the same.

This very badly-written copy contains, as first part, instead of the mathnawî, the kaşidas of Shaukat, which are entirely wanting in the preceding copy; but, unfortunately, they are defective at the beginning and open abruptly thus:

رویم بسوی غربت و دل جانب وطن
افتاده گاہ من بمیان دو کھربا

A number of these kaşidas are in praise of Mirzâ Sa'd-aldin Muḥammadkhân, the governor of Khurâsân (see a prominent specimen of them in No. 1146 of the Bodleian Cat.), others celebrate the Imâm Ridâ.

On fol. 18^b begins the collection of ghazals, rubâ'is, and fards, in alphabetical order, with the same bait as in the preceding copy: خدایا رنگ الٰہی.

Some kit'as and rubâ'is at the end.

Ff. 215^a-220^a are a repetition of fol. 207^a, first line, to fol. 211^a, l. 12.

No date.

No. 911, ff. 220, 2 coll., each ll. 17-19; written by many different hands in various styles of Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

1630

Shaukat's ghazals.

This copy of Shaukat's lyrical poems contains the ghazals, intermixed with rubâ'is and fards, arranged alphabetically in two series.

First series, on ff. 1^b-130^a, beginning as usually: خدایا رنگ الٰہی.

This series goes from the rhyme-letter 1 to ی.

Second series, on ff. 130^b-158^b, beginning with a rubâ'i:

رخساره نمود همچو پای همه را الٰہی

This series is separated from the first by four rubâ'is, which stand outside the alphabetical system, and goes down from the rhyme-letter 1 to م only.

Dated the 3rd of Ramaḍân, A. H. 1116 (1140? or 1104? = A. D. 1728, April 13, or 1693, May 8), by Ḥafîz Muḥammad Ṣâliḥ, son of Ḥafîz Abû-alkhair. Calcutta, March, 1806.

No. 2388, ff. 158, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

The same.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, intermixed with some rubâ'is and fards; beginning, on fol. 1^b, the same as in the preceding copies, but thus (substituting الٰہی for خدایا, as in the first copy of the British Museum): الٰہی رنگ الٰہی.

Seven unalphabetical rubâ'is at the end. No date. This splendid copy has at the end several leaves, which are ornamented, but left blank for the insertion of further poems.

No. 3513, ff. 110, 2 coll., each ll. 12; excellent Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece; each ghazal framed in by gold stripes and arabesques on the first thirty-two leaves; gorgeous illuminations on the margin of the first twenty-three leaves; all pages besides powdered with gold; size, 10¾ in. by 6¾ in.

1632

The same.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, beginning as usually: خدایا رنگ الٰہی.

No date.

No. 3343, olim 13. J. 31, ff. 111, 2 coll., each ll. 13; careless Nasta'lik; size, 7¼ in. by 3¾ in.

1633

An incomplete copy of the same.

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with the usual beginning, on fol. 94^b, which, however, break off already in the first rhyme-letter l, on fol. 113^b. The last bait, appearing here, is the beginning of a new ghazal, میزند زلف کجبت آلع, and corresponds to fol. 30^b, l. 2 in No. 2388 (1630 in this Cat.).

No. 95, ff. 94^b-113^b, 2 coll., each ll. 15; very bad Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Mathnawis by 'Ākilkhān Rāzī.

Two romantic stories in verse by Mīr 'Askarī 'Ākilkhān Rāzī, who was in high favour with the emperor 'Ālamgīr, and died as governor of the province of Dihlī in Rabī II, A. H. 1108 (A. D. 1696, Nov.); comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1148 and 1149; Rieu ii. p. 699; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 123 and 543; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 935; Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 29 (col. 297 in the Bodleian Cat.); Ouseley, Notices of Persian Poets, p. 167 sq. Besides the three mathnawis, contained in the India Office Collection, he also composed the نغمات العشقی, the ظفرنامه عالمگیری, also styled واقعات عالمگیری, a history of the first five years of 'Ālamgīr's reign (see Nos. 345 and 346 above), and a diwān, which is described both in the Bodleian Cat. and in A. Sprenger, loc. cit. The present copy contains:

1. Ff. 1-80: Sham' u Parwāna (شمع و پروانه), Candle and Moth, that is the Indian love-story of Ratan Sēn (or Ratan) and Padmāwat (or Padam), composed A. H. 1069 (A. D. 1658, 1659), see fol. 80^a, l. 2: سال هجرت هزار و شصت و نهم. The title appears in the heading of fol. 1^a and on fol. 79^a, lin. penult. It is based on an older Hindi story (see fol. 80^a, l. 5), which had already been treated in Persian by Bazmī, A. H. 1028 (A. D. 1619), see Nos. 1582 and 1583 above.

Beginning:

ای فرازنده رواق سپهر - وی طرازنده سپهر بهمر

A Persian prose-version of the same story, founded on this poem of Rāzī, viz. فرح بخش, by Lāchmī-Rām, is noticed in Rieu ii. p. 768^b. Another prose-version is described in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 998.

Ff. 81-87 contain smaller poetical pieces, ta'rikhs, rubā'is, and tarji'bands, probably by the same author, and an epilogue in prose by the transcriber, Mīr 'Alī Muḥammad Akbar, who dated this copy the 25th of Dhū-al-hijjah, A. H. 1148 (eighteenth year of Muḥammad-shāh's reign) = A. D. 1736, May 7, in a place near Serīngapatan.

2. Ff. 88-170^a: Mīhr u Māh (مهرو ماه), Sun and Moon, that is the Indian love-story of prince Manōhar and princess Madhumālat, composed A. H. 1065 (A. D. 1655), see fol. 170^a, lin. penult.: زهجرت بکهزار و شصت بخوان تاریخ این دیباجة, و پنج است قصه عشق. In the Khātimah this poem is styled عشق

fol. 168^a, l. 7, and غم نامه, fol. 170^a, lin. penult. It is, like the preceding mathnawī, based on an older Hindi story by Shaikh Jamman or Manjhan, which was first translated into Persian verse A. H. 1059 (A. D. 1649), see Rieu ii. pp. 700^a and 803^b, and three years after the second Persiau adaptation by 'Ākilkhān Rāzī, turned into Dakhnī verses by Miyān Nuṣratī A. H. 1068 (A. D. 1657, 1658), under the title of گلشن عشق, copies of which are found in the India Office Collection, Nos. 1434, 2486, and 2621; in the Bodleian Library, No. 2320 of the Cat., etc. Comp. A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 630, and Garcin de Tassy, Histoire de la Littér. Hindouie, etc. i. p. 388; ii. pp. 485 and 486; on prose-versions of the same story, see above, No. 803, 3. Beginning:

Mīr 'Alī Akbar, and dated this poem the 26th of Dhū-alkā'dah, A. H. 1148 (A. D. 1736, April 8), at Banawasse (Banawasse, as the place is called on the last fly-leaf).

The lyrical poems of Shaikh (or Shâh) Nâsir 'Ali of Sirhind, who died at Dihli the 6th of Ramaḍân, A. H. 1108 (A. D. 1697, March 29); comp. Rieu ii. p. 699 sq.; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1150-1152; W. Pertsch, p. 80; and Berlin Cat., p. 936; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 113, 126, 151, 201, and 329; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. ii. p. 107; see also Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 167 (No. 109); Muntakhab-alash'ar, No. 458 (col. 249 in the Bodleian Cat.); Khulâsat-alkalâm, No. 47 (ib., col. 298); Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 178 (ib., col. 308), and Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1743 (ib., col. 355). All tadhkiras agree about the date A. H. 1108, but a strange contradiction appears in the chronogram, composed by Sarkhwush, the friend of the poet and the collector of his diwân: آء علی بعالم معنی رفت, which gives A. H. 1109, see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 113, and the Khulâsat-alkalâm, loc. cit. This copy, the fullest in the India Office Collection, contains:

Ghazals, rubâ'is, and fards, all mixed together in alphabetical order, with interlinear and marginal glosses, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

محبت جاذبه دارد نهان در خلوت دلها الخ

At the end of this part another series of rubâ'is (on ff. 95^a-99^b).

Kašidas, on fol. 100^a, beginning:

گداخت بسکه هوای تموز مغز خیال الخ

The poet's name appears as takhalluṣ several times, for instance, on fol. 106^b, l. 8. The diwân has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1844, A. H. 1263 and 1281.

Copied by Khwâjah 'Azim in the twenty-ninth year of Muḥammadshâh's reign (= A. H. 1160, A. D. 1747); the larger portion of the diwân, i. e. to the end of the rubâ'is, was finished the 19th of Muḥarram in that year (1747, Jan. 31).

No. 1078, ff. 110, 2 coll., each ll. 14; careless Nasta'liq; size, 8 in. by 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

Another copy of the same diwân.

The same diwân, without the kašidas, chiefly consisting of ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning as in the preceding copy. The ghazals conclude on fol. 73^a and are dated the 25th of Šafar, A. H. 1132 (the first year of Muḥammadshâh's reign) = A. D. 1720, Jan. 7, at Shâhjahanâbâd, during the governorship of Nawwâb Najm-al-din 'Alikhân Bahâdur. The remaining leaves contain:

Fol. 73^b: nine mathnawi-baits by the حکیم غزنوی (i. e. Hakîm Sanâ'i of Ghazna, see above, No. 914 sq.), beginning:

بود در شهر بلخ بقالی الخ

Ff. 74^b-78^a: a mathnawi which has no heading, but is clearly identical with the Sarâpâi (سرایی) or 'description of the human figure,' by Mir Sayyid 'Ali Mihrî 'Arab, who flourished under Sultân Husain of Persia (A. H. 1105-1135 = A. D. 1694-1722), and died about A. H. 1130 (A. D. 1718); comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1168; Rieu ii. pp. 796^a and 850^b; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 680 (No. 671, fol. 43^b) and p. 696, No. 9; Khulâsat-alkalâm, No. 67 (Bodleian Cat., col. 301); and Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 249 (ib., col. 311). Beginning:

ای بت چایک شیرین حرکات الخ

Fol. 78^b: some lines in prose, beginning: بعد از
نماز مغرب دو رکعت نماز الخ

No. 95, ff. 1-78, 2 coll., each ll. 15; on ff. 74^a-78^a diagonal lines; Shikasta; various readings and additions on the margin; the first pages greatly injured; size, 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

The same.

Ghazals, rubâ'is, and fards, mixed together in alphabetical order, beginning as usual. This diwân concludes on fol. 109^a and is dated the 21st of Muḥarram, A. H. 1143 (the thirteenth year of Muḥammadshâh's reign, correctly the twelfth, as his accession to the throne took place in Dhû-alka'dah of A. H. 1131) = A. D. 1730, Aug. 6. The remaining leaves contain:

Ff. 109^b and 110^a: a kašidah by Anwari (see above, Nos. 935-949), beginning:

mathnawī by Shaikh Muḥammad Akram, with the takhalluṣ Ghanimat, of Gaujah in the Panjāb, a pupil of Mir Muḥammad Zamān Rāsikh of Lāhūr (who died A.H. 1107=A.D. 1695, 1696, see a description of his mathnawī in No. 1147 of the Bodleian Cat.) and a favourite of the emperor 'Ālamgīr. It was completed A.H. 1096 (A.D. 1685) and begins:

بنام شاهد نازک خیالان - عزیز خاطر آشفته حالان

The poet died about A.H. 1110 (A.D. 1698, 1699). His diwān is described in Rieu ii. p. 700^b; see also ib. iii. p. 1034^b. Khulāṣat-alkalām, No. 51 (col. 299 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 1815 (ib., col. 357). It was lithographed in Lucknow about A.H. 1263, with glosses by Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ and others. This copy is dated A.H. 1152 (A.D. 1739, 1740).

No date. Twelfth century of the Hijrah. As copyist is mentioned, on fol. 55^a (by a third hand, it seems), Ghulām Muḥammad. A note, affixed to the fly-leaf by C. Raikes, Commissioner and Superintendent, states that this, 'like Heer and Rauja, is a love-story. Ghuneemut died recently (sic!) at Goojerat and is the author of a Deewan or collection of odes. Sent to the Imperial Exhibition at Paris for works of art and industry by the Punjab Committee at Lahore.' It was received from Dr. Royle, July, 1856.

No. 3230, ff. 55, 2 coll., each ll. 14 (on ff. 1-30), ll. 15 (on ff. 31-54); Nasta'liq, by two different hands; size, 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

A short anonymous mathnawī, apparently a ساقی نامه and probably by the same Ghanimat; it is written by the same hand as the نیرنگ عشق in No. 1649 and immediately after it. Beginning:

بیا ساقی که فصل نو بهارست
قلع گلرنگ می مطرب هزارست

End:

چه حاصل نکفت از طول کلامست

Diwān-i-Tāhir Waḥid (دیوان طاهر وحید).

The largest collection extant of the lyrical poems of 'Imād-aldaulah Mirzā Muḥammad Tāhir Waḥid of Kazwīn, who was a friend of Ṣā'ib (see above, Nos. 1606-1623) and historiographer of Shāh 'Abbās II of Persia (A.H. 1052-1077=A.D. 1642-1666), whose life from his birth to the fifteenth or sixteenth year of his reign he wrote in the تاریخ شاه عباس ثانی (see above, Nos. 555-557). He died, according to the Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 298 (col. 312 in the Bodleian Cat.), A.H. 1110 (A.D. 1698, 1699); Sirāj gives the earlier date, A.H. 1108 (A.D. 1696, 1697), see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 151, and the Zumat-alnajālīs the later date, A.H. 1118 or 1119 (A.D. 1706, 1707); comp. Rieu i. p. 189; comp. besides A. This is the first rubâ'i, quoted in the Makhzan-algharâ'ib, loc. cit., see No. 1653.

Ghazaliyyât-i-Athar (غزلیات اثر).

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with some rubâ'is and fards at the end, by Shafi'â Athar of Shirâz, who spent the chief part of his life in Isfahân and died at Lâr A.H. 1113 (A.D. 1701, 1702), according to the chronogram کرد وداع از جهان معلم ثانی, quoted in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 344; a later date, viz. A.H. 1124 (A.D. 1712, 1713), is given in the دیوان منتخب of Sirâj, ib., p. 149; comp. also ib., p. 117. As he was blind from early boyhood, he never visited India. His diwân was collected A.H. 1106 (A.D. 1694, 1695). Copies of his complete lyrical poems are described in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1156; Rieu ii. p. 791b, and A. Sprenger, p. 344; comp. also Âtashkada, No. 645 (col. 284 in the Bodleian Cat.), and Khulâsat-alafkâr, No. 19 (ib., col. 303), where he is called a panegyrist of Shâh Sulaimân Safawî.

No date.

No. 477, ff. 73, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Two anonymous mathnawis.

1. The first, on ff. 1b-53a, is styled, on fol. 1a, لیلی و مجنون, but its real title appears to be Mihr u Wafâ (مهر و وفا); it is dedicated to the emperor 'Âlamgir, see fol. 3a; and in the preface, on fol. 7a sq., the anonymous author mentions all the former great poets from Rûdagi down to his own time, and bestows a special praise upon each of them. Beginning:

خداوندا دلی ده داغ پرورد - سراپا داغ ودافش سرسرد
بمهر خود مرا گرم آشنا کن - دلم را نسخه مهر و وفا کن

2. The second, on ff. 54b-112, is styled, on ff. 1a and

54a, شیرین و خسرو, but this seems to be incorrect too; on fol. 59a, l. 2, the real title appears, شمع انجم, in the following bait:

گفت ناگه هاتنی درگوش من
نام این مجموعه شمع انجم

Beginning, on fol. 54b:

ای وجودت واجب و ممکن همه
بر وجودت مؤمن و موقن همه

The author of both mathnawis is probably the same; the only poet of 'Âlamgir's time, to whom a mathnawî, is ascribed, is 'Ârif of Lâhûr, see Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1672 (col. 354 in the Bodleian Cat.).

No. 112, ff. 150, 2 coll., each ll. 14-17; written by different hands in different kinds of careful and careless Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4¾ in.

Diwân-i-Rasâ (دیوان رسا).

The lyrical poems of Mirzâ Îzadbakhsh Rasâ, who flourished under 'Âlamgir and died, according to the chronogram quoted both in the Hamisha Bahâr (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 123) and the Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 893 (col. 334 in the Bodleian Cat.): رسا رفته, A.H. 1119 (A.D. 1707, 1708); the ریاض الشعرا, however, say, that he died in 'Âlamgir's reign, see Rieu iii. pp. 985b and 986a, where another work of Rasâ, the ریاض الوداد, a collection of letters and refined prose-writing, is described. He was a descendant of Jahângir's wazir, Âsafkhân Ja'far Kâzwini, and lived under 'Âlamgir in Akbarâbâd. The diwân begins, on fol. 40b, with kasidas, the initial bait of which runs thus: ای کرده دل دوست تو ایجاد کرم را الخ. The kasidas conclude on fol. 48a, and are followed on ff. 49b-100b by a series of ghazals, rubâ'is, and fards, in alphabetical order, with a short mathnawî at the end; this series begins: نبود شعر شعاری بخدا پیشه: ما الخ.

On ff. 4b-38a an anonymous mystical mathnawî is written by another hand in Shikasta, beginning: الهی ذرّه آگاهیم بخش الخ, and dated A.H. 1147 (A.D. 1734, 1735). All the remainder of the MS., ff. 1-4a, 38b-40a, 48b, 49a, 101a-104, and the margin throughout are filled by a third hand which is much smaller than the other two, with a poetical anthology; ff. 39b and 40a also contain some prose-extracts. Many leaves are greatly damaged by worms.

No. 863, ff. 104, ll. 15; three different handwritings; Shikasta on ff. 4b-38a; larger and smaller Nasta'liq in the remaining parts of the copy; size, 8¾ in. by 5¼ in.

Ni'matkhân 'Âli (Nos. 1659-1671).

Kulliyyât-i-Ni'matkhân 'Âli (کلیّات نعمتخان عالی). The complete works in prose and verse of Mirzâ

Nūr-aldīn Muḥammad, who sprung from a Persian family of Shirāz, received in A.H. 1104 (A.D. 1692, 1693) from 'Ālamgīr the honorary title of Nī'matkhān, and later on that of Minkarrabkhān, and was honoured by Bahādurkhān with the epithet of Dānishmandkhān; in his poetical works, which are chiefly remarkable for their sharp wit and their great satirical power, he uses as takhalluṣ 'Āli. The usual date of his death given in most tadhkiras is A.H. 1121 (A.D. 1709, 1710); only in the Ta'rikh-i-Cāghatāi and the Ta'rikh-i-Muḥammadi (see Rieu ii. p. 703^a, and iii. p. 1049^b), A.H. 1122, first of Rabi' II, is given (=A.D. 1710, May 30); comp. also A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 127, 151, and 328; Khulāṣat-alafkār, No. 176 (col. 308 in the Bodleian Cat.); and Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 1675 (ib., col. 354).

Waḳā'i'-i-Haidarābād (وقائع حیدرآباد) or, with its fuller title, Wāḳi'āt-i-Haidarābād u Gulkundah (واقعات حیدرآباد و گلکنده), also styled frequently Waḳā'i'-i-Nī'matkhān 'Āli (وقائع نعمت خان عالی), a satirical chronicle of the siege of Haidarābād, in seven sections, describing the Wāḳi'āt or events from the 14th to the 16th of the month Rajab, and from the 19th to the 22nd of the month Sha'bān in A.H. 1097, the thirtieth—or rather twenty-ninth—year of 'Ālamgīr's reign = A.D. 1686, June, July (in Rieu's copy 13th-15th Rajab and 17th, 18th, 25th, and 29th Sha'bān), beginning, on fol. 69^b: دمی که مدرّس; other copies of the same are found in Bodleian Cat., No. 1157, 5, No. 1159, 1, and No. 1160; Rieu i. p. 268, ii. pp. 745^a, 796^a, and 850^b, iii. p. 1049^a; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 492; see also Ellicot, History of India, vii. p. 200. Lithographed in India A.H. 1248 (together with Ḥusn u 'Ishk, see No. 4 in this copy), and printed in Lucknow A.H. 1259 (with marginal notes by Maulawī Maḳbūl Aḥmad). A more modern lithographed edition appeared in Kanpūr, 1870.

This part likewise collated, A.H. 1136.

3. Ruḳa'āt-i-Nī'matkhān (رقعات نعمتخان), letters and other elegant prose-writings, on fol. 125^b, beginning: رقعہ در طلب عزیزی برای تماشای بازی میر
و وزیر الخ امروز فلک شعبده باز هنگامہ دوستانرا الخ

Other copies of these رقعات or منشآت are noticed in Bodleian Cat., No. 1157, 7, No. 1159, 2 and 3; single letters are mentioned in Rieu ii. pp. 738^b, No. 6, 796^a, No. IV, and 796^b, No. X; additional satirical pieces, for instance, the رسالہ ہجو حکما, ib., p. 744^b, No. I, and p. 850^b; the راحت القلوب, ib., p. 796^a, No. I.

On fol. 135^b a مناظرۃ اطباء is found.

4. Ḥusn u 'Ishk (حسن و عشق), 'beauty and love,' an allegorical story in prose and verse, also called کتخدائی حسن و عشق or مناکحہ حسن و عشق, 'the wedding of beauty and love,' on fol. 144^b, beginning:

حدیث عشق شد زیب بیانم
چو شمع افتاد آتش در زبانم

Other copies of this story in Bodleian Cat., No. 1157, 6, No. 1159, 3; Rieu ii. pp. 703^b, 796^a, No. III, and 850^b; extracts from the same, ib., p. 738^b; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 681. Edited at Lucknow, 1842 and 1873; with commentary at Dihli, 1844.

Collated in the same year as Nos. 1 and 2 of this copy.

5. Kaṣīdas, kit'as, satires, chronograms, etc. (قصائد و قطعہما و ہجوہما از تصنیف نعمتخان), on fol. 156^b, beginning with a poem in honour of 'Ālamgīr:

شاهما نظر بروی تو کردن عبادتست
مژگان بهم زدن چو نماز جماعتست

A short نامہ, on fol. 180^a; other copies of these poems in Bodleian Cat., No. 1157, 3, and No. 1158 (fol. 158^a sq.); the ghazals, rubā'is, and prose-preface appearing there in Nos. 1157, 1, and 1158 (ff. 13^a sq. and 168^a sq.), as well as in British Museum copies, Rieu ii. pp. 702^b and 703^a, and in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 328, are entirely wanting in the present copy. This diwān is entitled in A. Sprenger, loc. cit., خوان نعمت; but that is probably a mistake, since this title properly belongs to a prose-work of Nī'matkhān 'Āli on cookery, not included in his Kulliyyāt; comp. W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 343.

6. A large mathnawī, on ethical and moral matters, with mystic tendency, interspersed with short tales and anecdotes, on fol. 185^b, beginning:

دام هستی حلقہ داراہای ہوست (دارازہای و ہوست read)

See the same mathnawī in Bodleian Cat., No. 1157, 4, and No. 1161; Rieu ii. pp. 703^a, and 796^b, No. XII; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 329. This last part was written by another hand and at an earlier period than the preceding ones, and according to a note on fol. 185^a, منثور نعمتخان بنسبت عالی, probably by the author himself.

No. 83, ff. 313, ll. 17; 2 coll., in the poetical parts; Nas-ta'liq, by two different hands; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

A smaller collection of Nī'matkhān 'Āli's works.

H. 1122 (A. D. 1710, 1711); the chronogram of his death is امتیازخان, see Khulâsat-alkalâm, No. 25 (col. 297 in the Bodleian Cat.); and A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 111, 121, 141, and 150; other copies of his diwân are noticed in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 460, and W. (انتخاب کلیات واضح) Intikhâb-i-Kulliyyât-i-Wâḍih.

Large selections from the complete poetical works of Mir Mubârak-allâh, with the takhalluṣ Wâḍih, and the honorary title of Irâdatkhân, which was originally borne by his father Mir Ishâk 'Irâdatkhân (who died as Nâẓim of Oude A. H. 1068=A. D. 1657, 1658), and bestowed upon the poet by the emperor 'Âlamgir, A. H. 1108 (A. D. 1696, 1697). He died in Farrukhsiyar's reign, A. H. 1128 (A. D. 1716), see Rieu iii. p. 938; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 130, 151, 160, and 583; Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2990 (col. 392 in the Bodleian Cat.). In poetry he was a pupil of Mir Muḥammad Zamân Râsikh (see above, No. 1649), and wrote besides his poetical works a volume of historical memoirs, covering the period from 'Âlamgir's death, A. H. 1118 (A. D. 1707), to Farrukhsiyar's entrance into Dihli, in Muharram, A. H. 1125 (A. D. 1713, Febr.), styled مقتل السلاطين, and completed A. H. 1126 (A. D. 1714), see Rieu, loc. cit. (it appeared in a condensed translation by Jouathan Scott, London, 1780; comp. also Elliot, History of India, vii. pp. 534-544). The statement in the preface, on fol. 2^a, that Zamân Râsikh made this selection in A. H. 1098 (A. D. 1687) refers not to the present collection, but to the much smaller extracts in the following copy, to which the preface originally belonged and from where it has been transferred into this. That such is the case, is evident from the inclusion of the Sâkinâma (on fol. 106^a sq.), which was completed A. H. 1107 (A. D. 1695, 1696). Sprenger's statement, that among Wâḍih's rubâ'is is a chronogram for A. H. 1134 (A. D. 1721, 1722), must be due to a mistake, as all tadhkiras agree about his death having taken place under Farrukhsiyar, and the ta'rîkh in question, as it is worded on fol. 584 of his Catal., gives the impossible date of 1183 (!)

Contents:

1. Preface, on fol. 1^b, beginning: واضح صاحب کمالان
بلند خیال است که هر نمودیرا الخ

2. Kāṣidas, on fol. 2^b, beginning:

کی گردد از عزیمت من سست نیم نار الخ

3. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, intermixed with rubā'is, on fol. 20^b, beginning:

ای خشک زبان ساخته مقصد طلبانرا
گرداب عدم کرده سراب دو جهانرا

4. Another short collection of ghazals and rubā'is, in alphabetical order, with a short preface in prose, on fol. 94^a, beginning: حمد صانعی که ربع مسکون سخت را چون سریر عرش نظیر دیباچه الخ

Beginning of the initial poem, on fol. 95^a:

بسم الله این رباعی عنصر ما الخ

The last two parts fill in Sprenger's copy more than twice the number of leaves.

5. Sākināma (ساقینامه), with preface, completed A.H. 1107 (A.D. 1695, 1696); beginning of the preface, on fol. 106^a: شربنا علی ذکر الحبيب مدامه سکرنا بها من قبل الخ

Beginning of the poetry, on fol. 111^a:

بهشيار مستی که ناک آفرید الخ

6. Six other mathnawis of mystic tendency, preceded by a preface, which begins, on fol. 114¹: عشقست جمال کمالی را که صفای حیرت فزای قلوب عشاق الخ

If the remark of the Hamisha Bahār, that Wādih wrote a mathnawi in six daftars, should apply to this poem, then the six, enumerated here, would form one mathnawi, viz. the ā'īnē rāz; but the difference of metre especially between the first, second, and third speaks against this assumption; at any rate, the first, being longer than the five following ones together, seems to be a separate and independent poem.

First mathnawi, on fol. 121^a, styled Ā'ina-i-rāz (آئینه راز), 'the mirror of secrecy,' commenced A.H. 1075 (A.D. 1664, 1665), and completed A.H. 1078 (A.D. 1667, 1668); it begins:

بنام آنکه دل آئینه سازست
نظر باز نهانی جمله رازست

Second mathnawi, on fol. 169^b, beginning:

بشنو از نائی که چون نی در دمید الخ

Third, on fol. 184^b:

ای مطلع فکر خوش خیالان الخ

Fourth, on fol. 195^a:

ای زیرنگی تو رنگ همه الخ

Fifth, on fol. 199^a:

لوحه دیوان کلام قدیم الخ

Sixth, on fol. 201^b:

قل هو الله احد الخ

No date.

No. 558, ff. 202, ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 13½ in. by 7 in.

(انتخاب دیوان واضح) Intikhāb-i-Diwan-i-Wādih.

Extracts from the lyrical poems of Wādih, made A.H. 1098 (A.D. 1687) by his teacher and friend Zamān Rāsikh; comp. fol. 2^a in the preface, and the remark thereupon in the preceding copy. Rāsikh states besides, that he carried these extracts always with him as a token of his friendly feelings towards the author.

Contents:

The same preface, noticed in the preceding copy, on fol. 1^b, beginning: واضح صاحب کمالان الخ.

Ghazals, rubā'is, and fards, in alphabetical order, beginning: ای خشک زمان (زبان) ساخته مقصد: طالبانرا (طلبانرا) الخ

This copy is dated A.H. 1152 (A.D. 1739, 1740).

No. 490, ff. 1-31, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Besides his lyrical poems he composed several mathnawis, viz. the ḥaṣṣat-akṣam (see below, Nos. 1682 and 1683); the ṭalīsm ḥayrat (Nos. 1684 and 1685); the ṭalīsm ḥayrat (No. 1686); the ḥaṣṣat ḥaqīqat (A. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 147, No. 2; see also Rieu ii. p. 811^a, and iii. pp. 1006^b and 1068^a), and the ḥayrat (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 119, l. 9). No. 480, ff. 264, 2 coll., each ll. 17; small Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Diwān-i-Bidil (دیوان بیدل).

Another collection of Mirzā Bidil's lyrical poems, containing:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning, as in Sprenger's copy and in the first of the Berlin collection:

Diwān-i-Mukhlis Kāshī (دیوان مخلص کاشی).

Lyrical poems by Mirzā Muḥammad Mukhlis or Mukhlisā of Kāshān, who went to Isfahān under Sultān Husain Mirzā Šafawī (A.H. 1105-1135=A.D. 1694-1722), and died there at the age of sixty; he never visited India; see Rieu ii. p. 709^a, iii. p. 1091^b; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 699, No. 24; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 128 and 138; Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 2583 (Bodleian Cat., col. 380). Why Rieu, in the Index of his Cat. iii. p. 1171^b, fixes his death as late as A.H. 1150 (A.D. 1737, 1738), is not clear, since Ḥazīn mentions him in his tadhkirah among the earliest of his contemporaries, and there is no evidence even that he actually lived to the end of Sultān Husain's reign, that is to say, to A.H. 1135.

This diwān consists of ghazals only, arranged alphabetically, and beginning, on fol. 56^b (in the same way as Rieu's and Pertsch's copies):

IND. OFF.

Diwān-i-Ghairat (دیوان غیرت).

Lyrical poems of Ghairat, a poet who must have flourished in the beginning of Muḥammadshāh's reign, as he mentions this emperor twice, on ff. 146^b, l. 6, and 147^a, l. 1, and there are besides the dates A.H. 1135 and 1134 (A.D. 1722, 1723 and 1721, 1722) given in the ta'rikhāt, on ff. 146^b and 147^a. There are mentioned in the various tadhkiras three poets with this takhallus, all of whom might be identical with this one, viz. Mullā Muḥammad Ghairat of Kashmir, Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 1823 (Bodleian Cat., col. 357); Muḥammad 'Āqil Ghairat, Safinah, No. 558 (ib., col. 229), and Makhzan-algharā'ib, No. 1827 (ib., col. 358); and Mullā Ghairat of Hamadān, Muntakhab-alash'ar, No. 460 (ib., col. 249).

Contents:

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

تجلی زارکن یا رب صفای سینۀ مارا
دو چار جلوۀ دیدار ساز آئینۀ مارا

The first twenty-three leaves are more or less seriously injured, and many verses entirely destroyed.

Some mukhammasāt and rubā'is, on fol. 126^b.

Kāshidas, kiṭ'as, and ta'rikhāt, on fol. 134^b, beginning:

تا که در کام من زبان باشد - همه ذکر خدایگان باشد

Rich marginal additions by another hand.

Now and then blank spaces are left for the insertion of further poems; it is probable, therefore, that this copy is the poet's autograph.

Diwān-i-Kāsim Diwāna (دیوان قاسم دیوانه).

The earliest collection, it seems, of the lyrical poems of Mullā Muḥammad Kāsim Diwāna of Mashhad, who was a pupil of Ša'ib (Nos. 1606-1623 above) and a contemporary of Sarkhwush, the author of the Kalimāt-alshu'arā (see Nos. 670-672); he was still alive in A.H. 1136 (A.D. 1723, 1724), comp. Rieu ii. p. 707^b; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 113, 128 and 534, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 699, No. 26 (where a few of his ghazals are noticed). This collection, which contains ghazals and rubā'is in alphabetical order, with a few fards and rubā'is at the end, was written in A.H. 1101 (A.D. 1689, 1690), probably by the poet himself.

This copy is not dated, but as the handwriting agrees with that of Nâzîm's Yûsuf and Zalikhâ (see No. 1595 above), it must be written about the same time, viz. in or shortly after A. H. 1103 (A. D. 1692).

Diwān-i-Nuṣrat (دیوان نصرت).

Ghazals by Dilāwarkhān, with the takhalluṣ Nuṣrat, who died A.H. 1139 (A.D. 1726, 1727), see A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 151 and 525. They are arranged alphabetically and begin (differently from Sprenger's copy): الهی سرعت برقی کرامت کن زبانم را الی.

This copy, not dated, is probably the poet's first brouillon.

No. 331, ff. 109, 2 and sometimes 3 coll., each ll. 12; Shikasta; size, 11 in. by 5½ in.

Diwān-i-Munshī (دیوان منشی).

Lyrical poems by Jaswant Rāi Munshī, who made a fair copy of his diwān in A.H. 1124 (A.D. 1712), and is probably identical with the author of the popular epopee سستی وینو, which was completed A.H. 1140 (A.D. 1727, 1728), see A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 507 and 508. This copy contains ghazals, in alphabetical order, mixed with a few rubā'is, and at the end another series of rubā'is together with portions of a Sākināma. Its rather unfinished state makes it probable, that it is an autograph of the poet himself.

Beginning of the ghazals, on fol. 1^b:

ای پر دُر از سحاب ثنایت رساله‌ها
گردید سینه چاک صدف زین نواله‌ها

The initial ghazal of Sprenger's copy is here the third (on fol. 2^a), beginning thus:

ای پر شکر ز نام تو کام و دهمان ما
طوطی سبق گرفته ز نطق زبان ما

No date.

No. 1454, ff. 71, 2 coll., each ll. 11; clear and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 9½ in. by 4½ in.

1696

Jilwa-i-Dhāt (جلوة ذات).

A very large mathnawī on the adventures of Kṛishna, interspersed with many ghazals and rubā'is, and founded on Sanskrit sources, by a poet with the takhalluṣ Amānat (امانت), see this name in all the last baits of the ghazals and besides on fol. 13^a, lin. penult. It was composed A.H. 1145 (A.D. 1732, 1733), the title being a chronogram, comp. fol. 17^b, l. 12.

Beginning:

بنام آنکه جانان جهان است
چو جان از دیدۀ مردم نهان است

This copy was finished the first of Ramadān, A.H. 1176 (A.D. 1763, March 16), at Farrukhābād. The proper order of ff. 218-235 is: 218, 227-234, 219-226, 235.

No. 270, ff. 499, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Nasta'liq; size, 6½ in. by 3½ in.

Bahrām u Gulandām (بهرام و گلندام).

The love-story of prince Bahrām and Gulandām, a romantic mathnawī which seems to be identical with Amin's epopee of the same title, noticed in Rieu ii. p. 877^b. It opens here with seven admonitions (بند), on fol. 1^a, thus: بخوادم گفتنت هفت بند موزون الی.

The story itself begins, on fol. 4^a, with the following chapter: بخشیدن شاه کشور تاج و جهان پیمائی به بهرام.

Rieu's copy is dated A.H. 1147 (A.D. 1734, 1735), the present one the 18th of Jumādā-althāni, A.H. 1224 (A.D. 1809, July 31). A version of the same story in Pushtū verses by a poet with the takhalluṣ Fayyād is preserved in No. 3249 of the India Office Collection. It is written in stanzas of unequal length, each of which is a ghazal, somewhat like Bā'ikhān's مجنون و لیلی, see Z. D. M. G. xvi. p. 789; another version in the Gūrān dialect of Eastern Kurdistan is described in Rieu ii. p. 734; a third in Dakhnī verses by Ṭab'ī is noticed in A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 639 and 643; the last-mentioned was composed A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670, 1671).

No. 2097, ff. 113, 2 coll., each ll. 12; large and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

ثمره الفؤاد wa natijat-alwadād (ثمره الفؤاد و نتیجه الوداد).

Collected works in prose and verse treating of love and lovers, and consisting of little mathnawīs, poetical and prose stories, ghazals, rubá'is, etc., all of the elegiac kind, as the author composed them three years after a great misfortune, a فراق or هجران (a parting), that seems to have been the loss of his beloved one, which befell him in A.H. 1143 (A.D. 1730, 1731), in A.H. 1146 (A.D. 1733, 1734), and finished this, his own autograph, the 22nd of Rajab, A.H. 1147 (A.D. 1734, Dec. 18). The author's name is, according to the preface (see fol. 1^b, lin. penult., and fol. 2^a, l. 1), Muḥammad Kāsim, with the takhalluṣ Ẓarāfat (ظرافت), but this seems to have been an afterthought of the poet, since in all the lyrical poems of this work the takhalluṣ is either Kāsim or Sadākat (صدقت), see, for instance, fol. 92^b, l. 2, fol. 173^a, ll. 3 and 8, fol. 173^b, ll. 3 and 9, etc., and in all places where ظرافت appears, it is evidently corrected out of an original صدقت, signs of scratching being clearly visible.

Beginning of the preface, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لله الذى برحمته ألف بين القلوب وجعل العشاق منشقة لليوب
و صير الصبر سبب وصال المطلوب الخ

The first poetical piece is a حمد and نعت, on fol. 3^a, beginning:

بنام آنکه نامش الفت آموخت
رخ عصیان زجام رحمت افروخت

The second, a مناجات, on fol. 3^b, beginning:

الهی عاصی رحمت بنامم
گنهکار ضراعت دستگامم

The principal part of this collection ends with the colophon, on fol. 187^a, giving the above-mentioned date, A.H. 1147, 22nd of Rajab; but on ff. 188^b-212^a a longer mathnawī follows by the same author, and composed, as he says on fol. 189^a, l. 8, six years after his heavy loss, i.e. A.H. 1149 (A.D. 1736, 1737), or two years after the completion of the main part of this work.

Beginning:

بنام آنکه نامش ذکر جانست
بعاصی. بندگاناش مهربانست

It is copied, like the preceding portion, by the author's own hand.

Another copy of this work is described in Rieu ii. p. 710^b, where it is represented as a coherent mathnawī with inserted extracts from Arabic and Persian works and consisting of two *daftar*s, completed respectively A.H. 1146 and 1149 (see above); the appendix mentioned there, as describing a happy meeting of the poet with his beloved in A.H. 1156 (A.D. 1743), is not found in this copy, which seems somewhat different from Rieu's and does decidedly not represent a coherent mathnawī, as, apart from the inserted pieces in prose and verse, even the original parts differ both in metre and in poetical character, lyrical poetry being mixed up with the epical to a great extent.

No. 261, ff. 212, ll. 12; two illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b and 188^b; small illuminations throughout; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Kulliyyât-i-Nadrat (کلیات ندرت).

Complete lyrical poems of Nadrat, who is, no doubt, identical with 'Alī Fiṭrat 'Atâ-allâh, with the takhalluṣ Nadrat, the author of a tadhkirah described in No. 676 above, and completed A.H. 1149, 1150 (A.D. 1737).

This copy contains: ghazals, mukhammasât, and fards, all arranged together in alphabetical order, beginning, on fol. 1^b:

الهی مشرق خورشید عرفان کن دل مارا
بر افروز از چراغ طور شمع محفل مارا

No date.

No. 257, ff. 157, 2 coll., each ll. 15; legible Shikasta; size, 7½ in. by 5 in.

1700

A.H. 1145 (A.D. 1732, 1733), on fol. 468^b, first line, and A.H. 1150 (A.D. 1737, 1738), on fol. 297^a, last line, about the middle of the twelfth century of the Hijrah.

Diwân-i-Wafâ (دیوان وفا).

Lyrical poems of Mirzâ Sharaf-aldin 'Alî alḥusainî of Kumm, with the takhalluṣ Wafâ (see fol. 2^b, last line, and fol. 3^a, first line), who was, according to the Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 3011 (Bodleian Cat., col. 393), a descendant of Mirzâ Muḥammad Ḥāshim Ḥusainî Kummî from father's side, and of Maulânâ 'Abd-alrazzâq Fayyâd from mother's side. According to Ḥairat's مقالات الشعرا (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 160), he was originally in the service of Nâdirshâh, but went in A. H. 1162 (A. D. 1749) to India and lived at Dihli in Wâlih's house. The Makhzan-algharâ'ib, on the other hand, asserts that he reached Dihli still in Muḥammad-shâh's reign, and the Âtashkada, No. 842 (Bodleian Cat., col. 292), says, he remained about thirty years in India and returned to Persia in A. H. 1183 (A. D. 1769, 1770); if the latter remark is correct, he must have gone to Dihli about A. H. 1152, 1153 (A. D. 1739, 1740). According to the same Âtashkada he made, after his return to Persia, the pilgrimage to Makkah, and died A. H. 1194 (A. D. 1780). Another copy of his diwân is described in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 584.

الہی خون بجوش آوردمی تبغ زبانم را

The heading of the forty-ninth or last dâstân gives the title as نامہ بنام تیپو سلطان (the same in No. 1721 below); on fol. 119^a, l. 2 ab infra appears as designation: نامہ نامدار باسم پادشاه سلطان. The mathnawi is commonly styled تیپو بہادر فتح نامہ تیپو سلطان. Beginning:

H. 1209 (A. D. 1794, September). The mathnawī bears the title of Kajkulāh or Kajkulah, 'the fop who wears his cap awry' (a designation often given to the mystic 'lover of God', the advanced Sūfī), see ff. 30^a, l. 9; 43^b, l. 12; 49^b, l. 11; 56^a, ll. 5, 16, and 18, etc.; and was to contain seven volumes, see fol. 56^a, l. 9; the forthcoming third volume is announced in the last bait of this copy.

Gham u 'Ishrat (غم و عشرت).

A mathnawī by Amir Cānd of Amritsur (the author's name is given in an English note by Mr. Ch. Raikes attached to the fly-leaf, see below), lamenting the death of Mahārājah Ranjit Singh, the Sikh ruler of the Panjāb, the 27th of June, 1839, and rejoicing in the accession of his son, Kharaj Singh, together with a eulogium on prince Nūnihāl Singh, Kharaj Singh's son, see ff. 5^a, 7^a, and 8^b. The title of the poem appears on fol. 9^a, l. 3: مستی باسم غم وعشرتست.

It must have been composed soon after Ranjit Singh's death, in 1839 or 1840 (A. H. 1255, 1256), as both Kharaj Singh and Nūnihāl Singh died in November of that year.

Beginning:

بنالم ز گردون ضحاک کار - که جم عشرت انرا برآرد دمار

According to the note, mentioned above, by Mr. Ch. Raikes, Commissioner and Superintendent of Lāhūr, this MS. was sent 'to the Imperial Exhibition at Paris for works of art and industry, by the Punjab Committee at Lahore.' The MS. was received from Dr. Royle, July, 1856.

Majmū'a-i-taṣnifāt-i-Ākhund Sayyid Saif-al-din Kashmiri مجموعه تصنیفات آخوند سید سیف الدین (کشمیری).

The complete poetical and prose works of a modern Kashmirian poet, Mir Saif-al-din Ākhund, with the takhalluṣ Saif (fol. 11^a, l. 2), who lived at the time of writing this collection (i. e. A. H. 1270 = A. D. 1854, see ff. 10^b, 78^a, etc.), in Lūdiyāna (لودیانہ), in the province of Dihli, one of the principal stations of the British territory on the north-western frontier. The poems are partly in Persian, partly in the modern Kashmirian dialect, considerably mixed with Persian.

Contents:

1. قطعات سلامیه با صنائع و رموز حروف سلام, on fol. 1^b, a number of twenty-three highly artificial Persian kiṭ'as setting forth the hidden meaning and the secret qualities of the letters in the words سلام (kiṭ'as 1-19), نحیة (kiṭ'as 20 and 21), دعا (kiṭ'ah 22), and الهی (kiṭ'ah 23), with a detailed commentary on the margin and numerous interlinear paraphrases and glosses. It is concluded by a short epilogue in prose (on fol. 11^a), in which the author states that he composed the first eleven kiṭ'as during a severe fever, and the last twelve as a token of gratitude for his recovery. Beginning of the first kiṭ'ah:

سلام تافته انوار بسم از سمنش
خواص اللّٰهش از لام برزده اعلام

Written by the author himself in the month Shawwāl, A. H. 1270 (July, 1854), see fol. 10^b.

2. شرح منظوم چیستان مُغَلّی, on fol. 12^b, a Persian poetical commentary on an intricate riddle, beginning:

حمد حق را که بی همال بود - لطف او حلّ هر شکال بود
It is in form of a lengthy kaṣidah with the radif بود, just as the baits of the riddle (چیستان) itself, which begins, on fol. 13^a (distinguished by red ink):

چیست آن جانور که هیأت او
گاه بدر و گاهی هلال بود

The riddle is in form of a kiṭ'ah; the metre is the same in both, viz. خفیف. A Persian prose-commentary on the margin and interlinear paraphrases as in the first part.

3. نظم و نشر غیر منقوط که برای شاه جمجاء شجاع بود, on fol. 17^b, most artificial Persian pieces in prose and poetry, in two distinct sections, the first of which (on ff. 17^b-25^a) is headed in the index (on the fly-leaves) thus: عبارات منثور و منظوم در صنعت تجرید یعنی بی نقطه بزبان عربی و فارسی معه دو بیت در صنعت منقوط التّمام یعنی مجرّد, that is to say, have no diacritical points whatever, except the last two baits (on fol. 25^a), in which only letters with diacritical points are used; the second section (ff. 25^a-29^b) is headed in the index:

قصیده مشتمل بر صنائع نادره یعنی تجرید و توصیل یعنی اولا جملة حروف متفرقة بعد از آن دو دو بهم پیوسته پس سه سه تاده ده تا موصل التّمام یعنی تمام بیت متصل.

i. e. the whole section consists of one lengthy kaṣidah with numerous subdivisions, each of which exhibits a special kind of تجرید and توصیل, that is to say, some of the first contain only words with unconnected letters (حروف متفرقة), partly with, partly without diacritical points; the following divisions give then gradually words with two, three, and more connected letters up to ten, and the last piece (on fol. 29^b) contains exclusively connected letters, so that each hemistich appears as one unseparated word, having a strong resemblance to long Sanskrit composita. The whole part was composed for Shujā'-almulk, king of Afghānistān, who died A. H. 1258 (A. D. 1842), see Rieu iii. p. 905^b. Beginning of the first prose-piece, on fol. 17^b: الحمد لله الواحد الاحد الملك القدوس الصمد لا اله الا هو الخ. Commentary on the margin and interlinear paraphrases.

4. قصائد و غزلهای, kaṣidas and ghazals of the most subtle description, in Persian, on fol. 30^b. The first is addressed to the same Shujā'-almulk, and begins:

حمد خداست مطلع دیوان اختراع
نعت نبیست مقصد انشا و ابتداء

Commentary and paraphrases as before.

5. ابیاتیکه بطریق رقعات و تهنیت نامجات بزرگان, on fol. 46^a, poetical epistles, congratulations, etc., composed for certain festive occasions in the form of kiṭ'as; the first is headed در تهنیت در بزرگی, and begins:

این عید سعید خوش مواعید
بر بخت مبارک مبارک

Occasional explanations and glosses.

6. قصّة وامق و عذرا بزبان کشمیری که با فارسی مختلط, on fol. 55^b, a mathnawī, 'Wāmiq and 'Adhrā,' in the modern Kashmirian dialect, which is considerably mixed with Persian. Saif-al-din composed it, according to the colophon (on fol. 78^a), in his youth, when still living in Kashmir, and completed this transcript in Lūdiyāna the 11th of Dhū-alhijjah, A. H. 1270 (A. D. 1854, Sept. 4). He says, with the common conceit of all Eastern poets, that this mathnawī is the finest poem ever written in the idiom of Kashmir. Beginning:

خداوندا بکن شیدای عشقم
بگردان وامق عذرای عشقم

7. قواعد زبان کشمیری, on fol. 79^b, grammatical tables, paradigms, and glossary of the modern Kashmirian dialect, beginning: حمد بپند مرخدای سخن بر زبان آفرین را که السنّة مختلفه ولغات گوناگون آدمیان را دلیلی الخ.

An index of the whole collection on the fly-leaves. The copy was received from Dr. Royle, July, 1856.

Saif-al-din states himself at the end of the work in Kashmirian, that he wrote it at the request of the Deputy Commissioner.

No. 3226, ff. 93, ll. 12-13, the first ten leaves in diagonal lines; large Nasta'lik; size, 10½ in. by 6 in.

Ghazaliyyât-i-Nasim (غزلیات نسیم).

Ghazals, by a poet with the takhalluṣ Nasīm, who cannot be identified. The following poets with this takhalluṣ are mentioned in the various tadhkiras:

1. Maulânâ Nasim of Astarâbâd (Haft Iklim, No. 1182; Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2773, Bodleian Cat., col. 386; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 662, No. 130); he must have lived about A. H. 1000 (A. D. 1592).

2. Sayyid Ghulâm-i-Nabî, a descendant of Sayyid Muḥyi-al-din 'Abd-alkâdir Jilânî (Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 2919, Bodleian Cat., col. 390; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 662, No. 132).

3. Bûwâkbeg (W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 662, No. 131).

4. Sayyid Nasim of Shîrâz (ib., p. 662, No. 133).

5. Nasim-i-Rammâl (ib., p. 662, No. 134).

6. Mirzâ Ahmad Nasim (ib., p. 672, No. 98).

7. Mirzâ Ghulâm 'Alî of Amrohah (A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 160, l. 9), lived before A. H. 1174 (A. D. 1760, 1761).

At the end of the ghazals, on fol. 89^b, a ḡasidah in honour of the late poet Jâmi (قصیده در مدح حضرت (مخدومی جامی علیه الرحمة), and some mathnawî-baits on fol. 92^a. On ff. 93^b and 94^a short fragments of two prose-treatises are found, the first of which, styled رساله تحفة الملوك, 'advice to kings,' is divided into forty bâbs, each of which contains four good advices, and is identical with the رساله تحفة الملوك در نصیحت بند, described in the Bodleian Cat., col. 765, No. 45. Beginning: الحمد لله رب العالمين . . . اما . . . بعد این رساله ایست که حکما از کتب قدما اختصار کرده اند الخ.

A lacuna between ff. 93 and 94.

No. 95, ff. 79-94, 2 coll., each ll. 15; quite illegible Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Diwân-i-Nabî (دیوان نبی).

The lyrical poems of a poet with the takhalluṣ Nabî, who is not mentioned anywhere. They exclusively consist of ghazals, and very short ones too, so that any historical date or biographical intimation is quite out of question. The copy is defective at the beginning, opening in the middle of a ghazal rhyming in 1. The arrangement throughout is strictly alphabetical.

No date whatever. According to the Arabic paging there are missing twenty-four leaves altogether in the beginning.

No. 1472, ff. 404, 2 coll., each ll. 11; very uncouth and often almost unintelligible Nasta'lik, mixed with Shikasta; many small damages; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Diwân-i-Fâ'ih (دیوان فائح).

The diwân of a Persian poet with the takhalluṣ Fâ'ih, who is not mentioned in any tadhkirah. It consists merely of ghazals, in alphabetical order, and is incomplete at the end, breaking off in the midst of the letter ک. Beginning: الهی زاتش دل آب ده تیغ زبانه را الخ.

Many pages are severely injured; a great number of baits besides are crossed out. Some additional ghazals are found on the margin of the first eight leaves.

The last bait, which occurs here on fol. 175^b, runs thus:

تصویر ترا خواست کند نفس مصور
شد بار وجود تو زنازک بدنی رنگ

The proper order of ff. 40-47 is: 40, 45, 46, 41-44, 47.

No. 282, ff. 175, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Muṣṭafâ-nâma (مصطفی نامه).

A very long and curious mathnawî, a rhymed Muḥammadan history from Muḥammad down to the first Sultâns of the Ghaznawide and Saljûk dynasties, together with biographies of famous Saints and Shaikhs, by an anonymous author.

Beginning:

بنام خداوند فتح و فلاح
کنم مصطفی نامه را افتتاح

This copy is apparently the first rough sketch of the poet, as not only many blanks are found, but also a great number of unfinished single verses, of which often only the first word is written. Moreover the arrangement of the whole poem is rather confused; in the last part, for instance, after the history of the Khalifs, the Sâmanide, Ghaznawide, and Saljûk rulers the author gives us a detailed story of Moses. It breaks off in the beginning of an incomplete bait, the initial word of which is کنون.

No. 735, ff. 485, 4 coll., each ll. 31; clear Nasta'lik; the first two pages richly illuminated; size, 14½ in. by 9 in.

Marthiyyahâ-i-Husain (مرثیه های حسین).

A collection of elegies on the martyrdom and death of the Imâm Husain, 'Alî's son, no doubt belonging to that class of ta'ziyas, usually sung in the first ten days of Muḥarram, by an anonymous compiler. The first elegy begins:

السلام ای حضرت شاه شهیدان السلام
السلام ای مقتدای اهل ایمان السلام

The original collection ends on fol. 94^a تمام شد) but on ff. 96 and 97 some more are added; comp. E. Polak, Persien, i. p. 341; H. Ethé, Morgenländische Studien, pp. 174-194; Bodleian Cat., No. 1218; Gobineau, Les Religions et les Philosophies dans l'Asie centrale, chap. 13 sq.; Chodzko, Théâtre Persan, 1875 and 1878; Sir Lewis Pelly and A. N. Wollaston, The Miracle Play of Hasan and Husain, 2 vols., London, 1879.

No. 1051, ff. 97, diagonal lines in 4 coll., usually 16 baits in each page; Nasta'liq; size, 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

The whole anthology is divided into thirty-one جزء, copied (according to the notes on the margin) by different persons, as Madinabeg, Fakir Muḥammad, etc., hut in a tolerably equal handwriting. A large lacuna after fol. 119.

No. 320, ff. 237, 4 coll., each ll. 25; careless Nasta'liq, sometimes resembling Shikasta; size, 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Rubā'iyyāt.

A collection of rubā'iyyāt by different Persian poets.
Unfortunately no author's name is added to the single of these rubā'is belong to the famous Shaikh Abū Sa'īd bin Abū-alkhair (died A. H. 440, 4th of Sha'bān,

A. D. 1049, January 12), as a comparison with those published by Dr. Ethé in the 'Sitzungsberichte der Königl. Bayr. Akad. der Wissenschaften, 1875, Phil.- histor. Classe, pp. 145-168' shows; No. 2 of that collection, for instance, is found here on fol. 2^a, ll. 4 and 1751

A collection of short extracts, chiefly rubā'is and fards, from the poems of old and modern Persian authors, collected in form of an album, as it seems, by prince Jahāndārshāh, or with his full title, Mirzā Juwānbakht Jahāndārshāh, the eldest son of Shāh
'Ālam, who died in Banāras the 24th of Sha'bān, A. H.

1202 (A. D. 1788, May 30); see a sketch of his life in Francklin's History of Shah Aulum, pp. 154-162, and comp. Rieu iii. pp. 946 and 1084. On the fly-leaf is written عنايتی مرشد زاده, 'Poems by the prince Jahândârshâh,' but that these are not the prince's own verses, but extracts, made by him from others, we see from the headings of the single pieces, beginning with extracts from Ghazalî of Mashhad (died A. H. 980) thus:

چرخ فانوس خیال و عالمی حیران درو
مردمان چون صورت فانوس سرگردان درو

From fol. 17 down to the end the headings are wanting, but sometimes a takhallus occurs, for instance, Sa'dî and others, and proves these poems likewise to be from the diwâns of other poets.

Copied in the month Ramadân, A. H. 1198 (A. D. 1784, July-August), by Hâfiz Muḥammad Wâsi' Khân.

No. 57, ff. 97, 2 coll., each containing five baits; clear Nasta'liq; size, 9 in. by 4½ in.

Poems by prince Jahândârshâh.

A collection of Persian and Hindûstânî poems, ghazals, rubâ'is, and mathnawi-baits, by the same prince Jahândârshâh, entitled on the fly-leaf: بیاض. This title seems to be written by mere mistake on the fly-leaf of this MS., as it properly belongs to the preceding album, whereas the title given to that collection, 'Poems by the prince Jahândârshâh,' refers to this copy. That this collection contains the prince's own poetry, is proved by the takhallus Jahândâr, which very often occurs.

Contents:

Persian lyrical poems, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

پیش من تحفه نوکار کهن هر دو یکيست
کوه و صحرا و کف دشت و چمن هر دو یکيست

Hindûstânî lyrical poems, on fol. 9^b, beginning:

خود بخود چو یار همی آج سکیانی لکا الخ

A Hindûstânî mathnawî, on fol. 62^a, headed: مثنوی. شہزادہ عالم میرزا جوان تخت جهاندار شاه دام افبالہ, and beginning:

الہی رکھ مچھی آوارہ عشق - میری دل کو کر آتشبارہ عشق

This mathnawî concludes on fol. 71^a and is followed on ff. 73^a-86^a by another Hindûstânî mathnawî, or rather a collection of mathnawi-baits, by the emperor Shâh 'Ālam, as the following heading seems to imply:

ارشاد حضور پر نور شاه عالم پادشاه غازی خلد الله ملکہ
و سلطانہ.

Copied by Muḥammad 'Ali of Mashhad.

No. 58, ff. 86, 8 baits on every page; clear Nasta'liq; size, 9 in. by 4½ in.; in outward appearance both MSS., Nos. 57 and 58, are quite alike.

1753

A short, but very curious collection of Sûfic poetry, beginning with a series of short poems in honour of God, Muḥammad, the Tâbi'in, etc., arranged in the following manner: each part or hymn opens with a certain number of short mathnawis (each comprising two baits), arranged alphabetically according to the end-rhyme; after that follows a مثنوی مطلق which falls out of the alphabetical order (also comprising two baits), and then an equal number of strophes, each of which contains just as many hemistichs as there are mathnawis belonging to that particular hymn; for instance, the first hymn on the unity of God consists of three mathnawis, rhyming in ا, ب, and ت respectively, of an intermediate مثنوی مطلق, and three muthallathât; the second hymn on the Prophet contains four mathnawis, rhyming in ث, ج, ح, and خ, and of four murabba'ât, separated from the mathnawis again by the مثنوی مطلق, as is the case in all the following hymns; the third hymn has five mathnawis, rhyming in د, ذ, ز, and س, and five mukhammasât; the fourth has six mathnawis, rhyming in ش, ص, ض, ط, and ع, and six musaddasât; the fifth has seven mathnawis, rhyming in ف, ق, ک, ل, م, and ن, and seven musabba'ât; the sixth (and last) has three mathnawis, rhyming in و, ی, and ى, but no corresponding strophes. This series of hymns is followed by a variety of other poems on spiritual and pantheistic matters, ghazals, mathnawis, rubâ'is, kiṭ'as, and one ḡasidah.

No. 1085, ff. 39, 2 coll. on ff. 1–30, varying much in the number of lines; 3 and 4 columns (partly in diagonal lines) on ff. 31–39; Nasta'lik; size, 8 in. by 4½ in. on ff. 1–30; 7 in. by 4½ in. on ff. 31–39.

On the Gulshan-i-râz (composed A.H. 717=A.D. 1317), by Maḥmūd Shabistari (died A.H. 720=A.D. 1320), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1260, and further down under 'Sūfism' in this Cat.

II. ṢŪFISM IN PROSE AND VERSE.

Kashf-almaḥjūb (كشف المحجوب).

The oldest systematical work on the theoretical and practical doctrines of Ṣūfism in Persian, with a great amount of historical and biographical material, styled كشف المحجوب, or with its fuller title, كشف المحجوب لارباب الغلوب, 'Explanation of the veiled (or hidden) things for men of heart (i.e. for Ṣūfīs),' and composed by Abū-alḥasan 'Alī bin 'Uthmān bin 'Alī (in the Vienna, Bodleian, and Berlin copies, bin Abi 'Alī; in Rieu's copy, Abi 'Alī) al-Jullābi al-Hujwiri (the reading, al-Manjūri, in the Vienna copy, is a mere corruption of the last word), sometimes simply called al-Ghaznawi (since Jullāb and Hujwir are suburbs of Ghazna), who in the heading of the Vienna copy is designated as a contemporary of the famous Ṣūfī Shaikh and poet Abū Sa'id bin Abū-alkhair (died A.H. 440, 4th of Sha'bān = A.D. 1049, January 12), whilst in the رساله ابداليه (see the following copy, fol. 283^b sq.) he is called Abū Sa'id's own brother. According to the الاوليا (see Rieu iii. p. 975^a), he died A.H. 456 or 464 (A.D. 1064 or 1072, see the Safinat-alauliyā, No. 298, col. 304 in this Cat.); according to Āzād's بلگرام تاريخ الكرام (see No. 612, fol. 4^a in this Cat.), A.H. 465 (A.D. 1073); but as Rieu has proved, the date of his death must be somewhat later still, since Shaikh Abū-alkāsim Kūshairi, who is mentioned by the author among those who had passed away before the composition of this work, died in the very year 465, in the month Rabi'-alākhar, see Safinat-alauliyā, No. 299 (col. 304 in this Cat.). Other copies of the كشف المحجوب are described in Rieu i. p. 343; G. Flügel iii. p. 440 sq.; Bodleian Cat., No. 1245; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 287; Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 291; see also H. Khalifa v. p. 215, No. 10,753, and Notices et Extraits, xii. p. 360. Other works of the same author, mentioned incidentally in the present book, are the منهاج الدين, the بحر القلوب, and البيان لاهل العيان (comp. Rosen, loc. cit.); he also wrote a diwān. According to his own statement in the preface, he composed this work in answer to some questions addressed to him by Abū Sa'id al-Hujwiri.

Beginning: رتنا آتنا من لدنك رحمة وهى لنا من امرنا رشداً، الحمد لله الذى كشف لاوليائه بواطن ملكوته وقشع لاصفيائه سرائر جبروته الخ.

On fol. 3^a, last line but one sq., the author explains the title of his work thus:—و آنچه گفتم که مراين كتاب را كشف المحجوب نام کردم مراد آن بود که تا نام كتاب ناطق باشد بر آنچه اندر کتاب است مرگروهي را که بصبرت بود چون نام کتاب بشنوند دانند که مراد از آن چه بوده است و بدانکه همه عالم از لطيفه تحقيق محجوب اند بجز اولياء الخ.

It is divided, like all the following copies, into forty bābs (whereas the Vienna and Bodleian copies contain sixty-four, among which are counted several faṣls and the eleven Kashfs noticed in the following table of contents), viz.:—

Another copy of the same.

This copy is badly injured on the first page, one half of which is torn away, and slightly damaged on some others. Ff. 2 and 3 do not belong to this work, the continuation of fol. 1^b being on fol. 4^a. Ff. 256-265 are misplaced, the right order of the leaves is this: 256, 264, 258-263, 257, 265. Beginning the same as in the preceding copy.

This work concludes on fol. 281^b, and is followed by two short treatises on the same mystical doctrine, the first of which is complete, fills ff. 283^b-289^b, and is entitled رسالة ابداليه, composed by Ya'kūb bin 'Uthmān bin Maḥmūd bin Maḥmūd alghaznawī (later الجرجاني and السوزي), who very often refers to 'Alī bin 'Uthmān's Kashf-almahjūb and tells us that he was Abū Sa'id bin Abū-alkhair's brother and very often in the majlis of Sulṭān Maḥmūd. This treatise begins: الحمد لله الذي زين السماء الدنيا بمصابيح وجعلها رجوماً للشياطين وزين الأرض بالرسول (sic!) والأنبياء والأولياء الخ.

The same Ya'kūb bin 'Uthmān alghaznawī (later الجرجاني) is noticed as author of a tabulated list of renowned Shaikhs (أسماء المشايخ الكرام) in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 4, No. 8.

The second treatise is anonymous and incomplete, beginning: بعد حمد او كه ليس كمثله شئ هيج شبه ندارد و آن حضرت بچون همچون رنگ سفيد سبه ندارد الخ.

It fills ff. 290^b-295^b, continues on fol. 3 and then on fol. 2, where it breaks off with the words: مطلق باشي. The first treatise is dated the 24th of Jumādā-alawwal, A. H. 1095, that is the twenty-seventh year of 'Ālamgir's reign (= A. D. 1684, May 9).

Anis-almuridin u shams-almajâlis (انيس المریدین و شمس المجالس).

The story of Yûsuf and Zalikhâ in Persian prose, told by the Shaikh-alislâm Khwâjah Abû Isma'îl 'Abdallâh Muḥammad al-Anṣârî of Harât (who was born A. H. 396 in the month of Sha'bân = A. D. 1006, May; and died the 9th of Rabi'-alâkhar, A. H. 481 = A. D. 1088, July 2), for the benefit of his friends and disciples, in order to give them sound moral lessons and higher mystical instruction. The book is divided into fourteen Majlis, and interwoven with many verses of the Kûrân, traditions, and sayings of other renowned Shaikhs.

Beginning: الحمد لله الذى ابدع وجود الانسان فى احسن تقويم واحسن اعضاءه بلطائف صفة القديم الكريم الرحيم الخ

Comp. on the author Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 300 (col. 304 in this Cat.). Other works by the same renowned Sûfî are the مناجات or رساله, and the نصيحت or بند خواجه نظام المنازل, originally written in Arabic (see G. Flügel iii. p. 321 sq.; O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 165, where two Arabic commentaries on the same are described; H. Khalfa vi. p. 129; a Persian translation, entitled جامع منازل, will be noticed further down in this Cat.); the تفسير قرآن (see on this and the preceding work Haft Iklim, No. 619, col. 423 in this Cat.); the الهى نامه (see G. Flügel iii. p. 412, No. 1, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 33, No. 2); the زاد العارفين (see Rieu ii. p. 738^b); the كتاب اسرار or اسرار نامه (ib. ii. p. 774^b); the رساله تحفة الوزراء, also styled تحفة الملوك در نصيحت و بند و بستان, containing forty sections, each with four good advices (see G. Flügel i. p. 609, and iii. p. 412; H. Khalfa ii. p. 243, No. 2690, and compare with them Bodleian Cat., col. 765); another set of نصائح or 'good advices' (Bodleian Cat., col. 764, and No. 1767, 11 in this Cat.); a treatise on mystical questions, addressed by the heart (دل) to the soul (جان), see G. Flügel iii. p. 412, No. 2, etc. Anṣârî also edited an enlarged version of the طبقات الصوفية, or, as Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 284 (col. 303 in this Cat.), calls it, طبقات نفحات الانس, by Shaikh Abû 'Abd-alrahmân (according to others merely 'Abd-alrahmân) Muḥammad bin Ḥusain bin Muḥammad bin Mûsâ Sullamî al-Nishâpûrî, who died A. H. 412, in the month of Sha'bân (A. D. 1021, Nov.-Dec.; see also Rieu i. p. 349^a, and H. Khalfa vi. p. 129), a work, on which Jâmi's نفحات الانس (see Nos. 1357, 8, and 1359-1367 above) are chiefly based. For further works of Anṣârî, see the preface to the edition of his lyrical poems, by Shukovski, St. Petersburg, 1895.

The present story of Yûsuf and Zalikhâ is dated the 25th of Dhû-alhijjah, A. H. 1013 (A. D. 1605, May 14), at Burhânpûr, by Mahmûd bin Muḥammad of Lucknow.

Flügel iii. p. 497; Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 254; different from the present مناجات seems to be a tract of the same title, noticed in W. Pertsch, No. 9, 15; Berlin Cat., p. 3, No. 4; and Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. iv. p. 349; comp. also H. Khalfâ vi. p. 129; and Notices et Extraits, xii. p. 352. The same treatise, but with a slightly different beginning, is noticed in G. Flügel iii. pp. 445, 493, and 505; the title given to it in the last of the three Vienna copies is بند نامه or نصیحت نامه.

Risâla-i-Ghazâlî (رساله غزالی).

The mystical treatise, contained in this copy, is, as a comparison with W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 42, No. 30, shows (see also Rüdiger in Z. D. M. G. xvi. p. 221), a Persian paraphrase of the same Muḥammad al-Ghazâlî's famous treatise, إيتها الولد (edited and translated by Hammer-Purgstall, Vienna, 1838; comp. also G. Flügel iii. p. 274, where two Arabic commentaries on the same, by Ḥasan bin 'Abdallâh, composed A. H. 756=A. D. 1355, and by Khâdimî respectively, are noticed), but slightly differing in wording from the Berlin copy which bears the heading, خلاصه تصانیف امام محمد غزالی در علم سلوک ('the quintessence of Ghazâlî's compositions on the science of the mystic road').

Beginning: الحمد لله . . . اما بعد بدانکه یکی از جمله تلمیذان امام المرشد . . . ابی حامد بن محمد (محمد بن محمد) الغزالی بعد از آنکه مدّة مدید و سالهای فراوان روزگار خود را مستعیر به تحصیل علوم داشته بوده و از هر فنّ بهره تمام داشته روزی با خود اندیشه کرد که من سالهای رنج بردم و علم بسیار حاصل کردم خود اکنون ندانم که این علمها از هر نوع علم کدام نافع و دستگیر من خواهد بود الخ

Among the numerous Arabic works of Ghazâlî, the more prominent (apart from the إيتها الولد and the المنقذ من القلال والمفصح عن (احیاء علوم الدین) are: Essai sur les écoles philosophiques chez les Arabes et notamment sur la doctrine d'Algazzali, Paris, 1859; (edited and translated by A. Schmölbers in Geneva, 1878); منهاج العابدین (see a Persian translation of it further down in this Cat., and a Turkish one by Nihâni in G. Flügel iii. p. 463); تهافت الفلاسفة (with the criticism of Khwâjizâda, who died A. H. 893=A. D. 1488, noticed in G. Flügel ii. p. 597, and H. Khalfa ii. p. 466, No. 3764); شرح اسماء الله (G. Flügel iii. p. 326, and H. Khalfa vi. p. 90, No. 12,790); الوسیط (H. Khalfa vi. p. 437); جواهر القرآن (H. Khalfa ii. p. 646); المنجول (Schefer, Chrestomathe Persane, ii. loc. cit. above); تفسیر یاقوت التأویل (quoted in Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 303); مشکوّة الأنوار (quoted in the Nafihât-aluns); a commentary on the 12th Sûrah (سورة يوسف), see O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 24; بداية الهداية والاستدراج (mentioned by Gautier); Arabic letters etc. Among the Persian works of Ghazâlî are especially noteworthy (besides the کتاب التبر المسبوك or نصيحة الملوك (کیمیای سعادت) with an Arabic translation, noticed in G. Flügel iii. p. 272; J. Aumer, p. 268; O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 168; H. Khalfa ii. p. 177, and vi. p. 352, etc.; أنوار حکمت (Bodleian Cat., No. 1246, and Rieu ii. p. 830^b, No. xx); a Persian letter, addressed to Mu'ayyid-almulk, the son of the great Nizâm-almulk (Schefer, Chrestomathie Persane, ii. p. 111); and several works, some of which are of doubtful authenticity, viz.

روضة الفردوس or جامع کبیر (G. Flügel iii. p. 449); کنز الاخبار (ib., p. 451); ینابيع الحکمة (ib., p. 450); قصص ببحر الاسرار and کتاب توبة الانبياء (ib., p. 454).

Tamhidât-i-'Ain-alkudât (تمهیدات عین القضاة).

A work on the Şâfi' doctrine, compiled by Abû-alfadâ'il (according to Rieu i. p. 411^b, Abû-almâ'âlî) 'Abdallâh bin Muḥammad al-Miyânajî, with the honorary epithet of 'Ain-alkudât of Hamadân, who was a pupil of Shaikh Ahmad Ghazâlî (the brother of Muḥammad Ghazâlî, died A. H. 517=A. D. 1123, 1124), and put to death, A. H. 533 (A. D. 1138, 1139), by order of Sulṭân Sanjar's vizier, Kiwâm-aldin Abû-alkâsim Darguzini, see Safinat-alauliyâ (No. 307, col. 305 in this Cat.); Haft Iklim, No. 1017 (ib., col. 452); Makhzan-algharâ'ib, No. 1523 (Bodleian Cat., col. 350). H. Khalfa iii. pp. 459 and 536, places his death in A. H. 525 (A. D. 1131); comp. also the Arabic Cat. of the British Museum, p. 454^b, and Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 249.

It is divided into ten chapters or اصل, and begins, on fol. 1^b, thus: سباسب بيمحمد و نناء ببعده من حضرت آن خدای را که در مبدء الوهیت او دیده عقل حیران است الخ

From this subdivision into ten اصول, and the wording of the ten headings, always beginning اصل, it is evident, that the Tamhidât are identical with the Zubdat-alḥakâ'ik fi kashf-aldakâ'ik (زبدة الحقائق فی كشف الدقائق), described in No. 1247 of the Bodleian

Cat. and G. Flügel iii. pp. 413 and 414, where also a Turkish translation of the work is noticed (which, however, gives to the original the title كنز الحقائق وكشف الدقائق); on the different wording of the preface, see H. Khalfa iii. p. 536, No. 6810, where besides the work is stated to have been divided into one hundred sections. An extract from the same is noticed besides in the Bodleian Cat., col. 750, l. 1. The Tamhidât of 'Ain-alkudât served as basis for a mystic work of the same title by the poet Mas'ûd-i-Bak (put to death A. H. 800 = A. D. 1397, 1398), see Rieu ii. p. 632^a. Another Persian work of the great Shaikh is the extensive collection of letters, addressed to his Sûfic friends, and described in Rieu i. pp. 411 and 412. He also wrote occasionally Persian poetry. The margin of this copy is filled throughout with valuable glosses and explanations.

(مفتاح فتوح الغيب) Miftâh-i-futûh-alghaib.

The Arabic text of the famous work فتوح الغيب (also sometimes called فتوحات الغيب, i.e. the ethical maxims and sayings of the great founder of the Kâdiri order, Shaikh Abû Muhammad Muhyi-aldin Sayyid aljilânî alhasanî alhusainî, with the honorary epithets of Ghauth-alazam and Ghauth althakalain (who was born A. H. 470, or according to the majority of authorities, A. H. 471, the 1st of Ramadân = A. D. 1078, March 18, or 1079, March 7, and died A. H. 561, the 9th, 17th, or 18th of Rabî'alâkhar = A. D. 1166, Feb. 12, 20, or 21), on the mystical doctrine, accompanied with an elaborate Persian commentary, as in the Berlin copy, Sprenger, No. 830; see on the author especially Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 36 (col. 278 in this Cat.); W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 276, and further down in No. 1799. These rules of mystical asceticism were collected, put in proper order, and handed down by the author's second son, Sharaf-aldin Abû Muhammad 'Abd-alrahmân 'Îsâ (comp. Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 38), who—according to the statement in the immediately following ترجمة فتوح الغيب—finished the original copy of his father's maxims the 15th of Şafar, A. H. 555 (A. D. 1160, Feb. 25), during the lifetime of his father. The Persian commentator, who does not mention his name, composed his work, which he styled مفتاح فتوح الغيب or the key to the فتوح الغيب, A. H. 1023 (A. D. 1614), see the last page, ll. 5 and 6, where as chronogram of completion the words مفتاح فتوح are given.

The Miftâh begins with a short Arabic preface, on fol. 1^b, in which the collector and redactor of these maxims, viz. Sharaf-aldin 'Îsâ, 'Abd-alkâdir's son, is introduced to the reader: هذا كتاب فتوح الغيب لسيّدنا ومولانا العلامة الاوحد الشيخ الامام العارف الكامل امام ائمة الطريق وشيخ شيوخ الاسلام على التحقيق زينة الوجود ومركب الشهود البار الاشهب والطاراز (? وطرارز or وطرارز) المذهب قطب الاقطاب وفرد الاحباب القطب الاكمل الاشرف والغوث الاعظم الرفع غوث الثقلين امام الفريقين العالم الرّتاني القطب الفرداني والغوث الصمداني محبى الدين ابى محمد عبد القادر الحسينى الحسينى الجيلانى قدس الله سرّه العزيز ونور روحه واصل الينا بركاته وفتوحه ورضى الله عنه وارضاه عنا وجامعه ولده الشيخ الامام الاوحد شرف الدين ابو محمد ويكنى بابى عبد الرحمن عيسى شرف الاسلام جلال العلماء سراج العراق والمصرذو التسانين والبيانين لسان المتكلمين و ترجمان العارفين رحمة الله عليه وعلى والده و اولاده و اخوانه و سائر الصالحين.

Then follows the real beginning of the فتوح الغيب (fol. 2^a, l. 3) in two versions (according to the various MSS. the author of the Persian commentary used), viz.: قال والدى الشيخ الامام العلامة الفرد القطب الغوث ابو محمد عبد القادر الجيلانى نفعا الله به و امدنا بمدده فى الدنيا والآخرة آمين آمين وفى بعض النسخ قال والدى الامام الاوحد المؤيد امام ائمة محبى الدين سيّد الطوائف ابو محمد القادر بن ابى صالح بن عبد الله الجبلى قدس الله روحه و نور ضريحه.

The second version is that of the copy of the Arabic original in the India Office Library (O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 168), see also Cat. Cold. Or. Lugd. Bat. iv. p. 317; and § 31, No. 410. in the Refā'iyyah of Leipzig; comp. H. Khalfa iv. p. 386. The Persian commentary begins thus (fol. 2^a, ll. 8 and 9):

الحمد لله رب العالمين همه ستايشها ثابت است مر خدای را عز و جل که پروردگار همه عالمهاست عالم ملک و ملکوت و جن و انس و حیوانات و نباتات و جمادات و افراد انسانی که هر یکی عالمی است بصورت صغیر و بمعنی کبیر الخ

The فتوح الغيب are divided into seventy-six makālas (a full index of which is given on the first two fly-leaves).

This copy was transcribed by Muhammad Kāsim bin Muhyi-aldin bin Zain-aldin, the 26th of Shawwāl (the year is omitted). College of Fort William, A. D. 1825. Among the other Arabic works of 'Abd-alkâdir Jilânî, there are to be mentioned the كتاب غنية الطالبين (see O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 168^b, and Safinat-alauliyâ, loc. cit.); a collection of sermons (O. Loth, p. 169^a); a collection of short essays on Sûfism (ib., p. 170); the جزب الشريف والورد المنيف, a breviary or collection of prayers for private use (G. Cat., p. 944, ll. 2-4); an Arabic treatise without a special heading, partly with interlinear Persian paraphrase (Bodleian Cat., col. 755, No. 1239, fol. 389^b sq.); the treatise called غوثية, on the chief topics of Šūfism (see further down in No. 1797), etc. Among his Persian works the most noteworthy are the مکتوبات or twenty-five epistles (Bodleian Cat., No. 1335), a مناجات in Persian verse (W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 110, No. 8), etc. A genealogical notice of the Shaikh is found, ib., p. 40, No. 10.

Fol. 337^b in the present copy is left blank.

Manāḳib-i-Ghauthiyyah (مناقب غوثية).

Another treatise on the doctrines and spiritual teachings of the founder of the Kādiri order, by Muḥammad Sadiq Shihābi Sa'di Kādiri (see fol. 2^a, ll. 5 and 6), a pupil of Sayyid 'Abd-alkādir bin Sayyid 'Abd-aljalil alḥasanī alḥusainī Gharib-allāh, at Aḥmadābād (see fol. 5^a, ll. 1 and 2). It contains a muḥaddimah (on fol. 5^a), fifty short chapters, styled منقبة, a khātimah (فی کیفیت اداء صلوة الاسرار), on fol. 74^b, and an appendix or تذیل (فی اصوله و فروعہ), on fol. 82^b, giving the great Shaikh's pedigree in the paternal and the maternal line, which both lead up to 'Alī bin Abū Ṭālib, together with an interesting and valuable account of the more renowned among his children (forty-nine altogether), on fol. 83^a. According to the chronograms, on fol. 5^a, ll. 4 and 5, Shaikh Muḥyi-al-din 'Abd-alkādir aljilāni was born A.H. 470 (عشق), whereas most other biographers fix his birth in A.H. 471, and died ninety-one years old (اکمل عشق), A.H. 561. His full name runs thus: Ghauth-ala'zam Muḥyi-al-din Abū Muḥammad Sayyid 'Abd-alkādir alḥasanī alḥusainī aljilāni ibn Sayyid Abū Ṣāliḥ Zain-al-din Ṣafi-al-din Muḥammad ibn al-Sayyid Mūsā Jangi Dūst Nūr-al-din 'Abdallāh bin 'Abdallāh aljili bin Yahyā alzāhid bin Muḥammad bin Dā'ūd bin Mūsā althāni bin 'Abdallāh althāni bin Mūsā aljaun bin 'Abdallāh almahd bin al-Hasan almuṭthannā bin al-Hasan bin 'Alī ibn Abi Ṭālib; the most famous among his sons (see Safinat-alauliyā, Nos. 37-46, cols. 279 and 280 in this Cat.) are: 1. Shaikh Saif-al-din Abū 'Abdallāh Sayyid 'Abd-alwahhāb, born in Sha'bān of A.H. 521 (A.D. 1127, Aug.-Sept., the Safinat-alauliyā gives A.H. 512, Sha'bān=A.D. 1118, Nov.-Dec.), died at Baghdād, A.H. 593=A.D. 1197 (يانشد) to be read here instead of ششم, unless 1 is a mistake for 7, as the Safinat-alauliyā places his death in A.H. 603, 25th of Sha'bān=A.D. 1207, March 27), seventy-one years old. 2. Shaikh Sharif (Safinat-alauliyā: Sharaf)-aldin Sayyid 'Isā, author of the جواهر الاسرار, the same for whom his father prepared the فتوح الغیب, died A.H. 573 (A.D. 1177, 1178), twelve years after his father, and twenty years before 'Abd-alwahhāb. 3. Shaikh Shams-al-din Sayyid 'Abd-al'aziz, died A.H. 558 (A.D. 1163), three years before his father. 4. Shaikh Sirāj-al-din Abū-alfarah Sayyid 'Abd-aljabbār, died the 19th of Sha'bān, A.H. 573 (A.D. 1178, Feb. 10), twelve years after his father, and twenty before his brother 'Abd-alwahhāb. 5. Shaikh Tāj-al-din Abū Bakr Sayyid 'Abd-alrazzāk, born A.H. 528 (A.D. 1133, 1134), died in Baghdād the 6th of Shawwāl, A. H. 603 (A. D. 1207, May 6), forty-two years after his father (consequently the date given here for his death, viz. A. H. 623, ششم, و بیست و سه, which is the same in the Safinat-alauliyā too=A. D. 1226, Sept. 30, has, it seems, to be changed into سه و ششصد!). 6. Shaikh Abū Ishāq Sayyid Ibrāhīm, died in Baghdād the 5th of Dhū-alka'dah, A. H. 600 (in Safinat-alauliyā, the 25th of Dhū-alka'dah =A. D. 1204, July 5 or 25), thirty-nine years (not thirty-one, as here is written, unless the date 600 must be changed into 592) after his father. 7. Shaikh Abū-alfadl Sayyid Muḥammad, died at Baghdād in the same year 600 (with the same additional remark, 'thirty-nine years after his father'; in one copy of the Safinat-alauliyā, A. H. 603 is given as date of his death=A. D. 1207). 8. Shaikh Abū 'Abd-alrahmān Sayyid 'Abdallāh, born A. H. 508 (A. D. 1114, 1115), died in Baghdād the 27th of Ṣafar, A. H. 587 (A. D. 1191, March 26), twenty-six years (not twenty-eight, as here is written) after his father. 9. Shaikh Abū Zakariyyā Sayyid Yahyā, born the 6th of Rabi'-alawwal, A. H. 555 (A. D. 1160, March 16; the Safinat-alauliyā gives A. H. 550=A. D. 1155, May 10), died A. H. 600, thirty-nine years after his father. 10. Shaikh Diyā-aldin Abū-alnaṣr Mūsā, born the last of Rabi'-alawwal, A. H. 539 (A. D. 1144, Sept. 30), died at Damascus the 1st of Jumādā-alākhar, A. H. 618 (A. D. 1221, July 23), fifty-seven years after his father; other sons, found by the author in some other books, are: 11. Sayyid Yūsuf, born and died in Baghdād. 12. Sayyid Ṣāliḥ, died in the same town. 13. Sayyid 'Abd-alghaffār. 14. Sayyid Ḥabīb-allāh. 15. Sayyid Zāhid. 16. Ḥadrat Maṣṣūr, one of the سبعة أقطاب. 17. Sayyid 'Abd-alkhālīk. 18. Sayyid 'Abd-alra'ūf; and 19. Sayyid Majd-aldin, author of the مقامات علیّه, according to some the last son of the great Shaikh.

The author quotes among his authorities especially the نزهة الأسرار (by Nūr-aldin Abū-alḥasan 'Alī bin Yūsuf Lakhmī, who wrote about A. H. 660=A. D. 1262, see O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 200) and the تكملة (by Imām Yāfi'i, who died A. H. 768, the 20th or 21st of Jumādā-alākhar=A. D. 1367, Feb. 21, comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 332 and 333, and Nos. 642 and 643 in this Cat., where it has the fuller title of خلاصة المفاخر; see also the Safinat-alauliyā, No. 62); he cannot therefore have lived before the end of the eighth century of the Hīrah.

Beginning: الحمد لله الذى جعل كرامات الوليّ النّجّ.

The incomplete date in the colophon is the 26th of Sha'bān in the seventh year (of whose reign, is not stated). A work similar to this, a kind of defence of 'Abd-alkādir's doctrines, under the title of مخازن القادرّة, by Shams-aldin bin Walī-allāh, is noticed in Rieu ii. p. 874, No. VIII. Bayân-altanzil (بيان التنزيل).

A treatise on Šûfism, being a kind of شرح or commentary on the كتاب التنزيل, by the well-known mystic Shaikh and writer 'Aziz bin Muḥammad alnasafi (here spelt albukhârî) albuḥârî, who died A.H. 661 (A.D. 1263), at Abarḳûh, see Rieu iii. p. 1095^a. Other works of the same author are the انسان الكامل فى معرفة الوافر, the famous collection of twenty-one mystic risâlas, see G. Flügel iii. pp. 430-438; the كشف الحقائق, an epitome of the 400 volumes of Shaikh Sa'd-al-din Ḥummu'î (Najm-al-din Kubrâ's pupil, who died A.H. 650, the 10th of Dhû-alhiġjah=A.D. 1253, Feb. 11; comp. Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 126, col. 288 in this Cat.), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1249; and the مقصد اقصى, see ib., No. 1250; Rieu ii. p. 834^b; W. Pertsch, No. 6, 11; Berlin Cat., p. 1053 (No. 6); Palmer, Cat. of Trinity Coll., Cambridge, p. 70; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. v. pp. 42 and 43, etc.; translated into Turkish by Ibrâhim bin 'Abdallâh, see G. Flügel iii. pp. 457 and 489, No. 3; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Turkish Cat., p. 159; and forming the basis of E. H. Palmer's 'Oriental Mysticism,' Cambridge, 1867.

Like the original work, the present commentary (probably by 'Aziz alnasafi himself) is divided into twenty اصل; but our copy is incomplete at the end and has besides several lacunas. The remainder of an index appears on fol. 6^a. The proper order of the leaves is: ff. 6, 2-5, 7-80, lacuna, 81-86, lacuna, 1, 87-90, lacuna, 91.

The headings of the twenty اصل are as follows:

These two اصل appear only with their headings here, and the author's explanation of this strange fact is, that 'his brother will write them hereafter.'

14. در معرفت سلوك و شرائط و ارکان آن, on fol. 78^a.
15. در معرفت خدمت و عزلت و صحبت, on fol. 83^a.
16. Which ought to contain, according to the index, اصل بانزدهم در بيان عزلت, is missing in the text; there only appear, on fol. 85^a, a second اصل در بيان عزلت, and, on fol. 86^a, another اصل در بيان صحبت.

Sharḥ-i-Kaṣida-i-Tā'iyya-i-Fāridiyyah (شرح قصیده تائبۀ فارید).

The large Persian commentary on the Tā'iyyah (or kaṣidah, rhyming in ت), the famous mystic poem of 'Umar Ibn-alfarīd (who died A. H. 632, the 2nd of Jumādā-alawwal = A. D. 1235, Jan. 23, see Safinat-alauliyyā, No. 332, cols. 307 and 308 in this Cat.; G. Flügel i. p. 461 sq.; edited by Hammer-Purgstall, Vienna, 1854; Ibn Fārid's whole diwān, edited with two commentaries, Marseille, 1855; lithographed Bairūt, A. H. 1267; another lithographed ed., A. H. 1280; with commentaries, Cairo, A. H. 1289, etc.), by Shaikh Sa'id-al-din al-Farghānī, who died about A. H. 700 (A. D. 1300, 1301), see H. Khalfa ii. 86, etc. He received the investiture (الخُرقة) from Shaikh Najib-al-din 'Alī bin Buzghush (died A. H. 678 = A. D. 1279, 1280, in Shirāz, see Safinat-alauliyyā, No. 150), who himself had received it from Shaikh Shihāb-al-din Suhrawardi (died A. H. 632, 1st of Muḥarram = A. D. 1234, Sept. 26, see Safinat-alauliyyā, No. 148). After Najib-al-din's death he joined the Shaikh Ṣadr-al-din Muḥammad bin Ishāq bin Muḥammad al-Kūniyawi (who died A. H. 672 = A. D. 1273, 1274, see Rieu ii. p. 594^a). The last-named Shaikh is eulogized on fol. 4^a, as being still alive, and consequently this commentary must have been written before A. H. 672. From the Nafahāt-aluns (see No. 1361 in this Cat., fol. 263^b sq.), from which also the above statements are taken, we learn further, that Sa'id-al-din Farghānī, the oldest interpreter of the Tā'iyyah, wrote two commentaries on this subject, the first in Persian, the second in Arabic. The first is contained in our copy; the second is found in the India Office Library too (B. 133), see O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 236^b, No. 814.

Beginning of this work, on fol. 1^b: رُبَّنَا عَلَيْكَ تَوَكَّلْنَا وَالِيكَ ابْتِغَاءَ وَبِكَ حُدَّ سُرَايَ ذَاتِ خَدَائِيسَتِ كَيْ سُلْطَانِ ذَاتِ وَحْدَتِ الْخَلْقِ.

The real commentary is preceded by an extensive Muḥaddimah or Sūfic Prolegomena in four asṣl (اصل), viz.:

1. On fol. 5^a: در ذکر ذات و صفات و اعتبار علم و شهود و نور و وجود و حکم مبدایت و امر اولیّت.
2. On fol. 11^b: در بیان صدور و تعیین عالم ارواح و ظهور و تحقّق عالم مثال که خیال منفصلش خوانند و ترتیب عالم اجسام و مراتب او تا: آفرینش آدم علیه السلام.
3. On fol. 15^b: در شرح نشات انسان و اطوار و احوال: او تا رسیدن بنهایت کمال الخ.

Beginning of the commentary itself, on fol. 38^b, with the initial bait of the Tā'iyyah: سَقَتْنِي حُمَيَّا لِحُبِّ رَاحَةِ مُقَلَّتِي الْخ.

No date. Worm-eaten and greatly damaged throughout. An entry from A. H. 1018 (A. D. 1609, 1610) on fol. 320^b.

No. 2542, ff. 320, ll. 19; Nasta'liq (the Arabic verses of Ibn al-fārid in Naskhi, written in red ink); size, 10½ in. by 5½ in.

It begins, on fol. 21^a, thus: خداوند بفرزنی جود و فروغ وجود که جان الخ.

Another copy of the same is contained in No. 1921, 13 (see further below).

On fol. 23^b, l. 4, another mystical treatise of Afdal-al-din Kāshī is mentioned, viz. the مدارج الکمال, which was originally written in Arabic, but then translated by the author himself into Persian under the title of گشایش مدارج الکمال, in eight sections (called گشایش or در), see further down in Nos. 1921, 2, and 1922, 14; comp. also Rieu ii. p. 830^b, No. XIX, and H. Khalifa v. p. 469.

A large portion of a Turkish adaptation of the poem is noticed in No. 1761, 1 above.

Besides this versified handbook of Sūfism Maḥmūd Shabistari wrote three prose-treatises on the same subject, viz. حقّ الیقین فی معرفه ربّ العالمین (W. Pertsch, No. 6, ff. 1-27; Bodleian Cat., No. 1298, 6; Rieu ii. p. 828^b; Mélanges Asiat. v. p. 229; H. Khalfa iii. p. 79, No. 4565); سعادت نامہ (Rieu ii. p. 871^b; H. Khalfa iii. p. 598), and رساله شاهد.

Mafātiḥ-alī'jâz fi sharḥ-i-Gulshan-i-râz (مفاتیح الاعجاز فی شرح گلشن راز).

The fullest and best of all the Persian commentaries (Jâmi inspected twenty-eight of them) on the Gulshan-i-râz, by Muḥammad bin Yahyâ bin 'Alī aljilânī al-lāhijī al-Nūrbakhshī, with the takhalluṣ Asirī, who commenced this work on the 19th of Dhū-alḥijjah, A. H. 877 (A. D. 1473, May 17), as all copies state except that in Leyden, which gives A. H. 879 (A. D. 1475, April 26) instead.

He probably died A. H. 912 (A. D. 1506, 1507). Other copies of this commentary are noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 829; G. Flügel iii. pp. 426 and 427; A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 478; J. Aumer, p. 20; Cat. of the Library of Rāghib Pāshā, Constantinople, A. H. 1285, No. 690; and Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. ii. p. 117.

موجود المنور ظلمات العدم بانوار الوجود الخ

The commentator's name appears on fol. 2^a, that of the poet at the end on fol. 415^a as Maulānā Sa'd-aldin Maḥmūd Cābistari (another honorary title of the poet seems to have been Najm-aldin, and his father's name 'Abd-alkarim bin Yahyâ).

Dated A. H. 1095 (A. D. 1684).

No. 1342, ff. 415, ll. 17; very clear and correct Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece; each page surrounded by a small gilt frame; size, 9½ in. by 5¼ in.

A few leaves are missing at the end of this copy; the last verse, explained here on fol. 397^b, last line but one, is:

چو کردم در رخ خودش نگاهی
برآمد از میان جانم آهی

(Whinfield, v. 987), and the last words occurring here, viz.: نظاره در رخسار خوب correspond to fol. 409^a, l. 7 in No. 1816 above.

(Whinfield, v. 361), corresponding to fol. 183^a, l. 8 in No. 1816 above. Slight injuries on the first three pages.

Slightly injured in several places. Dated by Muḥammad Bâkī the 16th of Šafar, A.H. 1094 (A.D. 1683, Feb. 14). A similar, but defective, commentary is described in J. Aumer, p. 19; two short explanatory treatises on the Gulshan-i-râz are noticed in the Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1261 and 1262; an exposition of one verse only is found in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 20, No. 8.

Nuzhat-alarwâḥ (نزهة الارواح).

The delight of souls, a Sūfī work in prose and verse on the سلوک or the spiritual path of the heavenly pilgrim, completed A.H. 711 (A.D. 1311, 1312), by Mir Fakhr-alsādāt Ḥusaini, with his full name: Rukn-al-din Ḥusain bin 'Ālim bin Abi-alḥasan (or alḥusain) al-Ḥusaini of Ghūr, who was, according to some authorities, a pupil of Shaikh Rukn-al-din Abū-alfath (died A.H. 735, 9th of Jumādā-alawwal=A.D. 1335, Jan. 5), the son of Shaikh Šadr-al-din Muḥammad (died A.H. 684, 23rd of Dhū-alhijjah=A.D. 1286, Feb. 19) and grandson of Shaikh Bahā-al-din Zakariyyā Multānī (died A.H. 666, 7th of Šafar=A.D. 1267, Oct. 28); according to others a pupil of Bahā-al-din himself, see Safinat-alauliyā, Nos. 152 and 154-156 (coll. 290 and 291 in this Cat.), and Haft Iklim, No. 609 (ih., col. 422). He was born A.H. 671 (A.D. 1272, 1273), according to the remark at the beginning of the last faṣl, where he states that he was forty years old when he completed this work, i. e. in A.H. 711; he lived first in Multān, later on in Harāt, was a friend of Shaikh 'Irākī (see No. 1116 in this Cat.) and of Shaikh Aḥḥad Kirmānī (died A.H. 697=A.D. 1298, ih., No. 1228), and died, according to Jāmī's Nafahāt-aluns (compare Notices et Extraits, xii. p. 420, col. 2), A.H. 718 (A.D. 1318), a date also found in the Khnlāṣat-alkalām, No. 20 (coll. 296 in the Bodleian Cat.), and other tadhkiras; the Haft Iklim give A.H. 717 (A.D. 1317) as year of his death; also A.H. 719 (A.D. 1319) is mentioned by some authorities. But all these statements must needs be wrong, since another work of the same author, زاد المسافرين (see Nos. 1832-1834 below), was composed either A.H. 720 (A.D. 1320), so in Nos. 110 and 650 of the India Office, or A.H. 729 (A.D. 1329), so in No. 1090 of the India Office, and in the copy described in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 430. The earliest date of his death therefore is A.H. 720 or 721; compare on the author and his نزهة الارواح Ātashkada, No. 237 (col. 270 in the Bodleian Cat.), Makhzan-algharā'ih, No. 565 (ib., col. 327); Rieu i. p. 40, and ii. p. 608; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1255 and 1256; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 292-294; Kraft, p. 190; G. Flügel iii. p. 418; A. F. Mehren, p. 7; Cat. des MSS. et Xyl., p. 437 etc.; see H. Khalfā vi. p. 321, No. 13661. Among the numerous commentaries on this work one of the most detailed is شرح نزهة الارواح by 'Abd-alwāḥid Ihrāḥim alḥusaini albalgrāmi, which was completed A.H. 985 (A.D. 1577, 1578), see No. 1257 of the Bodleian Cat.

3. در فصلت و شرف انسان بر جمیع حیوانات, in fourteen fašls, on fol. 66^b. There is a lacuna after fol. 81, through which the fifth fašl is entirely missing. The sixth fašl is found (by a misplacement of the leaves) on fol. 141^b.

4. در بیان اخلاق حمیده, in nine fašls, on fol. 118^a. Part of the eighth fašl and the whole of the ninth are missing in consequence of a lacuna after fol. 139.

Miṣbāḥ-alhidāyat u miftāḥ-alkifāyat (مصباح الهداية و مفتاح الكفاية).

A compendium of Şūfic maxims, theories, and doctrines, together with general ethical principles (ذکر مبانى و اصول) (طریقت صوفیان و بیان بعضی از علوم و معارف ایشان), being an abridged adaptation of the famous Arabic work عوارف المعارف, in sixty-three chapters, by Shaikh Shihāḥ-al-dīn Abū Ḥafṣ 'Umar bin Muḥammad bin 'Abdallāh al-Bakrī al-Suhrawardī, who was born in Rajah, A. H. 539 (A. D. 1145, Jan.), and died in Baghdād the 1st of Muḥarram, A. H. 632 (A. D. 1234, Sept. 26), see Safinat-alauliyā, No. 148 (col. 290 in this Cat.), G. Flügel iii. p. 329 sq.; O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 172 sq.; H. Khalfa iv. p. 275, No. 8401, etc. (the عوارف المعارف were printed in Būlāq, in the margins of Ghazālī's احياء علوم الدين, in four volumes, see No. 1781 above, A. H. 1306). The Persian translation of another work of Suhrawardī's, رشف التماثل, is noticed in Rieu ii. p. 853^a, see also H. Khalfa iii. p. 465; on the life of the great Shaikh compare Ibn Khallikān in De Slane's translation, ii. pp. 382-384. The author of this Persian adaptation of the عوارف المعارف is 'Izz-al-dīn Maḥmūd bin 'Alī al-Kāshānī (see fol. 3^a, l. 9), who died according to H. Khalfa, loc. cit., A. H. 735 (A. D. 1334, 1335), see Haft Iklim, No. 931 (col. 445 in this Cat.). He wished at first to give, in compliance with the requests of many friends, a full translation of Suhrawardī's work, but soon abandoned that idea, as involving too great a labour, and contented himself with writing this مختصر, in which he embodied all the principal points and doctrines of the Arabic original. Several portions of this translation, another copy of which is noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 290, are quoted verbally in Jāmī's Nafahāt-aluns, viz. the 1st faṣl of the 3rd bāḥ, the 10th faṣl of the same, and parts of the 2nd faṣl of the 1st bāḥ, see Notices et Extraits, xii. pp. 322-352 and 377-391. Other Persian translations or adaptations of the عوارف المعارف are those of Zahir-al-dīn 'Abd-alraḥmān bin Najib-al-dīn 'Alī bin Buzghush al-Shirāzī, who died in Ramadān, A. H. 716 (A. D. 1316, Nov.-Dec.), see a copy of it in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 89, and compare Safinat-alauliyā, No. 151 (col. 290 in this Cat.), and Haft Iklim, No. 176 (ib., col. 391); of Junaid bin Faḍl-allāh, the grandson of the preceding Zahir-al-dīn 'Abd-alraḥmān, a copy of which is described in E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 87-89; and of an anonymous author, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 291.

The Miṣbāḥ-alhidāyat is divided into ten books, each book subdivided into ten faṣls (Index on ff. 4^a-5^a):

Silk-i-Sulūk (سلک سلوک).

A comprehensive work on the various points of the Şūfic doctrine and the science of the mystic road, in 151 short chapters, styled سلک, and composed by Diyā-al-dīn Nakhshahī, the author of the older and larger version of the famous Tūṭīnāma (see Nos. 743-751 in this Cat.), who died A. H. 751 (A. D. 1350, 1351).

Beginning: حمدی که از عطر روائع او ارواح اولیاء معطر: گردد (و) مراحدی را که اولیای او را الخ.

The first chapter begins, on fol. 3^b, with an exposition of the technical terms of Şūfism. The work (which is styled both سلک سلوک and سلك السلوك) is mentioned as one of the authorities of the مفتاح الجنان of Muḥammad Mujir (bin ?) Wajih-al-dīn (written about A. H. 770 = A. D. 1368, 1369), see Rieu i. pp. 40 and 41.

This copy is dated the 12th of Muḥarram, A. H. 1159 (the 28th year of Muḥammadshāh's reign = A. D. 1746, Feb. 4).

Marghūb-alkulūb (مرغوب القلوب).

A mathnawī on the elements of asceticism and mysticism, composed A. H. 757 (A. D. 1356) and divided into ten faṣls, compare G. Flügel i. p. 526; Rieu ii. p. 874^a, and No. 1765, 10 above, where it is styled ترغیب القلوب. It is commonly ascribed to Shams-al-dīn Tabrizī, the spiritual guide of Jalāl-al-dīn Rūmī (see Flügel, loc. cit., the heading of the present copy and the preface to the immediately following one), but as Shams-al-dīn died A. H. 645 (A. D. 1247, 1248), i. e. 112 lunar years before the composition of this poem, the statement is absurd. H. Khalfa v. p. 495, No. 11809, only quotes the title. The date, A. H. 757, is found both in the copy of the British Mus. and in the two

Ind. Office copies (here on fol. 76^b, l. 2); but the author's name, Shams, which Rieu found in the last verse of his copy, is missing both here and in the following copy. Only nine faṣls are marked in the present MS., but a comparison with the following copy shows, that the heading of the 6th has been omitted at the top of fol. 75^a.

Beginning of the poem, on fol. 71^a:

بگویم حمد رت العالمین را
عطا کو کرد بر من عقل و دین را

Faṣl 1. در باب توبه, on fol. 71^b; 2. در باب روح, on fol. 72^a; 3. در باب وضو, on fol. 72^b; 4. در ترک دنیا, on fol. 73^b; 5. در باب توحید, on fol. 74^a, last line; 6. (not marked here, see the following copy) on fol. 75^a, first line; 7. در باب عشق سالک, on fol. 75^a; 8. در باب فنا, on fol. 75^b; 9. در باب عاشق و معشوق, on fol. 75^b; 10. در باب مسافر سیلک, on fol. 76^a. A copy of the 10th faṣl is noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 4, No. 10; a complete one in No. 1924, 1 below.

No date. College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2053, ff. 71-76, 2 coll., each ll. 13; Nasta'liq; size, 9 in. by 5½ in.

Another copy of the same.

This copy of the مرغوب القلوب is provided (a) with a preface in prose, identical with that in the Vienna copy; (b) with a kind of commentary to each verse, consisting of traditions (حدیث), quotations from the Kurān (قرآن), etc., illustrating the meaning of the text. It should therefore rather be styled (as a note on the fly-leaf implies): شرح مرغوب القلوب. The date of composition is found here on fol. 20^b, last line, together with the title.

Beginning of the preface, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لله رب العالمین والعاقبة للمتقين والصلوة والسلام على رسوله محمد وآله واصحابه اجمعين، این کتاب مرغوب القلوب از گفتار شیخ الاسلام و المشایخ و قطب المحققین شمس الدین و الدنيا شمس تبریزی الخ.

Beginning of the poem, on fol. 2^a, l. 2:

بگویم حمد رت العالمین را
عطا کو کرد بر ما عقل و دین را

Faṣl 1. در بیان توبه, on fol. 6^b; 2. در بیان روح, on fol. 8^a; 3. در بیان ترک, on fol. 10^b; 4. در بیان دنیا, on fol. 13^a, first line; 5. در بیان تجرید, on fol. 16^a; 6. در بیان معرفت, on fol. 17^a; 7. در بیان عشق, on fol. 18^b; 8. در بیان عاشق و معشوق, on fol. 19^a; 9. در بیان فنا و بقا, on fol. 19^b; 10. در بیان سفر, on fol. 20^a.

Dated the 29th of Rabi'-alawwal, A.H. 1115 (1108) = A.D. 1703, Aug. 12. A seal of 'Abd-alwahhâb Khân Bahâdur, with the date 1174 (A.D. 1760, 1761), on fol. 1^a.

No. 938, ff. 21, ll. 9; Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 4¾ in.

Şafwat-alsafi (صفوة الصفی).

The life, wonderful deeds, and miracles of the great Şûfîc Shaikh Şafi-aldin Ishâk al-Mûsawî, the ancestor of the Şafawîs, who died A.H. 735 (A.D. 1334, 1335), see fol. 278^b. This work, which is usually — and probably more correctly — styled صفوة الصفا, was composed by Darwish Tawakkulî (or Tawakkul) bin Isma'il bin Hâjî of Ardabil, commonly known as Ibn Bazzâz (not Bazzâr, as H. Khalfa iv. p. 105, calls him), whose father and uncle were disciples of the great Shaikh, see the description of a revised edition of the same biography by a certain Abû-alfath al-Ḥusainî in Rieu i. pp. 345 and 346. Rieu assigns, from internal evidence, the composition of this work to about A.H. 750 (A.D. 1349, 1350); the present copy is stated at the end to be the autograph of the author Ibn Bazzâz, and dated in the month of Sha'bân, A.H. 759 (A.D. 1358, July-August); that could easily be reconciled with the fact of Şadr-aldin Mûsâ, Şafi-aldin's son and successor, who died A.H. 758 (A.D. 1357), being spoken of in this work as still living, on the assumption, that the bulk of it was written a few years before the final date of completion.

The biography is divided into twelve bâbs, and begins:

الحمد لله الذى تجلّى لاوليائه بانوار العرفان و المعارف
و تجلّى اصفيائه بانواع اللطائف و العوارف الخ.

In Rieu's revised edition it contains an additional preface and khâtimah, and the beginning consequently differs from that just given; another copy is described in the Cat. des MSS. et Xyl., p. 289.

No. 1098, ff. 342, ll. 21; clear and distinct Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispiece; size, 13½ in. by 8¾ in.

Maktûbât-i-Aḥmad bin Yahyâ Munyarî (مکتوبات احمد بن يحيى منيرى).

A first collection of 100 letters on the mystical doctrine or the chief topics of Şûfîsm, by the great Shaikh Sharaf-aldin Aḥmad bin Yahyâ Munyarî, who was born in Munyar, a village in Bihâr, and died in Bihâr A.H. 782 (A.D. 1380, 1381), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1263, where his discourses on Şûfîsm, entitled معدن المعاني, and composed between A.H. 749 and 751 (A.D. 1348-1350), are described, and Rieu ii. p. 492^b. This first collection was made as early as A.H. 747 (A.D. 1346, 1347), by Zain Badr 'Arabî (زين بدر عربى), a disciple of the Shaikh, and contains letters addressed to the latter's pupil and friend Kâdî Shams-aldin, the governor of the township of Jûsa (قاضي شمس الدين). Maktūbāt-i-Aḥmad bin Yahyā Munyarī.

An incomplete copy of a third collection of letters of the same Sharaf-aldin Aḥmad bin Yahyā Munyarī, on Sūfī topics of the same character as in the two preceding collections. It is defective both at the beginning and end, and has moreover a lacuna of one leaf between ff. 6 and 7, and another of five leaves between ff. 258 and 259. Eight leaves are missing in the beginning. It opens abruptly at the end of the 3rd letter and breaks off in the beginning of the 125th. The letters, all with full addresses, and somewhat lengthy headings, are found here: 4. on fol. 1^a; 5. on fol. 1^b; 6. on fol. 2^b; 7. on fol. 3^a; 8. on fol. 3^b; 9. on fol. 4^a; 10. on fol. 4^b; 11. on fol. 5^a; 12. on fol. 6^a; 13 and 14. missing on account of the first lacuna; 15. on fol. 7^b; 16. on fol. 8^a; 17. on fol. 9^b; 18. on fol. 23^b; 19 and 20. on fol. 24^b; 21. on fol. 25^a; 22. on fol. 26^a; 23. on fol. 28^a; 24. on fol. 33^a; 25. on fol. 38^b; 26. on fol. 39^a; 27. on fol. 42^b, last line; 28. on fol. 44^b; 29. on fol. 46^b; 30. on fol. 47^a; 31. on fol. 48^a; 32. on fol. 50^b; 33. on fol. 53^a; 34. on fol. 56^a; 35. on fol. 57^a; 36. on fol. 57^b; 37 and 38. on fol. 59^a; 39. on fol. 60^a; 40. on fol. 61^a; 41. on fol. 61^b; 42. on fol. 68^a; 43. on fol. 68^b; 44. on fol. 69^a; 45. on fol. 73^a; 46. on fol. 73^b; 47. on fol. 74^b; 48. on fol. 75^b, last line; 49. on fol. 78^a; 50. on fol. 79^a; 51. on fol. 80^a; 52. left out altogether; 53. on fol. 81^a; 54. on fol. 82^a; 55. on fol. 85^a; 56. on fol. 85^b; 57. on fol. 86^a; 58. on fol. 87^b; 59. on fol. 89^a; 60. on fol. 92^a; 61. on fol. 92^b; 62. on fol. 95^a, last lines; 63. on fol. 96^b; 64. on fol. 97^a; 65. on fol. 98^b; 66. on fol. 102^b, last lines; 67. on fol. 103^b; 68. on fol. 105^a, last line; 69. on fol. 107^a; 70. on fol. 109^a; 71. on fol. 109^b; 72. on fol. 110^a; 73. on fol. 112^a; 74. on fol. 113^a; 75. on fol. 116^a; 76. on fol. 118^b; 77. on fol. 122^b; 78. on fol. 125^a, last lines; 79. on fol. 129^b; 80. on fol. 130^a; 81. on fol. 137^b; 82. on fol. 140^b; 83. on fol. 141^b; 84. on fol. 142^b; 85. on fol. 143^a; 86. on fol. 143^b; 87. on fol. 144^b; 88. on fol. 146^a; 89. on fol. 147^a, last line; 90. on fol. 156^a; 91. on fol. 161^a; 92. on fol. 163^b; 93. on fol. 167^a; 94. on fol. 168^b; 95. on fol. 172^a; 96. on fol. 176^b; 97. on fol. 179^a, first line; 98. on fol. 181^a; 99. on fol. 181^b; 100. on fol. 182^a; 101. on fol. 183^b; 102. on fol. 203^b; 103. on fol. 204^a; 104. on fol. 205^a; 105. on fol. 206^b; 106. on fol. 207^a; 107. on fol. 208^a; 108. on fol. 209^b; 109 and 110. on fol. 210^a; 111. on fol. 213^a; 112. on fol. 214^b; 113. on fol. 216^a; 114. on fol. 216^b; 115. on fol. 218^b; 116. on fol. 226^b; 117 and 118. on fol. 227^b; 119. on fol. 228^b; 120. on fol. 237^b; 121. on fol. 240^a; 122. on fol. 245^b; 123. on fol. 247^a; 124. missing on account of the second lacuna; 125. on fol. 259^b. Letter 81 is not numbered, in consequence of which 82 appears as 81 in the heading and so on; but it is quite possible, that, as there is no letter 52 marked, 53 ought to be correctly styled 52 and so forth, in which case the later numbers, as given in the headings, would after all be correct. Letters 119-123 have no heading at all (a blank space being left for them, but not filled in). From fol. 247 to the end the tops of all leaves are more or less damaged, and whole lines torn away.

A considerable number of these letters are addressed to Khwājah Muḥammad Sa'id and Khwājah Muḥammad Ma'sūm (see ff. 68^b, 73^b, 75^b, 82^a, 95^a, 96^b, 98^b, 113^a, 116^a, 122^b, 125^a, 129^b, 130^a, 137^b, 141^b, 142^b, 143^b, 147^a, 168^b, 172^a, 206^a, 208^a, 210^a, and 213^a), who are both called مخدومزاده, i.e. sons of Makhdūm. The best known Makhdūm among the Sūfī Shaikhs is Makhdūm-i-Jahāniyān, i.e. Sayyid Jalāl-aldin Bukhārī, who died end of A. H. 785 (A. D. 1384), see Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 157 (col. 291 in this Cat.); Siyar-al'arifin, No. 13 (ib., col. 264); Sawâti'-alanwâr, No. 22, i. (ib., col. 332); Bodleian Cat., No. 1263; and Rieu i. p. 354^b; but the names of his sons were according to the Safinat-alauliyâ, loc. cit., Sayyid Ahmad Kabir, Sayyid Bahâ-aldin, and Sayyid Muhammad (a fourth Nâsir-aldin Mahmûd is mentioned in Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 158), and these are entirely at variance with the two names above. It is therefore possible, that they were two other sons of the author himself (comp. No. 1844), as the latter is styled in Nos. 1848 and 1849 below likewise Makhdûm, viz.: مخدوم والمؤمنين, and this word is, besides, generally used as honorary title for a spiritual master or guide.

Maktûbât-i-Ahmad bin Yahyâ Munyarî.

A fourth collection of letters of the same Shaikh Ahmad bin Yahyâ Munyarî, containing selections from a correspondence of twenty-five years between him and the Imâm Muẓaffar (the same to whom some letters are addressed in the second collection) on mystical topics. It is very short, and consists of twenty-eight letters only.

Beginning: الحمد لله رب العالمين والعاقبة للمتقين. اما بعد اين چند مكتوب مرغوب كه بتحریر پیوست قصه آنست كه در مدت بیست و پنج سال شیخ الاسلام شیخ شرف الحق و الذین الخ.

No. 523, ff. 40, ll. 13; Nasta'lik; size, 8¼ in. by 5¼ in.

1848

A letter, designated in the heading as مکتوب حضرت which seems to indicate that it is from the pen of Shaikh Ahmad Munyarî's father, in answer to some questions addressed to him by his son, see the initial words: سؤال چند از مخدوم المسلمین و المؤمنین قدوة المحققین و المدققین شیخ الاسلام شرف الحق والذین احمد (بن) یسکی منیری قدس سره العزیز و ایشان جواب فرموده اند حدیث در عوارف نوشته است كه العشق لا محمود ولا مذموم الخ.

No date; modern transcript. College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2130, ff. 1-4, ll. 18-21; Naskhî, mixed with Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

1849

Two mystical treatises, a large and a very small one, the latter of which is styled ارشاد السالکین و برهان العارفين and composed by the same Ahmad bin Yahyâ Munyarî; whether the first is likewise from his pen, is impossible to state, as no indication whatever is given as to its authorship, but it is highly probable.

Beginning of the first risâlah, on fol. 299^b: الله لا اله الا هو و درود بسم الله بر آن ظهور كه شهود ذات و مقصود صفات است و برآل و اصحاب و پیران او باد؛ بعد از آن كلمه چند كه از الهامات است نه از عقلیات الخ.

A bait of Jalâl-aldin Rûmî (شمس الذین تبریز) is quoted on fol. 308^b.

Beginning of the second risâlah, on fol. 417^a: رساله:

ارشاد السالكين و برهان العارفين مخدوم جهان شيخ
شرف الحق شرف الدين احمد (بن) يحيى منيرى قدس
الله روحه، الحمد لله رب العالمين كه موجود نيست مگر
وى و درود بر رسول كه مقصود نيست مگر وى الخ.

Mastûrât (مستورات).

Discourses and spiritual teachings of Sayyid 'Ali Hamadâni bin Sayyid Shihâb-aldin Hamadâni, a direct descendant of the prophet (see his full pedigree here on fol. 348^a, l. 1 sq., and in No. 1269 of the Bodleian Cat.), who is stated here to have gone to Kashmir, A. H. 741=A. D. 1340, 1341 (see fol. 347^a, lin. penult., and fol. 347^b, l. 2 sq.), and have built there the famous convent, خانقاه معلی, which is visited from far and wide (the usual date assigned to this expedition to Kashmir is A. H. 781 or 782=A. D. 1379 or 1380, see Rieu ii. p. 447, etc.). He died A. H. 786 (see fol. 422^a, first line), the 6th of Dhû-alhijjah=A. D. 1385, Jan. 19; comp. on this Shaikh Haft Iklim, No. 1019 (col. 453 in this Cat.), No. 1870, 36 further down, and Rieu, loc. cit. The present discourses were taken down from the master's lips by one of his disciples; the treatise forms therefore a kind of memoir of the great Şûfî saint.

Beginning: سبحان الله بحمده بقدرت کمالات الهی و نوادر الخ.

No date. Other Persian works by the same 'Ali Hamadâni are: the mystical treatise, خلاصة المناقب (Bodleian Cat. No. 1269, there stated to have been composed A. H. 787, which is probably a mistake for 778=A. D. 1376, 1377); the famous work on political ethics, ذخيرة الملوك (see Rieu ii. p. 447; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1451-1453; G. Flügel iii. p. 284; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 7, No. 5, and p. 321 sq.); حل التصوف, a commentary on the فصوص الحکم (see No. 1357, 9 above, and Rieu ii. p. 836^b, No. XX); ده قاعده, ten rules of contemplative life (ib., p. 829^a, No. XI, and G. Flügel iii. p. 420); رسالة الاصطلاحات, a treatise on Şûfî terminology (W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 18, 8. On Arabic works of the same, see Arabic Cat. of the Brit. Mus., p. 406 sq.; Loth, Arabic Cat., pp. 94 and 195; Rieu, Supplement, p. 12; Haft Iklim, No. 1019, etc.

Another copy of the same work is described in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 10, No. 23. A treatise of similar contents and similar title (معامات خواجه بهاء), styled in Krafft, p. 113, رسالة القدسية التقشيدية, by Khwâjah Muḥammad Pârsâ, another pupil of Bahâ-aldin Nakshband (who died A. H. 822, the 24th of Dhû-alhijjah=A. D. 1420, Jan. 11, see Nos. 1855 and 1923, 3 below, and comp. No. 1357, 14 above), is noticed in Rieu ii. p. 862^a, No. II, see ib., iii. p. 1095.

Raudat-almuhibbin (روضة المحبتين).

A mystical mathnawī, containing ten Ṣūfī love-letters, and therefore styled in the copies of the British Museum and the Berlin Library (see Rieu, Supplement, p. 217, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 715 and 716, No. 687, 3) روضة المحبتين, by Ibn 'Imād, a contemporary of Hāfiẓ, who was born in Khurāsān and lived in Shirāz, where he died A. H. 800 (A. D. 1397, 1398). It was composed A. H. 794 (A. D. 1392). see fol. 38^b, ll. 6 and 8. The above title, روضة المحبتين, the garden of lovers, which is also found in the Bodleian copy (Bodleian Cat., No. 1265), is no doubt the correct one, as it is distinctly given at the end of the poem itself; the other, روضة المحبتين or the ten letters, although correctly describing the contents of the poem, seems to rest on a confusion of this mathnawī with the روضة المحبتين of Khwājah 'Imād-al-dīn Faḳīh, with the takhalluṣ 'Imād, who died A. H. 773 or 793 (A. D. 1371, 1372 or 1391, see Bodleian Cat., No. 803, and A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 438) and who was very likely the father of our Ibn 'Imād (see similar suggestions in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., loc. cit.).

The author has taken great care to conceal his name, styling himself simply ابراهيم درويش, but in his own ghazals, with which the book is interspersed, he betrays it in the takhalluṣ, viz. Mas'ūd (see fol. 65^b, last line but one; fol. 81^b, l. 4 ab infra; fol. 97^a, l. 1; fol. 109^a, l. 5 ab infra; fol. 136^b, l. 8; fol. 151^b, l. 3; fol. 164^b, l. 8; fol. 178^b, l. 4; fol. 191^b, l. 5; fol. 202^a, l. 3; fol. 207^a, l. 4 ab infra; and fol. 209^b, l. 3 ab infra), and more distinctly: Mas'ūd-i-Bak (only once, on fol. 121^a, l. 1). Khwājah Mas'ūd-i-Bak (of Bak in the district of Bukhārā), with his original name Aḥmad bin Muḥammad Nakhshabī Shirkhān (see col. 333 in this Cat., and compare with it No. 856 in the Bodleian Cat.), was a relation of Sultān Firūz of Dihli and according to the Makhzan-algharā'ib (No. 2306, col. 373 in the Bodleian Cat.), originally an independent ruler of Bukhārā, till he turned a derwish of the Cīstī order under the spiritual guidance of Shaikh Rukn-al-dīn, the son of Shaikh Shihāb-al-dīn Imām (the latter being one of the renowned disciples and Khalīfas of Nizām-al-dīn Auliya), or, as the Makhzan-algharā'ib states (loc. cit.), of Shaikh Naṣir-al-dīn Maḥmūd Cīrāgh of Dihli (who was likewise a distinguished pupil of Nizām-al-dīn Auliya and died the 18th of Ramaḍān, A. H. 757 = A. D. 1356, Sept. 14, see Safinat-alauliyyā, No. 116, col. 287 in this Cat.). He was put to death A. H. 800 (A. D. 1397, 1398). In the present work, the 14th Kashf of which is quoted in full in the Sawāṭi'-alanwār (No. 654 of this Cat.), he often quotes as authority the Cīstī Shaikh Shibli, the son of Shaikh Jalāl-al-dīn Panipati (who died A. H. 765 = A. D. 1363, 1364, see Rieu i. p. 358^b). Other works of Mas'ūd-i-Bak are التمايح; أم التمايح (an imitation of 'Ain-alkudāt's work of the same title, see Nos. 1793 and 1794 in this Cat.); and the diwân of lyrical poems, styled نور اليقين (see Rieu ii. p. 632) or نور العيون (according to Ilâhi, see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 84) or even نور العين (as the Makhzan-algharâ'ib denotes it).

Copied in Naskhi by 'Abd-alimâm alṣâdiki alḥusaini and dated the 22nd of Sha'bân, A. H. 1056 (A. D. 1646. Oct. 3).

II. Maḥabbatnâma (محبتنامه), compiled from the utterances of the great Shaikh Makbûl-alḥadrat Yaddallâh, the grandson, pupil, and Khalfah of Shaikh Gisûdarâz (see above, Nos. 1856-1863, and the Sawâtî'-alanwâr, col. 331, ll. 5 and 4, in this Cat.), during a series of discussions on the various stages of the mystic doctrine and of Şûfic lore, held in the majlis of the Shaikh from the 3rd of Rajab to the 22nd of Shawwâl, A. H. 843 (A. D. 1439, Dec. 10, to 1440, March 27), by his pupil Maḥmûd Faḍl-allâh Ḥusaini.

Beginning, on fol. 71^b: (sic!) الحمد لله الذى اشتياق (sic!) المعرفة ثم تجلّى بذاته فاطهر آدم على صورته وجعل قلبه معدن المحبته (sic!) وامانته واجلس على سرير الخلافة الخ.

Written, by the same hand as the preceding work, in Naskhi, and dated the 27th of Shawwâl, A. H. 1059 (=A. D. 1649, Nov. 3; but 1059 is very likely a mistake for 1056, see the dates of the following treatises).

III. 'Ishknâma (عشق نامه), a treatise on similar topics, by an anonymous author, who bases his theories on the mystical interpretation of Kurân verses and may therefore be identical with the famous Gisûdarâz, to whom Nos. V and VI of this collection are due.

Beginning, on fol. 138^a: الحمد لله مفضى الشمس منور القمر مظهر الملك مصور البشر محبى اللجان الخ.

Written, by the same hand as the two preceding treatises, in Naskhi (except the last portion of fol. 140^b and the whole of fol. 141^a which are supplied by another hand in Nasta'liq), and dated the 4th of Jumâdâ-alulâ, A. H. 1057 (A. D. 1647, June 7).

IV. Ghâyat-alimkân fi dirâyat-almakân (غاية الامكان), a treatise on the knowledge of God and His qualities (فى معرفة الله تعالى وصفاته), by Shaikh Maḥmûd ash-Shirî, called Durr-i-yatim, 'the unique pearl,' who, according to a note on the top of fol. 179^b, was a pupil of Shaikh Shams-al-dîn Muhammad bin 'Abd-almalik Dailami and embodied his master's حقائق in a treatise, styled فى غاية الامكان; but whether this is identical with the present one, God alone knows!

Beginning, on fol. 179^b: الحمد لله الذى لا آخر لا وليته ولا اول آخريته ولا بطون لظاهريته ولا ظهور لباطنيته الخ.

To the middle of fol. 183^b this treatise is written by the same hand, as the three preceding ones, in Naskhi; the remaining portion and also the first three lines of the beginning are copied by another hand in Nasta'liq; dated the 22nd of Sha'bân, A. H. 1057 (A. D. 1647, Sept. 22).

V. Ḥadâ'ik-aluns (حدائق الانس), a short mystical tract by the great Gisûdarâz (see above, Nos. 1856-1863 and 1867), compiled in A. H. 825 (A. D. 1422) shortly before his death, when he was 105 lunar years old. It is divided into ten حديثه.

Beginning, on fol. 191^b: حمد بسجد وثنائى بعبء مر خالقى را كه از جمله مخلوقات نوع انسان را مخصوص بتشريف عرفان الخ.

Written in Nasta'liq, mixed with Shikasta, and dated the 1st of Sha'bân, A. H. 1065 (A. D. 1655, June 6).

Khâtimah (خاتمه), a fourth copy of Gisûdarâz's work on the Šûfic doctrine (see Nos. 1856-1858 above), beginning, on fol. 199^b: از رسوم مستمّرة وعادات ملتزمه دوام وضو است عوام و خواص ايشان بى وضو نباشند مگر بعد اين كلمات كرامات عاشق شهباز بلند برون از الخ. No date. Written by the same hand as the following tract, in splendid Naskhi; the transcriber's name is Aḥmad bin Ibrâhim.

Written in Nasta'liq by Mahdi alḥusainî, the son of Mir Muḥammad Yûsuf of Mâzandarân, and dated the 20th of Sha'bân, A. H. 1097 (A. D. 1686, July 12; but probably 1097 is a mistake for 1067).

VII. Khawâriqât (خوارق), an account of the life and deeds of Shaikh Gisûdarâz, his descendants and spiritual successors, compiled A. H. 981 (A. D. 1573, 1574), and beginning: الحمد لله رب العالمين... اما بعد اين كلمات كرامات عاشق شهباز بلند برون از الخ.

No date. Written by the same hand as the following tract, in splendid Naskhi; the transcriber's name is Aḥmad bin Ibrâhim.

H. 632 (A. D. 1235, see ib., coll. 321 and 329), on fol. 272^a.

At the end of this copy, on ff. 275^b-283^b, various pieces of poetry are added, viz. (1) a short mathnawi, styled Ganj-i-Ja'fari (گنج جعفری), composed A. H. 1055 (A. Another copy of the same.

This copy, although splendid in its rich illuminations, pictures and other wonderful embellishments, is in a hopeless confusion and disorder, so far as the proper arrangement of the leaves is concerned. Maktûbât-i-'Abd-alkuddûs (مکتوبات عبد القدوس).

One hundred and eighty-nine letters on all the various branches of the mystical doctrine, addressed to a great number of Shaikhs, the materials of which the editor, Khidr Badhan (بدھن) bin Rukn of Jaunpûr, commonly called Miyānkhān bin Ikhwām-almulk, collected from the mouth of his spiritual guide, the great Shaikh of the Cīstī order, 'Ahd-alkuddûs (or alkaddûs) bin Shaikh Isma'il alhanafi of Gangû near Dihlī, who was born A. H. 860 (A. D. 1456), and died A. H. 944 or 945 (A. D. 1537 or 1538), comp. Safinat-alauliyā, No. 118 (col. 287 in this Cat.); Sawāṭīf-alanwār, No. 30 (ib., col. 336), and Rieu ii. p. 830, No. XV. The editor, who is no doubt identical with 'Ahd-alkuddûs' third Khalifah, called in the Sawāṭīf-alanwār, loc. cit., Khidrkhān, known as Shaikh Khān, of Jaunpûr, gave in honour of his Pir the title of مکتوبات عبد القدوس to this collection (see fol. 3^b, ll. 13 and 16-17).

Beginning: حمد بىحد مر خدايى كه دلها عارفانرا
بنور ذكر خویش منور گرد و مهبط اسرار خود گردانيد الخ

The collection ends on fol. 217^a. Another, but defective, copy of the same is noticed in No. 1275 of the Bodleian Cat. On ff. 218^a-220^b a short tract on the fourteen families of the Cīstī order (see col. 321 in this Cat.), styled چهارده خانواده مشايخان, is added.

Jāddat-al'āshiqin (جاذّة العاشقين).

The highway of lovers, a work on the mystical doctrine, especially on the life, deeds, and miracles of the great and highly renowned Šūfic Shaikh Kuṭb-al-dīn Husain (who might perhaps be identical with Shaikh Husain Khwārizmī, mentioned in the Safinat-alauliyā, No. 364, col. 310 in this Cat., as having died A.H. 956=A.D. 1549), compiled for the sake of the friends and followers of that Shaikh (the Husainis) by a pupil of the same, A.H. 973 (A.D. 1565, 1566), comp. the last line in the last page, where the words اتمام یافت appear to be a chronogram. The author's name is concealed; the title occurs twice, on fol. 3^b, l. 13, and fol. 4^a, l. 4. The compiler founded his book on a larger work of a similar kind, the مفتاح الطالبین, written likewise by a friend and confidant of Shaikh Husain, Maulānā Kamāl-al-dīn Maḥmūd Anjudānī, A.H. 949 (A.D. 1542, 1543), made first an extract from it, enlarged by many new and valuable details which he had seen in the Shaikh's own presence and heard from his own mouth, and then again a shorter abridgement of that extract, which forms now the جاذّة العاشقين. It is divided into thirteen bābs and many faṣls. The first leaf is missing; the copy, which is dated A.H. 989 (A.D. 1581), begins abruptly in the preface thus:

..... بر سید و سرور کائنات و خلاصه موجودات و صدر و بدر عالم الخ.

It is worm-eaten throughout and injured almost on every leaf.

No. 640, ff. 119, ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 9¾ in. by 5¾ in.

Širāt-almustakim (صراط المستقیم).

Philosophical and psychological questions and aphorisms of a thoroughly Šūfic tendency, compiled A.H. 981=A.D. 1573, 1574 (the title is a chronogram), by Khūb Muḥammad Cishtī (see fol. 2^b, ll. 4 and 9, and fol. 3^a, ll. 3 and 4).

Beginning: آن حی لا یموت که لا تأخذُ سنَةً ولا نَوْمَ (Sûrah 2, 256)

Copied A.H. 1095 (A.D. 1684).

No. 626, ff. 1-79, ll. 9; Nasta'liq; size, 9¾ in. by 4¾ in.

Hifz-i-marâtib (حفظ مراتب).

Another Šūfic work by the same Khūb Muḥammad Cishtī, a kind of cosmography, giving a description of the different stages in the visible and invisible world from a mystical standpoint, and dealing with theosophy, metaphysics, astronomy, natural science, physiology, etc., compiled A.H. 1009=A.D. 1600, 1601 (see fol. 2^b).

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: حمد مطلق سزای ذاتی را که او: بحفظ مراتب ایجاد عالم کرد الخ.

The first two lines and a half on fol. 2^b are a mere repetition of the first line of fol. 1^b and some other words occurring on fol. 2^a in l. 9 and the last line. The work concludes on fol. 76^a, and is dated the 23rd of Dhû-alhijjah, A.H. 1014 (A.D. 1606, May 1). Ff. 76^b-125 contain a mere jumble of scattered fragments in prose and verse.

No. 1055, ff. 125; Nasta'liq, on ff. 1-76^a, ll. 22; size, 9¾ in. by 4¾ in.

Anis-alghurabâ (انیس الغربا).

A treatise on Šūfism (در تصوّف), interspersed with numerous quotations from the Kūrān and Sunnah, and many poetical specimens, beginning: حمد و ثنا مر مفضلی را که فضل داد مهاجرانرا بر قاعدان بعلو درجه و سمو مرتبه و اکرام گردانید الخ.

The author styles himself in the text modestly thus, سگ عقر بیچاره, 'the wounded, helpless dog,' without giving his name; but in the colophon he is called 'Abd-alšamad, and is probably identical with the author of the مکتوبات علمی and editor of the اخبار الاصفا (see above, Nos. 641 and 271-286), 'Abd-alšamad bin Afḍal Muḥammad, who composed the former work A.H. 1014 (A.D. 1605, 1606), and was engaged in the latter from A.H. 1011 to 1015 (A.D. 1602-1606, 1607).

No. 2103, ff. 1-54, ll. 12-19; written by different hands in various styles of Nasta'liq; size, 7 in. by 4¾ in.

Maktûbât-i-'Abdallâh Kutb (مکتوبات عبد الله قطب).

Two hundred and fifty-one letters of mystic tendency on various topics of religion and philosophy, addressed by 'Abdallâh Kutb bin Muhyi to his spiritual brethren, for instance, Afdal-aldin Muhammad, Mushîr-aldin 'Îsâ, 'Imâd-aldin Muhammad, Shaikh Muhammad, Ghiyâth-aldin Muhammad, 'Imâd-aldin Ja'far, Shams-aldin Abû Sa'id, Rukn-aldin Hasan, Muhammad Isma'il, Maulânâ Karim-aldin Muhammad and others. If the first-named Afdal-aldin Muhammad should be identical with the father of 'Abd-alsamad (see the preceding copy), Afdal Muhammad, a Shaikh of the Kâdiri order, who died A.H. 1003 = A.D. 1594, 1595 (see Rieu iii. p. 1087^a), we would have a certain basis for fixing the time, in which the author of these letters lived, and the Sûfic order, to which he belonged. In the letters themselves there is not the slightest date or hint about 'Abdallâh Kutb's life.

Only a few of these letters have special headings, viz.:

1. On fol. 2^a, مکتوب الآداب القسرة قدسی التقلید.
2. On fol. 4^a, مکتوب العزلة.
3. On fol. 7^b, مکتوب المکر العظیم.
4. On fol. 9^a, مکتوب مثل للحکما.
5. On fol. 11^a, مکتوب زينة الارض.
6. On fol. 12^a, مکتوب البصيرة والتقليد قدسی التقلید.
24. On fol. 29^a, last line, مکتوب صلاح العبد.
25. On fol. 30^a, مکتوب مثل الجندي.
26. On fol. 31^a, مکتوب المحيا.
27. On fol. 32^a, مکتوب ذوق الاختيار.
157. On fol. 164^a, مکتوب در اینکه انسان (rest illegible).
158. On fol. 166^a, مکتوب استثناء در ایمان.
161. On fol. 171^b, مکتوب تمثيل بحال کسی که خود را گاو پنداشته.
162. On fol. 172^b, مکتوب تمثيل مقهور قوت طبیعت.
166. On fol. 178^a, مکتوب در بیان معنی حدیث خلقی، الله آدم علی صورته.

All the rest are simply styled مکتوب or have no inscription whatever.

Beginning of the preface (entirely in Arabic), on fol. 1^b: من عبد الله قطب بن محیی الى الاخوان الالهيين : (الالهيين) کثرهم الله و بارک علیهم اجمعين، اما بعد فلما انعم الله علی اخواننا الخ

Durr-almajālis (دُرّ المجالس).

The same collection of legends relating to the Patriarchs, Prophets, Muhammad, 'Ali, and various saints, with a decided Sûfic tendency, which has been noticed in No. 1762, 31 above. It was composed in thirty-three chapters by Saif-al-Zafar Naubahâri (or Saif-aldin Zafar Naubahâri, as in the Leyden copy; in the Munich MS. he is called Saif-al-Zafar ibn al-Burhân; mere corruptions of the name are Saif Bûnahâri or Saif Bûtahâri, as in the Berlin copy, or Bûtahâri, as in No. 1887 below; in the present copy he is styled Saif Zafar Bahâri. In the colophon of No. 1886 below he appears as Sayyid Jalâl-aldin). Instead of the correct title دُرّ المجالس there appears in No. 1884 below سُلّم الانبيا, the ladder of prophets.

Maktūbāt-i-Aḥmad Fārūkī Naqshbandi (مکتوبات (احمد فاروقی نقشبندی).

The first volume of the letters of the Naqshbandi Shaikh Aḥmad Fārūkī, who died A.H. 1034 or 1035 (A.D. 1625 or 1626) in Sirhind (see above, No. 652, in the مناقب الخضرات, and Rieu iii. p. 1058^a, fol. 16), comprising 313 treatises in form of letters, addressed to a great number of persons, on theosophical and mystical matters, especially on the doctrines of the Naqshbandi order; they were collected A.H. 1025=A.D. 1616 (see the heading on fol. 1^b: لعظ در المعرفة تأریخ اتمام این: کتاب), by Yār Muḥammad aljadid albadakhshi alṭā-lakānī, and begin: الحمد لله رب العالمین اضعاف ما حمده: جميع خلفه وكما يجب ربنا ورضى والصلوة والسلام الخ.

The first letter, on fol. 1^b, is headed: مکتوب اول در بیان احوالی که مناسب باسم الظاهر دارند و ظهور قسم خاص از توحید و بیان عروجات که بر فوق محدّد واقع شده است و انکشاف درجات بهشت و ظهور مراتب بعضی از اهل الله به پیر بزرگوار خود نوشته الخ.

This پیر بزرگوار or spiritual guide of the author is Shaikh Muḥammad albakī alnaqshbandi alahrārī, identical with the Khwājah Bākī mentioned as one of the Naqshbandi Shaikhs in the Safinat-alauliya, No. 93

(col. 284 in this Cat.), and Rieu iii. p. 1058^b, fol. 29, who died A. H. 1012 (A. D. 1603, 1604).

This collection ends on fol. 365^a and is followed on ff. 365^b-367^b (in the same handwriting) by a Khâtimah, headed in the following way: خاتمه عرضه داشتها که حضرت پناه مخدومزاده کلان قدس سره نوشته بود, and comprising three letters by Muhammad Šâdiq; as he is called the eldest son of Makhdûm, he might have been Ahmad Fârûki's own son (see on Makhdûm the remark in the middle of No. 1846 above), but that would be at variance with the statement in No. 652, where the Shaikh's son (and we must naturally assume, his only or at least his eldest son) is called Muhammad Sa'id Ma'sûm. It is therefore more likely that he was the son of the latter (usually styled مخدومی in the Manâkib-al-haqarât) and Ahmad Fârûki's grandson.

This copy is dated the 29th of Dhû-al-hijjah, A. H. 1188 (A. D. 1775, March 2), by Muhammad Kâsim bin Mirân Muhyi-al-din. Collated in the month Rabi'-althâni, A. H. 1189 (A. D. 1775, June).

On fol. 1^a a wrong title is given to this collection, viz. مکتوبات نحی منیری در سلوک (see above, Nos. 1843-1847).

No. 1037, ff. 367, ll. 15-16; Nasta'liq; size, 9³/₈ in. by 5¹/₄ in.

Khulâsat-alma'arif (خلاصة المعارف).

A work on Šûfism according to the doctrines of the Nakshbandi order, by Adam bin Sayyid Isma'il bin Sayyid Buhwâ (بُهْوَا) bin Sayyid Hâjî Yûsuf bin Sayyid Ya'qûb bin Sayyid Husain bin Sayyid Daulat bin Sayyid 'Ukbail (عُقْبَیل) bin Sayyid Sa'di bin Sayyid Kalandar, who traces' his pedigree back to Sayyid Ibrâhim, the younger brother of the Imâm 'Alî Ridâ and son of the Imâm Mûsâ Kâzim. He was at first pupil of Shaikh Khidr Bahlûlpûr in Multân, afterwards of Shaikh Ahmad alfârûki alnakshbandi alsirhindi alkâbuli (see the preceding copy) in Sirhind, and got from him the investiture, comp. No. 652 above. In A. H. 1035 (A. D. 1625, 1626), when he planned a pilgrimage to the holy cities, he began to compile from many sources (among others Jâmi's نفحات الانس and the رشحات عین الحیات, see Nos. 633-635 above), and from his own personal experiences, this work, as a spiritual preparation for himself and a benefit for other mystical aspirants. He intended to divide the book into two kisms, the first kism subdivided into two bâbs, and the first bâb into two fašls, viz.:

فصل اول در بیان کلیه اهل سنت و جماعت, on fol. 5^a.

فصل دوم در نصائح و انتباه از اهل بدعت, on fol. 30^b.

The second bâb of the first kism is subdivided into three fašls, viz.:

فصل اول فی شرح سلوک الظاہری والباطنی, on fol. 90^a.

فصل دوم در بیان علوم و معانی احوال معارف و مقامات مصطلحة معروفه علم لدنی و حال و لسان الحال و مقام مصطلحة معروفه علم لدنی و حال و لسان الحال و مقام المعام, on fol. 132^a.

فصل سبعم فی معارف الاقصی و علوم العظمی, on fol. 164^a.
(In this fašl there are included a great number of the مکتوبات of Khwâjah 'Ubad-allâh Ahrâr, who died A. H. 895=A. D. 1490, see the Majâlis-al-'ushshâk, No. 54 in No. 1870 above, and referred to in this book simply as حضرت ایشان, see No. 633 above, where in all the chapter-headings the same expression is used.) The first kism ends on fol. 184^b with a long qaṣidah, and the compiler of this book states that he completed it A. H. 1037 (A. D. 1627, 1628); he declares at the same time, that he has made up his mind not to add a second kism for various reasons, and thus the work concludes with the end of this first and only kism.

The full title of the book is کتاب خلاصة المعارف فی اسرار العقائد, as it appears at the end on fol. 186^a, and this copy is probably the compiler's autograph, who mentions himself once more in the last lines as Sayyid Âdam alhanafi alnakshbandi. It is collated throughout.

No. 1584, ff. 186, ll. 19; Nasta'liq; a little injured here and there; size, 8³/₈ in. by 6¹/₈ in.

is added at the end: تَمَّتْ الرِّسَالَةُ الْارْبَعُونَ مِنَ الرِّسَائِلِ السَّبْعَةِ وَ السَّتِّينَ لِلشَّيْخِ الْمُحَدَّثِ الْمُحَقِّقِ الشَّيْخِ عَبْدِ الْحَقِّ السَّهْلَوِيِّ, according to which the present forty treatises are only a selection from a total of sixty-seven.

Nos. 1634-1638 above), see here fol. 1^b, l. 4; fol. 3^a, ll. 9 and 10; and fol. 2^b, l. 13. The collection was made, according to the chronogram, ثمرات الحيات بى شك (i.e. 1591 minus 538), A.H. 1053 (A.D. 1643, 1644). The Shaikh himself is referred to (as Khwājah Ahrār in No. 1892 above) as حضرت ايشان; the Shaikh's own spiritual guide Shaikh 'Isā bin Kāsim of Sirhind, called 'Ain-al'urafā, with the Kunyah Abū-albarakāt, as حضرت شيخ.

Dimishḳ-i-Khayāl (دمشق خیال).

The Damascus of fancy, a compendium of Sūfism, compiled by Bālkrishn Brahman Hīṣārī (بالكرشن برهمڤن), A.H. 1085=A.D. 1674, 1675 (see author's name on fol. 1^b, l. 3, and the date on fol. 2^b, l. 2). He chose this peculiar title, because the work, he says, is as agreeable and healthy in its spiritual aspect as the water and air of Damascus in Syria, and contains as great a variety of matter as a large town (see fol. 2^a). It is written in a flowery prose-style, mixed with verses, partly by the author himself, partly taken from standard Sūfic writers, and numerous anecdotes (for instance, on the great Shaikh 'Abd-alkādir Jilānī, fol. 6^a sq.; Ibrāhīm Adham, fol. 10^a sq.; Bāyazīd Bisṭāmī, fol. 12^b sq.). His chief authority seems to be a certain Shams-aldīn, probably a Sūfic Pir, identical with the author of the Muḥāzẓat-i-qadiriyya quoted in Rieu ii. p. 874, who died A.H. 1083=A.D. 1672, 1673 (see fol. 85^a, l. 7).

Beginning:

ترا گر معنی در خاطر افتد
که در سلك معانی نادر افتد
نیاری از خیال آن گذشتن
دهی بیرون بگفتن یا نوشتن

This copy seems to be the author's own first sketch. A blank on fol. 1^a. Many English notes on the margin, probably by J. H. Peile, Esq., who presented the copy to the library 19th Sept., 1818.

No. 3482, olim 20. J. 11, ff. 104, ll. 15-16; unequal Nasta'lik, mixed with Shikasta; size, 9¼ in. by 5½ in.

Sullam-alsamawât (سُلَّم السَّمَوَات).

Fragment of a work, styled 'the heavenly ladder,' on general theosophical matters, together with biographical accounts of prophets, saints, and prominent Šūfic Shaikhs.

It is divided into seven مرقوم, but the present copy contains only two of them, viz. the fourth and the sixth.

On fol. 1^b: مرقوم چهارم در ذکر جمعی از حکمای جهان و نمونه از سخنهاى ایشان.

This part is subdivided into two جمله, the first containing biographies of famous and wise men of the time before Muḥammad, beginning with Ādam, on fol. 3^b, and ending with Solon and Alexander; the second enumerates great Shaikhs of the post-Muḥammadan time, beginning with Abū Naṣr Fārābī and Ibn Sīuā, on fol. 20^b, and ending with Maulānā Jalāl-al-dīn Muḥammad, i.e. the great Jalāl-al-dīn Rūmī.

On fol. 42^b: مرقوم ششم در ذکر بهترین سخن و بهترین کتاب و بهترین خلائی.

No date. If the سُلَّم و سَمَوَات (sic!), the دیباچه of which is found in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 57, No. 3, should be identical with the present fragment, which, of course, is impossible to guarantee, the author would be Shaikh Abū-alkāsim Kāzarūnī, who enjoyed some poetical renown during the reign of Shāh 'Abbās I (A. H. 996-1038=A. D. 1588-1629), see Rieu, supplement, pp. 77^b and 78^a, l. 5.

Šūfic aphorisms on the different topics of the mystic doctrine, each of which is given in form of one or two rubā'is, explained and commented upon in prose. The author is Khwājah Mīr Dard. 1919

Collection of mystical treatises.

1. Ff. 1^b-18^a, sayings of the great Shaikh Bahā-aldin albukhārī Nakshband (who died A. H. 791 = A. D. 1389, see Nos. 1851 and 1855 above), collected by Ya'qūb bin 'Uthmān bin almahmūd alghaznawī alḳarkhī (who died A. H. 838 = A. D. 1434, 1435, see Rieu iii. p. 1078^a, and comp. Safinat-alauliyyā, No. 86, col. 284 in this Cat.), that is the Risāla-i-unsīyyah (رساله انسیه), see Rieu iii. pp. 1058^b, fol. 37, and 1078^a, or as it is styled here, on fol. 1^a, Malfūz-i-Babā-aldin (ملفوظ بهاء الدین), beginning: حمد و ثنا بی عذر مبدع ارض و سمارا الخ. Other copies of the same are noticed in Nos. 1920, 4, and 1923, 10 below.

2. Ff. 18^a-21^a, commentary on Abū Sa'id bin Abū-alkhair's (died A. H. 440 = A. D. 1049) famous rubā'i: الحمد لله فیاض: حورا بنظاره نگارم صف زد الخ. الحكم و المواهب و موصل الطالبین الى المطالب الخ. Another copy of the same commentary is noticed in Rieu ii. p. 862 (No. IV); see also W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 47, b, and Bodleian Cat., col. 802, Nos. 22 and 27.

3. Ff. 21^a-89^a, another longer treatise on the various stages (مقامات) of the mystic road, styled in the colophon Risāla-i-maimūna-i-mutabarrika-i-sharifah خداوندا (رساله میمونیه متبرکه شریفه) and beginning: بعزت آنکه بفردانیت ذات متفردی و بوجدانیت صفات متصفی استحقاق عبادت و عبودت الخ. From some incidental remarks we conclude that this treatise is due to 'Alā-aldin Muḥammad Bukhārī 'Aṭṭār, the principal disciple of Babā-aldin Nakshband, who died A. H. 802 = A. D. 1400 (see Safinat-alauliyyā, No. 85, col. 284 in this Cat., and Rieu ii. p. 862^b), or at least taken from his sayings, comp. fol. 21^b, l. 3 ab infra, etc. This part of the copy is dated the 12th of Shawwāl in the 24th year of Muḥammadshāh's reign, A. H. 1155 = A. D. 1742, Dec. 10.

4. Ff. 90^b-170^b, sayings and traditions of great Šūfic Shaikhs, especially of Khwājah 'Alā-aldin Ghujdawānī, Maulānā Badr-aldin Kharakānī, Khwājah 'Abd-alkhalīk Ghujdawānī (who died A. H. 575=A. D. 1179, 1180, see Safinat-alauliyā, No. 76, col. 283 in this Cat., and Rieu ii. p. 862^a), and others, quoted in corroboration of various points of the mystic creed by 'Ubaid-allāh, that is Khwājah Ahrār (see No. 1892 above), beginning: میفرمودند در اوائل چنان نیاز در باطن این فقیر مستولی بود الخ. This treatise is incomplete and breaks off on fol. 170^b.

5. Ff. 171^b-419, another very extensive treatise on the mystic creed, according to the colophon the منازل السائرین or 'Stations of the Travellers to God,' by Khwājah 'Abdallāh Anṣārī, who died A. H. 481 (A. D. 1088). But this well-known work of the famous Shaikh-alislām was written in Arabic, not in Persian, and consequently the present work can only be a translation or rather an elaborate paraphrase of the original, which is therefore styled more appropriately, on fol. 171^a, جامع منازل, see No. 1778 above. Beginning: حمد بیکه الهی را و درود بی عتد بادشاهی را الخ.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2771, ff. 419, ll. 17; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

1921

A third collection of psychological and metaphysical treatises with mystic tendency, chiefly by Afdal-aldin Kāshī.

This collection contains:

1. Majmū'a-i-nikāt-i-Araštū dar 'ilm-i-ḥikmat (مجموعه نکات ارسطو در علم حکمت), otherwise styled Tarjuma-i-maḥāla-i-Araštātālīs (ترجمه مقاله ارسطاطالیس), beginning, on fol. 1^b: چنین گوید که چون دانای یونان ارسطوطالیس: عمر به پایان کشید از شاگردان وی چندی بر وی حاضر بودند و چون نزاری تن اله. Another copy of this treatise, which is alleged to be the Persian translation of one composed by Aristotle in the form of a dialogue with his pupils immediately before his death, on the praeantia philosophiae, is found in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1422, ix.

2. Risāla-i-Madārij-alkamāl (رساله مدارج الکمال), more correctly: Tarjuma-i-Madārij-alkamāl (ترجمه مدارج الکمال), since the مدارج الکمال or 'grades of perfection' were originally written in Arabic, by Afdal-aldin Kāshī (see No. 1812 above); it is divided into eight در, and begins, on fol. 18^b: بنام خدائی که جز او نیست خدائی آغاز هر چیز و او بی آغاز و انجام هر چیز و او بی انجام اله.

3. A treatise on the soul, without a title, beginning, on fol. 46^a: جمله نفوس اعنی نفوس نباتی و نفوس حیوانی: و نفوس مردم همه جدا اند اله.

4. Kitāb-i-nafs (کتاب نفس), a treatise on the soul, that is the same Persian translation of Aristotle's peri psychēs, by Afdal-aldin Kāshī, which is noticed in No. 1812, 1 above, and is found besides in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1422, viii, and in Rieu ii. p. 834^b; it is divided into three maḥālas, and begins, on fol. 51^b: همگی آنچه دانای یونان ارسطوطالیس یاد کرده در کتاب نفس ابتدای گفتارش رَدست بر آنکه گفت نفس جسمست اله.

5. Risāla-i-sāz u pirāya-i-shāhān (رساله ساز و پیرایه), a treatise on the rights and duties of royalty, likewise by Afdal-aldin Kāshī (see No. 1813 above and Bodleian Cat., No. 1445, ii); it is divided into three آغاز گفتار از نام آن کریم: 86^b, and begins, on fol. 86^b: که انجام هر گفتار و هر کردار اله.

6. Rahanjāmnāma (ره انجام نامه), or as it is styled here, رساله وجود مستی به انجام, by the same Afdal-aldin Kāshī (see above, loc. cit.), beginning, on fol. 102^b: لله الحمد اهل الحمد و ولیّه و منتهای اله. It is divided, like the preceding treatise, into three گفتار, viz.:

اندر آگهی دادن از وجود و صفات وجود خود (1); اندر آگهی دادن از آگهی و علم که چیست (2); آگهی دادن از فائده و منفعت آگهی و علم. Other copies of this treatise 'on consciousness and cognition' are found in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1445, iii, and Rieu ii. p. 830^b, No. XXIII.

7-10. Four short tracts on metaphysical matters, the last two of which, at any rate, are due to Afdal-aldin Kāshī, as a comparison with No. 1445, iv and v, in the Bodleian Cat., proves; the first, on fol. 117^a, begins: برهان بر آنکه درجه مرتبه یقین شود انسانرا: که از فنا ایمنست اله; the second, on fol. 118^a, begins: توحید را چون مترجم کنی بلغت دری یک کردن بود اله; the third, on fol. 119^a, begins: نخست لفظی که معنی وی بر: (it deals with the meaning of the terms 'res' and 'est'); the fourth, on fol. 121^b, begins: دل عزیز و نفس شریفست مستعد: و آراسته نظر الهی و انوار نامتناهی باد اله.

III. TRANSLATIONS FROM SANSKRIT, HINDÎ, AND OTHER INDIAN VERNACULARS.

Tarjuma-i-Mahâbhârat (ترجمه مهابهارت).

The Persian translation of the Mahâbhârata, made at the emperor Akbar's request under the auspices of his great prime-minister Abû-alfadl bin Mubâarak, the author of the اکبرنامه (see Nos. 235-270 above), the رقعات شيخ ابو الفضل و مكاتبات علامى (see Nos. 271-287 above), the عيار دانش (see Nos. 767-777 above), an abridged version of the طوطی نامه (see Rieu ii. p. 754^a), etc. The order for the translation was given by the emperor, who afterwards bestowed upon the work the title رزمنامه or 'book of wars,' in A. H. 990 (A. D. 1582), and four scholars were engaged in the task, viz. the famous historian 'Abd-alkâdir Badâ'ûnî, author of the منتخب التواریخ (see Nos. 233 and 234 above), and collaborator in the تاریخ الفی (see Nos. 110-118 above); Ibn 'Abd-allatîf alhusainî, known as Nakîbkhân; Muḥammad Sulṭân Thânisarî; and Mullâ Shiri. The exact share each of these scholars had in the work of the translation is difficult to define, as so many conflicting statements are given, both in the various copies, and by Badâ'ûnî himself, see a detailed discussion on these points in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1306; Rieu i. p. 57, and Ethé, Neupersische Litteratur in 'Grundriss der iranischen Philologie,' vol. ii. p. 352 (Strassburg, 1896-1897); compare also M. Schulz, 'Aperçu d'un mémoire sur la traduction du Mahabharata, faite par l'ordre de l'empereur Akbar,' in Journal Asiatique, t. vii. p. 110. At any rate, Abû-alfadl wrote his very important introduction to the whole work in A. H. 995 (A. D. 1587); his brother, the poet Faidî (see Nos. 1464-1479 above), turned, two years later, some parts of it into ornamental and highly embellished prose (completing the first Parva A. H. 997, 1st of Rabi'-alawwal=A. D. 1589, January 18, see No. 1945 below). Later translations are those by prince Dârâ Shukûh, and by Hâjî Rabi 'Anjab (who flourished about A. H. 1157=A. D. 1744, see Rieu ii. p. 711^a). The headings of the eighteen Parvas in their Persian form, together with the original Sanskrit titles, are given in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 1025 and 1026; in the present copy most Parvas are styled فن, a few دفتر.

Chief editions of the Sanskrit original are those of Calcutta, in four vols., 1834-1839; by Protap Chandra in four vols., ib., 1883-1887; and of Bombay, 1863 (śaka 1785). French translation of the first eight Parvas in ten vols. by H. Fauche, Paris, 1863-1870; English translations by Pratapa Chandra Ray, Calcutta, 1893-1896 (still in progress), and by M. N. Dutt (Parts I-VIII), ib., 1896. On the different redactions of the Mahâbhârata, see especially Lassen, Ind. Alterthumsk., 2nd ed., i. 1004, and ii. 494.

The first volume (No. 1641) contains:

Abû-alfadl's preface, on fol. 1^b, beginning: ای هژده هزار عالم از شوق تو مست الع

Parva I (this title is wrongly prefixed to the preface on fol. 1^b), on fol. 18^b, beginning: راوان اخبار هندوستان در کتب خود چنین نوشته اند الع

Parva II (styled فن), on fol. 132^b.

Parva III (styled دفتر), on fol. 180^b.

The second volume (No. 1642) contains:

Parva IV (styled فن), on fol. 1^b, dated the 11th (or 15th?) of Sha'bân, A. H. 1187 (here wrongly called the thirteenth year of Shâh 'Âlam's reign, instead of the fifteenth)=A. D. 1773, Oct. 28 or Nov. 1.

Parva V, on fol. 38^b.

Parva VI (styled دفتر), on fol. 134^b, dated the 22nd of Jumâdâ-alawwal, A. H. 1185 (here called the twelfth year of Shâh 'Âlam's reign, instead of the thirteenth)=A. D. 1771, Sept. 2.

Parva VII (styled فن), on fol. 366^b.

The third volume (No. 1643) contains:

Parva VIII, on fol. 1^b.

Parva IX, on fol. 46^b.

Parva X, on fol. 76^b.

Parva XI, on fol. 82^b.

Parva XII, in two fasls, on ff. 92^b and 194^b; dated the 7th of Rajab, A. H. 1184 (A. D. 1770, Oct. 27).

All the Parvas in this as well as in the fourth volume are styled فن.

The fourth volume (No. 1512) contains:

Parva XIII, on fol. 1^b, dated the 14th of Jumâdâ-alawwal, A. H. 1184 (correctly called the twelfth year of Shâh 'Âlam's reign)=A. D. 1770, Sept. 5.

Parva XIV, on fol. 160^b, dated the 13th of Şafar in the same year=A. D. 1770, June 8.

Parva XV, on fol. 334^b.

Parva XVI, on fol. 380^b, dated the 11th of Sha'bân, A. H. 1185 (here correctly called the thirteenth year of Shâh 'Âlam's reign)=A. D. 1771, Nov. 19.

Parva XVII appears here twice as heading, viz. on fol. 400^b (styled فن جان, see a similar title in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1026, viz. حسان برپ), and on fol. 408^b (styled correctly فن مهابرستان, the Sanskrit Mahâprasthâna-parvan); as the usual frontispiece is prefixed to the second only, the first is probably a mere appendix to Parva XVI; it is dated the 9th of Sha'bân, A. H. 1184 (A. D. 1770, Nov. 28).

Parva XVIII, on fol. 415^b.

English remarks in pencil, setting forth the contents of various portions, are occasionally found on the margin.

No. 1641, ff. 392, ll. 19; size, 11½ in. by 7½ in. No. 1642, ff. 426, ll. 19; size, 11½ in. by 7½ in. No. 1643, ff. 467, ll. 19; size, 11½ in. by 7½ in. No. 1512, ff. 421, ll. 19; size, 11½ in. by 7 in.; illuminated frontispiece at the beginning of each Parva; the main portion of all the four volumes is written by the same hand in good Nasta'lik; but many smaller portions are supplied by other hands, partly even in careless Naskhî, somewhat resembling Shikasta.

1929

Another copy of the same.

An excellent copy of the same translation of the Mahâbhârata, with many marginal notes in pencil by Sir Charles Wilkins (1836). It contains, on ff. 1^b-8^b, the same complete index to the eighteen Parvas, compiled in the thirty-first year of 'Âlamgir's reign, i.e. A. H. 1099 (A. D. 1688), by a Kâyath in the service of Nawwâb Shâyistakhân, Basant Râe, son of Kâsirâm bin Râemal, which is noticed in Rieu i. p. 58^a.

Abû-alfadl's preface begins on fol. 9^b. All the Parvas are called فن.

Parva I, on fol. 18^b; II, on fol. 83^a; III, on fol. 103^b; IV, on fol. 153^a; V, on fol. 169^b; VI, on fol. 206^b; VII, on fol. 233^b; VIII, on fol. 269^a; IX, on fol. 290^a; X, on fol. 314^b; XI, on fol. 317^b; XII (here divided into three fasls), first fasl on fol. 325^b, second on fol. 367^b, third on fol. 385^b; XIII, on fol. 539^b; XIV, on fol. 617^b; XV, on fol. 689^b; XVI, on fol. 706^b; XVII, on fol. 711^a; XVIII, on fol. 712^b. A part of fol. 54^a and the whole of ff. 168, 323 and 324, 374^a, 460, and 538 are left blank. One omitted passage is added on a fly-leaf (by Sir Charles Wilkins); in all the other cases the text is uninterrupted.

This MS. was written by Shaikh Bâb-allâh (a wakil of the East India Company), Faïd-allâh Munshî and others, and finished the 12th of Jumâdâ-althâni, A. H. 1188 (the sixteenth year of Shâh 'Âlam's reign) = A. D. 1774, August 20. The year 1007, which appears at the end of several Parvas, is probably the date of the original copy from which the present one was transcribed. It belonged formerly to Sir Charles Wilkins.

No. 2517, ff. 714, ll. 27; large Nasta'lik, by different hands; size, 16 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. by 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

All the Parvas, except the second, are (as in the preceding copies) styled فن.

Another copy of the first four Parvas.

Abû-alfadl's preface, on fol. 1^b (here styled, as is frequently done, آغاز فن آں).

Parva I, on fol. 22^a; II (in the amplified poetical paraphrase of the poet Faïdi, see above, No. 1928, and comp. Nos. 1945-1947 below), on fol. 204^a, beginning: سخن تازه کردم بنام الهی - که نامش بمعنی کند رهنمای III, on fol. 243^a; IV, on fol. 375^a.

No. 2893, ff. 400, ll. 17; written partly in careless Nasta'lik, partly in Shikasta; size, 11 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. by 6 $\frac{3}{8}$ in.

A defective copy of the same.

The translation in this copy is so far different from the preceding ones, as it is fuller and keeps more closely to the original text; this is proved by a comparison of the beginning of the fourth Parva both with that in other copies of the India Office Collections and in the copies of this Parva in the British Museum, Add. 16,873, and in Cambridge, Add. 1095 (E. G. Browne, p. 97), where the same initial words are quoted which are found here on fol. 286^b.

Abû-alfadl's preface, on fol. 1^b.

Parva I, on fol. 11^b, lin. penult.

Parva II (in the usual translation), on fol. 102^b, beginning: راویان اخبار این قصه چنین روایت کرده اند که چون کشن و ارچن الخ

Parva IV, on fol. 286^b, l. 6 ab infra; this Parva is slightly incomplete at the end.

No. 551, ff. 323, ll. 21-31; written by many different hands in the most various styles of Nasta'lik; size, 15 in. by 9^a in.

1935

Another defective copy of the first three Parvas. Abū-alfadl's preface, on fol. 1^b. Parva I, on fol. 13^b; II, on fol. 157^a; III, on fol. 193^b. The third Parva is incomplete at the end. Fol. 213 is left blank, but the text is uninterrupted. The second Parva is dated the 24th of Ramaḍān, in the fifth year of Farrukhsiyar's reign = A. H. 1129 (A. D. 1717, Sept. 1).

No. 326, ff. 275, ll. 17; clear and distinct Nasta'lik, written throughout by the same hand; no headings; size, 12½ in. by 8¾ in.

1936

A still more defective copy of the same.

Abū-alfadl's preface, on fol. 1^b.

Parva I, on fol. 17^a, beginning: راجه جنميچه بسر پري. Parva II, on fol. 170^b; Parva III, on fol. 209^a; this Parva breaks off already, on fol. 235^a; a part of fol. 199^b and the whole four pages from fol. 200^a to fol. 201^b are left blank.

No date.

No. 974, ff. 235, ll. 17; irregular Nasta'lik, by several hands, as it seems; size, 13¼ in. by 9¾ in.

1937

Another copy of the first two Parvas.

Abū-alfadl's preface begins here with آغاز فن اول از, which is the proper heading of the first Parva; but immediately after these words the usual initial bait of the preface commences: ای هژده هزار عالم الخ.

Parva I (پرب اول آد پرب), on fol. 21^b, dated, on fol. 127^b, by Cikat Rāi, the 9th of Shawwāl, in the thirtieth year of 'Ālamgir's reign = A. H. 1098 (A. D. 1687, Aug. 18). Parva II (آغاز فن دوم), on fol. 128^b; it goes in the centre down to the end of the last page (fol. 154^b) and then continues on the margin, running backwards as far as the margin of fol. 143^a, where the second Parva ends.

No. 979, ff. 154, ll. 21 in clear Nasta'lik on ff. 1-150^a, ll. 19 in Shikasta by another hand on ff. 150^b-154^b and on the margin of ff. 154^b-143^a; size, 13 in. by 6¾ in.

The same.

Abū-alfadl's preface is incomplete here at the beginning; the first words, on fol. 2^a, correspond to fol. 7^a, l. 7 ab infra, in No. 326 (1935 above); several leaves are missing before it; on fol. 1^b the two initial baits of the preface are supplied.

Parva I (فن اول), on fol. 22^b; II, on fol. 245^b; the beginning of both as usual.

No date.

No. 770, ff. 315, ll. 15 on ff. 1-244^b, ll. 17 on ff. 245^b-315; three different handwritings, the first a large and clear Nasta'lik, on ff. 1-241^b; the second on the margins of ff. 130^b-150^b and 233^b-242^b as well as on ff. 242^a-242^b, rather careless and inelegant; the third on ff. 245^b-315; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Another copy of the third and fourth Parvas.

Parva III, on fol. 1^b, dated the 7th of Dhū-alhijjah, A. H. 1082 (A. D. 1672, April 5). Parva IV, on fol. 256^b (here styled فن چهارم, and beginning رايان اخبار و حكيمان اسمای هنود از كتاب مهابهارت الخ), dated the 24th of Shawwāl in the same year 1082, as it seems; it is called here the fifteenth year of 'Ālamgir's reign, instead of the correct fourteenth (= A. D. 1672, Febr. 23). This copy is worm-eaten and injured in many places.

No. 643, ff. 299; written unequally by two different hands, as it appears, in careless Nasta'lik; ll. 15 on ff. 1-255, ll. 17 on ff. 256-299; size, 9¾ in. by 6 in.

Another copy of seven Parvas from the fifth to the eleventh.

Parva (styled throughout فن) V, on fol. 21^a; VI, on fol. 71^b; VII, on fol. 106^b; VIII, on fol. 146^b; IX, on fol. 180^b; X, on fol. 201^a; XI, on fol. 205^a. On ff. 1-20 Parva VII appears for a second time in quite a different translation, which has led Col. Polier, who gave this copy to Mr. Richard Johnson, to describe it as the fourth Parva, on the fly-leaf; but the correct statement appears twice in Persian, both on the fly-leaf and at the top of fol. 1^a: فن هفتم مستی دروند برب.

A Persian entry on the fly-leaf is dated the 6th of Sha'bān, A. H. 1196 (A. D. 1782, July 17). Lacunas after ff. 67 and 181.

No. 20, ff. 211, written by two different hands, the first a very rude, careless, and incorrect Nasta'lik, sometimes quite illegible, on ff. 1-179, ll. 24-27; the second a careful and clear Nasta'lik, on ff. 180-211, ll. 21; size, 12¼ in. by 7¾ in.

Another copy of six Parvas, from the sixth to the eleventh.

Parva VI, on fol. 37^b, beginning: رايان اخبار اهل هند و چنين روايت کرده اند که چون هر دو لشکر در برابر يکديگر قرار گرفتند الخ. Parva VII, on fol. 101^b; VIII, on fol. 197^b; IX, on fol. 277^b; X, on fol. 325^b; XI, on fol. 332^b.

No. 614, ff. 37-341, written by different hands, partly in Nasta'lik, partly in Shikasta (so the last two Parvas, ll. 17 on ff. 37-100, ll. 15 on ff. 101-324, ll. 14-16 on ff. 325-341; size, 9¾ in. by 5¾ in.

XVI, on fol. 343^a; XVII, on fol. 354^a; XVIII, on fol. 364^a.

No date.

No. 304, ff. 385, ll. 16-28; very irregular and inelegant Nasta'lik, written by different hands; size, 12½ in. by 7¼ in.

1943

Another copy of the last six Parvas, from the thirteenth to the eighteenth.

Parva XIII (called فنّ, like all the following ones), on fol. 1^a; XIV, on fol. 135^a; on fol. 206^b, last line there appears again a fourteenth Parva (exactly as in Wilson 422 of the Bodleian Library): برب چهاردم. برب چهاردم, probably due to another translator (the Bodleian copy just cited reads شاتك for سانك; in the following copy this name is given as سانك to the thirteenth); XV, on fol. 297^a; XVI, on fol. 333^a; XVII, on fol. 345^a; XVIII, on fol. 349^b. This copy is written in the same style and by the same hand (or hands) as No. 1933 above, viz. A.H. 1150 (which is called, as there, sometimes the nineteenth, sometimes the twentieth year of Muhammadshâh's reign); the fourteenth being dated the 3rd of Jumâdâ-alawwal=A.D. 1737, Aug. 29; the fifteenth the 21st of Rabi'-althânî=A.D. 1737, Aug. 18; the sixteenth in Šafar=A.D. 1737, June; the seventeenth the 25th of Šafar=A.D. 1737, June 24; the eighteenth the 27th of Šafar=A.D. 1737, June 26.

No. 2926, ff. 352, ll. 17; written partly in careless Nasta'lik, partly in Shikasta; size, 11½ in. by 6½ in.

The same.

This copy is of great interest, as in its concluding words it is distinctly stated, that Ibn 'Abd-allatîf alḥusainî, called Naḳibkhân, was the translator, who completed his task in one year and a half (see the discussion on this point in No. 1928 above). The translation, moreover, agrees almost verbatim with that in the preceding copy.

Parva XIII (called فنّ), on fol. 1^b, beginning: این فنّ سیزدهم از کتاب مهابهارت که آنرا سانك پرب میگویند راویان اخبار این کتاب آورده اند الخ. Parva XIV, on fol. 193^b; XV, on fol. 308^b; XVI, on fol. 372^b; XVII, on fol. 396^b; XVIII, on fol. 404^b.

The proper order of ff. 1-9 is: 1, 2, 5-8, 3, 4, 9.

No. 1702, ff. 411, ll. 15 on ff. 1-168 and 308-411, which are written by the same hand in large Nasta'lik; ll. 16-24 on ff. 169-307, written by two or more hands, partly in very careless Nasta'lik, partly in Shikasta; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

The first two Parvas in Faiḍi's poetical paraphrase.

Part of the ornamental and highly embellished version of the Mahābhārata by the poet Faiḍi (see above, Nos. 1928 and 1933), who completed the first Parva (according to fol. 171^a in the following copy) the 1st of Rabi'-alawwal, A.H. 997 (A.D. 1589, Jan. 18).

Parva I, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

آبرو بخش چشمه سار سخن - آشنائی محیط بی سرو بن

Parva II, on fol. 188^b, beginning:

سخن تازه کردم بنام خدای - که نامش بمعنی بود رهنمای

No date. The right order of ff. 232-235 is: 232, 234, 233, 235. The last pages are damaged. Parts of the same flowery translation by Faiḍi are noticed in the Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1313 and 1314.

No. 761, ff. 235, ll. 21; Nasta'lik; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Another, slightly defective, copy of the same two Parvas in Faiḍi's version.

Parva I, on fol. 1^b, beginning as in the preceding copy. Parva II, beginning abruptly, on fol. 172^a:

ای گهرین معنی دریا قیاس

هست سزای شه گهر شناس

which corresponds to fol. 189^b, l. 5 in the preceding copy, so that the thirty-nine initial baits and one line and a half of prose in the beginning of the second Parva are missing here (the preceding copy reads more-over: (ای گهرین for این گهرین).

Dated the 1st of Ramaḍân, A.H. 1142 (eleventh year of Muhammadshâh's reign)=A.D. 1730, March 20; either by mistake or by intentional fraud the original title of the work has been obliterated and کليلة و دمنه has been put in its place, both on the top of fol. 1^b and in the colophon.

No. 3014, ff. 215, ll. 17; written by various hands, partly in Nasta'lik, partly in Shikasta; size, 9¼ in. by 5¼ in.

A partly abridged translation of Parvas I-VI, IX-XI, and XIV-XVIII.

Various translations seem to have been combined in this copy; Parva I, on fol. 1^b, begins with a short summary of the eighteen Parvas of the Mahābhārata, after which, on fol. 3^b, l. 8 ab infra, the real story commences with these words: راویان اخبار هندوستان در پوران هاء خود چنین نوشته الخ.

The initial words on fol. 1^b are: چنین آورده اند که: در اوائل کلجک بعد از مرور ایام الخ.

Parva II, on fol. 73^b, is in Faiḍi's version (who is mentioned as translator in the last line of this Parva, on fol. 94^b), and completely agrees with that in the two preceding copies. Parva III, on fol. 95^b; IV, on fol. 157^b; V, on fol. 171^b; VI, on fol. 179^b; VII and VIII wanting; IX, on fol. 203^b; X, on fol. 206^b; XI, on fol. 209^b; XII and XIII wanting; XIV, on fol. 215^b; XV, on fol. 287^b; XVI, on fol. 302^a; XVII, on fol. 308^b; XVIII, on fol. 310^b. At the end of the last Parva Naḳibkhân is stated to have made this translation (see No. 1944 above).

Ff. 72, 156, 175-178, 201, 202, and 214 are left blank.

No. 336, ff. 312, ll. 21; Shikasta; size, 12¼ in. by 8 in.

1948

An abstract of the Mahābhārata in Persian, without an author's name; as title appears at the end only ملعون نامه, 'the cursed book,' and as transcriber, who may at the same time, be the compiler, Karāmat-allāh, who made this copy in the year 1234 of the Bangālī era = A. H. 1242 (A. D. 1826, 1827).

Beginning: ساتون نامی راجه دهلی که دهلی در آن زمان هستنه پورمی نامیده اند بسیار ذو شوکت الخ. This copy was presented by Mr. Hawkins and received into the Library October 29, 1838.

No. 2637, ff. 63, ll. 11; written very unequally in careless Nasta'lik and various styles of Shikasta; size, 7½ in. by 5½ in.

Bhagavadgītā (بهگوت گیتا).

A Persian translation of the 'Song of the Most High,' i.e. the discourse between Krishna and Arjuna on Divine matter, which was interpolated as an episode in the sixth Parva of the Mahābhārata (the Bhīṣma-Parvan, or as the Persian translators style it, بهیکم پرب or بهیکم پرب), identical with that in Add. 7676 of the British Museum (Rieu i. p. 59) and probably also with that in Munich. In the British Mus. copy it is wrongly ascribed to Abū-alfadl; the real translator was, as a note on fol. 1^a in the present copy proves, prince Dārā Shukūh (see No. 647 above). It is divided into eighteen Adhyāyas (on ff. 1^b, 5^a, 11^a, 14^b, 18^a, 21^a, 24^b, 27^a, 29^b, 32^b, 35^b, 40^b, 42^b, 45^b, 48^a, 49^b, 51^b, and 53^b), and begins, on fol. 1^b: سری گنیش اینمه: آغاز ادھیاء (see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1028, note 3) in Rieu's copy: اول از جمن پکهاد نام، دهرتراست (دهرت) راشتر) گفت ای سنجی ور زمین کر (کور) کهیت که مززع نیکو کارست مردم من در جماعت الخ.

On fol. 1^a the contents are described as 'the battle between Arjun and Jurjodun'; it was originally in the possession of Mr. Richard Johnson, who received it in July, 1778.

No date. On the Sanskrit original of the Bhagavadgītā and its philosophic import, especially with regard to the Sāṅkhya system, comp. the editions of Schlegel, Bonn, 1823 (second ed. by Lassen, ib., 1846); Garrett, Bangalore, 1846; F. The same.

Another Persian translation of the Bhagavadgītā, by an anonymous author, beginning: آغاز بهگوت گیتا که در مهابهارت سری کرشن جیو با ارجن از زبان مبارک فرموده اند که آنرا بزبان هندوی گیتا میگویند ارجن با جرجودمن وغیره الخ.

The subdivision into eighteen Adhyāyas is not found, nor does the translation agree with that in Add. 5651 of the British Museum (ascribed with some appearance of probability to Abū-alfadl), see Rieu i. p. 59, nor with No. 1322 of the Bodleian Cat. Other versions of the same book are: 1. the Gītā Sunbodanī (translated from the Sanskrit commentary Subodhani), see No. 1321 of the Bodleian Cat.; 2. the Mirāt-al-hakā'ik, with Muslim comments, by 'Abd-alrahmān 'Cishti, Shaikh Hamid's pupil and Khalifah and author of the مرآت الاسرار, which was completed A. H. 1065 (A. D. 1655), see col. 336, No. 29 above, and Rieu iii. p. 1034^b; 3. a copy in the Library of King's College, Cambridge, No. 14; etc.

This copy is dated in Muḥarram, A. H. 1083 (A. D. 1672, May).

No. 614, ff. 1-36, ll. 12-17; Shikasta; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Haribansa Purāṇa (هرینس پوران).

A Persian prose-translation of the Harivaṇśa, which forms an appendix (خاتمه کتاب) to the Mahābhārata, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1026) or even a nineteenth Parva (so in an abridged form in MS. Wilson, 422, fol. 344^b sq. in the Bodleian Library, where it is styled اچرج پرب or اچرج پرب, Ācārya Parva, see the same title in No. 1955 below) to some copies of the Mahābhārata, and deals in the form of an epos with the history of the family of Krishna, beginning: آغاز کتاب هرینس بران از تصنیف بیاس (Vyāsa) بدانکه این کتاب مستی بهرینس از گفتار بیاس الخ.

The Sanskrit original has been edited at Calcutta, 1839; French translation by A. Langlois, 2 vols., Paris, 1835-1836; see also the Asiatic Journal, Febr., 1828. A translator's name does not appear.

Dated the 15th of Rabi'-alawwal, A. H. 1136 (sixth, correctly fifth year of Muhammadshāh's reign) = A. D. 1723, Dec. 13, at Shāhjahānābād by Kishāncand, son of Rāmcand (کشچند ولد رامچند) of Ahmadābād.

Sri Bhāgavat (سری بهگوت).

A Persian translation of the tenth Skandha of the Bhāgavata Purāṇa or the legend of Krishna's life, identical with that in the two imperfect copies of the British Museum, Rieu i. p. 60, and the equally defective one in Berlin, W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1027. The only small divergence is, that the present copy contains besides the usual ninety Adhyāyas a ninety-first one or خاتمه (on fol. 225^b). Beginning, on fol. 1^b: آغاز دسم اسکند از سری بهاگوت، هنگامی که راجه پرچمت نه دفتر از جمله دوازده دفتر سری بهاگوت شنیده الخ. Other copies of the same translation, as it seems, are noticed in No. 1316 of the Bodleian Cat. (from the middle of the thirty-sixth Adhyāya to the end), and in J. Aumer, p. 140, No. 351, ff. 92-319; a version in two volumes is found in the Library of King's College, Cambridge, No. 62. A much older translation of the ninth and tenth Skandhas, dated in the eighth century of the Hijrah, is noticed in J. Aumer, p. 140, No. 350. The Bhāgavata Purāṇa has been edited, with French translation, by Burnouf, vols. i-iii, Paris, 1840-1847; vol. iv, by M. Hauvette-Besnault, ib., 1880; Indian editions, Calcutta, 1827-30; and Bombay, 1839, 1860, and 1871; comp. also M. Williams, Indian Wisdom, 3rd ed., London, 1876, p. 496. Among the various Hindūstānī versions of the tenth Skandha there is a poetical one printed in Lucknow, 1863; another, in strophes of nine verses, made in the Hindū year 1744=A.D. 1687, is preserved in two copies of the India Office Collection, Nos. 1851 (dated A.H. 1129=A.D. 1717) and 1043; comp. on these versions Garcin de Tassy, Histoire de la littér. hindouie, etc., i. p. 330. The present copy is not dated.

No. 452, ff. 229, ll. 13-17; written partly in careless Nasta'liq, partly in Shikasta; size, 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: در راویان اخبار هندوستان که در پوران علیم الله نشان است نوشته اند که راجه پرچمت الخ. Dated the 22nd of Rabi'-alawwal, in the year 1181 of the Bangālī era=A.H. 1188 (A.D. 1774, June 2). There are short summaries in English written occasionally on the margin, partly in pencil, partly in ink, by Richard Johnson, who acquired this copy in 1778.

Many marginal notes in English by the former owner of the copy, Sir Charles Wilkins. A complete translation of the twelve Skandhas of the Bhāgavata Purāṇa, by Bhaut Lāl Amānat Rāi, has been printed in Cawnpore, 1870. On the basis of these twelve Skandhas Sūr or Sūrdās (born 1528, lived under Akbar) wrote in Hindi his collection of popular songs, especially religious hymns, entitled Sūr Sāgar (سور ساگر), of which the India Office Collection contains two copies, No. 16 (complete and dated A.H. 1191-1196=A.D. 1777-1782) and No. 2078 (fragmentary); comp. Tarjuma-i-Mahābishnu Purāṇa (ترجمه مهابشنو پوران).

A Persian translation of the Vishṇu-Purāṇa or dialogues between Parāśara and Maitreya, beginning: برآشر آغاز کرد ای میتري آنچه بتو تلقين ميکنم بجام دل بنوش وما سواي گویند ترك کن الخ.

It is identical with the Persian version of thirty-one select stories from the Vishṇu-Purāṇa, noticed in the Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1318 and 1319. The Sanskrit original was translated into English by H. H. Wilson, 1840, 2nd ed. by F. E. Hall, 1864-1877; see also Barth, Religions of India, pp. 187 and 188. An edition of the Vishṇu-Purāṇa, with commentaries, appeared in Bombay, 1890.

This copy, which is not dated, belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson, who added notes in pencil on the margin.

No. 1844, ff. 171, ll. 11; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

1957

Bishnu Purāṇa (بشن پوران).

A very similar translation of the same Vishṇu-Purāṇa, beginning: سست چت آنند پراسر آغاز کرد ای میتري آنچه بتو تلقين ميکنم اشربه حيات است بجام دل بنوش وما سوا الله ترك كن الخ.

An ans دوم بشن پوران appears on fol. 39^a. There are altogether nineteen stories only marked by distinct headings.

Dated by Sayyid Muḥammad 'Alī the 20th of May, 1805 (? ۱۸ ۵). Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2612, ff. 119, ll. 13; Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 6½ in.

1958

Shiva Purāṇa (شيو پوران).

The same Persian translation of the Śiva-Purāṇa or rather Śiva-Upapurāṇa (see Wilson, Vishṇupurāṇa, first edition, 1840, p. lvi), which is noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1028, No. 1, and begins: حمد بجمت و ثنائى بيمتد مر قادر مطلق و دادار برحق را سزد که بيد قدرت کامله الخ.

It is divided like the Sanskrit original, as the translator says on fol. 2^b, ll. 7 and 8, into seventy-four Adhyāyas (usually there are seventy-five in it, comp. Aufrecht, Cat. of the Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Library, p. 64; see also A. Weber, Berlin Cat., p. 347; and Barth, Religions of India, p. 262). The author of this translation is Kishan Singh (in the Berlin copy wrongly spelt سنگه), with the takhalluṣ Nashāt, son of Rāi Prān Nāth, a Khatri of the Mangal tribe and inhabitant of Siyālkūt, who also wrote a Persian version of the Pañcakrośi, and the short narrative in ornate prose, styled غريب الانشا, and dated A. H. 1157 (A. D. 1744), see Rieu ii. p. 795^b. The Sanskrit words are added in Devanāgarī characters on the margin, together with many English annotations and paraphrases, written in pencil by the former owner of the copy, as it seems, Mr. Richard Johnson. This must be a very early work of Kishan Singh, since it is dated the 9th of Dhū-alka'dah, 1096 (probably of the Faṣlī era = A. H. 1100 = A. D. 1689, Aug. 25).

No. 760, ff. 180, ll. 12; Nasta'lik; pictures on ff. 22^b, 27^b, 41^b, 71^a, 82^b, 111^a, 131^a, 140^a, 149^a, 155^b, 172^a, and 175^a; spaces are left blank for pictures on several other pages; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Bahr-alnajāt (بحر التجات).

A Persian translation in five volumes of the topographical and legendary description of Banāras, entitled Kāśī-Khaṇḍa (کاسی کهند, Kāśī being the ancient name of Banāras) or the province of Banāras, taken from the Skanda Purāṇa (اسکنده پوران), comp. Aufrecht, Cat. of the Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Libr., p. 69 sq.; Garcin de Tassy, Histoire de la littér. hindouie, etc., iii. 103; the Catalogue des manuscrits sanscrits de la bibliothèque impériale, par A. Hamilton et L. Langlès, pp. 33-36; and Barth, Religions of India, p. 278 (text and note 2). The Persian translator was Ānandkhan (انندکهن), with the takhalluṣ Khwaṣh (خوش), and he composed this Persian paraphrase, which he styled بحر التجات, at the request of Mister Jonathan غطفر غنجر (?), see No. 1962 below. He kept the old division of the Kāśī-Khaṇḍa in 100 Adhyāyas, as he states in the preface, No. 668, fol. 2^b, and arranged his five volumes so that each of them contained twenty; but, in the progress of his work, as the real contents of the five volumes prove, he did not stick to his first intention. he did not even preserve the 100 Adhyāyas. For the first volume contains twenty-four; the second, fifteen; the third, fourth, and fifth each nominally twenty, but virtually only nineteen, as the last section of every one consists of a mere heading and nothing else.

Beginning of the first vol. (No. 668): هزار هزار شکر و سپاس مر آن بيقياس را سزد که قياس هيچ دانشمند و باو نميرسد الخ.

Beginning of the second vol. (No. 669): هزار هزار شکر و سپاس مر آن بيقياس را که بقدرت کامله خود تمام اين جهان و جهانيان را الخ.

Beginning of the third vol. (No. 670): هزار هزار شکر و سپاس مر آن واحدی را که ذات باک آن برتر از ادراک واحد است الخ.

Beginning of the fourth vol. (No. 671): سپاس بيقياس و حمد بجمت مر آن واحدی را سزاست که از يك هزار واز هزار بيشمار الخ.

Beginning of the fifth vol. (No. 672), defective, as the first page is missing; it opens abruptly thus: کون و مکان جولان دادند ليکن بادبای خيال در طريق الخ.

The first volume is dated the 11th of Rabi'-althāni, A. H. 1207 (Hindū era 1849) = A. D. 1792, Nov. 26; the second, the 10th of Rajab of the same year = A. D. 1793, Febr. 21; the third, the 19th of Shawwāl of the same year = A. D. 1793, May 30; the fourth, the 29th of Dhū-alhijjah of the same year = A. D. 1793, Aug. 7; and the fifth, the 7th of Sha'bān, A. H. 1208 = A. D. 1794, March 10. The transcriber was بهولا ناتھ. Thirty-five Adhyāyas of the original Sanskrit work have also been translated into Hindūstāni by Jaya Narayan Ghoṣala and published at Calcutta in three volumes.

No. 668, ff. 194; No. 669, ff. 206; No. 670, ff. 199; No. 671, ff. 198; No. 672, ff. 189; ll. 15; Nasta'lik; a little worm-eaten here and there; a picture at the beginning of the third and the fourth volumes; size, 9-9½ in. by 5½ in.

Kshetra Māhātmya (چهره مهاتم).

Another Persian adaptation of portions of the same Skanda Purāṇa (see fol. 202^a, l. 8: سری مهاراج بوتھی), in forty-five Adhyāyas, dealing with the (اسکنده پوران), Sanskrit kshetra, i.e. the sacred districts or holy localities, probably in Orissa (see on these Māhātmyas, Aufrecht, Cat. of the Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Libr., p. 69 sq., and Barth, Religions of India, p. 278, note 2), by Karan Singh, a Khatri, who was a native of the Panjāb and lived in Shāhjahānābād.

Beginning: ادھیای اول جیمن رکھیشراز سوت منی
و غیره رکھیشران میگوید که سری بهگوان الخ

This copy is the translator's autograph and dated the 7th of the month Pūs (the ninth solar month, Dec.—January), in the year 1211 (of the Faṣlī era, A.H. 1218 = A.D. 1803, 1804). The Sanskrit original of the Skanda Purāṇa (or parts of it) was edited by Gerson da Cunha, Bombay, 1877.

No. 3083, ff. 119–202, ll. 9; Nasta'lik; size, 7½ in. by 5½ in.

'Ain-al-zuhūr (عین الظهور).

A Persian translation of the Brahmaparivarta Purāṇa or description of all the spiritual advantages of Banāras, made from the Sanskrit by the same Kishan Singh, with the takhalluṣ Nashāt (see fol. 5^b, l. 9 and last page), who rendered in Persian the Śiva-Purāṇa (see above, No. 1958), in the year of the Hindū era, 1794 (A.D. 1737). It is, like the original, divided into twenty-six Adhyāyas. After two introductory baits, the first of which runs thus: می سراید قلم سحر طراز دوزبان الخ, the book itself begins: زیب افزای مشاطة زبان شیرین
بیان بآرایش عروس ستایش سری الخ

All the Hindū words and expressions are marked on the margin in Devanāgarī characters. Many English notes and paraphrases, written in pencil, are probably due to Mr. Richard Johnson, to whom this copy formerly belonged. The copy is dated the 9th of Dhū-al-kā'dah, A.H. 1196 (A.D. 1782, Oct. 16), and seems to be copied from the original itself. On the Brahmaparivarta Purāṇa, comp. Aufrecht, Cat. of the Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Libr., p. 24 sq.; Barth, Religions of India, pp. 187, 236, and 262; H. H. Wilson, Select Works, vol. iii. A specimen of the Sanskrit text with Latin translation was edited by Stenzler, Berlin, 1829.

No. 759, ff. 231, ll. 12–13; large and distinct Nasta'lik; pictures on ff. 1^b, 16^b, 36^a, 50^a, 56^a, 76^b, 120^a (unfinished, only sketched), 126^b (inserted between ff. 126 and 127), 129^b, 134^a, 159^b, 165^a, 183^a (the last two only sketched), 194^a, 203^a (only sketched), and 211^a; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Gayā Māhātmya (گیا مهاتم).

A Persian adaptation of the Gayā Māhātmya, or description of the holy sanctuary at Gayā in Bihār (see Barth, Religions of India, p. 280, note 2), and the rites connected therewith, taken from the Vāyu Purāṇa, by the same Ānandkhan, with the takhalluṣ Khwash, who translated the Kāśī-Khaṇḍa (see No. 1959 above), at the request of the same Mister Jonathan غطفر جنگ, 1848 of the Hindū era (Samvat) = A.D. 1791 (A.H. 1206), and copied the 15th of Rabi'-alawwal, the same year (A.D. 1791, Nov. 12).

It is divided into eight Adhyāyas and begins, on fol. 1^b: هزاران هزارشکر و نیازمرآن بی نیاز را که بزرگ همه بزرگان است و نجات بخشند الخ

The Sanskrit original of the Vāyu Purāṇa has been edited in the Bibl. Ind., Calcutta, 1879–1888.

No. 1864, ff. 56, ll. 15; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Tarjuma-i-Rāmāyaṇa (ترجمه راماین).

A Persian prose-translation of Vālmiki's Rāmāyaṇa, the second great national epopee of the Hindūs, which differs from the first, the Mahābhārata, by its less ancient origin and the more homogeneous and artistic way in which it has been conceived, dealing with the great cycle of Rāma, see Barth, Religions of India, pp. 175 sq. and 187. This version is identical with Or. 1248 in the British Museum (Rieu i. p. 55^b) and No. XXXIII in the University Library of Cambridge (E. G. Browne, p. 93), and probably due to 'Abd-alkādir Badā'ūnī, who completed his translation A.H. 999 (A.D. 1591). Beginning: بر ضمائر ارباب نظائر مخفی
نماید که این کتاب است در میان اهل هند مشهور که آنرا راماین میخوانند الخ

This copy, which belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson, is dated the 24th of Ramaḍān, A.H. 1122 (fourth year of Bahādurshāh's reign = A.D. 1710, Nov. 16 = Samvat 1766, more correctly 1767).

The Sanskrit original of the Rāmāyaṇa has been edited, with an English prose-translation and notes (books I and II), by W. Carey and J. Marshman, Serampore, 1806–1810; with a Latin translation (still more incomplete) by Schlegel, three vols., Bonn, 1829–1846; with an Italian translation by G. Gorresio, eleven vols., Paris, 1843–1867; in the Banāras recension, seven vols. in three, in Bombay, 1864 (lithographed); a French translation by H. Fauche appeared in nine vols., 1854–1858; an English one in verse by Ralph T. H. Griffith, in five vols., Benares, 1870–1874, in one volume, ib., 1895; other editions, Calcutta, 1859 and 1869–1872; Bombay, 1859 and 1893; the first book, with notes, by P. Peterson, Bombay, 1879; comp. on the poem also Weber, Ueber das Rāmāyana, Berlin, 1870 (Abhandlungen der Berliner Akademie); H. Jacobi, Das Rāmāyana, Bonn, 1873; Baumgartner, Das Rāmāyana und die Rāma-Literatur der Inder, Freiburg, 1894, etc.

No. 1979, ff. 324, ll. 16–17; written in unequal Nasta'lik, mixed with Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 6 in.

Another translation of the same.

An abridged prose-translation of the Rāmāyaṇa, by Candraman Kāyath bin Sri Rām, made in 'Ālamgir's reign, A. H. 1097 (A. D. 1686), see fol. 2^a, ll. 2-6, and fol. 135^a, and comp. Rieu i. p. 56^a; another copy of this version is found in the Mackenzie Collection, ii. p. 144. It is introduced by eight mathnawi-baits, beginning, on fol. 1^b:

زب هر نسخه سپاس خداست
آنکه زادراک در قیاس خداست

Of the seven Kāndas, into which the Rāmāyaṇa is divided (called here دفتر), these are marked:

Daftar III, on fol. 26^b (ارن کاند), here wrongly spelt (کندهیا کاند); IV, on fol. 38^b (here styled کاند); V, on fol. 47^b (سندر کاند); VI, on fol. 73^b (here called کاند); VII, on fol. 110^a (اوتر اکاند); the seventh Kānda ends on fol. 135^a, and is dated the 11th of Dhū-alka'dah, A. H. 1107 (the fortieth year of 'Ālamgir's reign=A. D. 1696, June 12=Samvat 1753). On ff. 136^a sq. two additional pieces are added, translated by the same Candraman from Sanskrit, the first, on ff. 136^a-169^b, a sort of appendix to the Rāmāyaṇa, likewise ascribed to the authorship of Vālmiki and dated the 25th of Dhū-alhijjah, A. H. 1107 (A. D. 1696, July 26); the second, on ff. 170^b-191^b, a legend of Kṛṣṇa, and due, as stated at the end, to Vyāsa, i. e. taken from the Mahābhārata, beginning: راویان هندوستان چنین روایت آورده اند که راجه جنمیچ به بیشم باین رکهر گفت الیه, it is dated the 3rd of Dhū-alhijjah in the same year (A. D. 1696, July 4).

On fol. 1^a a Persian note ascribes the translation of the Rāmāyaṇa, contained in this copy, wrongly to the poet Faīdī. There are two other prose-translations of this epopee extant, one in Munich (J. Aumer, p. 140, No. 349), the Adhyātma Rāmāyaṇa or the Rāmāyaṇa excerpted, and one in the British Museum (Rieu i. p. 56^a), a Persian paraphrase of Tulsidās' Rāmāyaṇa (a free imitation of the original Sanskrit poem in Hindi) by Debidās Kāyath.

No. 2898, ff. 191, ll. 17; careless Nasta'lik, written throughout by the same hand; many blanks left for pictures; size, 12½ in. by 6½ in.

Mathnawi-i-Rāmāyaṇa (مثنوی راماین).

An abridged translation of the Rāmāyaṇa, in 5,900 mathnawi-baits, by Ghirdardās of the Kāyath tribe, who dedicated his poem to the emperor Jahāngir and completed it, according to fol. 205^b, ll. 9 and 10, A. H. 1033 (A. D. 1623, 1624=Samvat 1681; the British Museum copy, Rieu i. p. 56^b, gives A. H. 1036, which is clearly a mistake, as it does not agree with the year of the Hindū era, which is there the same as here).

Beginning:

ننای شکر آن بخشنده جان را
بدید آرنده کون و مکان را

Copied in the fifth year of Muḥammadshāh's reign (A. H. 1136), the 15th of Šafar (A. D. 1723, Nov. 14).

1966

Another copy of the same.

The same poetical translation of Ghirdardās, beginning as in the preceding copy.

No date.

Rāma u Sitā (رام و سیتا).

Another abridged poetical translation of the Rāmāyaṇa, styled here the story of Rāma and Sitā, by Shaikh Sa'd-allāh Masīh (see this takhalluṣ, for instance, on fol. 2^a, l. 13; fol. 6^a, l. 14; fol. 7^b, l. 13; fol. 8^b, l. 7, etc.) or Masīh Kairānawī Pānipatī, see Safinah, No. 688 (Bodleian Cat., col. 234); Bodleian Cat., No. 1315; and Rieu iii. p. 1078^b. The author, who is not to be confounded with Hakim Ruknā Masīh of Kāshān, to whom this poem has been wrongly ascribed, both in No. 1572 above, and in Rieu ii. p. 689^a, was the adopted son of Muḥarrabkhān (who died A. H. 1056=A. D. 1646) and flourished, like Ghirdardās, under Jahāngir, whom he praises in this poem (see fol. 8^b, (در مدح سلطان جهانگیر پادشاه) as well as his spiritual Pir Shaikh Mir Muḥammad Abū-albakā; among the introductory chapters there is also a laudation of Hindūstān (در تعریف هندوستان), on fol. 10^b; the story itself opens on fol. 13^b (آغاز داستان رام و سیتا).

Beginning:

خداوندا رجام عشق کن مست

The praise of Muḥammad Abū-albakā is found here on fol. 9^a, that of the emperor Jahāngir on fol. 10^b, the description of Hindūstān on fol. 13^a; beginning of the story of Rāma and Sitā on fol. 16^b.

Dated the 22nd of Muḥarram, A. H. 1207=A. D. 1792. Sept. 9, by Alkādīr Rūshanshāhi for سیمین صاحب. It is called in the colophon پرتوی راماین (the proper title for a poetical version of the Rāmāyaṇa in Hindi, copies of which are preserved in No. 1749 of the India Office Collection, and in MS. Hertford College 39 of the Bodleian Library, see Bodleian Cat., No. 2350, where other Hindi versions are mentioned).

Rāmāyana (راماین).

Another, very large, poetical translation of the Rāmāyana, by an anonymous author and not found, as it seems, in any other collection.

Beginning:

جواهر شناسان کان سخن

که در عهد پیشین بهندوستان
هنر بیشه بود صاحب زمان

It is headed, on fol. 1^b: آغاز کتاب حقائق نماب: راماین معرفت خزائن.

No date. This copy belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson.

No. 1768, ff. 498, 4 coll., each ll. 21-27; written very unequally in Nasta'liq; some lacunas, as it seems, now and then; size, 12½ in. by 8¾ in.

Tarjuma-i-Jogbāshisht (ترجمه جوگ باششت).

The same Persian version, by an unknown translator, of Vālmiki's Sanskrit work Yogavāsishṭha on Hindu gnosticism, taken from the abridged version of the Kashmīrian Pandit Anandan (or as he is here constantly called Bahandan, بهندن), which is described in Bodleian Cat., No. 1328, and Rieu i. p. 61^a. It is divided into the following six Prakaraṇas (برکرن):

1. Vairāgyaprakaraṇam (بیراک پرکرن); 2. Mumukshuvyavahāraprakaraṇam (ممکشه پرکرن); 3. Utpattiprakaraṇam (اتپت پرکرن); 4. Sthitiprakaraṇam (ایشم پرکرن); 5. Upaśamaprakaraṇam (نربان پرکرن), comp. fol. 5^b. In the text itself these divisions are called باب (whereas in the subdivisions or Sargas, سرگ, the word پرکرن is used), but not all of them are distinctly marked; I, on fol. 5^b; II, on fol. 39^b; III, on fol. 50^a; IV, not marked; V, on fol. 104^a; VI seems to begin on fol. 140^a.

Beginning: برهمنان هندرا دروحدت ذات حق سبحانه

تعالی و صفات کمال و مراتب تنزلات و انشاء کثرت و پیدائی عالم و عالمیان الخ

Comp. on the Yogavāsishṭha, Aufrecht, Cat. of the Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Libr., p. 353; A. Weber, Berlin Cat., 1853, pp. 187-194; Indische Studien i. p. 468. An English translation of the Sanskrit original of Vālmiki has been published in Calcutta since 1891.

The translation concludes on fol. 222^b and is dated the 17th of Sha'bān, A. H. 1177 (A. D. 1764, Febr. 20). On ff. 223 and 224 a complete index of the work is given, beginning with the same statement, as in Rieu's copy, that the original of Vālmiki comprised 32,000 Slokas and that Bahandan (see above) Pandit reduced them to 6,000. On ff. 225-232 another translation from Sanskrit is given in a different handwriting, a short Indian tale, entitled Mauhaj-alḥakā'ik (منهج)

مناجات بحضرت قادر: (اللقائق), by 'Abdallāh, beginning: همچون که از یک قطره آب عالم را که شمارش در قلم نکند بظهور آورده الخ

No. 806, ff. 232, ll. 15-16; Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 6½ in.

Another translation of the same.

Another Persian version of the Yogavāsishṭha, made under the auspices of prince Dārā Shukūh, A. H. 1066 (A. D. 1656), see fol. 1^a, last line, and beginning: سپاس و ستایش و تمام نیایش نثار حضرتیست که ذرات الخ

This translation, although closely agreeing in its opening words with those of Add. 5637 in the Brit. Mus. (Rieu i. p. 61^b), is quite different from that, since the latter was made at the request of Akbar in A. H. 1006 (A. D. 1597, 1598). Another abridged Persian version is quoted in the preface of the present copy, on fol. 1^b, l. 7, as ترجمه منتخب این کتاب, by Shaikh Šūfi; that is evidently the اطار در حل اسرار or تحفه مجلس, by Šūfi Sharif Kubjahāni, based on the Yogavāsishṭhasāras (comp. Weber, Berlin Cat., p. 186), and divided into ten chapters, called طور, see Rieu iii. p. 1034^b, No. X, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1022. No. 4.

Other copies of Dārā Shukūh's version, which is divided into the same six Prakaraṇas as the preceding translation (see fol. 3^a), are noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1021; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 96, No. II; Dr. Forbes' Cat., p. 61; Bibl. Sprengeriana, No. 1661; and Catalogue of King's College, Cambridge. No. 28.

The present copy is dated the 15th of Dhū-alḥijjah, in the twenty-fourth year of Muḥammadshāh's reign (A. H. 1154 = A. D. 1742, Febr. 21).

No. 1185, ff. 115, ll. 17; Shikasta; ff. 23-31 and 110 supplied by a more recent hand; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

The same.

This excellent copy of Dārā Shukūh's version, beginning like the preceding one, was, according to fol. 1^a, made under the superintendence of Mooteeram Pandit and dated the 3rd of Ramadân, A. H. 1196 (A. D. 1782, Aug. 12); the collation was finished the 15th of the same month. It belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson.

No. 1859, ff. 213, ll. 11; excellent Nasta'lik; size, 9 in. by 5½ in.

1974

The same.

A third very good copy of the same version, without a date.

No. 1355, ff. 33-147, ll. 16-18; Nasta'lik; size, 9 in. by 5½ in.

The collection of Upanishads or Upnakhats (اُپنکھت) which was compiled and translated from Sanskrit by prince Dārā Shukūh with the help of some Pandits of Banāras, and finished, according to fol. 2^a, l. 17, the 29th of Ramadân, A. H. 1067 (two years before the prince was killed by his bigoted brother 'Ālamgir on the plea of heresy in A. H. 1069=A. D. 1659)=A. D. 1657, July 11. Compare the more detailed statement on Dārā Shukūh and his translation in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1329-1331, and Rieu i. p. 54, where it is styled, just as in No. 1978 below, سِرّ الاسرار; see also Max Müller, History of Ancient Sanskrit Literature, p. 325 sq.; Weber, History of Indian Literature, p. 153 sq., and Indische Studien, i. p. 253; Barth, Religions of India, p. 65 sq., etc. Extracts from this translation are noticed in W. Mus. and Cambridge copies; and Tāj-al-din Mufti almaliki, as in J. Aumer, p. 47) for Malik Naṣir-al-din Humāyūn, the emperor, who ascended the throne of Dihli, A.H. 937=A.D. 1530; by others, like De Sacy, as a prince of Akbar's time).

This copy contains the complete four stories: first, on fol. 3^a; second, on fol. 41^b; third, on fol. 78^b; fourth, on fol. 110^a. As date is only given the 17th of Sha'bān, without a year.

Other copies of the Mufarriḥ-alkulūb are described in Rieu ii. p. 757^b; Bodleian Cat., No. 1320; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1033; J. Aumer, p. 47; A. F. Mehren, p. 29; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 404 and 406. The fullest account of the work has been given by De Sacy in Notices et Extraits, vol. x. pp. 226-264. No date; the wording differs in some parts considerably from that in the preceding as well as the following copy.

Beginning: سپاس بی قیاس مر حضرت پادشاهی را که از جمله بندگان خویش بشر را مراتب عالی داد الخ

The translator is called here, on fol. 2^b, l. 3, Tāj-i-Ma'ālī (تاج معالی); the first story begins on fol. 6^a; the second, on fol. 42^b; the third, on fol. 78^b; the fourth, on fol. 122^a. Fol. 39^a is left blank, but the text is uninterrupted.

They begin respectively on ff. 4^a, 19^a, 30^a, and 40^b. Title and translator's name are found on fol. 2^a, ll. 7 and 8; the latter is given here in the barbarous form تاج مغلطی (!).

Kathâ Sarit Sâgara (کتھا سرت ساگر).

Fragment of an abridged Persian prose-translation of Somadeva's famous collection of stories, called Kathâ Sarit Sâgara (edited by H. Brockhaus, Books I-V in Nâgari characters, with German translation, Leipzig, 1839; Books VI-XVIII, Sanskrit text only, in Roman characters, ib., 1862-1866; complete German translation by the same, 2 vols., ib., 1843; complete English translation by C. H. Tawney, Calcutta, 1880-1887), defective both at the beginning and end, with smaller lacunas in the text itself. The translator, whose name does not appear directly, is according to many indications very likely the poet Faïdi.

This fragment begins in the second Taraṅga (ترنگ) or Mauj (موج, as the strict Persian term is) of the first Nahr (نهر), and goes down to the beginning of the ninth (or tenth?) Nahr.

The eight Taraṅgas of Nahr I begin here: 3rd, on fol. 2^b, first line; 4th, on fol. 5^a; 5th, on fol. 8^b (here is to be read موج بنجم instead of موج سیوم); 6th, on fol. 13^a; 7th, on fol. 16^b (according to a pencil note at the bottom, 'the middle of this Tereng wanting,' there must be a lacuna after fol. 16, although the catchword is correct); 8th, on fol. 17^a.

Nahr II, in six Taraṅgas or Mauj: 1st, on fol. 18^a; 2nd, on fol. 20^b (some lines wanting between ff. 23 and 24); 3rd, on fol. 24^b; 4th, on fol. 26^b; 5th, on fol. 30^b; 6th, on fol. 35^a.

Nahr III, in six Mauj: 1st, on fol. 36^b; 2nd, on fol. 39^b; 3rd, on fol. 42^a, l. 6 ab infra; 4th, on fol. 45^b; 5th, on fol. 49^a; 6th, on fol. 51^a.

Nahr IV, in three Mauj (without headings): 1st, on fol. 57^b; 2nd, on fol. 61^a, l. 8; 3rd, on fol. 66^a, l. 4.

Nahr V, in three Mauj: 1st, on fol. 68^a; 2nd, on fol. 72^a; 3rd, on fol. 77^a.

Nahr VI, in eight Mauj: 1st, on fol. 83^a; 2nd, on fol. 86^a; 3rd is not marked; 4th, on fol. 93^b; 5th, on fol. 96^b; 6th, on fol. 98^a; 7th, on fol. 102^a; 8th, on fol. 108^a.

Nahr VII, in nine Mauj: 1st, on fol. 114^b; 2nd, on fol. 118^a; 3rd-5th not marked; 6th, on fol. 131^b; 7th, on fol. 134^a; 8th, on fol. 135^b; the 9th is not marked.

Nahr VIII, in seven Mauj: 1st, on fol. 144^b, lin. penult. (no heading); between this and fol. 164^a there are no further headings; on fol. 164^a appears a 2nd Mauj, but of the 9th Nahr (از نهر نهم); therefore all the following Mauj belong, we suppose, to Nahr IX; 3rd, on fol. 170^a; 4th, on fol. 173^a; 5th not marked; 6th, on fol. 177^b; 7th, on fol. 182^a.

On fol. 186^a a new Nahr begins, again called نهر نهم, which seems to be a mistake for نهر دهم, Nahr X. No further subdivisions are found.

The title Kathâ Sarit Sâgara, and the author's name, Somadeva, the Pandit, or the Kashmirian Brahman, appear at the end of almost every Mauj, compare, for instance, fol. 5^a, ll. 14 and 15, fol. 9^b, ll. 6 and 5 ab infra, etc. On the first thirty leaves the Sanskrit Singhâsan Battisi (سنگھاسن بتیسی).

A copy of the Persian translation of the Singhâsanadvâtrîṅṣatî (or Singhâsanadvâtrîṅṣatikâ), the thirty-two stories of the throne, also called Vikramâcaritram or the stories of king Vikramāditya (in its Persian form Bikarmâjît, wherefore the title بکرماجیت is given to this collection in various copies), and the thirty-two statues (نوتلی, Sauskrit puttali), which was made in the emperor Jahângîr's reign, A. H. 1019 (A. D. 1610), by an author, whose name is spelt in different ways, viz. here (see fol. 3^b, last 4 lines) Bhârinmal (بھارنمل, or Bhârâmal, or Bhamâmal, as it is written on the fly-leaf); in the first Berlin copy: Bhârâmal (بھارنمل ابن ارحمل); according to Rieu ii. p. 763^a, and No. 1990 (fol. 4^a, l. 6) below, Bhârîmal bin Râjmal Khatri. It begins, on fol. 1^a: حمد و ثنای بی شمار به آن آفریدگار کبار که از طاعت و عبادات عابدان بی نیاز است و درگاه لطفش الخ.

The introductory story commences on fol. 6^b after an elaborate index of the thirty-two نوتلی which are found here respectively on ff. 19^b, 23^b, 25^a, 26^b, 28^b, 30^a, 31^b, 38^b, 40^a, 41^a, 49^a, 50^b, 52^a, 52^b, 55^a, 56^a, 61^a, 63^a, 64^b, 66^b, 67^a, 68^b, 70^a, 71^b, 72^a, 74^b, 75^a, 76^a, 77^a, 78^a, 79^b, and 82^a.

Another copy of this version, which in the main agrees with the French translation of Baron Lescallier, New York, 1817, is described in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 1034 and 1035. On the Sanskrit original comp. Aufrecht, Cat. of Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Library, p. 152, and Sanskrit MSS. of Trinity College, p. 11; R. Roth in Journal As., 1845, ii. pp. 278-305; and A. Weber, Indische Studien, XV, pp. 185-453; on the Hindûstânî versions, Bodleian Cat., No. 1324; and Garcin de Tassy, Histoire de la littér. hindouie, etc., 2nd ed., ii. p. 233, iii. pp. 90 and 178. The two oldest Persian versions of the Singhâsan Battisi are one by 'Abd-alkâdir Badâ'ûni, made at the request of Akbar with the help of a learned Brahman, A. H. 982 = A. D. 1574, 1575), entitled خرد افزا, revised edition, by the same, A. H. 1003 = A. D. 1594, 1595 (see Muntakhab-altawârikh, vol. i. p. 67, and Elliot, History of India, vol. v. p. 513); and another by Çaturbhūjdas bin Mihrçand Kâyat, likewise composed under Akbar and entitled شاهنامه (see Bodleian Cat., No. 1324).

The present copy was finished at Lucknow the 29th of Rabi'-althâni, in the twenty-first year of Shâh 'Âlam's reign, A. H. 1194 (A. D. 1780, May 4).

No. 1250, ff. 86, ll. 13-16; careless Nasta'liq, mixed with Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Kishan Bilâs (کشن بلاس).

Another translation of the same Singhâsan Battisi, by Kishandâs ibn Mulûk'and Tamboli (the seller of betel-leaf), a native of Lâhûr and attendant (ملانم) upon the Nawwâb Jâr-allâh Amir-alumarâ, who wrote it in the reign of the same emperor Jahângir, in which the preceding version was composed, and gave it the title کشن بلاس (Kîshnâ-vilâsa), see fol. 1^a, last line, and fol. 1^b, l. 3 sq. to fol. 2^a, l. 1. Rieu ii. p. 763^b, where the author is called Kishandâs Bâsdev, assigns its composition to 'Âlamgir's reign and asserts, moreover, that Ibn Harkarn's or rather Bisbarâi's version (compiled A. H. 1061, 1062 = A. D. 1651, 1652, see the immediately following copy) is quoted in it, in fact, that the کشن بلاس is merely a revised version of the former. From these conflicting statements it is evident, that the present copy is the first sketch of Kishandâs' translation, made in Jahângir's reign, whilst the Brit. Mus. copy contains a later revised and (to judge from the number of folios) enlarged version of the same. This is corroborated by the difference in the initial words, which run here thus: عالم عالم ستایش مر قادی بی نیازی را که آتش وحی الخ. The thirty-two statues or images are called here (as in the Berlin copy, W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 1035 and 1036) لعبه, the first of which begins on fol. 7^a.

No date. The whole copy is written very incorrectly and sometimes almost illegibly.

No. 1710, ff. 80, ll. 12-13; Shikasta; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

A third translation of the same.

The version of the Singhâsan Battisi, known as that of Ibn Harkarn, or, as the British Mus. copy, Rieu ii. p. 763^a, gives the name, Bisbarâi bin Harigarbdâs Kâyath, a kind of combination of the two older versions of Caturbhûjdâs and Bhârimal bin Râjmal (so distinctly written here in full agreement with Rieu's spelling, on fol. 4^a, l. 6, see No. 1988 above), which was made under the emperor Shâhjahân (see fol. 3^a, l. 5).

Beginning: حمد مرحضرت ملك المتعال و نئای بارگاه: اینزد لا یزال بیچون الخ.

An index of the thirty-two پوتلی, on fol. 5^b sq.

The introductory story commences on fol. 8^b: سری مهادیو و پارینیتی بر کیلاس پربت که جای بودن سری مهادیو است نشسته بودند الخ.

The thirty-two پوتلی are found here respectively on ff. 49^a, 64^a, 67^a, 72^a, 78^b, 82^b, 86^a, 92^a, 96^a, 103^b, 107^a, 116^b, 120^b, 124^a, 133^a, 139^b, 144^a, 154^b, 157^a, last line, 162^a, 168^a, 174^a, 176^b, 179^b, 186^b, 190^a, 193^a, 197^a, 201^b, 205^b, 209^b, and 212^b.

On the last fly-leaf before the beginning of the text the first lines of the index are repeated. Many pages injured. This copy, which is not dated, belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson.

No. 1229, ff. 217, ll. 10-12; Shikasta; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

1991

A defective copy of the same.

The preface is wanting here; it begins immediately with the introductory story (corresponding to fol. 8^b, l. 3 in the preceding copy): روزی سری مهادیو و پارینیتی بر کوه کیلاس که جای استقامت شان بوده نشسته بودند الخ, and goes down to the end of the twenty-fifth پوتلی.

The wording of this copy, although following in the main that of Ibn Harkarn's, differs from it in many passages and is especially much fuller. It may therefore belong to another version of the Singhâsan Battisi. There exist, besides the translations already accounted for, the following four:

1. One by Cand ibn Mâdhûrâm, see A. F. Mehren, p. 29.

2. Another, by an anonymous author, styled گل افشان, see Rieu i. p. 230^a.

3. A third, likewise anonymous, see E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 398.

4. A very modern one, by Sayyid Imdâd 'Alî and Siw Suhâi Kâyath, made in 1845 for Mr. Edward Clive Bayley, see Rieu iii. p. 1006^b.

On fol. 1^a the present copy is styled قصه بکرماجیت (see No. 1988 above); it belonged formerly to Sir Charles Wilkins.

No. 2373, ff. 96, ll. 12-17; careless Nasta'liq, mixed with Shikasta; worm-eaten throughout; size, 8½ in. by 6½ in.

1992

A fragment of the same.

A fragment of Ibn Harkarn's or Bisbarâi's version, fully agreeing with it in wording, and going from the introductory story to the second half of the sixth پوتلی, comprising ff. 8^b, l. 3-85, l. 5 ab infra in No. 1990 above; the sixth پوتلی begins on fol. 113^b, l. 5 ab infra (= fol. 83^a in No. 1990).

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2484, ff. 83-114, ll. 13-14; Shikasta; size, 7 in. by 4 in.

1993

A collection of stories without title and author's name, apparently belonging to one or the other Persian versions of the Singhâsan Battisi (as various allusions in the text prove).

The first story with which the copy opens is headed:

سری : and begins thus : حکایت ابتدای کندهرب سین، مهادیو فرمودند که یک روز راجه ایندر نشسته بود و رقص میشد کندهرب سین قوال الخ

The second story, on fol. 7^a, is headed : حکایت فریب زن برهمن و جانندان در فراق راجه.

All the following حکایات have no special heading, except one on fol. 26^b : حکایت انصاف سوداگر.

Written apparently for Mr. Mackenzie by Ānandrāo Munshi, and dated the 8th of Febr., 1806 (= 19th of Dhū-alkā'dah, A. H. 1220).

No. 3011, ff. 81, ll. 10-13; Shikasta; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Hindū tales.

A large, but still incomplete collection of moral tales, translated into Persian partly from Sanskrit, partly from Hindi or Hindūstāni. No author or translator is mentioned. On the margin of the first four stories (5-8) and of the thirty-first, the original Sanskrit forms of the proper names, occurring in the Persian translation, are added in Devanāgarī characters. The whole work is profusely illustrated with very fine drawings, superior in workmanship to most of the usual pictures in Persian MSS. The collection begins with the fifth story (حکایت پنجم).

Gulzâr-i-Hâl (گلزار حال).

A Persian translation of the Sanskrit drama Prabodha Cāndrodāya (چندراودی ناتک), explained in Persian, on fol. 3^a, ll. 9 and 10, by طلوع قمر معرفت, 'the rise of the moon of knowledge', which was composed by Kishandās Bhat (see fol. 3^b, ll. 2 and 7, i.e. Krishṇadāsa Miśra), compare the edition of the original, by Brockhaus, 2 parts, Leipzig, 1835-1845, the translations of J. Taylor (English), London, 1812; Goldstücker (German), Königsberg, 1832, and Hirzel (German), Zürich, 1846; and A. Weber, Ueber die Magavyakti des Krishnadāsa Miśra, Berlin, 1879. This Persian version was made by Banwālī, with the takhalluṣ Wali (see fol. 3^a, ll. 1 and 2) or Wali Rām (see the colophon), who is identical with Banwālī Dās, a munshi of prince Dārā Shukūh and author of the راجاوی (see Nos. 205 and 206 above, and comp. Rieu ii. p. 855^a; No. III, and iii. p. 916^b), in A. H. 1073 (fol. 3^a, l. 3 ab infra: (یکهزار و سیزده با شست سال = A. D. 1662, 1663. According to the preface in the British Museum copy (Rieu iii. p. 1043^a, No. III), which appears to be much fuller than that in the present copy, Banwālī did not translate this drama directly from Sanskrit (as is stated here distinctly on fol. 3^a, ll. 5 and 6: از زبان سنس کرت یعنی از زبان (هندی بزبان فارسی ترجمه نمودند Nand Dās' Bhāk'ha version, with the assistance of Bhawānidās.

ذات او در اصل ذات هاست

It is divided into six چمن, on ff. 3^b, 19^a, 34^b, 44^b, 55^a, and 72^b respectively. Banwālī seems also to be the author of the مثنوی ولی رام, noticed in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 589.

Dated the 11th of Dhū-al-hijjah, A. H. 1166 (called here the fifth year of Aḥmadshāh's reign, whereas it was in reality the sixth) = A. D. 1753, Oct. 9, at Banāras.

Tarjuma-i-Bārāhi (ترجمه باراهی).

The Persian translation of a great Sanskrit work on astronomy, by Bārāhamir (باراهمیر), i. e. Varāhamihira, son of Ādityadāsa, the renowned Indian astronomer. no doubt the Brihatsamhitā (as the full title is given here, on fol. 9^a, l. 7, as سنکھتا), see Aufrecht, Cat. of Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian Library, p. 328 sq.; A. Weber, Berlin Cat., pp. 238-254; and History of Indian Literature, pp. 259-261; comp. also Alberuni's India, edited by Sachau, London, 1887, preface, p. 20, where it is stated that Alberuni translated this very book into Arabic. Other works by the same Varāhamihira are the Brihajjātaka, the Svalpajātaka, etc. This translation was made at the request of Sulṭān Firūzshāh (reigned A. H. 752-790 = A. D. 1351-1388), by

'Abd-al 'aziz Shams Bahā-i-nūri (بهاء نوری), the author of the تأریخ فیروزشاهی, see fol. 2^b, ll. 5 and 4 ab infra, who seems therefore identical with the well-known historian, Shams-i-Sirāj 'Afif (whose تاریخ فیروزشاهی are noticed above in Nos. 212 and 213).

This work begins, on fol. 2^b: حمد و سپاس و افرو شکر: و تناء متوافر حضرت پادشاهی را که گنبد اخضر و سقف لاجوردی بی ستون معلق نهاد الخ. The Sanskrit original, which has been edited by Kern in the Bibl. Soc., vol. iv, 1870 sq., contained, as stated on fol. 3^a, l. 9, 104 bābs, but of these the translator left out eight, namely the forty-first, forty-second, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, fifty-fourth, fifty-sixth, fifty-seventh, and fifty-eighth on account of idolatrous matter contained in them (designated here as کفر). A full index of the remaining ninety-six bābs is given on ff. 3^b-9^a. In the beginning of the 104th bāb the copy breaks off.

No. 1262, ff. 313, ll. 19; large and peculiar Nasta'liq; size, 11 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. by 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

Amwāj-i-klūbī (امواج خوبی).

A Persian paraphrase of and commentary on the Hindi work on Muḥammadan theology and science, styled خوب ترنگ (the beautiful wave), and written originally in Hindi verses from sayings and traditions of Shaikh Kamāl Muḥammad, A.H. 984 (see fol. 7^a, ll. 13-15)=A.D. 1576, 1577; the commentary was composed A.H. 999 (A.D. 1590, 1591). It begins with a فہرست کتاب خوب ترنگ من تصنیف میان خوب.

The Hindi work itself with the paraphrase and commentary commences on fol. 8^a, first line: آغاز کتاب خوب ترنگ با ترجمہ شرح نما کہ مسماست بامواج خوبی از بعضی منقولات حضرت شیخ کمال محمد رحمہم اللہ در معارف محمدیہ علیہ السلام الخ.

This copy is dated the 28th of Rabi'-althānī, A.H. 1078 (A.D. 1667, Oct. 17), by Ḥasan Āḳā.

No. 460, ff. 179, ll. 17; Nasta'liq; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Another copy of the same.

This copy is much older than the preceding one, being dated A.H. 1016, the 2nd of Šafar (A.D. 1607, May 29), but it is less satisfactory and somewhat confused in its arrangement. It begins with the same فہرست, but the wording is after the first line identical with the beginning of the Hindi work itself (on fol. 8^a there), viz.: قصیدہ براعت 'ستہلال' اما بعد حکایت تمثیل عذرہای تاریخ کتاب آغاز کتاب خوب ترنگ با ترجمہ شرح نما کہ مسماست بامواج خوبی الخ.

The work itself commences here on fol. 130^a; but the Hindi verses do not form part of the text, they are added separately on the margin. Moreover, the dates both of the original Hindi mathnawī and of the Persian paraphrase and commentary differ from those in the preceding copy; they are A.H. 986 (A.D. 1578, 1579) and 1000 (A.D. 1591, 1592) respectively.

Râghâi-hindî (رأگاهی هندی).

A collection of 1000 Dhurpads (دهرید, see Garcin de Tassy, Histoire de la littér. hindouie, etc. ii. préface, p. viii), i.e. songs in Hindi or Braj by the famous Bakshawa, who was horn in Gwāliyār, became attached to the court of Rājah Mân Singh (who died about A.H. 924=A.D. 1518), went after the capture of that town by Sikandar Lûdi (reigned A.H. 894-923=A.D. 1489-1517) to Kālinjar, where he joined the Zamindār of that place, and was afterwards called by Bahādur Shāh

(A.H. 932-943 = A.D. 1526-1537) to Gujarāt, where he remained. On account of the superiority of his compositions to those of all other musicians, the emperor Shāhjahân (A.H. 1037-1068 = A.D. 1628-1658) ordered all the genuine Dhurpads of this great master to be collected, and out of all thus brought together, 1000 were again selected as the most authentic and original ones; therefore this collection was styled سہسرس, or سہسرس, or even سہنسررس (Sahas ras, Sahasra ras, or Sahansar ras, a thousand sentiments); and also sometimes هزار دھرید (a thousand Dhurpads); and also sometimes رآگمالا (a chaplet of musical modes), see here on fol. 1^a, and fol. 6^a, ll. 10 and 11 in the following copy; it was arranged in four Râgs and forty-six Râginis, and introduced by a Persian preface, which begins thus, on fol. 1^b: چون نفوس مقدسہ تجرید نهاد را میل بلدات روحانی پیشتر و ادراک سرور از اموری الخ

Compare for a fuller description of this work, No. 1846 in the Bodleian Cat. The present copy is dated the 29th of Ramadân, A.H. 1066 (the thirtieth year of Shāhjahân's reign) = A.D. 1656, July 21, by 'Abd-alrahmân at Ahmadâbâd. Râg darpan (رآگ درپن).

The mirror of the Râgs or musical modes and melodies of the Hindûs, with its full title رسالہ ترجمہ رآگ درپن, a Persian translation of an old Sanskrit hook on Indian music, by Faḳir-allāh, comp. Garcin de Tassy, Histoire de la littér. hindouie, etc., sec. ed., i. p. 15; iii. p. 412, etc.; and Sir W. Ouseley, Anecdotes of Indian Music, in 'Oriental Collections,' i. p. 75. The original Sanskrit work, which is styled here مانکتومل (Ouseley calls it 'Muncuttuhul'), was made at the request of Rājah Mân Singh (see the preceding work in No. 2015), the ruler of Gwāliyār, and A.H. 1073 (A.D. 1662, 1663) struck the eyes of Faḳir-allāh, who resolved upon translating it into his native Persian tongue. He undertook this work, but cannot have completed it before A.H. 1076 (A.D. 1665, 1666), see this date in the tenth or last chapter of the work, which contains a list of fifty celebrated contemporaries, musicians, players, singers, etc., on fol. 45^a, l. 10, ۱۰۷۶ سنه که تاحال که سنه ۱۰۷۶; also on fol. 45^b, l. 9; fol. 48^a, l. 1; and in the Khâtimah, where the author says, that this treatise was finished ۱۰۷۶ سنه, which is clearly a mistake for ۱۰۷۶. There must be read likewise instead of the wrong ۱۰۸۳ and ۱۰۸۳ on fol. 45^a, l. 1; fol. 48^a, last line; and fol. 48^b, l. 4 ۱۰۷۶. The same year 1076 appears on fol. 51^b, l. 8, where it is called the eighth year of 'Ālamgir's reign, and on fol. 53^b, last line, and fol. 54^a, l. 1: ۱۰۷۶ سنه درین زمستان که سنه ۱۰۷۶.

The work is divided into the following ten chapters (باب), a short index of which is given on fol. 2^a, l. 5 sq.:

باب اول در سبب تألیف, on fol. 2^b.

باب دوم در باب دانستن راکها, on fol. 4^a.

باب سوم در تعیین هر موسم که در آن موسم کدام راک و راکنی خوانند و حرفها که منع کرده اند که در اول و راکنی خوانند, on fol. 15^a.

باب چهارم در دانستن سُرها و تصانیفات که در نغمه می بندند, on fol. 16^b.

باب پنجم در دانستن سازها و نایک و نایکه و سکھی, on fol. 25^a.

باب ششم در دانستن عیوب گوینده, on fol. 32^b.

Anis-al'ushshâk (انيس العشاق).

The friend of the lovers, an explanation of all the metaphors, used by Persian poets, in the description of all the charms of female beauty, with numerous quotations from older ghazal-writers, by Hasan bin Muhammad al-Sharaf or rather Sharaf-al-din, generally called al-Râmi (see fol. 4^a, ll. 3 and 2 ab infra), who dedicated this work to Shaikh Uwais of the Ilkânî dynasty (who reigned A.H. 757-776=A.D. 1356-1375), see fol. 2^a, last line. Consequently the date assigned by H. Khalfa i. p. 487, No. 1414, to the composition of this work, viz. A.H. 826, is absolutely wrong, and so is the still later date, A.H. 878, Ramadân, given by the same H. Khalfa iii. p. 21, No. 4433, to another work of Hasan al-Râmi's, the حقائق الحقائق (wrongly styled sometimes حقائق الحقائق or حقائق السحر, a commentary on Rashid-al-din Waṭwât's السحر, comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1340; Rieu, Supplement, p. 268^b, No. V;

W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 85, No. 1; Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 282, No. 4; Krafft, p. 21, No. 68; see also the مناقع بدائع, in E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 274, No. III). Other copies of the انيس العشاق are described in Bodleian Cat., No. 1339 (where it is styled انيس العاشقين); Rieu ii. p. 814, No. XI, and Supplement, p. 268; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 85, 2; G. Flügel i. p. 414; J. Aumer, p. 122, No. 8 (in the latter two the wrong date of H. Khalfa is repeated without any comment); E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 273, No. II; and Wiener Jahrbücher, vol. 83, Anzeigeblatt, p. 23. It has been translated and annotated by Cl. Huart, Anīs-el'ochchâq, Traité des termes figurés relatifs à la beauté, par Cheref-eddin Râmi, in 'Bibliothèque de l'école des hautes études,' fasc. 25, Paris, 1875.

Beginning: حمد وثنا خالق را که مبداء خلقت وجود خاکیانرا بتشریف ولقد الخ (in the Bodleian copy the initial words are different).

This treatise is divided into the following nineteen bâbs, with an arrangement very similar to that in the جزئیات و کلیات, viz.: 1. در صفت مو, hair, on fol. 4^b; 2. در صفت ابرو, forehead, on fol. 8^b; 3. در صفت چشم, eye, on fol. 9^a; 4. در صفت مزه, eyelash, on fol. 12^b; 5. در صفت رو, face, on fol. 14^a; 6. در صفت خط, down, on fol. 16^a; 7. در صفت خال, mole, on fol. 19^a; 8. در صفت لب, lip, on fol. 21^a; 9. در صفت دندان, teeth, on fol. 23^a; 10. در صفت زبدهان, mouth, on fol. 24^b; 11. در صفت زنج, chin, on fol. 26^a; 12. در صفت گردن, neck, on fol. 27^b; 13. در صفت ساعد, breast, on fol. 28^a; 14. در صفت بر, fore-arm, on fol. 29^a; 15. در صفت انگشت, finger, on fol. 30^a; 16. در صفت قد, figure, on fol. 31^a; 17. در صفت کمر, waist, on fol. 33^a; 18. در صفت ساق, leg, on fol. 34^a.

It begins, on fol. 1^b: بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم وبه نستعين, 'با مفتاح الابواب افتح ابواب قلبي و قلوب المسلمين وانت حير الفاجين'، حمد و ستایش آن علیی را که عنقای عقل علامه عالم کبیر انسانی را الخ and is divided into the following four bâbs:

Dated in the month Ṣafar, A. H. 1014 (A. D. 1605, June, July), by Jalāl-al-dīn bin Ḥasan al-ḥusaini.

With reference to the fourth and most important chapter Daulatshāh has bestowed great praise on this work, and A. Sprenger, Catal. pp. 316 and 317, where the same book is noticed, has endorsed Daulatshāh's remarks by saying that it is 'a most useful book for understanding Persian poetry.' Sharh-i-Mu'ammayyât (شرح معنیات).

A commentary on the preceding treatise of Husain bin Muhammad alhusaini or Mir Husain alnīshāpūri, who is called here Amir Kamāl-al-din Husain, compiled by an enthusiastic pupil of his, Šādiq Ruknī 'Āshik (so correctly according to the Bodleian and British Museum copies, whereas he is called here Šādiq Rukn 'Āshik, see fol. 101^b, l. 7); comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1356, and Rieu, Supplement, p. 126^a, No. V. The date of composition is contained in the chronogram at the end, which runs correctly thus, شرح رکنی بنویس = A. H. 916 (A. D. 1510, 1511), whilst here again, on fol. 257^a, ll. 4 and 3 ab infra, رکن appears instead of رکنی (against the metre of the verse, see Rieu, loc. cit.).

Beginning the same as in the original treatise: بنام آنکه از تألیف و ترکیب الخ

But before the commentator commences the interpretation of his master's work, he gives a very valuable addition to the original text itself, viz. Mir Husain's enigmatic verses on the ninety-nine beautiful names of God, with short explanations; the first of these is الله, the second الرحمن, the third الرحيم, the fourth الملك, the fifth القدوس, etc. On fol. 115^b the mukaddimah begins which contains the description of riddles, as given by Maulānā Sharaf-al-din 'Alī Yazdī, the author of the Zafarnāma (see Nos. 173-189 above), in his منتخب خلل مُطَرِّز (an extract from his own larger work خلل مُطَرِّز, see Rieu, Supplement, p. 126^b, and Bodleian Cat., No. 1345), and by Jāmi in his three treatises on the same subject, designated here as the larger (الکبير), i.e. the حلیة الخلل (likewise an extract from the خلل مُطَرِّز, see No. 1378 above, and Bodleian Cat., Nos. 894, 32, and 895, 28), the middle (المتوسط), see ib., Nos. 894, 31, and 895, 29), and the smaller one (الصغير), ib., Nos. 894, 30, and 895, 30). After that, on fol. 116^b, the commentary itself begins, with these words of the text: معنی کلامیست که بر وجه صحیح دال باشد بر اسمی از اسماء بطریق رمز و ایما الخ

Marginal glosses and additions; small blanks on ff. 254^a, 254^b, and 255^a. No date. Besides the present commentary of Šādiq Ruknī there exist four others, one by Diyā-al-din al-Urdūbādī, with the takhallus Shafikī; another by 'Abd-alwahhāb al-Šābūnī; a third by Jāmi (which, however, is not found in any copy of his prose-works); and a fourth by the well-known Turkish scholar Surūrī, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 884, and H. Ethé, Neupersische Litteratur, p. 345.

D. 1646 and 1656), which is either a mistake of the copyist, or due to a later addition. The title of the book appears twice, on fol. 2^a, lin. penult., and fol. 2^b, l. 2. An Inshâ of the same title is mentioned in J. Aumer, p. 125.

Maktûbât (مکتوبات).

Another large collection of forms of letters and answers thereto, showing the proper way of writing to all classes of society, intermixed with many historical specimens, similar to some in the preceding copy, for instance, a letter of Shâh 'Abbâs to 'Abd-almu'minkhân, on fol. 11^b; of Muḥammadkhân, governor of Balkh and Badakhshân, to prince Salim (afterwards the emperor Jahângir), on fol. 45^b; of 'Abd-almu'minkhân to Shâh 'Abbâs, on fol. 63^a; answer of the Shâh; letters of Shâh Tahmâsp, on ff. 99^a, 102^b, etc.; of Nawwâb Imâm Kulikhân to Nawwâb Shâh Salim Hindi, on fol. 320^b; of Mirzâ Badi'-alzamân to Rahmân Kuli Sultân, on fol. 343^b, and many others. There is no apparent arrangement, and fragments of several Inshâs, all incomplete and defective, seem to be put together in this copy. The first collection is styled: خلاصة حمد نامحدودی : 3^b المنشآت, and begins, on fol. 3^b:

Inshâ-i-Khânazâdkhân (انشاء خانزادخان).

A work on letter-writing with models, selected from the author's own correspondence, by Amân-allâh Ḥusaini, with the epithets of Khânazâdkhân Firûzjang, and later on of Khânzamân, and the poetical takhalluṣ of Amânî, who died A.H. 1044 or 1046 (A.D. 1634, 1635, or 1636, 1637), see Nos. 1763, 7, and 1893 above, where his short notes on Ṣûfic questions, the رقعات انشاء امان الله, or, as they are also called, the حسینی, are described. There is apparently a certain confusion between these two collections of the same writer, the shorter one of distinctly Ṣûfic import, and the larger one of a purely epistolary character, which is preserved in the present copy and bears the above title at the end, while on fol. 1^a it is styled رقعات خانه زاد خان; whether the رقعات امان الله, which have been printed in Calcutta, and lithographed in Lucknow A.H. 1269, contain the former or the latter of these compositions, is impossible to say without an inspection of the Eastern editions themselves.

The present work is divided into four fasls, viz.:

1. در عرائض مکاتبت, letters to superiors and equals.

2. در رقعات, familiar letters.

3. در حواشی, glosses and notes.

4. در متفرقات, miscellaneous writings.

All the headings are left blank throughout. The first leaf is missing; the copy begins abruptly in the preface thus: جهانگیر جهانیان نواز تصویر آن در جلوه آرند کام بخش چاره ساز و خالق خلایق نواز الخ.

No date. The margin of the first six leaves, and some fly-leaves at the end are covered with scattered poetry, rubâ'is, etc.

No. 1070, ff. 105, ll. 13-14; large Nasta'lik; size, 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ in.

Inshâ-i-Munir (انشاء منیر).

Letters, notes, and other writings of a refined prose-style, by Abû-albarakât Munir, the son of Mullâ 'Abd-almajid of Multân, usually called Munir of Lâhûr, who collected them A.H. 1050 (A.D. 1640, 1641), see fol. 1^b, ll. 5 and 6, and died the 7th of Rajab, A.H. 1054 (A.D. 1644, Sept. 9), comp. A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 129, ll. 3-5; Beale, Oriental Biogr. Dictionary, p. 196; H. Ethé, Neupersische Literatur, p. 341. He also wrote a preface to his friend Muhammad Ṣâlih Kanbû'i's letters, known as بهار سخن, see Nos. 2090-2092 below, and Rieu i. pp. 263 and 398. Another title of this collection, or at least of that portion of it which contains Saif Khân's letters (see below), appears to be نگارستان منیر or نگارستان, see Rieu iii. pp. 1035^b and 1048^a, No. II, 3.

Beginning: بعد از حمد ایزد جل و علی و پس از درود سید المرسلین محمد مصطفی صلی الله علیه و سلم و علی آله و اصحابه اجمعین بر راز شناسان سخن نهفته مباد مکاتباتی که از زبان خدیو پاک روان سیف خان که به بعضی خوانین ستوده آئین نگارش الخ.

This collection contains:

1. Forty-five letters and fourteen ruka'ât, which Munir composed in the name of Saif Khân (i. e. Saif Khân Mirzâ Ṣafi, who died as governor of Bengal, A.H. 1049 = A.D. 1639, 1640), beginning on fol. 2^a.

2. Thirty-eight other notes by Munir, beginning on fol. 56^b.

3. Three Munâzarât or poetical contests in prose, mixed with verse:

(a) مناظرهٔ اربع عناصر (the contest of the four elements), on fol. 69^a.

(b) مناظرهٔ تیغ و قلم (the contest of sword and pen), on fol. 77^b.

(c) مناظرهٔ روز و شب (the contest of day and night), on fol. 87^b.

4. Another prose-piece, entitled: سخن در ثنا و صفت: صاحب سخنان عصر خود, on fol. 91^b.

5. An elegy in prose, entitled: درماتم محمد شریف, on fol. 104^a.

Dated the 1st of Rabi'-alawwal, A.H. 12... (12...), the last two figures are blotted out.

No. 426, ff. 112, ll. 13; large and distinct Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Naubâwa (نوباوه).

Another collection of letters and notes, comprising also some of Saifkhân's, compiled by the same Abû-albarakât Munir, one year after the completion of the preceding انشا or نگارستان, A.H. 1051 (A.D. 1641, 1642), at Jaunpûr, see title and date on fol. 2^a, ll. 1-5.

It begins, on fol. 1^b: این منتخب از بخت نکو - افتاد چو آغاز نکو انجامش - دیده بمذاق آشنا ایامش - نوباوه نهاد از لطافت نامش, برای فیض سرای چمن نشینان الخ.

After a دیباجه, called توحید, follows the same مناظرهٔ روز و شب, as in the preceding collection, fol. 87^b. A second part with a special نسم الله الرحمن الرحيم begins on fol. 65^b. Both on fol. 1^a and in the colophon it is incorrectly styled انشاء منیر; see another copy of the same in No. 1763, 16 above.

Bahâr-i-sakhun (بهار سخن).

A collection of letters and other refined prose-writings by Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ Kanbû'î of Lâhûr, the author of the 'Amal-i-Ṣāliḥ or detailed history of Shâhjahân (completed A. H. 1070 = A. D. 1659, 1660, see Nos. 332-336 above), and the preface to his elder brother Shaikh 'Inâyat-allâh Kanbû'î's Bahâr-i-dânish (composed A. H. 1061 = A. D. 1651, see Nos. 806-817 above). The introduction to this collection, which contains official and private letters, the former written in the names of Shâhjahân, 'Âlamgîr and other royal and princely personages, as well as descriptions of Shâhjahânâbâd, Âgra, Kashmir, and other localities in ornate prose, and is subdivided into four چمن, was written by his friend Maulânâ Abû-albarakât Munir, see above, No. 2078. The date of completion is given in the two British Museum copies (see Rieu i. p. 398) as A. H. 1074 (A. D. 1663, 1664); but in the present as well as the following copy it is distinctly stated, that the work was finished by the author the 16th of Shawwâl, A. H. 1065 (A. D. 1655, Aug. 19), the twenty-ninth year of Shâhjahân's reign, in Shâhjahânâbâd; we have therefore here an earlier redaction of Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ's letters.

Beginning: ایند سخن آفرین را سباس که چراغ گفتار
را از تاب خرد روشن گردانیده الخ.

This copy is collated, but not dated. As the transcriber calls himself Shaikh Muḥammad, it is not unlikely that he is identical with the author himself. Fol. 191 must be placed before fol. 190.

No. 1396, ff. 227, ll. 19; careless Nasta'liq, sometimes approaching Shikasta; size, 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Čahâr Čaman-i-Brahman (چهار چمن برهمن).

A description of Shâhjahân's court, with its splendours and festivals, and of the principal cities of his realm, beginning with Shâhjahânâbâd, followed by a memoir of the author's own life, by Čandarbhân Brahman of Patyâla or Lâhûr, who was one of the most famous munshis of the emperor as well as of prince Dârâ Shukûh, see the description of his diwân in Nos. 1074 and 1075 above, and an account of the contents of the present work in Rieu ii. p. 838^b; comp. also A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 376. It is written in highly embellished prose, intermixed with numerous poetical specimens and letters, and divided into four چمن (like the immediately preceding بهار سخن of Muḥammad Šâlih), wherefore it is styled چهار چمن, انشاء چهار چمن, or چار چمن.

Beginning: چمن آوّل مشتمل بر سیرانی و شادابی دولت ابد پیوند و بیان خصوصیات مجلسها و جشنها الخ. The fourth چمن begins on fol. 95^b.

Munsha'ât-i-Brahman (منشآت برهمن).

A collection of letters, addressed to Shâhjahân, to Wazirs, Amirs, and other distinguished persons, by the same Candarbhan Brahman. In the preface he enumerates many earlier works of his, viz. his دیوان, تحفة گلدهسته (see the preceding copy), چهار چمن, مجمع الفقرا, تحفة الفصحا, کارنامه, انوار, etc.; the title منشآت برهمن appears on fol. 2^a, l. 10.

Beginning: چون از عنوان شباب این برهمن عقیدت کیش را میل و رغبت بدریافت دقایق شعرو انشا الخ.

It is apparently divided into several kisms, but only the first is marked by a heading, on fol. 2^a: قسم آوّل مشتمل بر نقل عرضداشت‌های (که) بدرگاه آسمان جاه ارسال داشت.

The collection ends on fol. 48^a, and is followed, on ff. 48^a-62^b, by another shorter collection of letters and notes from the same period, and probably by the same Candarbhan Brahman, styled in a vague way متفرقات and beginning: برادر من جانمن عمر من درین هنگام غم الخ.

Other copies of these Munsha'ât are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1385 and 1386 (the latter styled (رقعات چندر بهان); Rieu i. p. 397 sq. (with a full biographical account of the author); and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1017. The beginning of the main portion of this MS. agrees with that in the first Bodleian copy, but is different from that in Rieu, loc. cit.

On fol. 62^a it is stated, that here ends the first volume (دفتر آوّل) of the collection; but the following pages belong undoubtedly to the same Inshâ. An index of the contents on ff. 1^b-2^b.

Husn u Dil (حسن و دل).

Beauty and heart, an allegorical romance in ornate prose, undoubtedly based on the older story of the same name by Fattâhî of Nishâpûr (who died A. H. 852=A. D. 1448, see No. 2037 above, and comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1343; Rieu ii. p. 741; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 34, 8 etc.), and composed, according to the chronogram, داغ دلبند, on fol. 45^b, ll. 9 and 10, A. H. 1095 (A. D. 1684), in the reign of 'Ālamgir, to whom it is dedicated. The author is called, on fol. 2^b, l. 9, Khwâjah Muḥammad, but in the colophon with the fuller name Khwâjah Muḥammad Bidil. Whether he can be identified with the well-known poet 'Abd-alkādir Bidil (died A. H. 1133=A. D. 1720, see No. 1676 above and Nos. 2115-2117 below) is doubtful; the date of composition and the dedication to 'Ālamgir would favour such a supposition, but on the other hand no biographical account of Bidil mentions a story of the above title, and the poet is never called Muḥammad.

Beginning of the story, which is interspersed with many poetical specimens : گوهر بحر حمد و ثنا و جوهر معدن شکر عطائش بارگاه آن پادشاه کشور حسن و جمال الخ.

Copied in Bahādurshāh's reign (A. H. 1119-1124=A. D. 1707-1712); as date appears the 7th of Rajab only, without a year.

Khulāṣat-almakātib (خلاصة المکاتیب).

A rich collection of specimens of refined prose-style intermixed with verses, on all possible topics, by Sujān Singh or Sujān Rāi Munshi of Patyāla, the author of the خلاصة التواريخ or general history of India (completed A. H. 1107=A. D. 1695), see Nos. 362-364 above. It was apparently compiled as a guide for the author's sons, see fol. 3^b, lin. penult. sq., and begins: مبدع جهان آفرین و مخترع آسمان و زمین بقدرت و حکمت ابدائی خویش الخ.

From an English note affixed to the fly-leaf we learn, that this 'esteemed collection of letters is looked upon as a model of epistolary style by the learned of the Punjab;' and besides that it was 'sent to the Imperial Exhibition at Paris for works of art and industry by the Punjab Committee at Lahore.' The note is signed by 'C. Raiques, Commissioner and Superintendent;' and the MS. was received from Dr. Royle, July, 1856. The headings of the innumerable short epistles and tracts contained in this collection are left blank, but on the first sixty or seventy leaves they are supplied in a very small and often scarcely legible handwriting on the margin, together with many various readings and glosses. But the greater portion of the MS. is unprovided with either. Fol. 65 is left blank.

No date. Modern handwriting. The copyist was Nadhar Muḥammad.

No. 3233, ff. 279, ll. 15; very distinct and fine Nasta'lik; size, 10 in. by 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ in.

Dakā'ik-alinshā (دقائق الانشا).

A compendium of rhetoric, prosody, and the whole art of refined writing in prose and verse, compiled A. H. 1145 (see fol. 2^b, l. 5) = A. D. 1732, 1733, by Ranjhūrdās, son of Ranjit Rāi Kāyath (راجهورداس ولد رنجیت رای) of Jaunpūr, and styled دقائق الانشا (comp. fol. 2^a, last line, and fol. 3^b, l. 12). It is based upon the following authorities:

1. دستور الکتاب, by Abū-albarakāt of Nishāpūr.
2. ریاض الانشا, by Maḥmūd bin Shaikh Muḥammad Gilāni (see above, Nos. 2044 and 2045).

- 4-8. رفعات, by Khusrau (see above, No. 1219 sq.), Jāmi (see above, Nos. 1387-1389), Amān-allāh Ḥusaini (see above, No. 2077), 'Abd-alwāsi' aljabali (died A. H. 555), and Kāsim Kāhi (died A. H. 988).
- 9-11. منشآت, by Mullā Tughra (see above, No. 1586, XXIII; 1587, XVII and XVIII; 1588, XVI; and 1589, X), Żuhūrī (see above, Nos. 1509, 4, and 1510, 5), and Naṣīrāi of Hamadān (about A. H. 1015 = A. D. 1606).
12. بهار سخن, by Shaikh Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ, the author of the تاریخ شاهجهانی, i. e. the عمل صالح (see above, Nos. 2090-2092).

17. گلزار دانش, by Nawāzishkhān.
18. خاص الانشا, by Mullā Jāmi'i (see above, Nos. 2095 and 2096).
19. رقعات, by Mullā Muḥammad Muḥsin Dhū-alqadr and others.

Beginning: (read متکثر) حمد وافرو ثنای متطائر (متکثر) است که شاهدان معانی را یکسوت
نثار بارگاه صانعی
الفاظ آراسته الخ

The work is divided into a muḥaddimah, eight dakīkas and a khātimah:

Muḥaddimah: در بیان انشا و اقسام آن, on fol. 4^a.

Dakīkah I, on fol. 7^a, in three faṣls, viz.: 1. در بیان در بیان اعداد حروف تهجی و اختصاص 2. حد حرف آن در لغت عرب و عجم و شرح اعراب و اقسام آن 3. در بیان اقسام پارسی.

Dakīkah II, on fol. 11^a, in ten faṣls, viz.: 1. در بیان کیفیت حروف تهجی و کمیت آن در تداول محاوره 2. در بیان نسبت کلیات خمس 3. در بیان حروف یعنی ادات 4. در بیان کلمه 5. در شرح دلالت 6. در بیان اسم 7. در بیان فعل 8. در بیان تعریف شیء 9. الفاظ مفردة بر معانی 10. در بیان لفظ مرکب یعنی کلام.

Dakīkah III, on fol. 44^b, in two faṣls, viz.: 1. در تحریر کلام نظم 2. تعبیر کلام نظم

Dakīkah IV, on fol. 64^b, in two faṣls, viz.: 1. در بیان اسقام عارضی کلام 2. بیان اسقام ذاتی کلام.

Dakīkah V, on fol. 68^a, in two faṣls, viz.: 1. در بیان حسن عارضی کلام 2. حسن ذاتی کلام.

Dakīkah VI, on fol. 106^b, in two faṣls, viz.: 1. در بیان قواعد مکتوبی 2. بیان قواعد ملفوظی.

Dakīkah VII, on fol. 112^a, in three faṣls, viz.: 1. در شرح 3. در آداب مناظره 2. بیان آداب سخن گفتن آداب نوکری.

Dakīkah VIII, on fol. 116^a: در اصطلاحات و کنایات. This last chapter is said to contain twenty-three faṣls alphabetically arranged according to the second letter of the words, but only the first five جله (arranged according to the first letter) of the first فصل are found here; all the rest is missing. Probably the author had not yet finished the whole work when this copy was made, only one year after the date of the composition, in A. H. 1146, the 17th of Shawwāl (A. D. 1734, March 23), by Shaikh Mihtāb 'Uthmānī, an inhabitant of 'Azimābād.

Other copies of the دقائق الانشا are described in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1403 (likewise unfinished), and in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 1013 (which from the analysis given seems to be complete).

No. 1556, ff. 120, ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

The same.

Another, but defective copy of the Dakā'ik-alinshā, and very incorrect besides, as the spelling of the title: دقائق الانشا (sic!) on fol. 3^b, l. 7, and on fol. 1^a proves. Both the careless handwriting and the absence of many headings make it rather difficult to decide how much is missing. According to the index, on ff. 4^a-5^b, the work contains in this copy only seven dakīkas, and of these there can be traced only the first five.

Muḥaddimah, on fol. 5^b.

Dakīkah I, in three faṣls, on fol. 8^a.

Dakīkah II, in eight faṣls, on fol. 12^a. These eight correspond to the ten of the preceding copy in the following way: 1 = 1-3 there; heading: در بیان در بیان حروف تهجی و کیفیت آن الخ 2 = 4. 3 = 5, 4 = 6. 5 = 7. 6 = 8. 7 = 9. 8 = 10.

Dakīkah III, in two faṣls, on fol. 39^a.

Dakīkah IV, in two faṣls, on fol. 58^b.

Dakīkah V, in two faṣls, on fol. 62^a.

The second faṣl of Dakīkah V begins on fol. 63^a. There are no further headings to be found, except on fol. 78^b, lin. penult.: فصل سیوم در آداب گوهری. If this were a mere mistake for آداب نوکری, we should have here the third faṣl of the seventh Dakīkah, but in that case the second faṣl of the fifth, the whole sixth, and the first two faṣls of the seventh Dakīkah would comprise an infinitely smaller number of pages than in the preceding copy.

Kitāb-i-siyāsāt u siyar-almulūk (کتاب سیاست و سیر الملوك).

The famous work on politics and the maxims of good administration and government by the renowned vizier of the Saljūk rulers Alp Arslan and Malikshāh, Nizām-almulk, with his real name, Abū 'Alī al-Ḥasan bin 'Alī, who was born A. H. 408 (A. D. 1017, 1018) and assassinated by the Bāṭinis on his journey to Baghdād, A. H. 485 (A. D. 1092). For a detailed account of the origin of this work see the description of the Bodleian copies in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1424 and 1425, and Rieu ii. pp. 444-446, and iii. p. 994^b; comp. also W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 320; Mélanges Asiatiques v. p. 236, and vi. p. 114, etc. H. Khalfa iii. pp. 638 and 639, gives A. H. 469 (A. D. 1076, 1077) as date of composition; in the Bodleian and British Museum copies, A. H. 484 (A. D. 1091) is distinctly mentioned as the year in which Nizām-almulk's work was produced, in consequence of a competition with other state dignitaries like Sharaf-almulk, Tāj-almulk, Majd-almulk, etc., to do justice to Malikshāh's demand for a standard treatise on the best methods of governing the Saljūq empire. The present copy simply states, that Nizām-almulk originally composed his book extempore in thirty-nine chapters, to which he added afterwards eleven more on account of the distress which the enemies of the empire caused him; when he was about to start on his last fatal journey in A.H. 485, see fol. 1^b, l. 4 sq., he confided his work to his private secretary and librarian, Muḥammad, for copying it out neatly. The latter, however, did not publish it, as he himself states in the preface, 'till now, when justice and religion have gained strength through the long life of the lord of the world,' that is till after the accession of Malikshāh's second son Ghiyāth-aldīn Muḥammad, who began to reign after the death of his brother and rival Barkiyārūq, A.H. 498 (A.D. 1104, 1105). The whole work has been edited (text and French translation) by Ch. Schefer, 'Traité de Gouvernement, etc.,' Paris, 1893, in the 'Publications de l'École des Langues orientales vivantes,' série III, vol. viii.

Beginning: ابن کتاب بنجاء فصل است که نظام الملك رحمه الله ترتيب کرد و بر بديهة سى و نه باب گفته الخ. Then follows a fihrist of the whole work, and on fol. 3^a the first of the fifty chapters (the headings of which are given in full in Rieu, loc. cit.; the Berlin copy has fifty-six chapters; in Flügel's edition of H. Khalfā the number thirty is substituted for the thirty-nine of the original sketch of the author), beginning: اندر حال گردش روزگار و مدح خداوند عالم الخ.

Dated the 21st of Rabi'-althānī, A.H. 1198 (A.D. 1784, March 14).

No. 648, ff. 130, ll. 15; distinct Na-ta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 7½ in.

Akhlāq-i-Nāṣiri (اخلاق ناصري).

The famous work on ethics or practical philosophy by the great philosopher and astronomer Nāṣir-aldīn Muḥammad bin Muḥammad bin al-Ḥasan al-Ṭūsī (born A.H. 597=A.D. 1201, died A.H. 672=A.D. 1274), who has been mentioned already as author of various Sūfic treatises in Nos. 1807-1810 above, and of a metaphysical tract in No. 1922, 23 (col. 1070 in this Cat.); see also Haft Iklim, No. 1007 (col. 451 above). It is based on the Arabic work طهارة النفس or تهذيب الاخلاق, by Abū 'Alī Aḥmad bin Muḥammad Miskawīh, commonly called Ibn Miskawīh (who died A.H. 421=A.D. 1030), see above, No. 1922, 7 (coll. 1067 and 1068 in this Cat.), and Bodleian Cat., No. 1417, and written at the request of Nāṣir-aldīn bin 'Abd-alraḥīm bin Abi Maṣūr Muḥtasham (governor of Kūhistan under the Isma'ili ruler 'Alā-aldīn Muḥammad), after whom the work is named. It was completed, according to a statement in the modern edition of this work, described further down in No. 2172, A.H. 633 (A.D. 1235, 1236). There exist two prefaces to this work, an earlier one, in which it is dedicated to Nāṣir-aldīn of Kūhistan with eulogies pronounced on him and his sovereign (only found in one of the Brit. Mus. copies, see Rieu ii. p. 856^b, and in the Cambridge copy, Add. 308), and a later one, which is found exclusively in the usual copies, where he withdraws his former praises of those infidel rulers and orders the former preface to be cancelled.

Beginning of the usual (second) preface, on fol. 1^b:

حمد بحد و مدح ببعده لائق حضرت عزت مالک الملکی باشد که همچنانکه در بدو فطرت اولی الخ.

The complete fihrist or index of the work is found on fol. 11^a sq. (half of fol. 10^a from the words ان تفصیل in l. 8, and the whole of fol. 10^b are a mere repetition of fol. 11, only a few lines between افتد, on fol. 10^a, l. 8, and the beginning of fol. 11^a being omitted). The three maḥālas, into which the book is divided, are found here as follows:

Maḥālah I (در تهذيب اخلاق, 'on the cultivation of character') begins on fol. 13^a, and contains two kisms; first kism subdivided into seven faṣls, on ff. 13^a, 14^a, 20^a, 22^a, 27^b, 30^b, and 39^b; the second into ten faṣls, on ff. 57^b, 61^b, 63^a, 66^a, 70^b, 74^b, 81^b, 96^b, 101^a, and 111^a.

Maḥālah II (در تدبير منازل, 'on family and household management') begins on fol. 141^a, and contains five faṣls, on ff. 141^a, 145^a, 150^a, 155^b, and 171^a.

Maḥālah III (در سياست مدن, 'on the management of cities and states') begins on fol. 174^a, and contains eight faṣls, on ff. 174^a, 183^b, 202^b, 221^a, 233^a, 239^a, 251^a, and 256^b.

Another copy of the same.

This copy is forty years older than the preceding one, being dated the second of Rajab, A.H. 1001 (A.D. 1593, April 4), but it is a rather unsatisfactory one, as it has been much spoiled by water and is besides injured here and there. 2. در تدبير منزل, on fol. 96^b, subdivided into six لمعة.

Akhlâk-i-Muḥsini (اخلاق محسنی).

A work on ethics by the well-known author of the Rawdat-alshuhadâ (see Nos. 158-161 above), the Anwâr-i-Suhailî (Nos. 757-766 above), the Lubâb-i-ma'nawî and Lubb-i-Lubâb (No. 1086 above), the Makẓam-alinshâ (Rieu ii. p. 528), the Shahîfa-i-Shâhî (Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1357 and 1358), commentaries on the Kurân (see further down), and other works, Ḥusain bin 'Alī alwâ'iz alkâshifi, who died A. H. 910 (A. D. 1505). Its title is differently given by the author himself; in the preface (see fol. 4^b, l. 2) he styles it اخلاق المحسنين, and at the end اخلاق محسنی. The latter is undoubtedly the correct one, as it represents a chronogram for the completion of the work itself, viz. A. H. 900 (A. D. 1495). W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 308, thinks that in the ta'rikh, تأريخ هم نویس ز اخلاق محسنی, the words

ز اخلاق محسنی should be taken as indicating the date, which would give A. H. 907; but that is scarcely possible, since the prince Abū-almuḥsin, the son of Sultân Ḥusain Mirzâ, to whom the work is dedicated and after whom it is named, rebelled against his father in A. H. 904 (A. D. 1498, 1499); and although he was pardoned in A. H. 906 (A. D. 1500, 1501), Ḥusain alkâshifi would have been very imprudent to heap on him such eulogies, as he does, in the preface, one year after that event. For other copies of the اخلاق محسنی see (besides the Berlin copy, just mentioned) Rieu ii. p. 443; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1460-1462; A. F. Mehren, p. 6; J. Aumer, p. 63; Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 257; Krafft, p. 183; Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 291; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 207 and 208, etc. It has been printed (with the exception of the last three chapters) in the 'Selections for the Use of the Students of the Persian Class,' vol. i, Calcutta, 1809; and in the 'Classic Selections,' vol. i. Other editions: Hertford, 1823 and 1850; Calcutta, 1850; Lucknow, 1862 and 1889; Constantinople (between 1877 and 1879); Cawnpore, 1888, etc. English translation by H. G. Keene, Hertford, 1851; comp. also G. de Tassy, Notice du traité persan sur les vertus de Hussein Vaëz, Paris, 1837 (Journ. Asiat. iv. pp. 61-81). A Turkish translation under the title of انیس العارفين was made by 'Azmi (i. e. Pir Muḥammad bin Pir Aḥmad bin Khalil of Brussa), A. H. 974 (A. D. 1566, 1567), see G. Flugel iii. p. 308; Fleischer, Leipzig Cat., p. 488 sq.; Krafft, p. 187; W. Pertsch, No. 93, and Berlin Turkish Cat., pp. 169 and 170; extracts from this version in German translation were published by R. Peiper, Breslau, 1848, 'Das Kapitel von der Freigebigkeit, etc.'

Lauh-i-mahfûz (لوح محفوظ).

A Persian paraphrase and exposition by Jabra'il, alhusaini, known as Hakim-almulk, of the various Arabic commentaries on the first namat (نمط) of the second part of Ibn Sinâ's (see Nos. 2149 and 2150 above) famous work on logic, physics, and metaphysics, entitled الاشارات والتنجيها, chiefly the following three, viz.: (1) that of Naṣir-aldin Ṭūsī (see No. 2155 above), composed A.H. 644 (A.D. 1246, 1247), and styled حل مشكلات الاشارات or شرح الاشارات, designated here in a note on fol. 1^a as شبهات; (2) that of Muḥammad bin 'Umar Fakhr-aldin Rāzi (born A.H. 544 = A.D. 1150, died A.H. 606 = A.D. 1210), comp. on this and the preceding commentary, O. Loth. Arabic Cat., pp. 133 and 134; and Haft Iklim, Nos. 1007 and 1064 (coll. 451 and 456 in this Cat.), see also ib., No. 1152 (where glosses to Ṭūsī's commentary by Sharif Jurjāni are mentioned), and O. Loth. p. 134^b, No. 482, where an Arabic supercommentary on the same, styled المحاكمات, by Kutb-aldin Muḥammad bin Muḥammad Rāzi or Taḥṭāni (died A.H. 766 = A.D. 1364, 1365), is described; and (3) that of Abū-alkāsim Samarqandi, i.e. Abū-alkāsim bin Abi Bakr Laithi, who flourished about the end of the ninth century of the Hijrah, see O. Loth. p. 249^b.

The second part of Ibn Sinâ's work treats of physics and metaphysics (the first deals with logic) and consists of ten anmât (انماط); only the first of these appears in this Persian commentary, see fol. 7^b: نمط اول در نجوم; and begins on the same page thus: الشرح بدانکه

شیخ ابواب منطق را معنون بانهاج کرده و ابواب طبیعی و الهی را مسمی بانماط ساخته الخ.

The preface, on fol. 1^b, begins: حمد و ستایش که انوار اخلاص آفاق و انفس را چون فاتحه صبح صادق متأللی سازد و قنادیل اشباح انس را بمصابیح افشاء قدس منور گرداند الخ.

The title, لوح محفوظ, appears on fol. 4^b, ll. 6 and 5 ab infra; the author's name on fol. 4^b, last line.

The general arrangement of this commentary is: first the Arabic text, then the Persian paraphrase, and finally the commentary; but there are many other discussions inserted, sometimes in the form of question and answer (سؤال and جواب), dealing, among other topics, with the difference in the views of Ṭūsī and Rāzi.

The copy is dated A.H. 1035 (A.D. 1625, 1626). Collated and annotated.

No. 462, ff. 193, ll. 17; small, but clear Nasta'lik; the Arabic quotations in Naskhi; size, 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Bâkîr, dedicated to Jahângîr and beginning with a eulogium of the deceased Akbar; it is a kind of general introduction, styled مقدمه at the end, and begins on fol. 62^b: اهم مهجات ارباب عقول سليمه واصحاب طباع مستقیمه در مبداء هرکار و مطلع هر گفتار حمد و ثنائی آفریدگارست الخ.

This part is copied by the same transcriber in the same year 1028; on the last two pages, ff. 71^b and 72^a, a short qaṣidah is found in praise of the poet 'Itâbi, that is Sayyid Muḥammad Najafî 'Itâbi, who was imprisoned for a long time by Akbar in Gwâliyâr, comp. A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 126. It begins thus: ای عتابی چو نسیم ارگزی سوی فراه.

Akhlâq-i-Jahângirî (اخلاق جهانگیری).

A large ethical work, dealing with all the various branches of moral and political philosophy, compiled by Nûr-al-din Muḥammad Kâfi Khâkânî, the son of Shaikh Mu'in-al-din (who cannot very well be identical with Nûr-al-din Muḥammad, the nephew of Abû-alfadl, see above, No. 2066, as his father was 'Ain-ahmulk, the famous physician of Shirâz), see fol. 3^b, l. 8, and fol. 95^b, l. 3, and dedicated to the emperor Jahângîr; see ib., l. 7. According to the preface (fol. 3^b, l. 13) the title is a chronogram for the completion of this work, viz. A. H. 1031 (A. D. 1622); but at the end the author states himself, that he finished it already in Dhû-alka'dah, A. H. 1029 (A. D. 1620, October). Consequently the preface must have been written two years after the composition of the main work. It is divided into the following twenty-two maḳâlas:

1. در محبت و عشق و سخنان اولیاء الله تعالى, on fol. 4^a.
2. در فضیلت علم و علما رحمهم الله, on fol. 52^b.
3. در بیان خوف از عذاب و رجا از رحمت حق, on fol. 66^a.
4. در حسن خلق و مذمت بد خلقی, on fol. 139^a.
5. در تواضع و شفقت و ذمت (مذمت تکبر و read تذمت), on fol. 161^a.
6. در بیان علو همت, on fol. 177^a.
7. در توکل, on fol. 188^a.
8. در صبر و شکر, on fol. 200^b.
9. در سخاوت و مذمت بخل و حسد, on fol. 214^b (here is to be read هشتم instead of نهم).
10. در عدالت و احوال امرای اولای امر و تأتی (index تأمل), on fol. 264^a.
11. در حزم, on fol. 302^a.
12. در فراست و محاورت, on fol. 316^a.
13. در فوائد مشورت, on fol. 323^b.
14. در میامن توبه, on fol. 333^a.
15. در عفو الهی مر بندگانرا و بندگان مر بندگانرا, on fol. 359^a.
16. در معارج شجاعت, on fol. 372^b.
17. در سیاسات, on fol. 384^b.
18. در محمد وفا و عهد و مذمت بد عهدی و بیوفائی, on fol. 393^a.
19. در مدح راست گفتاری و مذمت دروغ گوئی, on fol. 413^b.
20. در فضیلت تقوی و قناعت و مذمت طمع و حرص, on fol. 428^b, last line.

Dated the 5th of Dhû-alka'dah, A. H. 1047 (A. D. 1638, March 21), by Mihr 'Alî, son of Murâd 'Alî Daulat-shâhi; the copy was made for Maulânâ Pir Muḥammad.

15. در منع کردن از حسد و عجب و کبر, on fol. 44^b (this chapter is entirely repeated on ff. 49^a-51^a, the reason being that on fol. 49^a another, more modern hand begins; the original handwriting breaking off on fol. 48^b).

16. در فضیلت نیکو کردن با خلق, on fol. 51^a.

17. در فضیلت خشم فرو خوردن, on fol. 52^a (in the text there is a slightly different arrangement of the chapters, viz.: 15 is headed only حسد کردن از حسد کردن; 16 در منع کردن از عجب و کبر; 17 در فضیلت خلق; 18 در منع کردن از عجب و کبر).

Jâmi'-altamthil (جامع التمثیل).

A large collection of Persian proverbs, the first ever made, amplified and illustrated by short tales, anecdotes, verses, etc., and entitled Jâmi'-altamthil, see fol. 8^a, l. 3. It is arranged alphabetically, according to the first letter of each proverb, in twenty-eight faṣls, and compiled by Muḥammad 'Alî Hablrûdî (حبیل رودی), so distinctly written here as in the two Berlin copies or rather Jabalrûdî (جبل رودی, as the Brit. Mus. copy has), A. H. 1054 (A. D. 1644, 1645). The author happened to come in that year to Haidarâbâd in the reign of Sultân 'Abdallâh Kuṭbshâh, and to get admission into the majlis of the Shaikh-alislâm Muḥammad alkhâtûn (see fol. 2^b, last line), where a discussion arose about the proverbs of the Turks, Arabs, and Persians, and Muḥammad 'Alî resolved at once to do with regard to Persian proverbs the same that had been done already for the Arabic and Turkish ones, for the latter in Shâh 'Abbâs Safawî's reign. Other copies of the same collection of Persian proverbs are noticed in Rieu ii. p. 773; Mélanges Asiatiques, v. p. 522; Rehatsek, Cat. raisonné, p. 223, No. 22; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 325. According to the last-mentioned Cat. this work is a large amplification of a similar, but very short collection by the same author, the مجمع الامثال, made by him five years before in A. H. 1049 (A. D. 1639, 1640) and having the same beginning as the present work, see ib., p. 324. The جامع التمثیل (or, as W. Pertsch prefers to style it, جامع التماثيل) has been printed in Teheran, A. H. 1278.

Beginning: سباس بی حد و ستایش ببعده بی مثلی را سزد که بابهای دلگشای و لله المثل الاعلی رایات کنایات الع.

Intikhab-i-Shâyistakhâni (انتخاب شایسته خانی).

The Persian paraphrase of a curious book of wise sayings, comprising ethical and political wisdom, by Abû 'Alî Ahmad bin Muḥammad Miskawaih, the author of the طہارۃ النفس or کتاب الطہارۃ on which Naṣir-aldin Tûsi based his ethical work اخلاق ناصری, see ff. 5^a and 5^b, and No. 2155 above. The author of the Arabic original adapted his work, which is styled in the older Persian version, made by Taqî-aldin Muḥammad bin Shaikh Muḥammad al-Arjânî al-Tustarî in Jahângir's reign, see Rieu ii. pp. 440^b and 441^a. جاویدان خرد. from an old venerable tract pretended to have been written by the old Persian king Hūshang to his son as last will, and said to have been discovered by the Khalif Ma'mūn (who died A. H. 218=A. D. 833). see fol. 6^a sq. He first heard of its existence when reading Abū 'Uthmān Hāfiẓ's استطالة الفهم, and succeeded after much searching in obtaining a copy in the house of a Persian gentleman. He then amplified and enlarged it by many more modern quotations, and gave it to the world in an Arabic garb. It was translated a second time into Persian by Ibn Hāji Shams-al-din Muḥammad Ḥusain Ḥakim, A. H. 1065=A. D. 1655 (see fol. 2^a, l. 10), who again added many new materials; and this later Persian paraphrase we have before us in the present copy. The old tract by Hūshang, quoted here as the original source of the present work, is apparently the same which is found in No. 1417 of the Bodleian Cat. and entitled there قانون الحکمة و دستور, since its introductory story, relating the discovery to which the Khalif Ma'mūn was led by the wise Dhaubān or Dhaupān, almost verbally agrees with that given here on fol. 6^a sq.

The book, as far as it appears here in Persian paraphrase, opens with a preface by the translator, on fol. 2^a. The translation of the original Arabic work begins, on fol. 5^b, last line, with a chapter on the earlier Persiau version: در پیدا شدن کتاب جاویدان خرد. Then follow:

Sayings of Hūshang, on fol. 8^a.

Sayings of Buzurjmihr, on fol. 15^b.

Sayings of Ādhaubād, on fol. 22^a, and again on fol. 42^a.

Sayings of Kaikubād, on fol. 23^a.

Admonitions of Nūshirwān, on fol. 25^b.

Sayings of Jaunshid, on fol. 39^b; of Bahman bin Isfandiyyar, on fol. 40^b; of Barzūya, on fol. 43^a. After that an ethical treatise begins, headed آداب و شرائط بادشاهان, on fol. 50^b, accompanied by a short chrouicle of all the old Persian kings. This chapter is followed by:

Sayings of Arabian Sages and Kings, on fol. 59^a.

Sentences and miracles of Muḥammad and several Imāms, on fol. 63^a.

Sayings of the Sūfis, on fol. 78^b.

Last will of Luḡmān, on fol. 85^b; of Pythagoras, on fol. 87^a.

Admonitions of Socrates, on fol. 87^b; of Plato addressed to Aristotle, on fol. 91^a; of Aristotle to Alexander, on fol. 93^a.

Sayings of Indian Saints, on fol. 118^a, etc.

Beginning of the preface: سزاوتر ستایش پروردگار عالمیان هم اظهار جمال و کمال صفات و اسمای خویش است. الح

Dated the 21st of Jumādā-althāni in the 7th year of Farrukhshāh's (correctly, Farrukhsiyar's) reign (probably meant for A. H. 1130=A. D. 1718, May 22, since he reigned, properly speaking, only six years and three months and was in Jumādā-althāni of A. H. 1131 already deposed and blinded). Compare on this work also H. This copy is dated the 26th of Ramaḍān, in the twenty-seventh year of Muḥammadshāh's reign (=A. H. 1158, A. D. 1745, Oct. 22). On the fly-leaf there are written by another hand a few extracts from the diwān of Maulānā Nawidī or Nuwidī (نویدی) of Isfahān, who wrote a diwān of ghazals, comprising nearly 7,000 verses, with his owu hand A. H. 1155 (correctly according to A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 526, A. H. 1055=A. D. 1645).

Wājib-al-ḥifẓ (واجب الحفظ).

A philosophical matnawī, treating of the various subjects of law, morals, theosophy, rhetoric, traditions, religious teaching, mystical doctrine, etc., in sixty-three short maḥālas, composed A. H. 1105 (see fol. 11^b, last three lines)=A. D. 1693, 1694, and dedicated to the emperor 'Ālamgir. The author is not distinctly named, but from a note on the fly-leaf and the last bait of the praise of God (fol. 2^a, l. 3):

نه راه گمروان قوم ضالین
زعافل ابن دعا از خلق آمین

it might perhaps be conjectured that it was 'Āqilkhān Rāzi, the well-known poet, who died A. H. 1108 (A. D.

1696), see No. 1634 above, although his usual takhallus was Rāzi, not 'Āqil.

Beginning:

Occasionally some marginal glosses. Very worm-eaten in many places. Dated the 14th of Jumādā-alawwal, A.H. 1130 (A.D. 1718, April 15). On the fly-leaf there is a second title given to this mathnawī, viz. Majma'-albayān (مجمع البيان).

Abwāb-aljinnān (ابواب الجنان).

The first volume or bāb of the famous collection of ethical and paraenetic orations, styled the 'doors of paradise,' by Mirzā Muḥammad Rafī' Wā'iz of Kāzwin, who died shortly after A.H. 1105 (A.D. 1694) and left a diwān (see Bodleian Cat., No. 1144, and Rieu ii. p. 698a); comp. G. Flügel iii. p. 293; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1472-1474; Rieu ii. p. 826, and Supplement, p. 109; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 312 and 313; J. Aumer, p. 61; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 59-62. The whole work was to comprise eight bābs, but only two are extant (see the Bodleian Cat., loc. cit. Mr. Browne in his remarks on p. 60 has overlooked the contents of that copy), and the present MS. contains only one, viz. the first bāb.

محاورات تواند بود الخ

The author's name appears on fol. 7^a, l. 4, the title on fol. 8^a, l. 10.

The first volume is divided into a muḥaddimah and three fasls.

2. در ذکر بیوفائی دنیای غداره الخ، on fol. 22^b.

In the Cambridge Cat. all the headings are quoted; here only those are given, which are either not found in Flügel's copy (viz. 4-6) or differ in wording from them:

1. On fol. 38^b.

2. On fol. 53^a.

3. On fol. 67^a.

Haft Kishwar (هفت کشور).

A book on ethics and politics in the form of short tales and anecdotes, dealing with the early kings of Persia and other renowned men, all illustrating different points of moral philosophy, see a reference to this work in Rieu iii. p. 1039, I. No author's name is to be found anywhere. The book is divided into a muḥaddimah, which consists of seven manzils (not marked in the text), seven kishwars (so called after the seven climates of the world), and six *masāfat*s (that is, the six distances between the seven climates), inserted respectively after the first six kishwars. The following table of contents is drawn from the index on ff. 5^b-6^a (the same index is written on fol. 1^b).

Dānishnāma-i-'alā'ī (دانش نامه علایی).

An incomplete copy of the first three sections of Ibn Sinā's (see Nos. 2149-2152 above) famous compendium of philosophical sciences, styled properly دانش نامه علایی (also حکمت علایی, as in the British Mus. copy, or کتاب العلایی, see H. Khalfa v. p. 118, No. 10319, or دانش نامه, ib., iii. p. 184), but appearing here under the more general designation of اصول و نکات. This work was dedicated to خداوند ملک عادل مؤید منصور و عهد الذین علاء الدولة و فخر الملة و تاج الائمة ابو جعفر محمد بن دشمنیه (correctly دشمنزار), i.e. 'Alā-aulah Abū Ja'far Muḥammad bin Dushmanziyār Ibn Kākawāl, who ruled over Iṣfahān A.H. 398-433 (A.D. 1007-1041), and in whose service Ibn Sinā was during the last years of his life. It was edited after his death by his disciple, 'Abd-alwāhid bin Muḥammad Jūzjān, who added to the extant three sections on logic, metaphysics, and physics, which Ibn Sinā had completed himself, and which alone are preserved in the present copy, from other treatises of the great philosopher on geometry, arithmetic, music, and astronomy, two more sections on mathematical science and on music; comp. Rieu ii. pp. 433 and 434, and Supplement, p. 115^a, No. III; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 114.

Beginning: سباس و ستایش مر خداوند آفریدگار بخشنده خرد را الخ

First section: Logic (علم منطق), on fol. 2^a.

Second section: Metaphysics (علم الهی or, as it is styled in the text itself, الوهيات), on fol. 44^b.

Third section: Physics (علم طبیعی), on fol. 122^b. This section breaks off on fol. 167^b; fol. 168^a has no connexion with it and is supplied by another hand.

The first section is dated A.H. 1064 (A.D. 1654).

Durrat-altāj (دره التاج).

A vast encyclopædia of sciences by Kutb-aldin Maḥmūd bin Ma'sūd bin al-Musliḥ alshirāzi, the greatest pupil of Naṣir-aldin Tūsī (see No. 2155 above), who was born in Shirāz, A.H. 634 (A.D. 1236, 1237), and died in Tabriz, A.H. 710 (A.D. 1310, 1311); see Haft Ikhlām, No. 196 (col. 392 in this Cat.), where some of his Arabic works are mentioned, and on the present work, G. Flügel i. pp. 35-37; Rieu ii. pp. 434 and 435; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 340 (where a short fragment of the same, dealing with music, is noticed); comp. also H. Khalfa iii. p. 201, No. 4926; Wiener Jahrbucher, vol. 88, Anzeigeblatt, pp. 17-21; and Mélanges Asiatiques ii. p. 57. The full title of this work is دره التاج لغره الذیاج, on which comp. Rieu, loc. cit. The present copy, dated the 16th of Rabī' al-awwal, A.H. 1075 (A.D. 1664, Oct. 7), is particularly valuable, as it has been carefully collated throughout with an old and trustworthy MS., A.H. 1191 (from the 25th of Shawwāl to the 11th of Dhū-alḥijjah = A.D. 1777, Nov. 26 to 1778, Jan. 10), in Akbarābād. The collator has made many valuable additions to his copy from that older authority, partly on the margin, partly by inserting whole supplementary pages, for instance, ff. 474-476, which give another and fuller reading of the preceding and following pages and do not originally belong to the present copy at all.

Beginning: اگرچه بر ضمیر ارباب کیاست و خاطر اصحاب فراست پوشیده نماند که نعمت جلال ربونیت و وصف کمال الوهیت و شکر مواهب نعم بی نهایت و ذکر لطائف کرم بی غایت مبدعی الخ

Nafā'is-alfunūn (نفائس الفنون).

The famous encyclopædia of science, with its full title: نفائس الفنون فی عرائس العیون, composed by Muḥammad bin Maḥmūd al-Āmulī between A.H. 735 and 742 (A.D. 1335-1342, according to the various dates given in the book itself), in imitation of the Durrat-altāj (see the preceding work), comp. Haft Iklim, No. 1188 (coll. 467 and 468 in this Cat.); H. Khalfa iv. p. 500, and vi. p. 364, No. 13906; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1483-1491; Rieu ii. pp. 435-438; G. Flügel i. pp. 38-42; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 148, 7; pp. 164-167; and p. 352, 2; Wiener Jahrbücher, vol. 61, Anzeigebblatt, pp. 2-10; Mélanges Asiatiques iii. p. 734, and v. p. 261; Rehatsek, Cat. raisonné, p. 58, No. 44. The author dedicated it to the Amir Jamāl-al-din Shaikh Abū Ishāq bin Maḥmūdshāh (who ruled over Fars and 'Irāk, A.H. 742-754 = A.D. 1341-1353), and died after A.H. 753 (A.D. 1352). According to H. Khalfa, loc. cit., the now first kism, dealing with islamitic sciences, was originally the second, but put at the top of the whole on account of its more intrinsic value. Detailed descriptions of this work are given both in Flügel and Rieu, and also in the Bodleian Cat.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: حمد و ثنا و شکر بی انتها حضرت پادشاهی را که افکار ازکیا و انظار عملا الخ.

Mukaddimah, in three fa'idas, viz. در بیان شرف و در تقسیم علوم بر سبیل اختصار, on fol. 3^a; فضیلت علوم, on fol. 4^a; and در ترتیب کتاب, on fol. 4^b. An index, on ff. 4^b-5^b.

FIRST KISM, modern sciences, i.e. islamitic sciences (در علوم اواخر), in four maqālas, containing eighty-five sciences in thirty-six fanns or sections.

First maqālah, literary sciences (در علوم ادبی), in fifteen fanns, on ff. 5^b, last line, 8^b, 14^a, 17^a, 19^a, 22^a, 25^a, 27^b, lin. penult., 32^b l. 3 ab infra, 36^b, 39^a, 41^b, 49^a, 55^a, and 60^b, beginning with the art of writing and ending with that of account-keeping.

Second maqālah, legal sciences (در علوم شرعی), in nine fanns (No. 1483 in the Bodleian Cat. counts ten, by contracting the first and second, i.e. علم کلام and علم تفسیر, into one, but inserting two new ones, viz. one styled علم اخبار, the other علم اسامی, so that the total of fanns in the first kism amounts there to thirty-seven), on ff. 65^b, 71^b, 79^a, 84^a, last line, 89^b, 98^a, 103^b, 106^b, and 113^a, beginning with scholastic theology and ending with forms of prayers and their times of recitation.

Third maqālah, Šūfī sciences (در علم نصوّف و تواضع), in five fanns (the first here called by mistake (قسم), on ff. 119^a, 128^a, 135^a, 139^a, and 143^a, beginning with the mystic road and ending with moral perfection.

Fourth maqālah, conversational sciences (در علوم محاوره), in seven fanns, on ff. 147^a, 156^a (second and third fann combined), 177^b, 182^b, 186^a, and 193^a, beginning with the art of conversation and ending with the science of riddles.

SECOND KISM, ancient sciences (در علوم اوائل, a heading left out in the present copy), in five makālas, containing seventy-five sciences, in thirty-four fanns (correctly thirty-three; the mistake here and also in the following copy has arisen from the statement in the beginning of the fourth makālah, respectively in the heading of the second kism, that it is divided into ten fanns, whereas in the text itself both here and in the next copy only the usual nine are marked).

First makālah, practical philosophy (در حکمت, so styled here rather incorrectly, instead of حکمت عملی), in three fanns, on ff. 198^a, 206^a, and 210^a, beginning with ethics and ending with the management of cities and states.

Second makālah, speculative philosophy (در اصول, حکمت نظری), in four fanns, on ff. 216^a, 222^a, 227^a, and 232^a, beginning with logic and ending with physics.

Third makālah, mathematics (در اصول ریاضی), in four fanns, on ff. 237^b, 243^b, 247^b, and 253^a, beginning with geometry and ending with music.

Fourth makālah, branches of physics (در فروع طبیعی), in nine fanns (not ten, as the heading states by mistake), on ff. 261^a, 271^a (this second fann, usually devoted to alchemy, علم کیمیا, but styled here غریبه در علوم, and subdivided into a mukaddimah and five faṣls, includes the third fann, on magic, سیمیا, too, as the fourth faṣl on fol. 277^a proves), 284^b (here called the third fann, on the interpretation of dreams, but in all other copies correctly marked as fourth), 294^a (here correctly styled fifth fann, on physiognomy; a fourth therefore is not marked here at all), 296^a, 300^b, 309^a, and 311^b, beginning with medicine and ending with the holding of the breath and similar tricks.

Fifth makālah, branches of mathematics (در فروع ریاضی), in thirteen fanns, on ff. 312^b, 318^a, l. 3 ab infra, 321^b (read فنّ سیم instead of فنّ پنجم, as here is written by mistake), 322^a, 325^b, lin. penult., 326^b, 328^b, 331^a, 334^a, 338^b, 346^b, 347^a, last line, and 351^a.

A short index, injured both at the beginning and end, is found on the fly-leaf.

This copy, which is a little worm-eaten here and there, is dated month Dhū-al-hijjah, A. H. 1037 (A. D. 1628, August), by Walī al-ḥusainī.

No. 1099, ff. 356, ll. 29; clear Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece; size, 14 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

A philosophical encyclopædia in form of a Persian translation of an Arabic abridgement of the famous رسائل اخوان الصفا و خلان الوفا, usually styled Iḥwān-alṣafā, entitled مجمّل الحکمة, comp. G. Flügel i. p. 42, Bodleian Cat., No. 1492, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 158-161; see also H. Khalifa v. p. 486, No. 11468, and on the writings of the 'brethren of purity,' Z. D. M. Shahid-i-ṣādiq (شاهد صادق).

A vast encyclopædia of sciences, particularly of religious, philosophical, political, ethical, and cosmographical matters, based on the Qurān, the traditions, sayings of wise men, stories and legends, with numerous poetical compositions, and commenced A. H. 1054 (A. D. 1644) by Muḥammad Ṣādiq bin Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ

Ḥadiqa-i-ḥadiq-i-ganjina-i-Ṣādiq (حديقة حادق گنجینه صادق).

The first half of a curious kind of encyclopædia with the most puzzling mixture of heterogeneous matters, compiled by Shākirkhān bin Ṣādiq, i. e. Shākirkhān bin Amir Shams-aldaulah Luṭf-allāhkhān Bahādur Ṣādiq, the author of a history of the reigns of Muḥammadshāh and his successors (see Rieu i. pp. 279 and 280), A. H. 1174 (A. D. 1760, 1761), and dedicated to the memory of his father (who was born A. H. 1077=A. D. 1666, 1667, and died A. H. 1165=A. D. 1752, eighty-eight years old, see fol. 7^a; Rieu, however, iii. p. 1084^b, fixes his death in A. H. 1166=A. D. 1753). The author himself, as he informs us on fol. 53^a, was born A. H. 1128 (A. D. 1716). According to the index on ff. 1-4^b the work contains twelve chiyābān, each of which is subdivided into numerous cham and baraki. Unfortunately there is a great confusion in the headings of the various subdivisions in the text (all added in red ink on the margin by another hand); but a comparison with the index proves, that we have in this copy only one half of the whole work, the first six chiyābān.

The work begins with a general cosmography, creation of the world and all sublunar and superlunar matters. After that comes an anatomical sketch, then an historical one, preceded by an account of the author himself (on fol. 53^a), and dealing with the Persian kings (on fol. 60^a), the stories of the prophets from Ādām to Muḥammad, etc. (on fol. 81^a). Next comes the history of Nādirshāh and an account of the house of Timūr, a tract on archery in verse and a very elaborate treatise on love and sexual intercourse (on fol. 187^b). The second half of this MS. is filled with discussions on Muḥammadan theology, the rites and observances of Islām (on fol. 214^a), dogmatic history and the prominent points of Muslim doctrines. The last part deals with Ṣāfiism and breaks off in the discussion on the āṣā.

Beginning, on fol. 5^b: حمد و سپاس هادی را که گمراهان بیادیه و سواس نفسانی را از سرگردانی الهی.

Numerous additions and glosses on the margin. The second half of this work was to contain, according to the index, biographical accounts of great Imāms and mystic Shaikhs, stories, tracts on poetry and prose, on trade, medical science, veterinary surgery, etc.

No. 1781, ff. 545, ll. 18; large and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 11¼ in. by 7½ in.

Khazān u Bahār (خزان و بهار).

Autumn and spring, a short general compendium of sciences, compiled by Mir 'Iwād alridwī, who was in the service of Mirzā Muḥammad 'Alibeg of Kirmān at Lāhūr (see fol. 2^b, l. 1 sq.; the title of the book occurs on fol. 3^a, l. 7). No date of composition is mentioned anywhere. It is divided into an introduction, four chapters (معالم), and a conclusion.

Introduction, on fol. 3^b: account of the creation and the created beings (در بیان آنکه موجود کیست و وجود او از چیست و بیغمبر کرا خوانند و امام مفروض الطاعة کردند و بادشاه کرا نامند الخ).

First chapter, on fol. 9^b, on medical science (در علم طب).

Second chapter, on astronomy, etc. (در علم هبأت و نجوم و شناختن اجرام فلکی و اقدار کواکب الخ).

Third chapter, on the art of government, the duties of a wazir, on epistolography, etc. (در علم دبیری و وزیري و مراسلات و مکاتبات خطابی و بلاغی).

Fourth chapter, on poetical composition, with a few specimens of poetry, for instance, a rubā'i, extemporized by 'Unşuri, on fol. 41^a (در علم و تصنیع شاعری).

Conclusion, on fol. 41^b, several stories, traditions, a short account of the author's life, some kaşidas and ghazals, composed by himself, etc. (در بعضی روایات و حکایات و روایات و مژده قلیلی از حالات اینخیر برسم اختصار و قصائد و غزلیات که بخاطر ناقص رسیده الخ according to the heading itself). This part is imperfect at the end, some leaves being wanting. It breaks off on fol. 47^b.

Tarjuma-i-Kashf-al-zunūn 'an asāmi al-kutub wa-alfunūn (ترجمه کشف الظنون عن اسامی الكتب والفنون).

An abridged Persian translation of Ḥāji Khalīfah's (or, as he is commonly called in a contracted form, Ḥāji Khalfā's) famous bibliographical lexicon (see Flügel's edition of the Arabic text with Latin translation, in seven volumes, Leipzig, 1835-1854), made at the request of Mr. John Herbert Harington (جان هربرت هارنگتن, see fol. 642^b, l. 10), by Karīm-al-dīn Muḥammad bin al-'Allām bin 'Abd-alsalām (see ib., l. 5), who began this paraphrase in Rajab, A. H. 1220 (A. D. 1805, Sept.-Oct.). The statement, that he completed it in Ṣafar of the same year (بمآه صفر از سال مذکور), must needs be an oversight, since it is nonsensical; either the following year 1221 is intended, or the month Ṣafar must be substituted for the previous Rajab and vice versa.

Beginning: بهترین نطق که ظاهر میشود انوار الطاف آن از مطالع کتب و صحائف و خوبترین کلام که بوی خوش میدهد غنچههای اعطاف آن بر صفحات علوم و معارف الخ.

The lexicon itself, after the long introductory chapters, begins with the letter ā on fol. 83^a.

Sharḥ-i-fārsi-i-Thamaraḥ dar najūm (شرح فارسی ثمره در نجوم).

A Persian paraphrase and exposition of the Arabic version of Ptolemy's astrological work Liber Fructus (καρπός), commonly styled Sharḥ-i-Thamara-i-Batlamyūs (شرح ثمره بطلمیوس), by the well-known philosopher and astronomer Naṣir-al-dīn Muḥammad bin Muḥammad bin al-Ḥasan al-Tūsī, who died A. H. 672 (A. D. 1274), see above, Nos. 1807-1810; 1929, 23; and 2155 sq. H. Khalfā ii. p. 496, No. 3848, gives the full title of the Arabic version as الثمره فی احکام النجوم, and in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1510, the present Persian paraphrase is styled تفسیر الثمره; comp. also Rieu iii. p. 1088^a; Steinschneider, Cat. Codd. Hebraeorum Lugd. Bat., p. 368; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. iii. pp. 145 and 146; Wenrich, de auctorum Graec. etc., p. 231. It was made (about A. H. 660 = A. D. 1262) for Bahā-al-dīn Muḥammad, son of the famous Ṣāhib Diwān Shams-al-dīn Muḥammad Juwainī (who was executed A. H. 683 = A. D. 1284).

Beginning: الحمد لله حمد الساکرین والصلوة علی نبیه محمد و آله چنین گوید مخدوم المولی المعظم والامام الاعظم الخ.

It contains 102 kalimah in Arabic, each followed by a paraphrase or ترجمه; the Arabic original of each kalimah, besides being given in the text, is usually repeated at the top of the respective page.

The title given to this work, on fol. 1^a, is: کتاب زنج

زنج الغ بیک زنج سعید جدید گورگانی, on fol. 1^a in the immediately following copy it is simply styled (as the older edition too, see above) زنج الغ بیک, and at the top of fol. 1^b in the same more fully زنج الغ بیک زنج جدید گورگانی; it is also sometimes called زنج جدید گورگانی. The proper title, زنج سلطانی گورگانی, is confirmed by Barjandi (or Birjindi), see below, Nos. 2237–2239; the tables were compiled between A. H. 823 and 841 (A. D. 1420–1438). Other copies of the same are described in the Bodleian

Cat., Nos. 1515–1518; Rieu ii. p. 456 sq.; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 358 sq. The work was edited by Sédillot, Paris, 1847; French translation by the same, ib., 1853. Ff. 1–78 contain only tables; the text begins abruptly on fol. 110^a, the first words correspond to fol. 1^b, l. 5 ab infra in the preceding copy. There is besides a lacuna between ff. 144 and 101, comprising parts of the fourth and the eighth bâb and the whole of bābs 5–7 of the third makālah, and corresponding to fol. 119^a, l. 4 ab infra, middle, to fol. 121^a, l. 8 in the preceding copy.

Risālah dar ma'rifat-i-taḳwim (رساله در معرفت تقويم).

A treatise on the computation or construction of almanacks, by the same Nizām-al-din 'Abd-al'ali bin Muḥammad al-Barjandi (or Birjindi), who wrote the Sharḥ-i-Zuḥ-i-jadid-i-Sultāni (see above, No. 2237); it is divided into twenty bābs and was compiled A. H. 883, in the month of Jumādā-alawwal = A. D. 1478, August. According to the Munich copy, J. Aumer, p. 138, No. 5, the title of this treatise would be حلّ تقويم (but this is probably due to a confusion with Muḥammad bin Fārisi's treatise of similar name and contents, see further below, Nos. 2248 and 2249); the Bodleian copies, Nos. 1539 and 1540 of the Bodleian Cat., style it مختصر در معرفت تقويم; comp. on Barjandi (or Birjindi) and his various works, especially Rieu ii. p. 453^b, where the present treatise is mentioned too; another tract on the distance and sizes of planets quoted there is no doubt identical with the رساله هيئت, described in No. 1541 of the Bodleian Cat.

Tarjuma-i-Khulâsat-alḥisâb (ترجمة خلاصة الحساب).

A Persian paraphrase of and commentary on Bahâ-aldin Muḥammad bin Ḥusain 'Âmilî's (died A.H. 1030 = A.D. 1621) famous Arabic work on arithmetic, styled خلاصة الحساب. On the Arabic original, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 220^b sq.; Arabic Cat. of the British Museum, p. 622^b; Cat. des MSS. et Xyl., p. 230; J. Aumer, p. 138, No. 6; H. Khalifa iii. p. 168, etc.; on the author, Bahâ-aldin 'Âmilî, with the takhalluṣ Bahâ'i, Nos. 1517-1520 above. To the various works of this prolific writer and poet, enumerated there (the wrong title مفتاح القلاع, given in the Safinah, see col. 829, l. 16 above, must be corrected into مفتاح الفلاح, a collection of prayers, which was translated into Persian by Jamâl-aldin Muḥammad bin Ḥusain Khwânsârî, who died A.H. 1125 = A.D. 1713, see Rieu, Supplement, pp. 4^b and 254^a; the مشرق العين and مشرق الشمس quoted there, col. 829, ll. 11 and 17, seem to be misspelt for مشرق الشمس, see G. Flügel iii. p. 510, l. 4; the تشریح الافلاك, on astronomy, with a Persian commentary under the title of تقریر الادراك, by Ṣadr-aldin Muḥammad ibn al-Ṣādiq alḥusainî, is noticed in Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 298^b; Arabic Cat. of the Brit. Mus., p. 244; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 76, last three lines; on the كچكول or كشكول, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 241^a sq., and G. Flügel i. p. 409 sq.; the رسالة اصطولات, col. 829, l. 11, is probably identical with the Persian treatise on the Astrolabe noticed in Bodleian Cat., No. 1508), may further be added: العروة الوثقى, التهذيب, الزبدة فى الأصول, الجبل المتين, الصراط المستقيم, all quoted in G. Flügel iii. p. 510, ll. 4 and 5; بحار الانوار, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 59, note i; two Arabic letters to Mirzâ Ibrâhîm, the first interspersed with Persian verses, ib., p. 99, No. 2; and two Arabic riddles, one on قانون, the other on كافية, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 298^a, No. V. The present work contains:

The Arabic text with Persian paraphrase and exposition, in a muḥaddimah, ten bâbs, and a khâtimah, prefaced by a short Persian introduction, which, however, does not give any translator's name, and beginning, حمدی که هیچ عددی احصای آن نکند و شکرى که هیچ محاسبى بمنتهای او نرسد مر واجب الوجودى راست که ذات احدیتش الخ.

Muḥaddimah, on fol. 2^b, last line.

Bâb X (فى مسائل متفرقة بطرق مختلفة), on fol. 111^b. Khâtimah, on fol. 129^a.

This copy was made by order of Khwâjah Muḥammad Maḥfūẓkhân for the perusal of Nawwâb 'Abd-al-wahhâbkhân Bahâdur, by Muḥammad Ghiyâth-aldin, an inhabitant of Zuhûrâbâd in the district of Ghâzipûr, an appendage of the Ṣubâh of Allâhâbâd, and finished by him in Arcot (اركان) the 27th of Rajab, A.H. 1107 (A.D. 1696, March 2). It is rather incorrectly written, especially in the Arabic part. Many headings of subdivisions are left blank. The Khulâsat-alḥisâb has been edited, Arabic and Persian with commentary, Calcutta, 1812, and Constantinople, A.H. 1268. Arabic text with German translation by Nesselmann, Berlin, 1843. Part of another Persian paraphrase and explanation of the Khulāṣat-alḥisāb, together with the Arabic text, made by Nizām-al-dīn Aḥmad bin Muḥammad 'Abdallāh alshahid (see ff. 2^a, ll. 4-5; 2^b, ll. 2 and 7) at the request of 'Abd-alwahrābkhān (probably the same for whose perusal the preceding copy was written, A. H. 1107 = A. D. 1696). This copy contains only the muḥaddimah, on fol. 9^a, and the first two bābs of the original, on ff. 14^b and 54^b. A collection of astronomical, astrological, and arithmetical treatises.

Contents:

1. An astronomical tract, styled: Risāla-i-sifaṣl dar 'ilm-i-nujūm (رساله سی فصل در علم نجوم), in thirty faṣls, defective at the beginning, on fol. 1^a. It is alleged to be by Khwājah Naṣir-al-dīn Ṭūsī (see No. 2231 above), but this statement is probably due to a confusion of this treatise with the well-known رساله سی فصل of the same author in No. 3 of the present copy, as no astronomical or astrological work of this title and with the same subdivision into thirty faṣls is known as having been written by the author in question. Dated the 8th of Jumādā-alawwal, A. H. 1004 (A. D. 1596, Jan. 9), by Bahā-al-dīn alḥusaini.

2. Risālah dar ma'rifat-i-Aṣṭarlāb (رساله در معرفت اسطرلاب), that is Naṣir-al-dīn Ṭūsī's famous treatise on the Astrolabe, known as باب بیست (or رساله), on account of the twenty bābs, into which it is divided; it begins on fol. 34^b with an introduction, setting forth the meaning, etc. of the term Astrolabe باید دانست.

که اسطرلاب بلغت یونانی تراژوست الخ itself begins on fol. 38^b: استلک توفیق الاتمام یا ذا الفضل: الفصل: اما بعد این مختصریست در معرفت اسطرلاب الخ.

Dated the 21st of Muḥarram, A. H. 1081 (A. D. 1670, June 10). Other copies of the same are noticed in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1503-1505; Rieu ii. p. 453^a, and Supplement, p. 111, II; Cat. des MSS. et Xyl., pp. 112 and 306; W. Pertsch, No. 38; Berlin Cat., p. 69 (No. 22, 1); A. F. Mehren, p. 9; comp. also H. Khalfā ii. p. 83, No. 2027.

3. Mukhtaṣar dar ma'rifat-i-takwīm (مختصر در معرفت تقویم), that is Naṣir-al-dīn Ṭūsī's well-known treatise on the computation of almanacks, known as (or رساله) کتاب, on account of the thirty faṣls, into which it is divided, and completed A. H. 658 (A. D. 1260). Beginning, on fol. 52^b: الحمد لله رب العالمين . . . اما بعد این مختصریست در معرفت تقویم مشتمل بر سی فصل الخ.

Dated the 3rd of Ṣafar, A. H. 1081 (A. D. 1670, June 22). Other copies of the same are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1511 and 1512; Rieu ii. p. 452^b; G. Flügel ii. p. 490 (i); Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat., iii. p. 148, etc.; comp. also H. Khalfā iii. p. 642, No. 7352. On an Arabic version of the same, see Arabic Cat. of the Brit. Mus., p. 188. A Persian commentary by Badr-alṭabari is noticed in G. Flügel ii. p. 490 (2); an anonymous one in Rieu, loc. cit.; see also No. 1 in the following copy.

4. Madkhal-i-manẓūm dar 'ilm-i-nujūm (مدخل منظوم), a versified treatise on astrology in mathnawī-baits, on fol. 63^b, beginning:

مرد دانا سخن ادا نکند تا بنام حق ابتدا نکند

An author's name does not appear (it might be Mubā'ak, comp. H. Khalfā v. p. 472). Other copies of this treatise are described in Bodleian Cat., No. 1549, and Rieu ii. pp. 801^a, IV, and 811^b, III.

5. Muntakhab-i-Khulāṣat-alḥisāb (منتخب خلاصة الحساب), the same abridged Persian paraphrase of Bahā-al-dīn 'Amīlī's Arabic work on arithmetic, as in the preceding copy, by Luṭf-allāh Muhandis, here styled simply منتخب or الحساب, on fol. 71^b. 6. Some arithmetical tables, on ff. 110^b-116^b.

7. Sirāj-alistikhrāj (سراج الاستخراج), an astronomical treatise by Farid, the astronomer of Dihli, that is Mullā Farid-al-dīn Mas'ūd bin Ḥāfiẓ Ibrāhīm, the author of the astronomical tables of Shāhjahān, styled زنج شاهجهانی (see Rieu ii. p. 459 sq.; and iii. p. 1088^a), on fol. 118^b. It is divided into a muḥaddimah, nine bābs, and a khātimah, and begins: حمد مبدعی را سزد که مهندس قدرت کامله اش در ارقام درجات مخلوقات دقیقه الخ.

Farid-al-dīn compiled this treatise A. H. 1006 (A. D. 1597, 1598), and died A. H. 1039 (A. D. 1629); see another copy in Bodleian Cat., No. 1556. Dated the 22nd of Rabi'-ulawwal, A. H. 1169 (A. D. 1755, Dec. 26).

Two astronomical treatises.

1. Ff. 1-99^b: a defective copy of a commentary on Naṣir-al-din Ṭūsī's مختصر در معرفت تقویم or کتاب سی و فصل, see No. 3 in the preceding copy. It seems to be styled Ḥall-altakwim dar 'ilm-i-nujūm (در حلّ التقویم در علم النجوم), and begins abruptly thus: اجتماع کواکب بآول حمل و میزان که سبب توسط زمین باشد الخ. The original text is written in red ink, the commentary in black. Whether the latter is identical with one of the two commentaries, quoted in the preceding copy, is impossible to say, as the initial words are missing. Dated in Dhū-alka'dah, A. H. 878 (A. D. 1474, March-April).

2. Ff. 102^b-140^b: Miftāḥ-i-bist bāb (مفتاح بیست باب), the same commentary on Naṣir-al-din Ṭūsī's treatise on the Astrolabe in twenty bābs (see No. 2 in the preceding copy), as that described in Bodleian Cat., No. 1506, by an anonymous author, beginning: حمد بی حد و ثنای بی عدد واجب الوجودی را که ذهن انسان و عقل ایشان را قوت داد الخ. The Bodleian copy is dated A. H. 856 (A. D. 1452), which may be the author's autograph; the present copy is dated in Muḥarram, A. H. 879 (A. D. 1474, May-June). Two other commentaries are known, one by Nizām-al-din bin Ḥabīb-allāh Ḥusaini, composed A. H. 873 (A. D. 1468, 1469), mentioned by Ḥ. Khalfa, the other by 'Abd-al'ali bin Muḥammad bin Husain al-Barjandi or Birjindi (see above, No. 2237 sq.), completed A. H. 890 (A. D. 1485), see Rieu ii. p. 453^b, and Supplement, p. 111, No. V.

No. 965, ff. 1-140, ll. 21; small Naskhi; size, 6½ in. by 3½ in.

The present work is divided into a muḳaddimah, two makâlas, and a khâtimah, and begins: وَبَعَثَ اللهُ تَعَالَى عَلَيَّ طَلِبَهُ وَأَوْصَلَكَ إِلَى مَعْرِفَتِهِ الخ.

Burhān-alkifāyat (برهان الکفایة).

A detailed and extensive work on the mysterious influence and effect of the stars on human destiny, compiled by 'Alī bin Muḥammad alsharif albakrī.

Beginning: الحمد لله الذی خلق الخلق علی غیر مثال
بعزته الخ

Whether this work is identical with the کتاب برهان الکفایة, quoted in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 364, l. 1, as one of the authorities of the احکام الاعوام, seems doubtful; but if so, it would be one of the oldest Persian works on astrological matters extant, belonging to the seventh century of the Hijrah. The arrangement of the subdivisions is somewhat confused; bābs, fašls, wajhs, etc. appear indiscriminately; but the following fourteen bābs are the most conspicuous and distinct sections:

1. A preliminary bāb (without special heading), in thirteen fašls, on fol. 2^a; the first fašl deals with the معرفت نگریستن اندر مسئله که درست آمد الخ.

2. باب در بیرون آوردن خبی, on fol. 12^b.

3. باب مفاتیح العضا, on fol. 19^a, in twenty-five fašls, including the chapter: البرج الطالع وفیه من المسائل,
on fol. 30^b.

4. البرج الثانی من الطالع, on fol. 44^a, in eleven fašls.

5. البرج الثالث من المطالع وما فیه الخ,
in eight fašls.

6. البرج الرابع من الطالع الخ, on fol. 56^a, in sixteen
fašls.

7. البرج الخامس من المطالع, on fol. 67^b, in fifteen fašls.

8. البرج السادس من المطالع, on fol. 75^a, in twenty-seven fašls.

9. البرج السابع من المطالع, on fol. 90^a, in ninety-five fašls.

10. البرج الثامن من الطالع, on fol. 137^a, in nine
fašls.

11. البرج التاسع من الطالع, on fol. 142^b, in twenty-seven fašls.

12. البرج العاشر من الطالع, on fol. 155^b, in twenty-three fašls.

13. البرج الحادی عشر من الطالع, on fol. 177^a, in eight fašls.

14. البرج الثانی عشر من الطالع, on fol. 183^a, in fourteen fašls.

This copy is dated A. H. 1089 (A. D. 1678). Between ff. 21 and 22 there is inserted a fragment of another treatise on similar topics, styled Miftāḥ-alnujūm (مفتاح التنجیم), in nine bābs, the first of which is headed در بیان کواکب, etc. In the middle of the fifth bāb this fragment, consisting of eight leaves, ll. 17-18, written in careless Nasta'liq (size, 9¾ in. by 6 in.), breaks off.

Miftāḥ-alda'awāt (مفتاح الدعوات).

A very defective copy of Wajih-al-dīn's 'Key of invocations and conjurations,' a book dealing with all kinds of hidden sciences, magic art, exorcisms, interpretation of dreams, fortune-telling, etc., commenced by the author the 15th of Rajab, A. H. 1006 (see fol. 2^a) =
A. D. 1598, Febr. 21. This copy is imperfect in the beginning, middle, and end; part of the preface is missing.

The mukaddimah (در بیان آغاز علم دعوت و نام)
در علم (نهادن او) is found on fol. 2^b; the first makālah
(دعوت کلی و جزوی الخ) begins on fol. 3^a, and breaks off on fol. 5^b; the second maḳālah (در بیان اشغال و اذکار) is entirely missing; the third maḳālah (در تعبیر خواب و علم قیافه و غیره و علم طب) begins abruptly on fol. 6^a and fills the whole remainder of the copy, but even this is incomplete at the end, and two additional lacunas are found after ff. 93 and 109; the khātimah (در علاج شی و علم هندسی و بعضی فوائد) (از هر جنس شی) is again entirely wanting.

No. 1008, ff. 170, ll. 17; Nasta'lik; size, 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Diya'-al'uyūn (ضیاء العیون).

A treatise on the magic power and influence of certain passages and letters in the Kurān, as well as on the mystic peculiarities of Muḥammad's seal of prophetic mission (مهر نبوت), by Abū-almafākhīr Nizām-al-dīn Muḥammad Ḥādī alḥusainī alṣawafī, styled Shāh Mirzā, with the epithet of Mirzā Maḥdikhān Ṣafawī (see fol. 1^b). The title appears on fol. 1^b, l. 1, and fol. 2^a, l. 5 ab infra. According to the Bodleian copy (Bodleian Cat., No. 1563) the treatise was composed at Ḥaidarābād, A.H. 1114 (A.D. 1702, 1703). It is illustrated by many figures and representations of talismans, and divided into a fātiḥah and two manẓars:

فاتیحه در بیان صوره مهر نبوت سید انبیاء و سرور اصفیاء
محمّد مصطفیٰ الخ on fol. 2^a.

منظر اوّل در تکسیرات بعضی از سور و آیات قرآن مجید

Jawāmi'-i-Ibn Sirin (جوامع ابن سیرین).

One of the oldest Persian works on the interpretation of dreams, in fifty-nine bābs, by Sirāj-al-dīn Muḥammad bin Sirin, comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1570 (where this book and its probable author are discussed); A. F. Mehren, p. 45, No. 113 (where it is incorrectly styled خواب تعبیر), and Fleischer, Dresden Cat., p. 5, No. 30, and p. 13, No. 92. The title given to this work on the fly-leaf, the back of the binding, and at the top of fol. 1^a, viz. تعبیر نامه سلطانی, is entirely wrong, see No. 2277 below. It is quoted as one of the authorities both in the تعبیر کامل and the تعبیر نامۀ سلطانی (see the two immediately following copies). The present copy is defective at the beginning; it opens abruptly thus: . . . با رسول الله قال الرؤيا الصالحة: يريها الرجل الخ

Ff. 25^b and 26^a do not belong to this work, they are filled by another hand with bits of Rikhta poetry.

Fol. 124^b (the last page) must be inserted between ff. 123^b and 124^a. It concludes on fol. 124^a and is dated by 'Abd-alkarīm bin Naṣīr of Daulatābād, A.H. 897 (so at least the date seems to be; all diacritical points are omitted)=A.D. 1492. Many of the first and last leaves are severely injured and portions torn away.

No. 1360, ff. 124, ll. 13; Naskhi and Shikasta mixed; size, 8 in. by 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Kāmil-alta'bir (کامل التّعбір).

Another standard work on the interpretation of dreams, compiled by Shaikh Abū-alfadl Ḥusain bin Ibrāhīm bin Muḥammad of Tiflis, and dedicated by him to the Pādishāh of Rûm, Sultān Abū-alfath 'Izz-al-din Kilij Arslan bin Mas'ūd (who reigned A.H. 569-588 = A.D. 1173-1192), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1571, 3; and Bland's paper on the Science of Ta'bir, Journ. of the Royal As. Soc. xvi. pp. 124 and 155.

Beginning: سپاس مرخدا برا که واحد و صمد و قادرست و عالم مالک ذو الجلال و حتی فاطرست و رازق خلق و عالم ضمائرست الخ.

The work is based on the following authorities:

کتاب اصول دانیا (Bodleian Cat., No. 1571, 4).

کتاب تعبیر جاحظ بن اسحق.
کتاب جملة الدلائل و منامات.
کتاب مبادئ التّعبیر.

etc., کتاب کانی الرؤیا.

It is divided into the following sixteen faṣls:

9. در خوابی که فراموش گردد باشد, on fol. 11^b.
10. در گزاردن خواب بقول کرمانی, on fol. 12^b.
11. در معرفت خوابها که از حال بگردد باوقات و اختلاف هبّات, on fol. 12^b.

16. در دیدن خدای تبارک و تعالی و فرشتگان و بیغمبران, on fol. 17^a. Attached to this last faṣl is the largest and most important portion of the whole book, an alphabetical list of all the things which can be seen in dreams, with a detailed explanation of their meaning; this glossary begins with the letter l, on fol. 23^b, and goes down to the end, on fol. 285.

Dated A.H. 934 (A.D. 1527, 1528) by Ibn Abū Ishāq. Worm-eaten; some of the last leaves severely injured.

(تعبیرنامه سلطانى) Ta'birnāma-i-Sultānī.

This work appears to be in substance identical with the well-known royal book on the interpretation of dreams, the Ta'birnāma-i-Sultānī, by Kāḍī Isma'īl bin Nizām-almulk (compiled A.H. 763 = A.D. 1361-62, comp. H. Khalfa ii. p. 311, No. 3067). It is like that in alphabetical order and begins with the same word, آبادانی, on fol. 14^a, l. 1, as the Bodleian copy (Bodleian Cat., No. 1571). But all that precedes this alphabetical dictionary here is different from that copy. Instead of a preface and an introduction in two faṣls (each faṣl subdivided into ten nuktas) which are found there, we have here no preface whatever, nor any mention of the author, and the introduction simply consists of ten nuktas, the headings of which agree only in the last two with the ninth and tenth nukta of the second faṣl in the Bodleian copy.

Beginning: الحمد لله . . . اما بعد کتابیست در تعبیر نامه که علماء حکما مرتّب داشته اند که امر عظیم است و این کتاب برده نکته نهاده شد الخ.

No date. College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2037, ff. 352, ll. 17; large and clear Nasta'liq; size, 10½ in. by 6 in.

(خواب نامه) Khwābnāma.

A treatise on the interpretation of dreams, ascribed to the Imām Ja'far Ṣādiq, in thirty-seven very short bābs, beginning: الحمد لله . . . اما بعد که این کتاب در تفسیر خواب از امام جعفر صادق الخ.

It ends on fol. 211^b; fol. 212 contains the first two pages of a فالنامه, beginning: فالنامه معظم و مکرم اینست بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم روایت میکند امیر المؤمنین علی کرم الله وجهه میفرمایند الخ.

No. 3083, ff. 203-212, ll. 14; Naskhī, mixed with Shikasta; size, 7¾ in. by 5¾ in.

Miscellanies.

1. Ta'birnāma (تعبیرنامه), a treatise on the interpretation of dreams, in mathnawī-baits, with a short preface in prose; the first bait runs thus:

III. MEDICINE.

Dhakhira-i-Khwārizmshāhi (ذخیره خوارزمشاهی).

The first volume of the 'Treasure of the Khwārizmshāh,' that is the oldest thesaurus of the whole medical science in Persian, composed by Zain-aldin Abū Ibrāhīm Isma'il bin al-Ḥusain (more correctly, according to other copies, bin al-Ḥasan) bin Muḥammad bin Aḥmad (or, as most other copies read, bin Aḥmad bin Muḥammad) alhusaini aljurjāni, who entered the service of the first Khwārizmshāh (or rather governor of Khwārizm under the Saljūki Sultān Sanjar), styled here Arslan Takin Yamin-almulūk wa alsalāṭin Abū-alfath Muḥammad bin Yamin-almulūk (according to other copies: Yamin-almulk or Yamin-aldin, that is Nūstigin) Mu'in, with the honorary epithet Kutb-aldin (ruled A.H. 491-521 = A.D. 1098-1127), A.H. 504 (A.D. 1110, 1111), and dedicated this work to his sovereign. He died A.H. 531 or 535 (A.D. 1136, 1137, or 1140, 1141), comp. H. Khalfa i. p. 368; iii. pp. 162 and 330; vi. p. 507; Yāqūt's Mu'jam ii. p. 55; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. ii. p. 295; Wüstenfeld, Arabische Aerzte, p. 95, No. 165; Leclerc, Histoire de la médecine Arabe, ii. p. 18, etc. The fullest description of the work and details about the author and his royal patron are given in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1576-1578, and Rieu ii. pp. 466b and 467; other copies are noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 574-576; and E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 211; fragments of it in the Bibl. Italiana xlvii. p. 10, No. 158, and De Jong, Cat. Codd. Or. Bibl. Acad. Regiae, p. 228, note 2. The contents of the ninth kitāb are given in detail by Krafft, p. 147; see also H. Ethé, Neupersische Literatur, p. 367; Turkish translation by Abū-alfath Muḥammad bin Idris aldaftari, who died A.H. 982 (A.D. 1574, 1575).

The whole work was originally divided into nine bakhshs or kitābs, but afterwards the author added a tatimmah or tenth kitāb on the Materia Medica or simple and compound medicaments, usually styled in the first copy. Fraser 200 and 201, the reasons are given, why this last kitāb was added at a later time. A striking proof of the difference between the first or original and the second or enlarged recension of the work is given here on fol. 2^b, in the beginning of the general index, where immediately after the statement, that it comprises nine kitābs only, the full ten kitābs are enumerated without further remark.

The present copy contains only the first half of the work, viz. the first five kitābs:

I. Definition of medicine and structure of the human body (کتاب اول اندر شناختن حدّ عام طب و منفعت آن) و شناختن گوهر تن مردم و چگونگی آن و شناختن مادتها و خلطها و چهارگانه و مزاجها و احوال عادتها و تشریح گفتار, in six گفتار, on fol. 3^b.

II. Health and disease of the human body (کتاب دوم)

III. Preservation of health (کتاب سیوم اندر بیان) کردن تدبیر و نگاهداشتن نندرتی و تدبیر هوا و مسکن و شناختن احوال آنها و تدبیر طعام و شراب و تدبیر خواب و بیداری و تدبیر حرکت و سکون و شناختن احوال کسوتها و عطرها و سپرغمها و بکار داشتن روغنها و تدبیر گفتار, in seven گفتار (قی کردن و داروهای مهمل خوردن الخ, on fol. 163^b.

IV. Diagnosis of diseases, etc. (کتاب چهارم اندر بیان) کردن استخراج مرض یعنی شناختن هر بیماری که آن کدام است و همچنین شناختن نصیح و بُحرانها و شناختن گفتار, in four گفتار (آنچه حال بیماری چون خواهد بود الخ, on fol. 333^b.

V. Fevers and their cure (کتاب پنجم اندر بیان کردن) تب و انسامها و انواع آن و بیان کردن احوال و اسباب تب, in six گفتار (و معالجت آن جمله, on fol. 369^b.

الحمد لله حمد الشاکرين والصلوة على سيد المرسلين وآله الطاهرين وسلم تسليمًا چون تقدیر ایزد تعالی چنان بود که جمع کنندۀ این کتاب بندۀ دعاگوی خداوند خوارزم شاه اجل عالم الخ. No date.

No. 995, ff. 446, ll. 21; inelegant Nasta'liq; small illuminated frontispiece; size, 11 in. by 6½ in.

2281

A fragment of the same first volume of the Dhakhira-i-Khwārizmshāhi.

This copy only goes down towards the end of the fifteenth bāb of the fifth Guftār of the second kitāb; the first kitāb begins on fol. 3^b; the second on fol. 60^b. The author's name is given here on fol. 2^a, ll. 2 and 3, in this strange form: Isma'il bin Aḥmad bin al-Ḥusain bin al-Ḥusaini bin Muḥammad aljurjāni.

No. 131, ff. 96, ll. 26; written by three different hands, the first (on ff. 1-18^a, l. 5) in Naskhi; the second (on ff. 18^a, l. 5-24^b, last line), and the third (on ff. 25-96) in Nasta'liq; size, 13½ in. by 7¾ in.

Dhakhira-i-Khwārizmshāhi (ذخیره خوارزمشاهی).

The second volume of the same 'Treasure of the Khwārizmshāh,' in the first or original recension, comprising the sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth kitābs of the whole work.

VI. Diseases of the limbs and their cure (کتاب ششم) گفتار, in twenty-one گفتار (اندر علاج بیماریها از سرتا بپای, on fol. 2^b. A detailed index of this kitāb is found on ff. 1^b and 2^a.

VII. Tumours, ulcers, scabs, etc., and their cure (مقاله هفتم در اورام و بشور و جرب الخ) (more correctly, as in all the other kitābs, گفتار), on fol. 520^a.

VIII. Preservation of the external parts of the body (کتاب هشتم اندرزنت و آراستگی ظاهرتن مردم از سر) (تا بای و غیره), in three گفتار, on fol. 589^b.

IX. Poisons and antidotes (کتاب نهم اندر دفع) (سمائم؟) (سمائم؟) و منافع حیوانات, on fol. 609^a. This ninth kitāb contains in the present copy six مقاله, i.e. the five which correspond to the five گفتار in the first Bodleian copy (Fraser 200 and 201) and the five مقاله in the second (Laud. Or. 155), and a sixth which deals with the various medical uses of the different limbs of animals (احوال منافع حیوانات), in alphabetical order, beginning with انسان, on fol. 621^b. This supplement forms in Fraser 200 and 201 the first portion of the tatimmah or tenth kitāb, in Laud. Or. 155 on the other hand, just as in the Berlin copy, it is inserted between the ninth and the tenth kitāb. Like the latter (the second) Bodleian copy, the fifth مقاله or گفتار of the ninth kitāb comprises here seven bâbs only, whereas in Fraser 200 and 201 it is subdivided into eleven. The author's statement about the reasons of the delay in the completion of his work (see above in No. 2280), and the whole tenth kitāb, are naturally missing here, as they did not exist in the original recension.

Dated by Muḥammad Ṣābiḥ the 7th of Ṣafar in the twenty-sixth year (of whose reign, is not stated).

No. 996, ff. 628, written by five different hands in various styles of Naskhi and Shikasta; the first on ff. 1-72, ll. 27; the second on ff. 73-264, 466-468, and 520-628, ll. 17; the third on ff. 265-318, ll. 16; the fourth on ff. 319-465, 469-480, and 483-502, ll. 16; the fifth (Shikasta) on ff. 481, 482, and 503-519, ll. 17-19; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b and 42^b; a great number of leaves damaged at the top and carefully mended afterwards; size, 10 in. by 6½ in.

An incomplete copy of the same second volume of the Dhakhira-i-Khwārizmshāhi.

This copy, belonging to the second or enlarged recension, is not only full of blanks and lacunas and damaged in many places, especially on the last pages, but exhibits the most extraordinary heedlessness in the arrangement of leaves; they are misplaced to such an extent as almost to baffle any endeavour to set them right again. The proper order, so far as it is possible to find out, appears to be this: ff. 239^a, 32-38, 159-164, 9-31, 98-105, 1-8, 85-97, 77, 78-84, 43, 44, 39-42, 45, 46, 117-122, 47-76, 123-158, 111-116, 106-110, 165-238.

Kitāb VI (in twenty-one گفتار) begins on fol. 239^a; there are lacunas after ff. 8, 97, 77, and 76; the missing portions are: the end of Guftār 2 (from the third bâb of the seventh juz'), the whole of Guftārs 3 and 4 and the beginning of Guftār 5 (to the middle of the second bâb of the third juz'); the end of Guftār 7 and beginning of Guftār 8 (to the middle of the second bâb); the end of Guftār 17 (from the second bâb) and the beginning of Guftār 18 (to the eleventh bâb of the first juz').

Kitāb VII, on fol. 114^b; there are lacunas after ff. 116 and 107; the missing portions are: the sixth bâb of the first juz' of Guftār 1, the end of Guftār 1 (from the fourth bâb of the third juz') and the greater part of Guftār 2.

Kitāb VIII, on fol. 180^b.

Kitāb IX, on fol. 187^b. Both complete.

The fifth Guftār of the ninth kitāb has here, since the copy represents the second or enlarged recension, eleven bâbs just as the first Bodleian copy. After that follows the same supplementary chapter, as in the preceding copy, styled گفتار اندر منافع اعضاء حیوانات, beginning on fol. 199^b with انسان.

On fol. 202^a the Kitāb X on simple drugs and compound medicaments begins, styled کتاب قرابادین, in two گفتار, viz.:

1. اندر یاد کردن نامۀ داروهای مفردة الخ, in thirty-eight bâbs.

2. اندر یاد کردن داروها و معجونهای مرکب, in thirty-one bâbs, on fol. 222^a.

The explanation of the delay in the completion of the work, although promised by the author to be given at the end (see fol. 198^b), is again missing here.

Dated by Nizām-al-dīn Sa'id-almulk al-'Aṭṭār in the month of Dhū-al-hijjah, A.H. 989 (A.D. 1582, Jan.).

No. 1644, ff. 1-239, ll. 31; Naskhi; size, 14½ in. by 9¾ in.

Kitāb-i-Qarābādīn (کتاب قرابادین).

Another complete copy of the tenth kitāb or tatimmah of the ذخیرۀ خوارزمشاهی, on simple drugs and compound medicaments.

It begins (exactly as in the preceding copy, on fol. 202^a): بیا بد دانست که نخست که بجمع ذخیرۀ خوارزمشاهی مشغول گشته آمد آن بود که این کتاب الخ.

First Guftār, in thirty-eight bâbs, on fol. 1^a; second Guftār, in thirty-one bâbs, on fol. 53^b.

No date. A fragment of the same in Bodleian Cat., No. 2378.

No. 1661, ff. 145, ll. 23; Nasta'liq, written by two different hands, the second of which, beginning on fol. 89, is much more distinct and regular than the first; size, 12½ in. by 6¾ in.

2285

Karābādīn-i-Dhakhira-i-Khwārizmshāhi (قرابادین ذخیرۀ خوارزمشاهی).

Another treatise on drugs and medicaments, compiled according to the title from the same, 'Treasure of the Khwārizmshāh,' but not identical with that, as it is divided into five maqālas and a khātimah.

It begins with the theriac (ترباق), or rather the special kind of it, called نربان کیمبر; at the end there is an appendix on the حلواى تخم مرغ or egg-pudding, on fol. 87^a.

Dated in the reign of Aḥmadshāh (A.H. 1161-1167 = A.D. 1748-1754).

No. 1997, ff. 13^a-94^b, ll. 15; careless Nasta'liq, mixed with Shikasta; size, 8¾ in. by 6 in.

Aghrâd-altıbb (اغراض الطب).

The aims and objects of medicine, another vast and elaborate thesaurus of medical science, by the author of the ذخیره خوارزمشاهی, compiled partly on the basis of that work, but enriched and enlarged in many directions. The author, whose name is given here as Isma'il bin al-Husain alhusaini Jurjâni, wrote it at the request of the vizier of Abû-ahnu'azzar Atsiz bin Khwârizmshâh (the son of Isma'il's earlier patron, who succeeded his father in A.H. 521=A.D. 1127, and ruled till A.H. 551=A.D. 1156), Majd-al-din Abû Muhammad Şâhib bin Muhammad albukhârî, and divided it into two distinct parts.

The first part, or بخش اول, is an abridgement of the Dhakhira-i-Khwârizmshâhi and is subdivided into two volumes (جلد).

The first جلد contains the following fifteen گفتار:

1. Definition of medicine (در یاد کردن حدّ طب و موضوع و منفعت آن الخ), on fol. 10^b, in nineteen bâbs.
2. The simple members of the body (در شناختن اندامهای بسیط), on fol. 18^b, in seven bâbs.
3. The compound members of the body (در شناختن اندامهای مرکب), on fol. 26^b, in seventeen bâbs.

It is dedicated to Sulṭān Zain-al-'ābidin of

It is sometimes styled کفایۃ منصورى (as on the fly-leaf of this copy, and on fol. 1^a in the following copy, also in the lithographed edition, Lucknow, A. H. 1290).

The first fann is subdivided into two sections (قسم), viz.:

قسم دوم در طب عملی.

The first قسم (on theoretical medicine) contains a mukaddimah (ou fol. 7^a) and four chapters (مقاله) viz.:

2300

Another defective copy of the same.

This copy opens abruptly with the last words of the preface and the first words of the fihrist or index, on fol. 2^a (fol. 1 must be placed after fol. 3), corresponding to fol. 4^a, last line, and fol. 4^b, first line, in No. 2297.

First fann: kism I, in a mukaddimah (missing here on account of a lacuna after fol. 1) and four makâlas (the first of which is lacking the first three bâbs on account of the same lacuna, comprising ff. 7^a-10^b in No. 2297), on ff. 13^a (second), 16^a (third), and 27^a (fourth); kism II, in five makâlas, on ff. 38^a, 56^b, 145^b, 158^a, and 175^a.

In the first bāb of the fifth maḳālah the copy breaks off on fol. 143^b, l. 5, and continues immediately (in the same line, by some gross oversight, caused no doubt by some similar words) in the second bāb of the second maḳālah of the second fann, so that there are missing: part of the first bāb and the remaining three bābs of the fifth maḳālah of the second kism of the first fann; the whole first maḳālah of the second fann, the first bāb of the second maḳālah, and a few lines of the second bāb of the same (= 39½ pages of No. 2297, from fol. 202^b, l. 5 ab infra, to fol. 222^a, l. 4). No. 1207, ff. 282, ll. 12-16; written by many different hands, chiefly in various styles of very uncouth and often very incorrect Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

The present work deals with the special diseases of all the various parts of the human body and suggests the necessary cures for each. According to fol. 57^a, l. 3, it was completed in Rabi' I, A. Tahfa-i-Kbānī (تحفة کبانی).

A general and comprehensive work on medicine, compiled by Mahmūd bin Muḥammad 'Abdallāh bin 'Abdallāh bin Mahmūd Nūr-allāh, who came A. H. 902 (A. D. 1496, 1497) to Shirāz and studied there medical science under Maulānā Jalāl-ahmillat wa-aldin Muḥammad, Mahmūd Nūr-allāh, and others for three years. Then he began to compile this book, which he dedicated to Sultān Sa'id Bahādurkhān (identical, as it seems, with Sultān Sa'idkhān, the grandson of Yūnuskhān of the Čaghatāi line, who afterwards in A. H.

920=A. D. 1514 became ruler of Kāshghar and reigned there till his death in A. H. 939=A. D. 1532. 1533, see Rieu i. p. 165^a), and divided into four bābs and one faṣl, viz.:

باب اوّل در بیان قسمی علمی و عملی ازین فنّ (on theoretical and practical medicine in general).

باب دوم در بیان امراض مختصّه باعضای انسان (on the diseases of the various organs of the body).

باب سیوم در بیان امراض مختصّه بررجال و نسا (on special diseases of men and women).

باب چهارم در بیان امراض عامّه که اختصاص بعضی (on general diseases).

فصل در بیان باره از ادویه مفرده و مرکبه و خواصّ بعضی (on some simple and compound medicaments, the qualities of certain animals and the injuries they can inflict).

The first bāb begins on fol. 2^b; all the other headings are wanting. On fol. 161^b a second part of the work begins, apparently with the fourth bāb. The faṣl is missing altogether. The copy is, according to fol. 1^a, ll. 4 and 5: راقم این سواد حقیر قلیل البضاعة محمود بن محمد نور الله، the first rough sketch or 'brouillon' of the work by the author himself, and we may conjecture that some unknown reasons prevented him from finishing his task.

Beginning: الحمد لله الذی خلق الانسان فی احسن تقویم الخ.

Ff. 159-164 greatly injured by worms.

No. 1166, ff. 251, ll. 13; Shikasta; size, 9 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. by 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

H. 937-963=A. D. 1530-1556), compiled in A. H. 940 (A. D. 1533, 1534) the well-known work on epistolary art, styled بدائع الانشا (see Nos. 2057-2060 above). The present treatise is a kind of commentary or rather a supplement and amplification to a larger book by the same author, the علاج الامراض, a versified handbook of therapeutics, see fol. 2^a, last line; comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1591; Rieu ii. p. 475, and iii. p. 1089^a; and see also Fleischer, Cat. Lips., p. 511; Kraft, p. 148; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. iii. pp. 279 and 280; Mélanges Asiatiques v. p. 261; and H. Khalfā ii. p. 564. The principal part of this treatise ends on fol. 97^a, and as date of composition is given here A. H. 910 (نهد وده) = A. D. 1504, 1505, whereas the Bodleian copy has A. H. 917=A. D. 1511, 1512 (both in the reign of Sultān Bābar, A. H. 899-937=A. D. 1494-1530). On ff. 97^b-102^a a short appendix is given, styled فائده.

into a muḥaddimah and two maḳālas, and beginning, on fol. 184^b: سياسي جون انفس عيسوي روح برورد جان. فزا سزای بارگاه کبریاي خالقيست الخ. Similar treatises are noticed in Rieu ii. p. 844^b, No. VI, by Nūr-allāh 'Alā, composed A. H. 944 (A. D. 1537, 1538): ib. ii. p. 844^a, No. II, and Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1598 and 1599, by Kādi bin Kāshif-al-din Muḥammad Yazdi, who wrote in the last years of Shāh 'Abbās' reign, and died A. H. 1075 (A. D. 1664, 1665).

2. Tuḥfat-i-Sulaimāni (تحفة سليمان), a treatise on zedoary, the bezoar-stone, and mummia or mummy (جدوار و فادزمر و موميائي), and their respective qualities, divided into three bābs, and beginning, on fol. 249^b: اجناس سپاس بيفياس حکيمي را سزاست که باقتضاء حکمت الخ. Other tracts on the bezoar-stone are noticed in Rieu ii. p. 844^b, Nos. VII and VIII.

Both treatises are composed by Muḥammad Ḥāshim bin Muḥammad Ṭāhir, the physician of Tih-rān, and both are dedicated to Shāh Sulaimān Safāwi, see No. 2328 above. As date of composition for the second the following chronogram appears on fol. 252^b: تحفة سليمان که اگر تاء ثانی موقوف بهمان عدد حساب شود تاریخ اتمام است, which seems to give A. H. 1079 (A. D. 1668, 1669).

Tibb-i-Akbari (طبّ اکبری).

A Persian translation and amplification of the Arabic work on the treatment of diseases, styled شرح اسباب و علامات, or more correctly الاسباب والعلامات, composed by Nafis bin 'Iwāḍ Kirmāni, A. H. 827 (A. D. 1424), and dedicated to Mirzā Ulughbeg (see O. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 229^b, and Arabic Cat. of the British Museum, p. 224). The الاسباب والعلامات themselves were compiled by Najib-aldin Abū Ḥāmid Muḥammad bin 'Alī Samanḳandī, who died A. H. 619 (A. D. 1222), see Gotha, Arabic Cat., No. 1954 sq. The present translation, for which there were also consulted and excerpted other Arabic and Persian standard works on medicine, among the latter the خزیره خوارزمشاهی (see

No. 2280 sq. above) and the کفایه مجاهدیه (see No. 2297 sq. above), was made by Muḥammad Akbar, commonly known as Muḥammad Arzāni, the son of Mir Ḥājī Muḥammad Mukim, A. H. 1112 (A. D. 1700, 1701), and dedicated to the emperor 'Ālamgir. The title, as given here, is طبت اکبری; in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 576-578, طبت اکبر; in Rieu ii. p. 478^b sq., طبت اکبر; comp. also Fleischer, Dresden Cat., No. 345. Other medical works of the same Muḥammad Akbar or Muḥammad Arzāni are: the میزان الطب or میزان طب (see Bodleian Cat., No. 1612; Rieu ii. p. 479^b; edited at Calcutta, 1836, at Cawnpore, 1874, and at Lucknow, without a date); the میزان طب (see below, Nos. 2342 and 2343); the مفترحات القلوب (printed at Lucknow, fourth edition, 1883); the طبت التبی; the تعاريف الامراض; and the قربادین فادری (completed A. Another very similar, but incomplete, work on practical medicine, or tested cures and remedies for diseases of the various parts of the human body from the head downwards, by Muhammad Husain Nûr-bakhshi. But very few of these bâbs are marked in the text. The beginning is missing—the work opens in the first bâb, on diseases of the head and brain, headache, etc. The last two leaves are supplied by a more modern hand. Many little injuries throughout, partly repaired by later hands too.

Niṣāb-al-ṣibyān (نصاب الصبيان).

The well-known metrical Arabic-Persian vocabulary by Abū Naṣr Farāhi (of the town of Farah in Sijistān), whose full name is given in G. Flügel i. p. 112, ou the statement of H. Khalfa vi. p. 346, No. 13801 (comp. ib. ii. p. 559), as Abū Naṣr Maṣ'ūd bin Abibakr bin Ḥusain bin Ja'far al-Farāhi, whereas in Fleischer, Cat. Lips., p. 333, he is called Badr-al-din (Muhammad Badr-al-din in H. Blochmann, Contributions, p. 7, and in Bodleian Cat., No. 1640) Abū Naṣr (Abū Naṣri in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 215) al-Raji (because he was buried in Raj) al-Farāhi; in the first Bodleian copy, Bodleian Cat., No. 1636, Abū Naṣr Farāhi Maṣ'ūd bin Ḥasan bin Ḥusain aladabi; and in No. 2381 below, Abū Naṣr Muhammad al-Farāhi. It is the most popular school-book in the East, especially in India; for other copies, besides those quoted already, see Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1637-1639; Rieu ii. pp. 504 and 506; J. Aumer. p. 112; W. Pertsch, p. 5 (No. III, 2), and Berlin Cat., p. 214; comp. also ib. p. 41, No. 22; p. 71, No. 1; and p. 153, No. 1; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 236, 254, and 256. It has been edited at Calcutta, 1819, and in Persia, A. H. 1268. The author flourished about A. H. 617 (A. D. 1220).

نام حق بر زبان همی رانم
که بجان و دلس همی خوانم

the initial words and the name of the author, given as Sharaf-al-din Bukhârî, prove its identity with the well-known مقدم الصلوة، مقدمات صلوة، also called مقدم الصلوة (so in the India Office copy of Ikhtiyâr bin Ghiyâthal-din's commentary on it, see further below in section V: Theology and Law), or simply نام حق، composed in the year 693 of the Rihlat, i.e. A. H. 703 = A. D. 1303, comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1767; G. Flügel i. p. 512; Rien i. p. 23^a; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 254; and A. F. Mehren, p. 6, No. VII (where the wrong date 393 of the Rihlat is given). It was copied by Kalb Muhyi-al-din. No. 76, ff. 77, ll. 6 (on ff. 1-68), ll. 15-16 (on ff. 68-75), ll. 11 (on ff. 76 and 77); Nasta'lik, by different hands; size, $9\frac{3}{8}$ in. by $5\frac{1}{8}$ in.

Sharh-i-Nisâb-al-sibyân (شرح نصاب الصبيان).

A Persian commentary on the preceding work by Nizâm bin Kamâl bin Jamâl bin Husâm alharawi, usually called Ibn Husâm (see fol. 96^b, line 9), beginning: سياس بى قياس مر قادى را که اساس حيوه اناس. It is incomplete at the end; the last bait, explained by the commentator, is: وَمَعَ اَنْ يَجَّهْ اَخْرَ الْحِج (corresponding to fol. 82^b, first line, in No. 2378 above).

Other copies of this commentary are noticed in Bodleian Cat., No. 1640, and in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 215. In another commentary (Bodleian Cat., No. 1641) the author of the present work is called Kamâl-al-din bin almarhûm bin Husâm alharawi, comp. also H. Khalfa vi. p. 346. No. 13801. A part of fol. 116^a and the whole of fol. 116^b are left blank.

No. 410, ff. 96-204, ll. 15; Nasta'lik; size, $8\frac{3}{8}$ in. by $4\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Sharh-i-Nisâb-al-sibyân (شرح نصاب الصبيان).

Another commentary on the same work by Muḥammad bin Faṣīl bin Muḥammad, known as Karim Dasht-i-Bayâdî Kūhistânî, who lived in the time of the emperor Akbar (see H. Blochmann, Contributions, p. 7), beginning: حمد و نثای نا محدود و شکر و ساس. نا محدود حضرت علیم معبود و کریم واجب الوجودی را که نصاب صبيان انسانرا الحق.

Other commentaries on the same book are those by 'Alî bin 'Umar bin 'Alî alnajjâr (Bodleian Cat., No. 1641); by Muḥammad bin Jalâl bin Sulaimân Kūhistânî (ib., No. 1643); by Muḥammad Sa'd (W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 216, No. 1); by Yûsuf bin Mânî (H. Blochmann, Contributions, p. 7); and various anonymous ones (one noticed in Bodleian Cat., No. 1642; and in E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 237 and 238; another in Bodleian Cat., No. 1644). The present commentary ends on fol. 108^b and is dated the 15th of Jumâdâ-alawwal, A. H. 1193 (A. D. 1779, May 31). On ff. 109^a-112^a another versified Arabic-Persian vocabulary, in form of a qasidah, is added, explaining the meaning of those Arabic words which can be spelt with the three different vowels a, i, and u, and styled Muthallath-allughât (مثلث اللغات) or Nişâb-i-muthallath (نصاب مثلث).

Beginning:

از پس حمد خداوند زمین و آسمان
کرده ام نظم مثلث چون لائی عمان

From these initial words it is evident that the versified vocabulary, styled نصاب بدیعی in Bodleian Cat., No. 1650, 1, is identical with the Muthallath.

The first triad of Arabic words explained in Persian is:

رَبِّ دَان پروردگار و رَبِّ دَان جمعی زخلق
رَبِّ آب خالص از انگور و سیب و نار دَان

Comp. W. Pertsch, Gotha Arabic Cat., No. 408 sq., and Berlin Cat., p. 216, No. 3 (where a commentary on this work by Muhammad Sa'd, the commentator of the نصاب الصبیان, is noticed).

No. 521, ff. 112, ll. 15; Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece; size, 8 in. by 4½ in.

2384

Muthallath-allughât (مثلث اللغات).

2386

Niṣâb-i-badi' (نصاب بدیع).

Another metrical Arabic-Persian vocabulary, in form of kit'as in various metres, a kind of primer for children in which, among other curiosities, the various meanings of such words are given as have the same form or sound in Arabic and Persian.

Beginning:

مصر شهر و شهر ماء و ماء آب و خوف سهم
سهم تیر و اجنحه چه بال باشد بال جان

Dated A.H. 1122 (A.D. 1710, 1711).

No. 1174, ff. 7, 2 coll., each ll. 14; Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

A commentary on the same work.

This commentary is due, according to the colophon, to Mullâ Sa'd 'Azimâbâdî, who is no doubt identical with Muhammad Sa'd, who wrote commentaries on the نصاب مثلث and the نصاب الصبیان, see No. 2383 above. The same commentary, but with a different beginning, is noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 216, No. 2.

Beginning here, on fol. 1^b: بعون عنایت الهی و فضل
دامنتهای در رنگ نصاب صبیان بالای هر قطعه دوبیت آید.

After an introductory part, beginning: القطعة الاولى
في التجنيس التام والتاقص للخط, on fol. 1^b, l. 4, the initial kit'ah of the original work is found on fol. 2^b, l. 2, مصر شهر الخ, with a full exposition of its meaning.

Dated by 'Abd-alṣamad 'Ali Muḥammad the 11th of Ṣafar, A.H. 1164 (here called the fourth year of the emperor Ahmadshâh's reign, more correctly the third, since his accession to the throne took place on the 27th of Rabi' II, A.H. 1161, at the death of his father Muḥammadshâh) = A.D. 1751, Jan. 9.

This copy belonged formerly to Sir Charles Wilkins.

No. 2537, ff. 1-40, ll. 15; Nasta'lik, mixed with Shikasta; size, 10½ in. by 6¾ in.

The well-known abridgement of Jauhari's famous Arabic dictionary, the Ṣihâḥ (or Ṣaḥâḥ, as others pronounce it, by Abû-alfadl Muḥammad bin 'Umar bin Khâlid, commonly known as Jamâl-alkurashî, with the Persian equivalents added to the Arabic words. It was completed the 16th of Ṣafar, A.H. 681 (A.D. 1282, May 26), in Kâshghar, see Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1645 sq. Other copies of the same are described in Rieu ii. p. 507; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 239 and 240; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. i. p. 69; O. Loth, Arabic Cat., pp. 282-283 (comprising eight other copies of the India Office Collection), etc. It has been edited in Calcutta, 1812-1815, in two volumes, and in Lucknow, A.H. 1289; comp. also H. Khalfâ iv. p. 102, and the Arabic Cat. of the British Museum, pp. 227 and 467. The last letter constitutes the باب, the first the فصل, as in the original.

A metrical Arabic-Persian vocabulary in the form of the نصاب الصبيان (see Nos. 2375-2381 above), divided into fifty kit'as, undoubtedly identical with the عقود الجواهر, noticed in Rieu ii. p. 507^b, and written, according to the account given in the preface of that copy, between A. H. 816-824 (A. D. 1413-1421) for Mirzā Ulughbeg Calabi, the son of the 'Uthmānī Sulṭān Muḥammad I, by an author who styles himself Rashid-al-din Watwāṭi; and also with the عقد الجواهر in the Bodleian Cat., No. 1676, which is wrongly ascribed there, on fol. 1^a, to a certain Murtād Moghul bin 'Alī Muhammadkhān. Tarjumat-alkāmūs (ترجمة القاموس).

A Persian paraphrase and detailed explanation of the introduction (دباجه) and the first bāb (باب همزه) of the famous Arabic dictionary Alkāmūs almuḥīṭ (القاموس المحيط) of Imām Majd-al-dīn Abū Ṭāhir Muḥammad bin Ya'qūb Firūzāhādī Shirāzī (who died A. H. 817 = A. D. 1414, 1415), compiled by Maulānā 'Abd-alrahmān bin Ḥasan (so distinctly, not Ḥusain, as in Stewart's Cat., see a few lines further down), who, according to the ta'rikh of his death, given on fol. 1^a, viz. استاد للبشر, died A. H. 1028 (A. D. 1619), see a reference to this translation in Rieu ii. p. 511^a (where, however, the slightly incorrect date, A. H. 1027, is given, a mistake in Stewart's Cat., p. 134, from which the notice is taken).

The full title of this copy is ترجمه دباجه قاموس از ترجمه دباجه تا آخر حرف الهمزه, see fol. 1^a.

It begins, without any preface, immediately with the initial words of the Arabic original: الحمد لله جميع محمد مر خدائراست عز وجل منطقي البلغاء باللقى في البوادي لغتي بوزن رتي جمع لغة و بوادي جمع باديه يعنى آنكه گویا گرداننده بلغارا بلغتهای فصیح بلیغ الخ. The first bāb begins on fol. 23^a, and goes down to the end of the copy. Occasionally marginal additions and glosses.

No date; but on the margin of the last page the following remark of a former reader is added: بلغت القراءة مع اخيه محمد احسن بن عبد القادر في يوم الاثنين في السابع عشر من شهر جمادى الاول سنة 1112 (A. H. 1162, 17th of Jumādā I) = A. D. 1749, May 5, a Monday.

The Arabic Kāmūs was printed in two volumes, 1817, at Calcutta. A later Persian translation by Muḥammad Ḥabīb-allāh was completed A. H. 1149 (A. D. 1736, 1737), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1674, and Rieu ii. p. 511.

No. 1014, ff. 98, ll. 17; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

Muntakhah-allughât-i-Shāhjahānī (منتخب اللغات شاهجهانی).

The most popular Arabic-Persian dictionary in India, compiled from the Kāmūs (see the preceding copy), the Ṣiḥāḥ and Ṣurāḥ (see Nos. 2388-2390 above), by 'Abd-alrashid bin 'Abd-alghafūr alḥusaini almadani altatawi, the author of the first critical Persian dictionary, the فرهنگ رشیدی (see further below), who was still alive in A. H. 1069 (A. D. 1658, 1659), in the reign of the emperor Shāhjahān, to whom it is dedicated, A. H. 1046

(A. D. 1636, 1637), according to the chronogram, منتخب بی بدیل, found at the end of some copies (see author's name and title of the book on ff. 6^a, l. 1, and 6^b, l. 6). It is sometimes styled Rashidī 'Arabī, to distinguish it from the author's Rashidī Pārsī, i. e. the Farhang-i-Rashidī, see Rieu ii. p. 501^a, and H. Blochmann, Contributions, bottom of p. 20.

Beginning of the preface: ستایش و سپاس مالک الملکی که تذکار آلی بی احصای و نعمای بی منتهای اش الخ.

The dictionary itself, which is arranged alphabetically in this way, that the first letter constitutes the bāb, and the last the faṣl, begins on fol. 7^a.

Other copies are described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1672 and 1673; Rieu ii. p. 510; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 200, No. 2; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 242; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. v. p. 150. A redaction of this work, arranged in the usual alphabetical form of European lexicons, was published by J. H. Taylor, Calcutta, 1816; other printed editions appeared ib. 1808 and 1836; Lucknow, 1835, 1845, and A. H. 1286; lithographed at Bombay, 1862.

This copy is dated the 22nd of Jumādā-althānī, A. H. 1103 (A. D. 1692, March 11).

No. 46, ff. 416, ll. 19; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 4½ in.

1. Mizān-al-sarf (ميزان الصرف), on the conjugation of the regular Arabic verb, on ff. 1-21, beginning: الحمد لله . . . بدان اسعدك الله تعالى في الدارين كه جمله افعال متصرفه برسه گونه است ماضى و مستقبل و حال الخ. Other copies are noticed in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1669 and 2007 (where it is styled نسخة ميزان صرف), and Rieu ii. p. 523^b; comp. also No. 2414 below. This little tract is edited in the collection of grammatical treatises, Calcutta, 1805; lithographed at the Muḥammadi press, A. H. 1258. Dated the 17th of March, 1793 (A. H. 1207, 4th of Sha'bān).

2. Nuskha-i-munsha'ibah (نسخة منشعبه), a treatise on the various classes of Arabic verbs and their derived conjugations, on ff. 25^b-59^b, beginning: . . . الحمد لله بدان اسعدك الله تعالى في الدارين كه جمله افعال متصرفه واسماء متمكنه از روى تركيب حروف اصلى بر دو گونه است ثلاثى و رباعى الخ. According to the preface, it ought to contain five bābs, each subdivided into five faṣls; but of the first bāb and its five faṣls (در شناختن مجارئ صرف) only a short index is given here, as the author has fully treated the subject of this bāb, viz. the conjugation of the regular verb, in the opening chapter of another work of his, styled مصادر; and of the second bāb (در شناختن اجناس افعال واسماء و صرف افعال) only four faṣls are found, just as in No. 1661 of the Bodleian Cat., and in No. 2419 further below; comp. also Bodleian Cat., No. 1660; Rieu ii. p. 523^a; and E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 261, No. III. The four faṣls of the second bāb deal with the classes of verbs; the verbs with Hamzah; the verbs with a weak letter; and the reduplicate verbs; the fifth faṣl, missing here, deals with the rules of the permutation of letters. It is printed in the collection of grammatical treatises, pp. 38-112, and lithographed at Lucknow, 1844. Dated the 1st of April, 1793 (A. H. 1207, 19th of Sha'bān).

Rieu ii. p. 511^b, where another copy of this work is described. The author wrote it by order of the emperor 'Ālamgir for the Shāhzāda.

In fact, in point of extent it closely resembles the British Museum copy, which likewise comprises only fifty-two leaves.

الفاظ مرکبه, i.e. the compound or derived verbs, and the second, beginning on fol. 40^b, the الفاظ مفردة, i.e. the simple roots of verbs and nouns, both parts being in alphabetical order, according to the first letter of the words. The twenty-first faṣl contains pronouns and miscellaneous phrases, the twenty-second the numerals, the twenty-fifth words which are spelt alike, but have different meanings according to their different vowels, as قول (qul, kol, kav) or اوت (ut, ot, cvet), the twenty-sixth those letters of the Arabic alphabet which are not found in genuine Turkish words.

No date.

The famous Pushtû grammar and dictionary, styled ریاض المحبت (see fol. 3^b, l. 2), compiled in Persian for Sir Ch. Barlow (see fol. 3^b, l. 1) by Nawwâb Maḥabbat-khân or Maḥabbat-allâhkhân, with the takhalluṣ Maḥabbat, the eldest son of the celebrated Rohilla chief Hâfiẓ Raḥmatkhân (died A. H. 1188 = A. D. 1774), see fol. 3^a, lin. penult., in A. H. 1221 (A. D. 1806) according to the chronogram on the last page, نسخه محبت, comp. also Zeitschrift der D. M. G. xvi. p. 785; Major Raverty, 'Dictionary of the Pukhto,' London, 1860, preface, p. 21, and Rieu ii. p. 517^b, where the author's death is fixed in A. H. 1223 (A. D. 1808). Maḥabbatkhân wrote three diwâns, one in Persian, one in Hindûstânî, and one in Pushtû, see Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1196, 2332, and 2353; besides a Hindûstânî matnawî اسرار محبت, or the love-story of Sisi and Panû, see ib., No. 2332, 3. His younger brother Ilahyâr completed in A. H. 1228 (A. D. 1813) a similar work, the عجائب اللغات or Hindûstânî-Pushtû dictionary with Persian explanation, see Rieu, loc. cit.

Beginning of this work: ستایش بیکران و نیایش فراوان آن نخل بند بچون بی نمون را می باید که الخ.

It is divided into a فائده and two بحث:

المشتقات, on fol. 5^b.

البحث الثاني في المتفرقات, on fol. 560^b.

Each بحث is subdivided into twenty-eight روزہ, according to the first letter of the words. The first word, appearing in the first بحث, is انداختن = اچول. The فائده begins on fol. 3^b, last line.

This copy was made at the request of Nawwâb 'Alî Akbar Klîānṣāhib Bahādur (from whom this copy was obtained), the eldest son of the author Maḥabbatkhân, and finished the 23rd of Jumādâ-althânî, A. H. 1229 (A. D. 1814, June 12). On the fly-leaf a short English account is given of the work and its distinguished author, who was a pensioner of the British Government, resided under its protection at Sirhind, employed his leisure in literary pursuits, and besides other works in Persian and in Pushtû, his native tongue (see the preceding copy), produced and presented the original of this to the British Government in token of his gratitude.

Hall-i-mushkilât-i-lughat-i-furs (حلّ مشکلات لغت) (فرس).

A second copy of Asadi's unique Persian dictionary, Lughat-i-furs (edited by Paul Horn from the Vatican copy, the only one hitherto known, Berlin, 1897), without any author's name, and beginning in this way:

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد بدانکه این کتاب جهت حلّ مشکلات لغت فرس نهاده آمد و ابتدای این کتاب بر نهج حروف تهجی نهاده اند تا خواننده و نویسنده ازو تمتّع یابند و مصتّف را بدعای خیر مدد فرمایند و اگر در کتاب عربیّات لفظی فرس در افتد ازین کتاب معنی آنرا بدانند والله المستعان و علیه التّکلان، باب الالف والاّ بلند مرتبت و با گهر بود رودکی گوید الخ.

A careful comparison of this precious copy with the printed edition shows the following points of agreement or disagreement between the two: (1) In many cases either exactly or nearly the same wrong spelling of words appears here as in the Vatican copy; (2) less frequently the correct form is given as in the printed edition; (3) some entirely novel forms occur here and there, and also forms identical with those in the لغت لیلی، شمس فخری، فرهنگ شعوری، حلیمی especially in the poetical quotations, are almost in every case found here in full; (9) ج and چ and د and ذ are only occasionally distinguished; (10) instead of گفت as heading of quotations invariably گوید is used, and many verses are introduced by بیت. Examples under No. 1 are (the pages and lines quoted are those of the printed edition):

p. 8, l. 4 ab infra: the same omission of a word between دهد and منم که.

p. 9, ll. 13 and 14: twice distinctly وزیب.

p. 10, l. 8: کشت و ورز.

p. 11, l. 9: چرش.

p. 12, first line: بشب for شب; ll. 6 and 7, twice انتقشت.

p. 15, l. 4: بنیرک for به بیراک، similar to the ببرک in the Vatican copy; l. 7, و زشتیش را in the first hemistich for ورستش را (Vatican copy) and (ورستش را) بآکج for بدان کج.

p. 16, l. 4 ab infra: distinctly فرقع، فتنک، and فتح; last line, the verse quoted is exactly the same as in the Vatican copy, even to the pointing of طر.

p. 17, l. 2: the text is exactly as in the Vatican copy; ll. 5 and 6, twice یغنج; l. 10, distinctly غصیب; l. 17, وبوزوبول (the latter word as in the Vatican copy too); l. 3 ab infra, دور دشوار (the latter word as in the Vatican copy).

Lughat-i-furs-i-kadim (لغت فارس قدیم).

Fragment of another old Persian dictionary, containing a great number of rare Persian words, explained in Persian and illustrated by quotations from the best and oldest Persian poets. It is defective at the beginning opening in the seventh faṣl of the first bâb with a word, the first letter of which is l and the last z (the former constituting the bâb, the latter the faṣl), in this abrupt way: ... الهی از آن دستۀ درخت ناری بهم رسید الخ.

This fragment which is somewhat like that vocabulary described in J. Aumer, p. 103, concludes on fol. 178^b. On ff. 179^b-206^b there is added another short glossary of Arabic words with short explanations in Persian, entitled Khulāṣat-allughât (خلاصة اللغات), and beginning: الحمد لله رب العالمین ... بدان آتدك الله كه انن; خلاصة است الخ; this little work is evidently not identical with Isma'il bin Lutf-allâh al-Bâkharzî's vocabulary of the same title (Bodleian Cat., No. 1671), as the arrangement is different, the bâbs being formed by the last letter and the faṣls by the first.

No date. This MS. was bought at Baghdâd, 1801, by Charles Pazley.

No. 2496, ff. 206, ll. 15; small Nasta'lik; size, 7½ in. by 5 in.

Sharafnâme-i-Ibrâhîmî (شرفنامه ابراهیمی).

An excellent copy of the first half of the somewhat rare Persian dictionary by Ibrâhîm Kiwâm Fâûḳî (see fol. 1^b, l. 3), also styled فرهنگ ابراهیمی and شرفنامه (فرهنگ شرفنامه) احمد منبری in honour of the celebrated Sûfic Shaikh Sharaf-al-dîn Aḥmad bin Yahyâ Munyari, who died A.H. 782=A.D. 1380, 1381 (see the various letters or maktûbât of this Pir of the mystical doctrine above, Nos. 1843-1847). It was compiled between A.H. 862 and 879 (A.D. 1458-1475), the period during which Abû-al-munẓaffar Bârbakshâh reigned in Bangâlâh, comp. Rieu ii. p. 492 sq.; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1718 and 1719; J. Aumer, p. 103; Blochmann, Contributions to Persian Lexicography, pp. 7-9; Lagaude, Persische Studien, p. 43, No. 36; Mélanges Asiatiques, iii. p. 494, and ix. pp. 514 and 515; Paris, Suppl. persan, Nos. 420 and 421; see also H. Khalfa iv. p. 44, No. 7557, and v. p. 325; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 195, No. 19. The present copy does not contain the preface, which deals with the praise of God, Muḥammad and Sharaf-al-dîn Munyari; it begins at once with these words: چون بفضل الله تقدس و تعالی و حسن تیسیرہ کترین تلامذہ اساتذہ خداوندان معانی و فضائل ابراهیم قوام فاروقی الخ.

The introductory chapter on the letters of the alphabet, particularly those which act as terminations in Persian and Turkish, begins on fol. 2^b; the dictionary itself, which is divided into bâbs according to the first and into faṣls according to the last letter of the words, on fol. 10^b. It goes down to faṣl ل of bâb تش.

Printed Calcutta, A.H. 1264. The first letter constitutes the bâb, the last the faṣl. It is quoted as authority in the Farhang-i-Jahângiri (completed A.H. 1017, see below). H. Khalifa v. p. 214, No. 10751, gives an utterly wrong date of composition, viz. A. H. 1060 (A. D. 1650), which is very likely the date of the MS. he has seen (comp. the following copy).

Farhang-i-Shirkhâni (فرهنگ شیرخانی).

A Persian dictionary, explaining selected Arabic and Persian words and phrases, with quotations chiefly from Hâfiz, compiled by a certain Shirkhân, who is called in the colophon here ملك الشعرا. From Nos. 1725 and 1726 in the Bodleian Cat. it appears that this work was an abridgement of a larger dictionary of a similar character by the same Shirkhân, styled زبدة الفوائد, and compiled between A. H. 955 and 959, A. D. 1548-1552; the زبدة الفوائد again was itself an abridgement of a still larger work, the فوائد الصنائع. Other copies, but without date of composition, are mentioned in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 191, and Salemann in Mélanges Asiatiques, tome ix. p. 556, No. 123.

Beginning of the short preface, on fol. 1^a: حمد بیغایت و ثنای بی نهایت مر خالق را که صفحه طبعیت انسانی الخ

The bâb is formed by the first, the faṣl by the last letter. It begins with استفتا (here wrongly spelt استفا) on fol. 1^a.

No date. The copyist was Muḥammad Khalil ibn Shaikh Ḥabib-allâh ibn 'Abd-aluabî.

No. 2136, ff. 131, ll. 19; a great number of pages written in diagonal lines; ff. 1-5 supplied by a later hand, ll. 15; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5¾ in.

A very modern copy of the same dictionary, styled here in the colophon لغت شیرخانی, and written for Sir Charles Wilkins, to whom this MS. originally belonged, by Ghulâm Muṣṭafâ Abarduwanî (غلام مصطفی ابرودانی).

As date appears the 16th of Šafar only. The preface is wanting here entirely; the copy begins at once with the first faṣl of the first bâb. The initial word is here اینجا.

No. 2414, ff. 118, two columns, ll. 26; Nasta'lik; size, 12½ in. by 7¾ in.

Madâr-alafâḍil (مدار الافاضل).

Persian dictionary, explaining Persian, Arabic, and Turkish words, by Maulânâ Shaikh Ilâhdâd-i-Faîdî bin Asad-al'ulamâ 'Alishir of Sirhind, who, according to the chronogram فیض عام, completed it A. H. 1001 (A. D. 1593). The arrangement is this, that the first letter forms the bâb and the last the faṣl, each faṣl containing three sections, i.e. the Arabic, then the Persian, and finally the Turkish words, indicated respectively by a red ع, ف, and ت; comp. Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1727 and 1728; Rieu ii. p. 496; J. Aumer, p. 109; St. Petersburg, Univ. Libr., No. 126 (the second half only); Blochmann, Contributions, pp. 10 and 11; Lagarde, Pers. Studien, pp. 60-62, No. 55; Salemann in Mélanges Asiatiques, tome ix. p. 530, No. 63.

An anonymous Persian dictionary, to which the wrong title of فرهنگ جهانگیری is given on fol. 1^a; that this title is wrong, is evident from two distinctive points: firstly, the words are arranged thus, that the first letter forms the bâb, and the last the faṣl; and secondly, that the explanations are short and very few poetical quotations are found. It is defective at the beginning, and opens abruptly with the faṣl با of the bâb ا; the first three pages are besides for the greater part torn away. There are many marginal additions. For the sake of comparison we quote the beginning of The oldest, best, and most valuable copy of the Burhān-i-kāfi—the famous Persian dictionary by Muḥammad Ḥusain bin Khalaf al-Tabrizi, with the takhalluṣ Burhān, who, according to the chronogram کتاب نافع برهان قاطع, completed it A. D. 1626–1672); it begins with a preface or dibāca on the Persian language, alphabet, orthography, etc., after which the dictionary proper follows, arranged as the first among Persian lexicons alphabetically in European manner, in twenty-eight guftars, to which a twenty-ninth is added on foreign words. The present copy is transcribed from the original MS. in the author's own handwriting, with all the additions and amplifications which he himself supplied after having finished his work and which are found here on the margin throughout, always denoted by the word ملحقات. The same.

Beginning of the preface as in the preceding copies; beginning of the dictionary on fol. 16^b. This copy is written by two different hands, an older one on ff. 1-34^b, l. 5, and a more modern one on ff. 34^b, l. 5-273^b. The latter portion was done in two periods of very unequal length by a boy, who was at the moment of finishing the whole copy twelve years, seven months, and seventeen days old, as he states himself at the end. He began his task with the باب الزای التازی, on fol. 151^a, the 17th of Dhū-alka'dah, A.H. 1141 (A.D. 1729, June 14), and reached the end of fol. 273^a the 1st of Rajab, 1142 = A.D. 1730, Jan. 20 (altogether seven lunar months and thirteen days); then he commenced at once the preceding portion from fol. 34^b, l. 5, to fol. 150^b, and finished that in the night of the 17th of Sha'bān in the same year, 1142 = A.D. 1730, March 7 (that is to say, in one lunar month and seventeen days). He was occupied consequently in copying this MS. (with the exception of the older part, ff. 1-34^b, l. 5) exactly nine lunar months. His name he modestly conceals; he only mentions that of the writer of the first thirty-four leaves, Miyan Hafiz-allāh, and states that he himself wrote his portion in Ahmādābād. It is collated throughout. A short index on the fly-leaf.

On ff. 471-485^b is added by the same scribe and in the same year a رسالة المعربات, a kind of glossary of all the foreign words, which have been adopted and naturalized in the Arabic language with more or less modifications, as far as they are found in the Kurān, the traditions and other standard-writings, beginning: الحمد لله رب العالمين... اما بعد: چون الفاظ معرب در قرآن و حدیث و کلام اکابر واقعست و شرح و ضبط آن در هیچ کتابی الخ.

The first eight and a half pages of this glossary down to fol. 475^a, l. 11, are repeated on six loose leaves, found in this MS. and written by another hand (size, 8¼ in. by 5¾ in.). The arrangement of the glossary is alphabetical according to the last letter.

Lughat-i-farangi u pârsi (لغت فرنگی و پارسی).

A very interesting and valuable Persiau-French dictionary, compiled by one of the monks of Mount Carmel, Padre Angelus (پادری انجلوس), a native of Toulouse, A.D. 1683. The first thirty-five leaves are a complete index to the whole, giving an alphabetical list of French words with references to the pages in the dictionary, where the corresponding Persian or Arabic equivalents can be found; the dictionary itself fills 237 leaves, but only the first nineteen leaves contain besides the Persian also the French words; all the rest consists only of Persian (or Arabic) words and phrases (without alphabetical order), interesting and useful, because to every one all its synonyms are added, quite a new and highly instructive feature in a work of this kind. Unfortunately the ink has faded to a great extent, and many portions, especially of the French division, are almost entirely effaced.

No. 1257, ff. 237 and xxxv; size, 17¼ in. by 11½ in.

Another Persian-English grammar, compiled according to the preface by one of the East India Company's officers, who does not give his name, 'in intervals of recess from indispensable military avocations' and 'as some relief to the mind from severer studies.' The work, considering the time when it was written—probably the end of the last or the beginning of the present century—is remarkably rich and clear, and apart from some quaint and rather comical remarks, particularly in points dealing with comparative philology, it is a valuable and thoroughly reliable handbook of Persian grammar and syntax. It is accompanied throughout with notes, chiefly quotations from ancient or modern authors; most frequently cited are James Harris's 'Hermes,' Sale's 'Koran,' and Hanway's 'Travels.'

A Hindûstâni grammar.

This most interesting MS. contains, according to fol. 1^a (p. 1): 'A grammar of the Hindostan Language, by Benjamin Schulzius or Schultz, written at Madras the 30th of June, 1741, printed at Hall (Halle) in Saxony, 1745, with which are blended some further observations on the language, collected in Bengal in 1761.'

From a 'note' on the same page we learn, that Mr. Schultz was a German and a missionary from the King of Denmark to the Carnatic, that he applied himself with uncommon ardour to the duties of his calling, and went in 1726 to Madras, to re-establish a charity school. He began and sustained the Danish Mission at Madras. By the same Mr. Schultz, who is called the oldest and most active of the three new (Danish?) ministers of the Gospel, the translation of the Bible into the Malabarian language, which Mr. Ziegenbalg, upon his return to Tranquebar, had commenced, was finished in 1725. The present MS. contains the English translation of the original Latin treatise of Mr. Schultz, but the translator's name does not appear. In the 'note' there are three references to Gent. Mag., vol. 15, June, 1745, viz. p. 306, pp. 307 and 308, and pp. 361 and 362.

On fol. 1^b (p. 2) the author's preface begins, in a faithful English paraphrase, dealing with the origin of the Hindûstâni language and explaining the subdivisions of this grammar. In the same preface mention is made of another interesting old grammar of the same language, published by the 'very learned David Millins, Professor of Sacred Antiquities and Asiatic Languages at Utrecht, amongst his Oriental Miscellanies of the year 1743.' Mr. Schultz adds: 'He was not the author of it, but the most noble John Joshua Ketelaer, formerly Ambassadour from the Danish East India Company to the Great Mogul, who, while he resided at Agra, registered some observations in Dutch concerning the Hindostan language.'

The six sections into which this grammar is divided, are headed as follows (we add to the headings in the text the more detailed descriptions given in the preface, with regard to the respective sections):

1. The letters, exhibiting the modern as well as the ancient characters and including a few lessons too, to exercise the memory of them, on fol. 4^a (p. 7).

2. The nouns and adjectives, with the facility of their declension, the nature of the adjectives and the variety of their composition; comprising also a catalogue of such as are in use, together with the numerals, as well the cardinal as the ordinal numbers, on fol. 12^b (p. 26).

3. The pronouns, on fol. 27^a (p. 65).

4. The auxiliaries and the simple and compound verbs, on fol. 30^a (p. 71). This section is called by mistake the sixth (instead of the fourth).

5. The particles, that is post-positions, adverbs, conjunctions and interjections, on fol. 51^b (p. 114).

6. Syntax, on fol. 61^b (p. 134).

An appendix, which begins on fol. 65^b (p. 142), contains: (a) the Apostles' Creed, in Hindūstāni and English; (b) the Lord's Prayer, in Hindūstāni and English; (c) analysis of the latter; (d) the Decalogue, in Hindūstāni and English; (e) the Baptism and the Lord's Supper, in Hindūstāni only.

The original grammar concludes on fol. 70^b (p. 152).

The remainder of this MS., ff. 71-107, contains in another very bold and clear handwriting a duplicate of the last three sections of the grammar, beginning with the auxiliary verbs and ending with the Lord's Prayer. It corresponds verbatim to the same portion in the foregoing grammar, ff. 30^a-70^b.

No. 2531, ff. 107; size, 12½-12¾ in. by 7½-8½ in.

Persian, Hindūstāni, Arabic, and Sanskrit miscellanies.

This MS., throughout in European handwriting and purchased of Madden & Co., August 15, 1850, contains (ff. 1-67 and 108-124 being arranged in European, ff. 68-105 and 126-147 in Eastern fashion and therefore to be read from fol. 147^b backwards):

1. Ff. 1^a-3^a: Some English translations from the 'Siyar-almuta' akhkhīrīn' (see Nos. 416-421 above).

2. Ff. 4^a-48^b: A large fragment of the same English translation of the Hindūstāni grammar, originally written in Latin by Schulz (so spelt here, not Schultz), which is contained in the preceding MS. From the present copy—which contains only three of the six sections of the work, viz.: (a) the letters, i.e. the Devanāgarī, Hindi or Nagari, Bangalī, Gurmukī or Sikh alphabets, a commercial alphabet, peculiar to merchants in India, and the Persian alphabet, together with explanations and reading-lessons; (b) the nouns, adjectives, and numerals; (c) the pronouns—we glean some interesting details, not found in the preceding copy. The full title of the book is given here in English (with the Latin on the opposite page), on fol. 12^a, as follows: 'A Grammar of the Hindostan from the materials of the Very Reverend Benjamin Schulz, missionary for the propagation of the Gospel, reduced into order during his long residence in Hindostan, consisting of rules illustrated by numerous examples, intended for the use of the missionaries of India; published with a preface for promoting the study of the Oriental Languages, by D. Jo. Henry Callenberg, Public Professor in Ordinary of Divinity and Philosophy; printed at Halle in Saxony, in the Hebrew Printing House, 1745.' To this title there are appended besides the same note, found in the preceding copy on fol. 1^a sq., the following remarks:

Annual Register for 1764, vol. 7, p. 114: 'Letters received by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge from Madras in the East Indies, May 25, 1763, contain an account, that their missionaries have stretched a great way into the country among the heathens, making many proselytes. Those missionaries say, that the Reverend Doctor Francke in Germany had sent them a number of Tamulian Types, with a promise of more; which they were to be enabled to use, the Government having erected a printing office in the city of Madras, and given the care and inspection of it to them.'

Annual Register for 1761, p. 92: 'Died lately Benjamin Schultz (sic here!), a Protestant missionary from the court of Denmark, at Tranquebar in the East Indies. He resided twenty-four years in the town of Nagapatnam. He translated the Old and New Testaments and the Psalms of David into the language of the country for the use of the natives.' The grammar itself begins on fol. 19^a, prefaced by the anonymous English translator with the following advertisement: 'The English editor has incorporated a number of observations and examples under the general articles of Mr. Schulz' grammar, which he met with in Manuscript grammars of different gentlemen during his residence in India, or had collected in his own researches.'

Ff. 4^a-18^a contain: (a) the Latin preface of the editor, Prof. Callenberg, on fol. 4^a; (b) the Latin preface of the author, Mr. Schulz, on fol. 5^a; (c) the beginning of the first section of the grammar in Latin, on fol. 6^b, followed by some English observations; (d) Latin and English titles, on ff. 11^b and 12^a, with the 'notes' appended; (e) English translation of the editor's preface, on fol. 14^a; (f) English translation of the author's preface, with English foot-notes, on fol. 16^a.

3. Ff. 50^a-51^b: Maḳām-i-Nadīyah (مقام ندیه), description of the town and inhabitants of Nadīyah in Bangālāh.

4. Ff. 52^a-56^a, third line, and 56^b-57^b: The same Persian tract on Arabic conjugations, called میزان در علم عربی or میزان در علم صرف, which is described above in Nos. 2411, 1; 2412, 1; and 2414.

The following note appears on the top of ff. 64^a-65^a: 'The under-mentioned plate was found in digging a well within the fortress of Mongheer, by Lient.-Colonel Henry Watson, chief engineer in Bengal, and now in his possession. It is written in a very antique Shunscreet (!) character, only legible by the most learned Pundits and said from the contents to be near 2000 years old. Berhampore in Bengal, Dec. 14, 1780.

Irshād-almuslimin (ارشاد المسلمین).

The leading dogmas of the Sunnite creed, a sort of commentary on, or explanation of, the عقائد or fundamental articles of Imām Najm-al-din Abū Ḥafṣ 'Umar bin Muḥammad Nasafi (who died A. H. 537 = A. D. 1142, 1143, comp. Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 102; J. Aumer, Arabic Cat., p. 38; text-edition by Cureton, as appendix to the 'Pillar of the Creed of the Sunnites,' London, 1843; translation in Mouradgēa d'Ohsson's 'Tableau de l'Empire Othoman,' vol. i), by Burhān al-Miskīn (see fol. 1^b, ll. 8 and 9, fol. 4^b, lin. penult., etc.), compiled A. H. 914 (A. D. 1508, 1509), at Harāt (see fol. 4^b, ll. 3 and 4), and styled ارشاد المسلمین, see fol. 4^b, last line. The عقائد الکلام by Burhān, described in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 269, seem to be practically the same work, only that there seven Islamic sects are discussed in a short and concise way, as a preliminary to the eighth, the اهل السنة, with which the present copy exclusively deals. The commentator enumerates in the preface a number of other works, composed by him before this work, viz. انیس الواعظین, a work on the traditions of the prophet, in two daftars; روضة الاقبياء; انیس العابدین, traditions of the saints; فی ذکر الاولیاء, on questions of Muḥammadan worship; سراج المتعلمین, a grammatical treatise; در نحو برای مبتدی و منتهی; کنوز الاعمال and اوراد الاوقات, on prayers and invocations; خلاص (? خلاصة) الاوراد, on the same topics, and others.

Beginning: ربنا آتانا من لدنک رحمة و هبنا لنا من امرنا رشدای بار خدایا بده تو ما را از نزدیک خود رحمت را و مهیا کن تو برای ما از کارما رشد را یعنی راستی را الخ

This book closes on fol. 138^b and is copied by Muḥammad Shaikh 'Abd-allatif 'abbāsi for Sayyid Shāh Muḥammad Saif-allāh Kādiri, A. H. 1083 (finished the 30th of Rabi'-al-awwal) = A. D. 1672, July 26. A short captatio benevolentiae by the transcriber is added. On ff. 142^b-171^a another tract is written by the same hand and for the same Saif-allāh, without title and author's name (perhaps also by Burhān al-Miskīn). It deals with the علم کلام, the philosophy of religion, as the highest of all sciences, and is divided into three kisms, viz.:

1. در بیان آنکه دانستن مسائل دین با دلیل واجب, on fol. 143^a.
است و علم کلام فاضلتر است از علوم دیگر

2. در بیان اعتقاد اهل اسلام و دلیلهای آن, on fol. 145^a.

3. در بیان اعتقاد عوام اهل اسلام بی دلیل, on fol. 166^b.

Beginning: حمد مر واجب الوجودی را که وجود او ازلیست و بقاء او ابدی الخ

No. 1060, ff. 171, ll. 15; distinct Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Safinat-alnajāt (سفينة النجاة).

The vessel of salvation, a treatise on the legitimate Muḥammadan prayers, by Shaikh 'Alī bin Maimūn almaghribi, who died A. H. 917 (A. D. 1511, 1512), comp. H. Khalfa iii. p. 600, No. 7184. It is divided into twelve bābs and a khātimah (see fol. 4^a), viz.:

باب اول در ادعیه که متعلق بمقدمات نماز است الخ, on fol. 4^a.

باب دوم در تعقیبات مشترکه در میان فرائض خمسہ ازلیست, on fol. 12^b.

باب سیم در آداب و ادعیه نافله و فریضه صبح, on fol. 27^a.

باب چهارم در ادعیه صباح و مسا, on fol. 34^a.

باب پنجم در ادعیه که بروز باید خواند, on fol. 43^b.

باب ششم در ادعیه ساعات دوازده گانه روز, on fol. 45^b.

باب هفتم در آداب و ادعیه نافله ظهر, on fol. 56^b.

باب هشتم در آداب و ادعیه نافله و فریضه عصر, on fol. 63^a.

باب نهم در آداب و ادعیه فریضه مغرب و نوافل (the chapter-number is omitted here), on fol. 65^a.

باب دهم در آداب و ادعیه فریضه عشا و نوافل بعد از آن, on fol. 69^a.

باب یازدهم در آداب و ادعیه وقت خواب و بیدار شدن از خواب, on fol. 71^a.

باب دوازدهم در آداب و ادعیه نماز شب و نماز شفع و وتر, on fol. 75^a.

خاتمه در ادعیه و اعمالی که متعلق بمنیت است از وقت احتضار تا وقت وفی (توقی) (correctly), on fol. 83^a.

These twelve chapters with the conclusion form only the first makūlah of the work; the second is wanting, and instead of that there follows, on fol. 87^a, another short treatise: در بیان اسمی چهارده معصوم علیهم السلام و اسمی پدر و کنینهای ایشان و تواریخ مولود و وفات

ایشان و نقش نگین ایشان و موضع قبور . . . و اسامی
اولاد ایشان الخ.

These fourteen persons are Muḥammad, 'Alī, and the twelve Imāms. The first treatise (Safinat-alnajat) is defective at the beginning; the first words run thus:

خصوصاً بشب بیست و سیوم و شب نهم ذی الحجة الخ.

Fol. 2 is not coherent with the preceding or following leaf and belongs apparently to another work (it contains the forty-sixth and the beginning of the forty-seventh chapter of some anonymous treatise).

Not dated.

No. 2002, ff. 90, ll. 12-19; Shikasta, sometimes almost illegible; the Arabic quotations written in Naskhi; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Barāhin-i-kāṭi' (براهین قاطع).

A Persian translation and explanation of Shaikh Shihāb almillah wa-al-din Aḥmad bin Hajar al-Haithamī al-Makki's Arabic work المصواعق المحرقة (see Loth, Arabic Cat., pp. 44 and 45, and H. Khalfa iv. p. 110, No. 7797, where the wrong title المحرقة is given, which is, however, corrected in Add. et Corr. vii. p. 780), which contains a defence of the rightful claim of succession of the first three khalifs, Abūbakr, 'Umar, and 'Uthmān, against the heretics and Shī'ites, originally delivered as a course of lectures in Makkah, A. H. 950, in the month of Ramaḍān (A. D. 1543, December), see fol. 2a. The author of the Arabic original, who was mufti of Shirāz, died A. H. 973 (A. D. 1565, 1566). This Persian paraphrase was made by Kamāl-al-din bin Fakhr-al-din Jahrami, A. H. 994 (A. D. 1586), at the request of Sultān Khalil-allāh Abū-almuẓaffar Ibrāhīm 'Ādilshāh (A. H. 988-1036 or 1037 = A. D. 1580-1627, comp. above, Nos. 454 and 455), see fol. 3a, l. 13, and entitled: براهین قاطع در ترجمه صواعق محرقة, see fol. 3b, ll. 7 and 8.

It is divided into three muḥaddimas, ten bābs, and a khātimah (the arrangement of the bābs in the Arabic original, which number in the India Office copy, No. 2264, see Loth, loc. cit., 11 instead of 10, is slightly different), viz.:

مقدمه اوّل در ذکر احادیثی که در باب اهل بدعت
و شیعه و روافض وارد شده, on fol. 4a.

مقدمه دوم در بیان وجوب نصب امام, on fol. 14a.

مقدمه شیوم در اثبات امامت, on fol. 14b.

باب اوّل در بیان کیفیت خلافت ابو بکر صدیق, on fol. 15b.

باب دوم در آنچه مرویست از اکابر اهل بیت, on fol. 105a.

باب سیوم در بیان فضیلت ابو بکر بر سائر این امت
باز عمر باز عثمان باز علی, on fol. 116a.

باب چهارم در خلافت عمر, on fol. 168a.

باب پنجم در فضائل خصوصیت عمر, on fol. 173a.

باب ششم در خلافت عثمان, on fol. 195a.

باب هفتم در خلافت علی بن ابیطالب, on fol. 208a.

باب نهم در خلافت امام حسن, on fol. 244a.

باب دهم در فضائل و مآثر اهل بیت نبوی, on fol. 253a.

خاتمه در بیان اعتقاد اهل سنت الخ.

Majmū'-i-khāni (مجموعه خانی).

Muḥammadan ecclesiastical law in all its branches, comprising purification or ablutions, prayers, alms, fasting, and pilgrimage, compiled by Kamāl Karīm Nāgauri (so in full in No. 2574 below) and dedicated to a certain Bahrāmkhān, whose lifetime is not to be ascertained. This work is styled in full in the immediately following copy: کتاب مجموع خانی و بحر; in the Tatimmah (No. 2574 below), and Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1782 and 2376: مجموع (عبادات) معانی (مجموعه (or) خانی فی عین (or) غرة) المعانی. From the Bodleian copies, just quoted, the present MS. differs in many respects, for instance, the beginning runs here thus: حمد و سپاس مر بادشاهی را که الملک دولتآباد نهانی آسانی (؟) بعزة دین اسلام الخ.

The first kitâb (كتاب الطهارة) begins, on fol. 3^a; the second (كتاب الصلوة), on fol. 51^b; the third (كتاب الزكوة), on fol. 166^b; the fourth (كتاب الصوم), on fol. 187^b. This fourth kitâb ends, or ought to end, according to the first Bodleian copy, on fol. 222^b (corresponding to fol. 130^a there), but there is no heading of the fifth kitâb (كتاب الحج) found, and the whole part from fol. 222^b to fol. 244^a is wanting in that Bodleian copy, whether merely misplaced or not is impossible to say, as all the catchwords in both MSS. are apparently correct; there is only one page and a half corresponding in that copy to the twenty-two leaves here. Fol. 244^b, first line, agrees again with fol. 130^b, l. 13 in the same Bodleian copy. There are besides various discrepancies between both MSS. towards the end.

No proper date; only the 16th of Ramadân is given. The transcriber was Sayyid Fattâh Şadr. The date of the first Bodleian copy is A. H. 1000 (A. D. 1592).

No. 225, ff. 277, ll. 15; written in very bad and incorrect Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Another copy of the same.

No preface here; the work begins at once with the first kitâb (كتاب الطهارة), on fol. 4^a; second, on fol. 61^b; third (كتاب در بيان الزكوة), on fol. 163^b; fourth, on fol. 180^b. The fifth is not marked here at all, just as in the preceding copy. The first three leaves (ff. 1^a-3^a) contain a Persian commentary on the first Sûrah of the Kurân.

No date. The transcriber was Makhdûmkhân Muḥammad ibn Sayyid Makhdûm 'Abd-alkâdir.

No. 1445, ff. 239, ll. 11 on ff. 4-70, ll. 15 on ff. 71-239; written by two hands in quaint Naskhi; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Tatimma-i-Majmû'-i-khânî (تتممة مجموع خاني).

A sequel to the preceding work on Muḥammadan law according to the different orthodox schools, by the same Kamâl Karim Nâgauri and dedicated to the same Bahrâmkhân (see fol. 4^a, l. 14, and fol. 5^a, l. 12). The full title of the principal work, viz. عبادات مجموع خاني, appears here on fol. 4^a, last line, and the full title of this sequel, on fol. 5^b, last line but one, viz.: تتممة مجموع خاني في المعاني. It consists, like the preceding work, of five kitâbs subdivided into bâbs, faşls, mas'alas, etc. First kitâb (كتاب التكاح), on fol. 6^a; second (كتاب الرضاع), on fol. 65^a; third (كتاب الطلاق), on fol. 71^a; fourth (كتاب الفرائض), on fol. 175^a; fifth (كتاب العتاق), on fol. 202^a.

The copy, much damaged and effaced throughout, is moreover incomplete at the end; it breaks off in the last bâb but one of the fifth kitâb. A portion of fol. 210^a and the whole of fol. 210^b are left blank. An index on ff. 1^b-2^b.

Beginning, on fol. 2^b: حمد مر احمد مبتدئ را كه بدانت حمد او حامد را بمقام محمود رساند الخ.

No. 1868, ff. 220, ll. 16-18; written in an irregular and very inelegant Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Tarjuma-i-Kanz-aldakâ'ik (ترجمة كنز الدقائق).

Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 250, the translator's name appears as Naşr-aldin ibn Muḥammad ibn Jammâd alardî (الاردوى); see also E. G. The same.

Beginning as usual. The proper title appears on fol. 1^b, l. 7; on fol. 1^a it is styled نرجمة كنز فقه حنفی and in the colophon كنز فارسی. The same fifty-nine kitâbs are found here, as in the first copy, three, however, of them, viz. Jâmi'-i-'abbâsi (جامع عباسي).

The first volume of the famous collection of Muhammadan civil and ecclesiastical laws according to the Shi'ite doctrine, by the great Shi'ah divine Bahâ-aldin Muhammad al-'Âmili (see above, Nos. 1517-1520 and 2251), compiled at the request of Shâh 'Abbâs alhusaini alnûsawi (who reigned A. H. 996-1038 = A. D. 1588-1628), revised and annotated by 'Izz-aldin Muhammad ibn Mir Abû-alhasan ibn Muhammad Ismâ'il alhusaini alnûsawi, who found the original work not detailed enough and enlarged it (a) by glosses to the text, (b) by glosses to the glosses, (c) by additional interpretations of remaining doubtful points. The text of the original is marked من, the glosses ح, the glosses to the glosses تَح, and the additional interpretation (عبارت حاشية) ح.

This first volume comprises the first five bâbs only, and is all that Bahâ-aldin was able to finish. The remaining fifteen bâbs of the work were, after Bahâ-aldin's death (the 12th of Shawwâl, A. H. 1030 = A. D. 1621, Aug. 30), supplied by Nizâm bin Husain of Sâwah, compare Bodleian Cat., No. 1784; Rieu i. p. 25 sq.; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 250 and 251 (where it is styled جامع عباسي); E. Flugel iii. p. 240); نهابة (the commentary on the Hidâyat, composed A.H. 700=A.D. 1300, 1301, by Ḥusâm-aldin al-Ḥusain bin 'Alî Şighnâkî, see ib. p. 55^b); محیط (the Hanafite law-book, by Raḍi-aldin Sarakhsî, who died A.H. 544=A.D. 1149, 1156, see ib. p. 52^b); جامع الجوامع (Ṭabarsî's commentary on the Qurân, composed A.H. 542 or 543=A.D. 1147-1149, see ib. p. 12^b); مضمورات؛ ضیاء الفتاوى؛ مجموع التوازل؛ (شامل بیهقی) (i.e. شامل)، etc.

Another, but complete, compendium of Muhammadan theology and law, according to the Hanafite school, likewise by an anonymous compiler and based chiefly on the same sources as the preceding work, viz. كنز (خلاصة الفتاوى) خلاصة; الكافي; الهداية; (كنز الدقائق); (تحفة الملوك) تحفة; (فتاوى خاني) see فتاوى و خاني; (تحفة الملوك) تحفة; التهاية; خاني; also simply styled خاني; preceding work); شامل; مضمرة; ضياء الفتاوى; مجموع التوازل; المحيط; together with many others, as for instance خزنة الفقه (by Abû-allaih Samarkandi, who died A. H. 375 or 383 = A. D. 985 or 993, see J. Aumer, Arab. Cat., p. 83); بستان العارفين (i.e. بستان ابو الليث, by the same Abû-allaih Samarkandi); كشاف (Zamakhshari's commentary on the Kurân); فتاوى و سراجى (probably identical with the فتاوى الشيخ سراج الدين, see J. Aumer, Arabic Cat., p. 111); ذخيرة (i.e. ذخيرة العقبى, a super-commentary on the شرح صدر الشريعة, compiled between A. H. 891 and 901 = A. D. 1486-1496, by Akhi Calabi, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 58); كشف الاسرار (commentary of Hâfiz-al-din Abû-albarakât 'Abdallâh Nasafi, who died A. H. 710 or 711 (A. D. 1310-1312), on his own work المنار, see ib. pp. 77 and 78); مدارك التنزيل (commentary on the Kurân by the same Nasafi, see ib. p. 20); كفاية; ترغيب الصلوة; عمدة الشاشي; عمدة الصلوة; شعبي; مفتاح اليقين; مصباح الدين; فتاوى حجة; فتاوى غيائي, etc.

There is no preface or introduction at all; immediately after the usual words الحمد لله the work itself begins, which is divided into five kitâbs.

1. كتاب الطهارة, on fol. 1^b; there are apparently ten bâbs in this, but only three are marked, viz. باب, on fol. 29^b, second line, a sixth bâb, on fol. 36^b, first line, and a seventh on fol. 40^b.

2. كتاب الصلوة, beginning with the eleventh bâb, on fol. 52^b.

3. كتاب الزکات, on fol. 170^a.

4. كتاب الصوم, on fol. 192^b.

5. كتاب الحج, on fol. 227^b, second line.

Rushd-almajâlis (رشد المجالس).

A treatise on the most important points of Sunnite theology and law (چند نصائح دینی و مسائل شرعی) (نفع عامه مسلمانست), by Mûsâ bin Muḥammad Sbu'un

Afgbân (شؤون افغان). Beginning: الحمد لله والصلوة على نبيه وآله واصحابه اجمعين، بدان اسعدك الله تعالى في الدارين که ميگويد مؤلف اين مختصر الخ.

It is divided into several fasls, the first of which is headed در بيان منع کردن از گناهاني که تعلق بظاهر تن دارند.

No date.

No. 2103, ff. 56-83, ll. 13-14; written by different hands, partly in Naskhi, partly in Nasta'liq; size, 7 in. by 4½ in.

2610

Fragment of a detailed Persian work on prayers, with numerous Arabic quotations and specimens; it has neither beginning nor end, and neither title nor author's name are mentioned anywhere. It deals with prayers on all occasions and under all circumstances in the usual orthodox way.

Abrupt beginning, on fol. 1^a: . . . لك الحمد گوید و تمام بایستد و در سجده رود الخ. Occasionally very elaborate marginal glosses.

No. 1290, ff. 94, ll. 13; Naskhi; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Kitâb-i-fikh (کتاب فقه).

Fragment of a Persian treatise on Sunnite law, without beginning or end. It opens abruptly thus: است، اما الايمان بالله ايمان آوردن بخدا تعالى آنست که ايمان آريم الخ.

This is evidently a portion of a کتاب در ايمان with a second fasl نماز, on fol. 126^b. Other kitâbs which appear in this fragment are:

1. كتاب الطهارة, on fol. 128^a.

2. كتاب الزکوة, on fol. 157^a.

3. كتاب الحج, on fol. 163^a.

4. كتاب الصلوة, on fol. 188^a.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

Numerous subdivisions into fasls and bâbs. No indication of the author's name or the proper title anywhere. The apparent confusion in the arrangements of the subdivisions seems to indicate that the leaves are to some extent misplaced, although the catchwords are all correct.

Kanz-almukâshafât (کنز المکاشفات).

A kind of extract from and commentary on the کنز of Hâfiz-al-din Nasafi (see the Persian translation of this work in Nos. 2575-2579), compiled in Persian, in order to make its subtilties more intelligible to young disciples, A. H. 1170 (A. D. 1756, 1757), see fol. 1^a, l. 8, in the time of Muḥammad 'Alikhān Sirāj-al-daulah Bahādur, the son of Nawwāb Anwar-al-dinkhān (see fol. 1^b, ll. 4 and 5), by Shaikh Sulaimān, known as Kbalil Ḥsain bin Shabbāz (see fol. 1^b, first line). Anwar-al-dinkhān was Nawwāb of the Carnatic and fell in battle against Muẓaffarjāng, A. H. 1162 (A. D. 1749); Muḥammad 'Alī, his son, fled to Trichinopoly, but was afterwards confirmed by Nawwāb Nāṣirjāng as ruler of the Carnatic, see Beale, Orient. Biogr. Dict., p. 51^b, and No. 501 in this Cat.

Beginning: حمد مر خدايـا سزد كه علم دين بالقرآن المتين التـح.

The title, كنز المكاشفات, appears on fol. 1^a, l. 10; on the last fly-leaf at the back of the MS. it is designated as Masā'il dar fikb (مسائل در فقه).

The present copy is incomplete at the end and contains only a portion of the whole, breaking off in the 19th kitāb and the 103rd bāb. The arrangement of divisions and subdivisions is somewhat confused, as in most copies of the ترجمه كنز الدقائق (see above) too; the bābs, many of which are not marked, run on independently of the kitābs, and several sections, which ought to be styled kitābs, are by mistake designated as bābs.

The kitābs are, following the arrangement in Nos. 2575-2579 above, as follows:

1. كتاب الطهارة, on fol. 2^a (containing five bābs);
2. كتابات الصلوة, on fol. 15^a (beginning with the sixth bāb and going down to the twenty-fifth, as it seems);
3. كتاب الزكوة, on fol. 61^a (containing bābs 26-35);
4. كتاب الصوم, on fol. 71^b (beginning, as it seems, with bāb 36, which is, however, not marked, as is the case with bāb 26 in the preceding section too);
5. كتاب الحج, on fol. 76^b (beginning in the middle of bāb 38);
6. كتاب التكااح, on fol. 94^a;
7. كتاب الرضاع (here wrongly styled رضاع بيان, on fol. 109^b);
8. كتاب الطلاق, on fol. 111^b (again styled by mistake (باب در بيان طلاق);
9. كتاب العتاق, on fol. 152^a;
10. باب هفتاد و پنج (seems to begin with كتاب الايمان, on fol. 160^a);
11. كتاب الحدود, on fol. 175^a, second line;
12. كتاب السرقة (seems to begin with باب هشتاد و پنج در بيان دزدی, on fol. 184^b);
13. كتاب جهاد والسير, on fol. 190^b. Between this and the following kitāb a new one is put in, كتاب البغاه, on fol. 203^a;
14. كتاب اللقطة (seems to begin with (باب نود و يك در لقیت (لقيط (read, on fol. 203^b);
15. كتاب الآبق (again wrongly styled (باب, on fol. 206^a;
16. (باب نود و دوم در بيان مفقود (styled كتاب المفقود, on fol. 206^b;
17. كتاب الشركة (styled again (باب نود, on fol. 207^b;
18. (وسيوم در بيان شركت كتاب الوقف, on fol. 207^b;

IND. OFF.

(باب نود و چهارم در بيان وقف), on fol. 210^a;

19. كتاب البيوع, on fol. 212^b.

Occasionally various readings, glosses, and additions on the margin.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2803, ff. 228, ll. 15-17; rather incorrectly written in a very irregular and uncouth Naskhi; size, 8½ in. by 5¾ in.

Hidāya-i-fārsī (هداية فارسی).

A large Persian work on Muḥammadan ecclesiastical and civil law according to the Hanafite school, based on various Arabic standard works, but chiefly on Burhān-al-din Abū-alḥasan 'Alī al-Maḥimānī's famous هداية (see a Persian paraphrase of it in Nos. 2593 and 2594 above), and therefore styled هداية فارسی.

It was compiled at the request of the Governor-General of India, Warren Hastings, A. H. 1190 (chronogram هداية فارسی پيرايه انجام يافت = A. D. 1776, by Ghulām Yahyā, that is Manlawī Maḥmūd Yahyākhān, together with Mullā Tāj-al-din Mir Muḥammad Ḥusain and Mullā Shar'at-allāh. It is apparently subdivided into four جلد or volumes (like the Persian paraphrase, see above), but only the main portions of the first and third volumes and parts of the second and fourth are found in this copy. The remaining portions are missing, in consequence of large lacunas after ff. 190, 810, 906, and 938. A complete copy of this work in four volumes is described in Rieu i. pp. 23 and 24. An English translation of it was published by Charles Hamilton in London, 1791; the Persian text was printed in Calcutta, 1807. The first volume comprises the first five kitābs, as in Rieu's first volume, viz.:

1. كتاب الطهارة, on fol. 3^a;
 2. كتاب در بيان نماز, on fol. 58^a;
 3. كتاب در بيان احكام زكوة, on fol. 186^a;
 4. كتاب در بيان روزه, on fol. 859^a;
 5. كتاب در بيان حج, on fol. 900^b;
- the proper order of leaves being ff. 1-190, 811-906. This part breaks off in the middle of the fifth kitāb on the pilgrimage.

The second volume (which ought to contain kitābs 6 to 19, from the book of marriage, كتاب التكااح, to that of pious foundations, كتاب الوقف) begins abruptly on fol. 191^a; the text then goes down uninterruptedly to fol. 810, where, according to the colophon, the third volume ends. The kitābs found in this portion belong to the third volume only, viz.:

- 20, 21. كتاب در بيع وصرف, on fol. 314^a;
22. كتاب در بيان كفالة, on fol. 325^b;
23. كتاب در بيان حوالت, on fol. 352^a;
24. كتاب در بيان رجوع از شهادت, on fol. 423^b;
25. كتاب در بيان دعوى, on fol. 473^a;
26. كتاب الاقرار, on fol. 531^a;
27. كتاب المصارية, on fol. 554^a;
28. كتاب الصلح, on fol. 574^b;
29. كتاب الهبة, on fol. 624^a;
30. كتاب در بيان مكاتب, on fol. 680^b;
31. كتاب الولاء, on fol. 720^b;
32. كتاب در بيان اكراه, on fol. 760^a.

(lacuna after fol. 938) contain portions of the fourth volume which ends on fol. 1108^b, according to the colophon. Here are found the following kitābs: 52. کتاب الدّیة, on fol. 939^b; 53. کتاب در بیان معاتل, on fol. 1032^a; 54. کتاب الوصیة, on fol. 1044^b; and 55. کتاب الخفی, on fol. 1101^b.

Beginning: حمد و سپاس بیقیاس معبودیرا سزاوار: است که فقهای بالغ اندیشه در راه طاعتش از طی کردن بست و بلند آید.

No. 1917, ff. 1108, ll. 17; Nasta'lik; size, 10-10½ in. by 6½ in.

Dhakhira-i-Governor Hastings (ذخیره کورنر هشتمین). Another Persian work on Muḥammadan ecclesiastical and civil law, according to the various theological schools, in the form of questions on every conceivable point of jurisprudence, compiled for the same Warren Hastings (کورنر چندرل مستوران هشتمین, see fol. 2^a, l. 4) by Muḥammad Wāsil Jā'isi (see fol. 2^a, ll. 5 and 4 ab infra). Beginning of the preface, on fol. 1^b: بعد سپاس بی قیاس حکیم علی الاطلاق که هیچ فعلی از افعال او خالی از حکمت نیست الخ.

Beginning of the work itself, on fol. 4^a, first line: بدان ارشدك الله تعالى فی الدّارین که این کتاب مشتمل است بر دو قسم قسم اول مشتمل است بر دوامیس الهی و قسم ثانی متضمن قوانین شاهنشاهی قسم اول باید دانست که احکام شریعت دو قسم اند قسم اول احکام دنیا قسم دوم احکام عقبی اما احکام دنیا چهار قسم اند قسم اول احکام عبادات چنانچه صیام و صلاوات قسم دوم احکام که مشروع و موضوع اند برای حاجات دیگران چنانکه ردّ آمانت (امانت read) و رسانیدن مال غاربت و ادای قرض قسم سوم احکام که مشروعیت و موضوعیت آنها برای حاجت خویش است چنانچه تجهیز و تکفین و وصیت قسم چهارم احکام که صلاحیت رفع حاجت ندارند مانند قصاص قتل و دیگر تقصیرات الخ.

From these introductory words it appears, that the author originally intended to divide his work into two great kisms, one on divine, i.e. ecclesiastical laws, the other on imperial, i.e. civil laws in the heading of the first kism is explained in a marginal gloss as جمع ناموس بمعنی راز و نام جبرئیل اینجا مراد از آن (احکام الهی اند), and to subdivide again the first of these into two smaller kisms, dealing with ordinances for this world and such for the future world respectively, the former of which was to contain again four sections, called likewise kisms. But all these larger and smaller divisions are indissolubly mixed up with one another in the following discussions, and no trace of the original plan has remained. The real sections appearing in the text are a few kitābs, a considerable number of bâbs, and endless fasls, mas'alas (or istiftās), and dalils. The copy is, moreover, incomplete at the end. The bâbs and kitābs which are marked in this copy are:

1. باب قتل و دیگر تقصیرات و احکام آن, on fol. 4^b, lin. penult.
2. باب دیات, on fol. 7^a.
3. باب مسائل دیت و تقصیرات, on fol. 15^a, lin. penult.
4. باب در بیان وجوب قصاص وعدم وجوب آن, on fol. 21^b.
5. باب مسائل قصاص قتل نفس از محیط سرخسی, on fol. 27^b.

Appendix: A Pushtû-Persian Work on the Sunnite Creed.

2632

Makhzan-alislâm (مخزن الاسلام).

A comprehensive work on the observances, rites, and dogmas of Islâmism, according to the Sunnite creed, with occasional references to Şûfic theories, compiled in the Pushtû or Afghân language, with Persian prefaces to each chapter and other Persian quotations, on the basis of the best Arabic and Persian sources, by Âkhund Darwiza Ningarhârî (with his real name 'Abd-alkarim ibn Makhdûm), the founder of the national literature of the Afghâns, who lived under the emperor Akbar (A. H. 963-1014 = A. D. 1556-1605), at Pashâwar, and had received his spiritual tuition from Shaikh 'Ali Tirmidhi. He wrote this book for the purpose of guarding his Afghân countrymen against the heresy of a certain heretic or atheist (زندى), Bâyezid Anşari, son of 'Abdallâh of Kandahâr, commonly known as Yûsuf Zî, the founder of the Rûshânî sect, who was finally defeated by Akbar's general Muhsinkhân, comp. on this heretic and his sect Dr. Leyden's excellent treatise in 'the Asiatic Researches,' vol. xi. pp. 363-428, entitled: 'On the Rosheniah Sect and its founder, Bayezid Ansari,' and Graf Noer, Kaiser Akbar, vol. ii. pp. 180-219, Leyden, 1885; on the present work, which also bears the titles of مخزن افغانى, مخزن پشتو, and مخزن اسرار, Captain Raverty, Selections, prose and poetical, in the Pushtu or Afghân Language, London, 1860; and Z. D. M. G. vol. xvi. p. 786 sq.; B. Dorn, A Chrestomathy of the Pushtu or Afghan Language, St. Petersburg, 1847, preface, p. v sq.; and extracts from it, ib., pp. 14-18; see also Raverty's Gulshan-i-Roh, London, 1860, p. 133 sq.; and his Grammar of the Pukhtû, second edition, London, 1860, introduction, pp. 32-33. Âkhund Darwiza's elder son Karimadâd, who is occasionally addressed in the original draft of his father's work, wrote a تنقیح to it and revised and modified it to some extent (see the next copy); in A. H. 1014 (A. D. 1605) his younger son 'Abd-alkarim again revised and rearranged it, restoring certain parts omitted in Karimdad's recension, curtailing other parts and adding new material, where it appeared desirable to him (see Nos. 2634 and 2635 below). The book is divided into eight بیان, each of which has in the present copy, which seems to represent the original composition of Ābkund Darwiza himself, a Persian introduction.

Beginning of the preface or introduction to the first bayân, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لله الغنی الذی افتقر للحيوانات: باسمهم الى التفهم بينهم من احوال ضمايرهم الخ.

This first bayân is incomplete at the end in consequence of a lacuna between ff. 8 and 9; the last words, on fol. 8^b, correspond to fol. 50^b, l. 2 in No. 2634 below. Beginning of the bayân itself: بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم، پنجمه بحق آغاز: کرم اوس لديه علم کلام الخ.

A Pushtû paraphrase and interpretation of the famous kaşidah of Imâm Sharaf-aldin Abû 'Abdallâh Muḥammad bin Sa'id al-Bûşîrî (who died A. H. 694 = A. D. 1295) in praise of Muḥammad, and styled البُردة (see below, Nos. 2647-2652; edited by Rosenzweig, Vieuna, 1824, and by Ralfs, ib. 1860. with a metrical Persian and Turkish paraphrase, and German translation; latest Eastern editions, Bûlâk, A. H. 1305, Cairo, A. H. 1307; Kasan, with a Tataric paraphrase, 1888; French translation in Garcin de Tassy, Exposition de la foi musulmane, pp. 127-148; comp. G. Flügel i. p. 465 sq.; H. Khalifa iv. p. 523 sq., No. 9449, etc.). It is incomplete at the beginning, owing to the same lacuna after fol. 8; its abrupt beginning, on fol. 9^a, corresponds to fol. 55^b, l. 4 ab infra in No. 2634 below.

H. 537 = A. D. 1142, 1143), the author of another renowned work, called عقائد or the articles of faith (edited by Cureton as Appendix to the 'Pillar of the Creed of the Sunnites,' London, 1843; translated, with extracts from Taftâzânî's commentary, in Muradgea d'Ohsson's 'Tableau de l'Empire Othoman,' vol. i; comp. Sir Charles Wilkins, LL. D., F. R. S.

draft, in which the miscellaneous chapters at the end of the eighth bayān are missing, is described in Bod-another hand and contain only 12 lines); Naskhi; greatly

2633

Another copy of the same.

This copy represents the first revised edition of the مخزن الاسلام by the author's elder son, Karimḍād bin Makhḍūm Darwīza, as his name appears at the end as that of the compiler or جامع. It differs from the original draft mainly by the omission of the Persian introduction to the first bayān and of all the miscellaneous chapters at the end of the eighth, and by the introduction of two short sections at the end of the seventh bayān, on the letters of the Pushtū alphabet, viz. بیان دیگر در حروفات افغانی, on fol. 89^a, in Persian, and بیان دیگر بلفظ افغانی, on fol. 89^b, in Pushtū.

پنجم دحق آغاز کرم : Bayān I, on fol. 1^b, beginning :

Bayân V (without any heading), on fol. 46^a. Of the three faṣls only the first is found here, in consequence of a large lacuna after fol. 48; the author of the عقائد is called here Diyâ-aldin Imâm Shânî.

Bayân VI (here styled باب), on fol. 49^a.

Bayân VII, on fol. 64^b. The two rubâ'is by Nâsir bin Khusrau and Bâyezid Bisṭâmî are found here on ff. 79^b and 80^a; the twenty-three nuktas are the same as in the preceding copy.

Bayân VIII, on fol. 101^b; the title appears on fol. 118^a.

The same.

This copy represents, according to the last words on fol. 178^b, the second revised edition of the مخزن الاسلام, by the author's younger son, 'Ahd-alkarim bin Makhdûm Darwiza. Besides many amplifications and additions to the text and a restoration of various chapters of the original draft, left out in the first revision, it differs particularly in the arrangement of the introductory part before the beginning of the first bayân. This introductory part, which fills here forty-four leaves, comprises not only a considerable portion of the miscellaneous chapters at the end of the eighth bayân in No. 2632 but also the second and third faṣls of the fifth bayân. Another portion of the miscellaneous chapters is here inserted at the end of the seventh bayân. The initial words of the Persian preface to the whole in No. 2632 are found here on fol. 44^a.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: بنامه دحق آغاز کرم اوس لحق: سرب الخ, corresponding to fol. 141^a, last line in No. 2632. Immediately after the introductory words the Pushtû translation and explanation of Sûras 1 and 112, and the Arabic prayers follow, see fol. 141^b, l. 2 sq. in No. 2632, with slight modifications in the arrangement of the prayers. On fol. 5^b, last line, a فصل دوم appears, corresponding to the second faṣl of the fifth bayân in the original copy; and on fol. 12^b a فصل سوم, agreeing with the third faṣl of the fifth bayân there; the latter ends on fol. 19^b, l. 7. Ff. 19^b, l. 8–20^a, l. 5 correspond to fol. 149^a, first line to l. 3 ab infra in No. 2632; ff. 20^a, l. 6–21^b, l. 6 to ff. 147^a, lin. penult.–148^b, last line in the same copy; fol. 21^b, l. 7 sq. to fol. 151^b sq., ih. Fol. 22^a, lin. penult. sq. is found on fol. 150^a sq. in No. 2632; ff. 23^a–24^b, last line on ff. 137^a–138^b, lin. penult. there; ff. 26^a, l. 8–37^a, l. 7 on fol. 109^b, first line to fol. 119^b, l. 9, ib. Fol. 38^b sq. corresponds to fol. 150^b in No. 2632; fol. 39^b sq. to ff. 151^a and b there; fol. 40^a to fol. 149^a, ib.; and ff. 40^b–42^a to ff. 146^a–147^a, l. 3 ab infra, ib.

Bayân I, on fol. 45^b.

Bayân II, on fol. 52^a (for قصیده امالی must be read قصیده برد; ff. 56^a, l. 5–57^a, l. 3 are wanting in No. 2632 between ll. 7 and 8 on fol. 9^a).

Bayân III, on fol. 74^b.

Bayân IV, on fol. 85^b. The eight bâbs are found here: 1. on fol. 87^b, lin. penult.; 2. on fol. 88^a; 3. on fol. 89^a (here headed در بیان ستهای در نماز); 4. on fol. 90^a; 5. on fol. 91^b (در بیان حرامها در نماز); 6. on fol. 92^a (در بیان مکروهات در نماز); 7. on fol. 94^b (در بیان مباحات نماز); 8. on fol. 95^a, last line.

Bayân V, on fol. 96^a, consisting of the first faṣl only (see the second and third in the introductory part), although by an oversight the words مشتمل بر سه فصل are left after the heading; the author is called here Diyâ-aldin Imâm Muḥammad Shâhî, but at the end of the faṣl, on fol. 99^a, l. 4 ab infra, and last line, the usual designation Shâmî appears.

Bayân VI, on fol. 99^b, first line.

Bayân VII, on fol. 116^b, در بیان نکات (که) بعضی چیزهای که معتقدات مذهب ست و جماعت را از دانستن آن مسلمانان را جای است. Some of the headings of the twenty-three nuktas differ slightly from those in No. 2632 and are usually more correct in wording; for instance, nukta 16 . . . اندر آنکه اسرار روحانی آگاه نباشد اورا پیرو مرشد نباید دانست; nukta 17 در بیان بزرگان دین در میان عالم و nukta 18 اندر آنکه . . . مسلمانی بجای عالمیان الخ; در بیان عدد . . . حضرت پیغمبر 20 nukta; آرد الخ; صلی الله علیه و سلم و بیان ماکولات و عمر آنحضرت; Nâsir and Bisṭâmî's rubâ'is are found here on ff. 133^a and b. To this bayân is added here another portion of the miscellaneous chapters at the end of the eighth bayân in No. 2632, viz. ff. 142^b, l. 9–167^a, lin. penult., the main part of which, from fol. 143^b, l. 4 to fol. 163^b, l. 8, with several amplifications, corresponds to ff. 119^b–136^a, l. 4 ab infra in that copy.

Bayân VIII, on fol. 167^a, lin. penult.; it ends on fol. 177^b, l. 4 ab infra, corresponding to fol. 109^a, lin. penult. in No. 2632.

In the concluding words 'Abd-alkarim denotes himself as the editor.

No. 2882, ff. 178, ll. 14; Naskhi; size, 10½ in. by 7 in.

The same.

Another copy of the second revised edition by 'Abd-alkarim, quite like the preceding one, except, that at the end of the seventh bayân the two chapters on the Pushtû alphabet, as in No. 2633, fol. 89^a sq., are substituted here for the miscellaneous portions, taken from the eighth bayân of No. 2633, in the preceding copy. It begins like No. 2634, and contains the same preliminary parts; on fol. 7^a, the رساله of 'Umar al-Nasafi begins, corresponding to the second faṣl of the fifth bayân in the original draft; and on fol. 17^b the treatise on the correct reading of the Kurân, corresponding to the third faṣl in the same (styled فصل سیم, as in the preceding copy); then follow the same miscellaneous chapters as in No. 2634.

Bayân II (here styled فصل), on fol. 59^b.

Tarjuma-i-ḡaṣīda-i-sharifah (ترجمه قصیده شریفه).

A metrical Persian paraphrase of the Burdah with a more or less elaborate explanation, likewise in Persian, and usually introduced by the word یعنی, by an anonymous author. It is preceded by two prefaces, (1) a treatise, styled اسناد قصیده بردہ, or according to the concluding words اسناد در بسمار خواندن, setting forth the reasons for and the effects of a repeated reading of this ḡaṣīdah according to various traditions, and beginning, on fol. 43^a: نقلست بر روایت صحیح هرکه این قصیده را بخواند نوری و صفائی دل حاصل (2) a general preface, giving the common story about the origin of this ḡaṣīdah, beginning, on fol. 49^a: الحمد لناصر العباد بقدرته و جلاله القادر المحمود في كل فعالة التزاق من خزانة نعمة . . . اما بعد بدان نصرت الله تعالى كه قصیده بردہ مشتملت بر يكصد و شصت بيت الخ.

According to this statement the ḡaṣīdah contains 160 baits (see the same remark in the first preface, on fol. 47^b, l. 3 ab infra), but the Arabic text of the present paraphrase has 162 (in the text of No. 2648 above there are two more, one before and one after the last bait here, 164 altogether). ای زیاد صحبت یاران (یارانت correctly) اندرزی سلم
اشک چشم آمیختی با خون روان گشته بهم

Of the two prefaces only the second is found here, beginning, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لناصر العباد بقدرته الخ.

The first bait of the Burdah appears on fol. 2^b. The ḡaṣīdah contains here 167 baits, i.e. five additional ones to the 162 of the preceding copy, between vv. 5 and 6, 53 and 54, 73 and 74, 134 and 135, and immediately before the last bait (this fifth one is the first of the two additional ones in No. 2648), but a strange point in connection with these additions is, that there are blanks left after each of them, on ff. 4^a, 20^b, 27^b, 48^a, and 56^a respectively, and either the Persian paraphrase or the Persian explanation or both, are missing. Moreover v. 166 in this copy (i.e. the last but one) precedes v. 161 in the preceding one (in No. 2648 the same verse stands after 161 of the preceding copy).

The last bait of the ḡaṣīdah has neither paraphrase nor explanation, and the end of the copy corresponds accordingly to fol. 102^a, l. 4 in the preceding one.

No date. College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2041, ff. 56, ll. 13; Nasta'liq, the Arabic text in Naskhī, written in red ink; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Sharḥ-i-ḡaṣīda-i-Burdah (شرح قصیده بردہ).

Another Persian commentary on the Burdah, defective at the beginning: two leaves seem to be missing, according to the Arabic paging; besides, the first seventeen leaves are greatly damaged, the first pages even to such an extent, that more than one half of the text is torn away; the commentator's name is consequently lost, but fortunately, the date of composition is intact, viz. A. H. 921 (A. D. 1515), see fol. 1^a, ll. 1, 2, and 10. The Arabic text is indicated by نظم, the Persian commentary by ترجمه. The first bait of the text is found on fol. 1^b, l. 3, but the greater part of it is destroyed too. The last twenty leaves are more or less worm-eaten.

Dated by Ḥabīb Muḥammad the 12th of Sha'bān, A. H. 1056 (A. D. 1646, Sept. 23); collated the 8th of Ramaḍān in the same year (A. D. 1646, Oct. 18) with the copy of Miyān Shaikh Faḍīl in the presence of Mir (or Mirān) Sayyid Haidarjiw, Mir (or Miyān) Ṣadr-i-'ālam, Miyān Ḥabīb Muḥammad (or, as he is called a few lines before, Mir Sayyid Ḥabīb-allāh, probably the transcriber of the copy himself), Miyān Nūr Muḥammad, Miyān Ṣadr-al-dīn, and others.

Another Persian commentary on the Burdah, written by Yūsuf bin Muḥammad bin Shihāb al-Jāmī, commonly called Yūsuf Ahlī, A. H. 863 (A. D. 1459), is noticed in Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. ii. p. 85.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2582, ff. 64, ll. 19; distinct Nasta'liq; many various readings and additions on the margin; size, 9 in. by 6½ in.

Sharḥ-al-Maṣābiḥ (شرح المصابيح).

The third volume of a Persian commentary on the famous collection of 4719 traditions of Muḥammad, styled مصابيح الستة, by the Imām Abū Muḥammad al-Husain bin Mas'ûd al-Farrâ al-Baghawî alshâfi'i, who died A.H. 510 or 516 (A.D. 1116 or 1122), comp. on the Arabic original H. Khalfa v. p. 564 sq., No. 12128; Ibn Khallikân, No. 184; G. Flügel iii. p. 85; Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 35^b sq.; J. Aumer, Arabic Cat., pp. 28 and 29; Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Batav. iv. p. 74, etc. The commentator's name does not appear. This volume contains the following kitâbs, quite agreeing with those in the Arabic original:

كتاب البسوق, on fol. 2^b; كتاب التكاك, on fol. 50^b; كتاب العتق, on fol. 98^b; كتاب القصاص, on fol. 109^b; كتاب الحدود, on fol. 129^a; كتاب الامارة والقضا, on fol. 148^b; كتاب الصيد والذبائح, on fol. 167^a; كتاب الجهاد, on fol. 222^b; كتاب اللباس, on fol. 235^b; كتاب اطعمة, on fol. 257^b; كتاب الطب والترقي, on fol. 286^a; كتاب الرويا, on fol. 302^b. With the last-named kitâb this copy ends; the last three kitâbs of the original, viz. كتاب الآداب, كتاب الرقاق, and كتاب الفتن, are entirely missing here, although the first of them is noted in the index on fol. 1^b, margin, as كتاب الادب, with reference to fol. 21^v (whilst the actual Arabic paging only goes down to fol. 211); there were originally also several bābs of this kitâb enumerated in the index (going so far as fol. 210), but they have been afterwards struck out. From this we may conclude, that some unforeseen circumstance prevented the (anonymous) copyist from completing his task. An elaborate index of these missing three kitâbs is noticed in No. 2655 below.

No date. Collated, with many marginal glosses and additions.

No. 1640, ff. 312, ll. 27; distinct Nasta'liq; size, 12½ in. by 7½ in.

The mukaddimah, on fol. 2^a, first line (مقدمة مختصر), explains some of the technical terms used in the science of tradition, and adds to this explanation, on fol. 5^b, last line sq., accounts of fifteen renowned collectors of traditions, previous to the Mishkât, viz. 1. Abû 'Abdallâh Muḥammad bin Isma'il bin Muḡlirah bin Isma'il al-Bukhârî (who died A.H. 256, the 1st of Shawwâl = A.D. 870, Sept. 1, but see a different date below in No. 2659); 2. A.H. 631 = A.D. 1233, 1234, died in the same place the 14th of Rajab, A.H. 676 = A.D. 1277, Dec. 11); 15. Abû-alfaraj 'Abd-alraḥmân bin 'Abd-albaghdâdî, known as Ibn al-Jawzî (born A.H. 508 = A.D. 1114, 1115, or A.H. 510 = A.D. 1116, 1117, died in Ramaḍân, A.H. 597 = A.D. 1201, June).

The Arabic text with the Persian commentary begins, on fol. 16^a: نحمدہ و نستعینہ و نستغفرہ الخ.

The first volume contains two kitābs, the second five, all subdivided into many bāhs, faṣls, etc.

Kitāb I (كتاب الإيمان), on fol. 25^b, in No. 972; II (كتاب الصلوة), on fol. 195^b, in No. 972; III (كتاب الزكوة), on fol. 1^b, in No. 973; IV (كتاب الصوم), on fol. 53^a, in No. 973; V (كتاب فضائل القرآن), on fol. 87^a, in No. 973; VI (كتاب الدعوات), on fol. 118^b, in No. 973; VII (كتاب المناسك), on fol. 236^a, last line, in No. 973. The second volume has an index on the fly-leaves.

No date. The copyist was Muḥammad Ḥusain, a resident of سودهره. On fol. 1^a, in the first volume, there is an entry, dated Ramaḍān, A. H. 1160 (A. D. 1747, Sept.).

No. 972, ff. 522, ll. 25; size, 13 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.; No. 973, ff. 343, ll. 25; size, 14 in. by 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.; Nasta'lik, the Arabic text in Naskhi.

Another copy of the same.

The same two volumes of 'Abd-alḥakḥ's Persian commentary on the Miskāt, beginning on fol. 9^b as in the preceding copy. It is preceded, on ff. 1-8, by two indexes, the first of which, on ff. 1-3 and 5, does not belong at all to the present work, but gives all the bābs and faṣls of the last three kitābs of the third volume of the Sharḥ-al-Maṣābiḥ, which were wanting in the copy of that work, No. 2653 above, viz. كتاب الآداب, كتاب الرتاني, and كتاب الفتن (but to which copy the pages indicated refer, is impossible to say); the second, on ff. 4 and 6-8, gives the details of the present copy. The mukaddimah begins on fol. 10^a, but is not marked by any heading; the accounts of the fifteen traditioners are found here on ff. 13^a-20^b, beginning with Al-Bukhārī and ending with Ibn al-Jawzī.

First volume: Kitāb I, on fol. 27^b; II is styled here فاتحة الكتاب, and begins on fol. 94^a; the كتاب الصلوة of the preceding copy appears here as a mere باب الصلوة, on fol. 140^b. It ends on fol. 363^b.

Second volume, on fol. 364^b (with a separate بسم الله at the top of the page): Kitāb III, on fol. 364^b; the following four kitābs are all styled by mistake باب; IV, on fol. 411^b; V, on fol. 426^a; VI, on fol. 448^a; VII, on fol. 511^b. Ff. 223 and 228 are turned upside down and must exchange places with one another, as fol. 228^b is the proper continuation of fol. 222^b, and fol. 223^b of fol. 227^b.

No date. Various seals of Muḥammadshāh on fol. 9^a.

No. 349, ff. 564, ll. 25; written by different hands, partly in Nasta'lik, partly in Naskhi; illuminated frontispiece on fol. 9^b; size, 11 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 8 in.

(شرح سفر السعادة) Sharḥ-i-Sufar-alsa'adat.

A Persian commentary by the same 'Abd-alḥakḥ bin Saif-al-din on the large collection of authentic traditions relating to Muḥammad's life, practices, and teachings, styled سفر السعادة or صراط المستقيم and compiled by the famous author of the Kāmūs (see above, No. 2397), Muḥammad bin Ya'qūb bin Muḥammad bin Ibrahim bin 'Umar bin Abihakr bin Aḥmad bin Maḥmūd bin Idris bin Faḍl-allāh bin Shaikh-alislām Abi Ishāk alkāzarūnī, known as Shaikh Majd-al-din alfirūzābādi allughawī alkuraishī alyamani albakri alshāfi'i, who was born in Rabi'-alawwal, A. H. 729 (A. D. 1329, Jan.), and died in the night of the 20th of Shawwāl, A. H. 817 (A. D. 1415, Jan. 2), see fol. 2^b, ll. 1-5 (the date of birth given as A. H. 727 in Rieu i. p. 15^a is a mere oversight). On the original work comp. H. Khalfa iii. p. 599; and W. Pertsch, Gotha Arabic Cat., p. 55.

IND. OFF.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: سبحانك لا علم لنا إلا ما علمتنا إنيك انت العليم الحكيم اللهم صل على محمد هادي الخلائق الى الصراط المستقيم والمنهج القويم الخ.

The commentator's name appears on fol. 2^a, ll. 12 and 13; the two titles of the Arabic work, ib., l. 3 ab infra. From 'Abd-alḥakḥ's own sketch of his life and works (see Rieu iii. p. 1077^b) we learn, that he gave to this commentary the title الطريق القويم في شرح الصراط المستقيم. It is preceded by a mukaddimah, in two kisms: 1. در مصطلحات علم الحديث وأنجمة متعلق, on the science of tradition, on fol. 5^a; 2. در بيان منشأ اختلاف مجتهدين و ذكر ائمة اربعة و بيان حكم تقليد و اتباع ايشان وأنجمة متعلقست بآن, on the four Imāms or heads of legal schools, viz. Abū Ḥanīfah Nu'mān bin Thābit Kūfi, Abū 'Abdallāh Mālik bin Anas, Shāfi'i, and Abū 'Abdallāh Aḥmad bin Muḥammad bin Ḥanbal, and cognate matters, on fol. 19^b.

The سفر السعادة or صراط المستقيم begins on fol. 25^a and is subdivided into a fātiḥah, seven bāhs, and a khātimah. Subdivisions are faṣls, tanbihs, far's, and fā'idās.

Sharḥ-i-diwān-i-'Alī bin Abī Ṭālib (شرح ديوان علي بن ابي طالب).

A Persian commentary upon 'Alī bin Abī Ṭālib's alleged Arabic diwān, by Ḥusain bin Mu'in-al-din Maibudi (with the takhalluṣ Manṭiqi), completed according to fol. 252^a, ll. 11 and 12, in Ṣafar, A. H. 890, the year 406 of the Jalāli era (= A. D. 1485, Feb.-March), and introduced by a long preliminary discourse (فواتح) on metaphysical, psychological, and mystical matters in seven fātiḥas, see Rieu i. pp. 19 and 20; and H. Khalfa ii. p. 499, iii. p. 297 sq., and vi. p. 474; see also Krafft, p. 27 (where a collection of Maibudi's letters is noticed); on account of these فواتح, the following copy bears the title of فواتح و شرح ديوان علي بن ابي طالب. On the Arabic original, comp. Arabic Cat. of the Brit. Mus., p. 276; G. Flügel i. pp. 432-434, where the full title of 'Alī's diwān is given as انوار العقول من كلام وصي الرسول; Krafft, p. 56; etc. A Turkish translation of an Arabic commentary on the same, by Mustakimzāda Sa'd-al-din bin Sulaimān, was printed in Būlāq, A. H. 1253.

The seven fātiḥas are headed as follows:

فَاتِحَةُ سَابِعَةٌ در فضائل و احوال مرتضی ('Ali's excellent qualities and the circumstances of his life), on fol. 55^b.

On fol. 1^a an index of these seven fātiḥas is given, together with an explanation of the abbreviations used in them as well as in the commentary itself, viz. ش. ش (or negligently written) = مؤلف (i. e. the commentator Maibudi, the شارح); شیخ محیی الدین = مع (i. e. the commentary); (probably Muḥyi-al-din Ibn 'Arabi, see Safinat-al-auliya', No. 60, col. 281 in this Cat.); د = شیخ محمود (i. e. Maḥmūd Shabistari, the author of the راز و گلشن راز); ط (negligently written) = حافظ (or می) = مولانا (i. e. Jalāl-al-din Rūmi); ض (negligently written) = صاحب المثنوی (Ibn al-fārid, see above, No. 1811).

Sharḥ-i-Kāfi (شرح کافی).

A Persian commentary on the first book of the famous collection of Shi'ah traditions, entitled الكافي, by Abū Ja'far bin Muḥammad bin Ya'kūb bin Ishāq al-rāzi al-Kalīnī (died A. H. 329 or 328 = A. D. 940, 941 or 939, 940, according to the preface on fol. 3^a, in Baghdād), on which comp. Loth, Arabic Cat., pp. 32^b and 33. The commentator is Mullā Khalil bin Alghāzi al-kāzwinī, who entered Kāzwin with his sovereign Shāh 'Abbās II, A. H. 1064 (A. D. 1654), and began this work at the king's request forthwith. He finished the explanation of the first book the 28th of Muḥarram, A. H. 1065 (A. D. 1654, Dec. 8), as he states in the last words of the conclusion. He died, according to Rieu, Supplement, p. 253^b, in Kāzwin, A. H. 1089 (A. D. 1678). In the preface he mentions a former Arabic commentary on the same collection of traditions, styled الشافي, and quotes two traditions of the prophet, which he found in the احاديث غيبية صاحب الزمان of Abū Ja'far Tūsī (i. e. Muḥammad bin alḥasan, the author of the well-known فهرست, who died A. H. 460 = A. D. 1068, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 84, and Sprenger's edition of the Fihrist, in the Bibliotheca Indica, Calcutta, 1853-1855), and which seemed to him to have a prophetic reference to Shāh 'Abbās II. On fol. 3^a, last line, the initial words of the Arabic text begin: الحمد لله المجدود لنعمته المعبود لقدرته الخ.

On fol. 33^a an index of the whole Arabic work is given; according to that it is subdivided into thirty-three books (کتاب) or even into thirty-four, when the on which a Persian commentary, under the title منهج اليقين, was completed in Shawwāl, A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1671, Feb.-March), by 'Alā-aldīn Muḥammad bin Abū Turāb Gulistāna alḥusainī, see Rieu i. p. 22) is added to it, which, however, according to another authority, simply styled here Zain-aldīn, does not really belong to the كافي. These thirty-three books (Loth's Arabic text has only twenty-nine or thirty) are as follows:

1. كتاب العقل; 2. كتاب التوحيد; 3. كتاب الحجّة; 4. كتاب فضل; 5. كتاب الدّعا; 6. كتاب الايمان والكفر; 7. كتاب الحيض; 8. كتاب الطّهارة; 9. كتاب العشرة; 10. كتاب الجنائز; 11. كتاب الزّكوة; 12. كتاب الصلوة; 13. كتاب الصيام; 14. كتاب الحجّ (this book is in Loth's Arabic text the 8th, and books 8-13 here appear there as 9-14); 15. كتاب الجهاد; 16. كتاب المعيشة; 17. كتاب الطلاق; 18. كتاب العقيدة; 19. كتاب التّكاح (the books 16-19 are entirely wanting in Loth's copy; book 20 here corresponds to 16 there, and so on to the end); 20. كتاب العتق والتّدبير والكتابة; 21. كتاب; 22. كتاب الذّبايح; 23. كتاب الاطعمة; 24. كتاب الدّواجن; 25. كتاب الزّيّ والتّجمل والمرّة; 26. كتاب الحدود; 27. كتاب الوصايا; 28. كتاب الدّيّات; 29. كتاب الشهادات; 30. كتاب الايمان والتّذرّ والكفارات; 31. كتاب الاحكام. The comentator adds, that Ṭūsī in his list of Shī'ah books (i.e. the Fihrist) enumerates, including the book of the روضة, only thirty kitābs, and gives the following explanation: Ṭūsī has entirely omitted the كتاب العشرة (book 7) and the كتاب العقيدة (book 18); he has besides counted as one book the كتاب الطّهارة and the كتاب الحيض, and equally as one the كتاب الاطعمة and the كتاب الاشربة (which form here four books altogether, viz. 8, 9, 23, and 24). The first kitāb begins here on fol. 33^a, and is subdivided into twenty-three bābs, the first of which (on fol. 34^b) is styled باب العقل والجهل.

Beginning of the preface, on fol. 1^b: فتح صافى گنجینه شاهى شرح كافي احاديث رازداران الهى گشاد نعيم الخ.

Copied from an authentic manuscript in the possession of Hājī Muḥammad Bākīr Talkānī, which was written by Mullā Muḥammad Yūsuf in Kāzwin, and collated with the commentator's own autograph, A. H. 1086 in Aurangābād, and finished the 16th of Dhū-alhijjah of that year (= A. D. 1676, March 2).

No. 1152, ff. 136, ll. 21; Nasta'liq, the Arabic text for the greater part in small Naskhī; size, 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Another Shi'ah treatise on the customs and observances of daily life according to the precepts of the Imâms, by the same Muhammad Bâkir bin Muhammad Taqî Majlisî, who completed it in Rajab, A.H. 1079 (A.D. 1668, Dec.), see Rieu i. p. 20, and Supplement, p. 110^a; W. Pertsch, Berliu Cat., pp. 313 and 314; it was printed in Teheran, A.H. 1248. In the preface, on fol. 1^b, l. 11 sq., the author quotes his previous work, the الحیة.

The Hilyat-almuttakin is divided into fourteen bâbs and a khâtimah, but in consequence of a very large lacuna between ff. 45 and 46 the present copy contains only bâbs 1-3 and 11-14 complete, parts of bâbs 4 and 10, and the whole khâtimah; the following headings are given according to the index on fol. 2^a:

1. در آداب لباس (on dress), on fol. 2^b.
2. در آداب حلی و زیور پوشیدن و سرمه کشیدن و در. (on ornaments, dyes, etc.), on fol. 9^a.
3. در آداب خوردن و آشامیدن (on eating and drinking), on fol. 17^a.

4. در آداب تزویج و آداب مجامعت و معاشرت زنان و کیفیت ترتیب (? تربیت) فرزندان و معاشرت ایشان (on marriage, sexual intercourse, and the rearing of children), on fol. 35^b; this bâb breaks off on fol. 45^b in the eighth fasl.

5-9, on using the toothpick and clipping the nails, on scents, bathing, sleeping, and bleeding, are entirely missing.

10. در آداب ملاقات و معاشرت مؤمنان و حقوق (on intercourse with believers), opens abruptly on fol. 46^a in the middle of the third fasl.

11. در آداب مجالس و سلام و عطسه و مصافحه و معانقه (on assemblies, greetings, handshakings, embraces, etc.), on fol. 64^b.

12. در آداب خانه و داخل شدن و بیرون رفتن (on entering and leaving the house), on fol. 75^a.

13. در آداب سوار شدن و راه رفتن و تجارت و زراعت نمودن (on riding, walking, marketing, tilling, etc.), on fol. 84^a.

14. در آداب سفر (on travelling), on fol. 93^a.

Tafsir-i-kalâm-i-rabbânî (تفسير كلام رباني).

A Persian commentary on Sûrah 1 and Sûras 67-114, by Maulânâ Ya'qûb (see fol. 87^b, ll. 4 and 3 ab infra, and fol. 199^a, l. 2), i.e. Ya'qûb bin 'Uthmân bin Mahmûd bin Muḥammad alghaznawî alcarkhi, a disciple of Bahâ-aldin Naqshband (who died, according to the Safinat-alauliyâ, No. 82, col. 283 above, the 3rd of Rabi'-alawwal, A. H. 791 = A. D. 1389, March 2), and the spiritual guide of 'Ubad-allâh Ghujdawânî Ahrâr (see ib., No. 87). Maulânâ Ya'qûb, the author of many theological and mystical tracts (see above, Nos. 1919, 1; and 1923, 10), died A. H. 838 (A. D. 1434, 1435), see Rieu iii. p. 1078^a. Another copy of the present commentary, in which likewise Sûras 2-66 are omitted (not by oversight, but deliberately, as the author states there in an Arabic preface, which is wanting in our copy), is described by J. Aumer, p. 127. Our copy begins with a short introduction on various famous passages and phrases of the Qurân thus: قال النبي عليه السلام مفتاح القرآن تسمية وقال ابن عباس رضي الله عنه اجلال القرآن أغوؤ بالله من الشيطان الرجيم ومفتاح القرآن بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم بدان وقفك الله بتوفيقه ويسرك بفضل وكرمه بسلوك طريقه كه شاه مفسران عبد الله ابن عباس چنین روایت می کند، and is divided into two sections, each with a special colophon, the first comprising Sûrah 1 and Sûras 67-77, the second Sûras 78-114.

Sûrah 1. on fol. 4^a; 67. on fol. 9^a; 68. on fol. 24^b; 69. on fol. 35^a; 70. on fol. 50^a; 71. on fol. 54^a; 72. on fol. 58^b; 73. on fol. 66^a; 74. on fol. 72^a; 75. on fol. 77^a; 76. on fol. 80^a; 77. on fol. 85^a, lin. penult.; 78. on fol. 88^a; 79. on fol. 97^a; 80. on fol. 106^b; 81. on fol. 112^a; 82. on fol. 116^a; 83. on fol. 119^b; 84. on fol. 125^b; 85. on fol. 130^a; 86. on fol. 135^b; 87. on fol. 138^b; 88. on fol. 142^a; 89. on fol. 145^b; 90. on fol. 152^a; 91. on fol. 155^a; 92. on fol. 157^a; 93. on fol. 160^a; 94. on fol. 163^b; 95. on fol. 166^a, first line; 96. on fol. 167^b; 97. on fol. 171^b; 98. on fol. 173^b; 99. on fol. 176^b; 100. on fol. 178^b; 101. on fol. 180^a, last line; 102. on fol. 181^a; 103. on fol. 182^a; 104. on fol. 182^b; 105. on fol. 183^b; 106. on fol. 186^b; 107. on fol. 188^a; 108. on fol. 189^b; 109. on fol. 191^b; 110. on fol. 192^b; 111. on fol. 193^b; 112. on fol. 194^b; 113. on fol. 196^a; 114. on fol. 197^b, first line.

This copy is dated in both colophons (on ff. 87^b and 199^a) the 6th of Jumâdâ-alâkhar, A. H. 1089 (A. D. 1678, July 26); the copyist, whose name is partly erased in both, seems to be Muḥammad Ashraf ibn Shâh-i-Gadâ (sic!) Ḥasan alḥusaiui. The commentary ends on fol. 199^a; the remaining pages are filled, just as a number of fly-leaves in the beginning, with short tracts of various kinds; on fol. 199^b sq. a number of medical prescriptions appear; on fol. 202^b an Arabic prayer with Persian interlinear paraphrase, etc.; on the third fly-leaf in the beginning a mystical tract, Bahr-i-mawwâj (بحر موج).

The first volume (جلد اول) of a very extensive Persian commentary on the Qurân, composed by Shihâb Shams-i-'Umar Daulatâbâdî Zâwuli of Dihli (see fol. 2^b, l. 3 ab infra), that is Kâdî Shihâb-aldin Malik-al-'ulamâ bin Shams-aldin bin 'Umar alzawâlî (!) aldaulatâbâdî, as he is called with his fuller name in the مآثر الکرام تاریخ بلگرام (No. 682 above), who died A. H. 849 (A. D. 1445, 1446), see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 567, ll. 11 and 12. He dedicated this work to Shams-aldunyâ wa-aldin Abû-almuẓaffar Ibrâhîm Shâh Sultân (see fol. 2^b, l. 14), that is Sultân Ibrâhîm Shâh Sharqî of Jaunpûr, who reigned A. H. 804-844 (A. D. 1401-1440), and was a great patron of arts and letters, encouraging the composition of many literary works. A date of composition is not found in this copy, which comprises the first eighteen Sûras (سورة الكهف begins on fol. 5^b, and سورة الفاتحة begins on fol. 637^b).

Beginning of the preface: حماد ای حمد طیب (?طیب) که رائحة فائحة آن بنفحة آلاء مطابه و فوحة نعماء مستطابه مشام جان حامد را معطرگرداند الخ

The chief authorities, quoted by the author of this commentary, are تفسیر زاهدی; تفسیر امام کلبی; تفسیر بستی (probably a mistake for تفسیر مدارک و مدارک التنزیل و حقائق التأویل, by Nasafi, see in No. 2608 above); کشاف (by Zamakhshari) and various commentaries on the same; تفسیر مفاتیح الغیب (i.e. التفسیر الکبیر) or امام رازی composed A. H. 602 = A. D. 1205, 1206, by Fakhr-aldin Abû-alfadl Muḥammad bin 'Umar Râzi, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 13^b); تفسیر ابو اللیث سمرقندی (see J. Aumer, Arabic Cat., p. 13, and No. 2608 above), etc.

Dated the 15th of Rabi'-alâkhar, A. H. 1187 (A. D. 1773, July 6).

No. 1095, ff. 666, ll. 23; Nasta'liq; size, 14³/₈ in. by 9 in.

Jawâhir-altafsîr li tuhfat-alamir (جواهر التفسير لتخفة الامير).

The first volume (الجلد الاول) of the extremely rare Persian commentary on the Qurân by Ḥusain bin 'Alî alwâ'iz alkâshifi, the renowned author, who died A. H. 910 (A. D. 1505), comp. No. 2188 above, where his most prominent works are enumerated (there should be added to that list the تحفة السلوات, composed A. H. 899 = A. D. 1494, see G. Flügel iii. p. 449; Ḥ. Khalfâ ii. p. 230; and Rieu, Turkish Cat., p. 12^b, where a Turkish translation of the same, made A.H. 990 = A.D. 1582, is noticed; the رسالة العليّة في الأحاديث النبويّة; see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 240; H. Khalfa iii. p. 421, No. 6241; and Schefer, Chrest. Pers., i. 191 sq.; and the قصص و آثار حاتم طائي, written A.H. 891 = A.D. 1486, see Bodleian Cat., No. 452; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 992; and No. 780 in this Cat.). According to the preface in the same author's smaller commentary, the مواهب عليّة (see the following numbers), he began this very extensive commentary at the request of Mir 'Alishir and meant it to comprise four volumes; but after having finished the first, he was prevented from continuing it, and wrote his shorter work to satisfy his patron; see a full statement of these circumstances in No. 1805 of the Bodleian Cat., and comp. also H. Khalfa ii. p. 360, No. 3259, and p. 641, No. 4274; parts of this first volume are also noticed in Rieu i. p. 11 (the جواهر التفسير in J. Aumer, p. 127, and the Cat. des MSS. et Xylographes, p. 247, is merely a wrong designation for the smaller commentary, the مواهب عليّة, as both the beginning of those copies and their date, A.D. 897, prove).

This first volume (probably the only one he completed) comprises the first three Sûras and a portion of the fourth, preceded by a detailed introduction on the science of the Kūrān and its exegesis, divided into the following four اصل (see the index on ff. 4^a and b):

1. در بیان شمه از فضائل قرآن و ذکر بعضی از اسامی آن و مباحث حدوث و قدم و حقیقت تکلیف و کیفیت سماع آن, in four عنوان, on fol. 4^b.

2. در جامعیت قرآن و انشعاب علوم دینیّه از آن و بیان علمهائی که تعلق بقرآن دارد و آنچه مفسّر را از آن, in five عنوان, on fol. 10^a.

3. در ذکر الفاظی که میان مفسّران متداولست و بیان آن, in eight عنوان, on fol. 17^a.

4. در فوائد متفرقه, in six عنوان, on fol. 24^a, last line.

The six important عنوان of this last section are:

(a) در بیان جمع قرآن و کیفیت انتظام آن, on fol. 24^b, first line.

(b) در شرف علم تفسیر و ذکر بعضی از فوائد آن, on fol. 25^a.

(c) در بیان اعجاز قرآن و کشف حجاب اسرار از وجوه آن, on fol. 27^b.

(d) در بیان افضلیّه بعضی سور و آیات و ذکر شمه از آن, on fol. 29^b.

(e) در شرائط تدبّر و تفکر در الفاظ و معانی آیات قرآنی, on fol. 30^b.

(f) در ذکر اشارات عرفا و حقائق اولیا, on fol. 33^b (the five introductory عنوان quoted in Rieu i. p. 11, correspond, as a comparison with the headings given above shows, to b-f in the fourth and last اصل).

The first Sûrah begins on fol. 35^a; the second, on fol. 153^b; the third, on fol. 400^b; the fourth, on fol. 577^b. It breaks off with the end of v. 84 of the fourth Sûrah.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: نبدأ بالله علیم حکیم، زینت فائحه هر کتاب و زیور خاتمه هر خطاب جزئیاته ثنائی الاریاب الخ.

Title and author's name are written in the two vignettes on fol. 1^b, and appear besides in the text, on fol. 3^b, ll. 2 and 11.

Dated A.H. 967 (A.D. 1559, 1560) by Abû-alnaṣr Muḥammad al-Ṣadr bin Nâsir-alshari'at Maṣṣûr bin Ṣadr alḥasanî alḥusainî aldashtakî alshirâzî.

Dated the 23rd of Safar, A.H. 1191 (A.D. 1777, April 2), by 'Abd-alkâdir ibn Shaikh 'Abdallâh, living in Talûjah near Bilâpûr in the district of Islâmâbâd (probably the present Chittagong in Bengal). The first owner of the copy was Hâjî Thanâ-allâh bin Muḥammad Mukim Fâdil bin Muḥammad Ghâzi of Bangâlah.

No. 2441, ff. 461, ll. 19; Nasta'liq; size, 12½ in. by 8½ in.

A slightly incomplete copy of the same.

This copy breaks off in v. 30 of Sûrah 18 (سورة الكهف), which begins on fol. 408^a. Beginning as usual.

College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2015, ff. 413, ll. 20; Naskhi; size, 12 in. by 7½ in.

2688

The second volume of the same.

The second volume or second half of the Mawâhib-i-'aliyyah, comprising Sûras 19–114, and dated Jumâdâ-alawwal, A.H. 1080 (A.D. 1669, Sept.–Oct.).

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2560, ff. 429, ll. 25; Naskhi; worm-eaten throughout, some of the first and last pages damaged besides; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

2689

The same.

This copy of the second volume or second half begins here with Sûrah 18 (سورة الكهف), on fol. 2^b; there is moreover added on fol. 1^b, as a kind of introduction, the first Sûrah (سورة فاتحة), see the initial words: الحمد لله تكرر سورة فاتحة الكتاب واقعه شد زيرا كه اين سورة سبع المثاني است و مكرر نازل شده پس از جهت تيسر و تبرک درين جلد نيز مسطور شده الخ.

The copyist seems to be (so far as we understand the colophon) Muḥammad Pâyanda bin Maḥmûd; both the name of a transcriber, mentioned a little above, viz. Amin-aldin bin Muḥammad 'Abdallâh alamini, and the date, 2nd of Muḥarram, A.H. 1114 (1114? = A.D. 1702, May 29), belong apparently to the MS. from which the present one was transcribed.

College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2229, ff. 545, ll. 17; large Nasta'liq, the Arabic text in Naskhi; size, 11½ in. by 7½ in.

2690

An incomplete copy of the same.

This copy begins like No. 2688 with Sûrah 19, but goes down to Sûrah 68, v. 50 only. All the rest is wanting, except on fol. 258^a the last words of the colophon and the date, A.H. 960 (A.D. 1553). Sûrah 68 (here called سورة القلم) begins on fol. 256^a, l. 6.

No. 3484, olim 20. J. 1, ff. 258, ll. 23; small Nasta'liq; many pages injured and portions of the text effaced; size, 10½ in. by 7½ in.

2691

Tarjumat-alkhawâss (ترجمة الخواص).

A very detailed Shi'ah commentary on the Kūrân, by 'Alî bin Ḥasan alzawwârî (الزوارى), see fol. 1^b, l. 13, and completed according to the chronogram at the end:

از فضل اله چون باتمام رسيد
تأريخ وى از فضل اله است عيان

A.H. 946 (A.D. 1539, 1540). This commentary, which is styled both on fol. 1^a and in the final words of the text ترجمه الحواص بر طريق اهل بيت, is divided into two halves, the first of which, on ff. 1^b-265^b, comprises Sûras 1-17, the second, on ff. 266^b-504, Sûras 18-114.

Beginning: حمد بيمد و شكر بلا عتد منعمى را سزد كه شفائق قرآنى را در حدائق صدور انسانى الخ. The explanation of the words اعوذ بالله الخ, on fol. 1^b, viz.: پناه مى گيرم والتجأ مى نمايم و امان ميطلبم و يارى ميچويم و فرياد ميخواهم بمعبود بحق و خداوند مطلق از شروسوسه ديو فربنده رانده از رحمت يا محروم شده از رياض جنائى الخ, although being much more copious, agrees so well with the paraphrase of the same words in the anonymous Shi'ah commentary, described in Rieu i. p. 12^b (which also, like the first half of our copy, goes down to the end of the seventeenth Sûrah), that it must be practically identical with that.

This copy is dated the 4th of Muharram, A. H. 959 (A. D. 1552, Jan. 1); but the transcriber's name is torn away. An entry from A. H. 1196 (A. D. 1782), on fol. 1^a.

The proper order of ff. 15-24 is: 15, 23, 17-22, 16, and 24.

No. 120, ff. 504, ll. 29; clear and distinct Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b and 266^b; size, 14½ in. by 9½ in.

Khulâsat-almanhaj (خلاصة المنهج).

The first volume (جلد اول) of the Shi'ite commentary on the Kurân, by Ibn Shukr-allâh Fath-allâh alsharif alkâshânî (who died A. H. 978 = A. D. 1570, 1571, comp. Rieu i. p. 12 and iii. p. 1077^b), an abridgement made by the author himself from his larger commentary in five volumes, styled منهج الصادقين فى الزام المخالفين, see fol. 1^b, l. 9 (a complete copy of this larger work is preserved in the Bodleian Library, see Bodleian Cat., No. 1809). The author's name appears on fol. 1^b, ll. 11 and 12; the title خلاصة المنهج on fol. 1^b, last line.

Rieu i. pp. 18 and 19; and the Persian translation of Jamâl-aldin Hasan al-Hilli's قواعد الاحكام, see ib., iii. p. 1077^b.

Dated the 19th of Dhû-alhijjah, A. H. 1093 (A. D. 1682, Dec. 19). Collated throughout by Hâjî Muḥammad Kâzim, who completed his task the 4th of Jumâdâ-alawwal, A. H. 1103 (A. D. 1692, Jan. 23). A former owner of the copy was 'Ali Naḳî bin Muḥammad Taḳî bin Muḥammad Ja'far alḥusainî (probably a son of the author of the great romance Bûstân-i Khayâl, Muḥammad Taḳî alja'fari alḥusainî, who died A. H. 1173 = A. D. 1759, 1760, see above, No. 833 sq.).

Another copy of the first volume of the Khulâsat-almanhaj.

This copy goes down to the end of the eighteenth Sûrah, and is styled in the colophon: جلد اول از تفسير

Beginning as in No. 2692; collated.

No date. College of Fort William, 1825.

2695

A defective copy of the second volume of the same.

This copy opens abruptly in the first verse of Sûrah 39 thus: از اشباه و امثال الحكيم دانا در همه افعال, corresponding to fol. 281^a, l. 19 in No. 2693 above. Sûrah 40 begins on fol. 16^b, l. 2.

No. 1101, ff. 380, ll. 19; large Nasta'lik, some leaves seem to have been supplied by other hands; size, 14½ in. by 10½ in.

Tafsir-i-Tâhîrî (تفسير طاهري).

The second volume (جلد ثانی) of a Persian commentary (with an interlinear paraphrase in addition) on the Kūrân, by the Shaikh alkabir Abû-almuẓaffar Tâhir bin Muḥammad al-Asfarâ'îni, comprising Sûras 19-114. No date of composition appears anywhere. Each Sûrah is preceded by a shorter or longer discourse on the number of verses, words, letters, etc., found in it, the place where it was revealed, and other explanatory matters. Frequently the text of the Kūrân consists of rather a long passage, including a number of verses, each with the interlinear Persian version, after which a continuous, and sometimes a very lengthy, commentary follows. The authorities quoted (chiefly traditionists) are very much the same as in Albaghawî's Arabic commentary (comp. J. Aumer, Arabic Cat., p. 14, and Arabic Cat. of the Brit. Mus. i. p. 61 sq.), viz. ('Abdallâh) Ibn 'Abbâs, Ka'b-alahbâr, Muḥammad bin Ka'b alquraṭi, Kalbî, Mujâhid, 'Ikramah, Ibn 'Umar, 'Abdallâh bin Mas'ûd, Hishâm bin 'Urwah, Ḍahhâk, Katâdah, Hasan Baṣrî, Muḳâtil, Muḥammad bin Ishâq, Abû Hurairah, and many others; Ibn 'Abbâs is cited on almost every page.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: ابن سورة مكي است و نود و هشت آية است و كلماتش هزار و صد و شصت و دو است و حروفش سه هزار و هشتصد است الخ.

The beginning of the nineteenth Sûrah on the same page with its paraphrase and commentary runs thus:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم بنام خدای بخشاینده مهربان که تعص کافی و هادی و رحیم و علیم و صادق است خدای عز و جل گروهی گفتند که این نام مهین وی است و گفتند که ذکر این حرفها تنبیهی است سامع را از غفلت تا گوش بدان دارد الخ.

No date; a number of entries of former owners, both on ff. 1^a and 389^b, giving various years of a particular reign (for instance, the forty-sixth, which must necessarily refer either to Akbar or to 'Âlamgir).

No. 335, ff. 389, ll. 23; the Arabic text in fine Naskhī in alternate blue and gold colours; the Persian paraphrase and commentary in excellent Nasta'lik, the former in red, the latter in black; a splendid vignette with the author's name on fol. 1^a; a gorgeously illuminated frontispiece on fol. 1^b; the first two pages richly adorned; smaller illuminations round the headings of each Sûrah and on the margin too; size, 11½ in. by 7½ in.

A large portion of a very extensive, but unfortunately anonymous, paraphrase and commentary of the Kūrân in Persian, comprising the twenty-first, and the greater part of the twenty-second section, out of the thirty sections into which it is divided.

The twenty-first section (الجزء حادی العشرون من الجزء الثاني) begins on fol. 1^b with Sûrah 29, v. 44; the twenty-second (here by mistake headed و الجزء الثاني عشر من الجزء الثاني) on fol. 129^a with Sûrah 33, v. 31. The copy breaks off on fol. 374^b with the first word of Sûrah 38, v. 51. مُتَكَيِّن, explained: و ایشان تکیه زدگان باشند. There is besides, a lacuna from the middle of fol. 14^a to the beginning of fol. 15^a, comprising the last verses of Sûrah 29 from v. 58 onwards, and the first two of Sûrah 30. Fol. 15^a opens in the Persian explanation of Sûrah 30, v. 2, and the first Arabic text, appearing again on fol. 15^b, is Sûrah 30, v. 3.

Sûrah 31 begins on fol. 54^a; 32. on fol. 82^b; 33. on fol. 100^b; 34. on fol. 175^b; 35. on fol. 218^a; 36. on fol. 255^a; 37. on fol. 295^b; 38. on fol. 344^b.

No. 2423, ff. 374, ll. 9; Naskhī; size, 11½ in. by 6½ in.

Exegetical treatises by Bahâdur Tarkhân.

A collection of four treatises, explanatory of different Sûras of the Kūrân and of some traditions, compiled at the request of his friends by Alsayyid alhusaini alridawî 'Ubaid-allâhkhân aldihlawî, surnamed Mir Jumla Bahâdur Tarkhân, viz.:

1. Persian paraphrase and explanation of the first Sûrah (سورة فاتحة الكتاب), beginning, on fol. 1^b: حمد بی نهایت و شکر بی غایت خداوندی را که آفریننده و بخشنده حیات الخ.

2. Persian paraphrase and explanation of Sûrah 112 (سورة التوحيد or سورة الاخلاص), beginning, on fol. 21^a: حمد فراوان و مدح بی پایان مختص معبود الخ.

3. A collection of forty traditions, selected from those of the most trustworthy Shaikhs, beginning, on fol. 27^b: با غفار الذنوب و یا ستار العیوب صلی الله الخ.

4. Persian paraphrase and explanation of Sûrah 36 (سورة یسین), beginning, on fol. 35^b: سباس بیفاس مر پروردگار را که شهباز قدمش در آشیانه حدوث الخ.

No date.

No. 909, ff. 57, ll. 13; large Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Tarjumân-i-Kurân (ترجمان قرآن).

The interpreter of the Kurân, that is a very short and concise glossary of the Kurân, explaining in Persian the more difficult words appearing in it, Sûrah by Sûrah; it is compiled by Mir Sayyid Sharif Jurjâni, the author of the رسالة الكبرى في المنطق (see above, No. 2180), the رسالة الصغرى في المنطق (see Nos. 2181 and 2182), the صرف مير (see Nos. 2406-2409, and 2413, 2 above), the metaphysical tract بیان مراتب موجودات در موجودیت (Rieu ii. p. 864^a, I, and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 19, No. 5), and numerous Arabic works, comp. col. 465 above, No. 1162 in the Haft Iklim; he died A. H. 816 (A. D. 1413, 1414); another copy of the same glossary, but without the author's name, is noticed in E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 46; different from this is the little work of the same title, noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 275, No. 8. A new edition of this glossary in alphabetical order was made by 'Âdil bin 'Alî bin 'Âdil al-Hâfiẓ, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 88.

Beginning: این کتاب ترجمان قرآنست و ترجمان تعریب ترزان است و در وی سه لغتست تَرْجَمَان و تَرْجَمَانُ النِّح و تَرْجَمَانُ النِّح.

The first Sûrah begins on fol. 1^b, the last ends on fol. 44^a. At the end this glossary is styled ترجمه کلام قرآن, and on the title-page ترجمه لغات قرآنی.

Dated Shawwâl, A. H. 858 (A. D. 1454, Sept.-Oct.).

No. 715, ff. 1-44, ll. 19; Naskhî; size, 8 in. by 5 in.

Hall-i-lughât u alfâẓ-i-Kurân (حل لغات و الفاظ قرآن).

Another short glossary, arranged alphabetically according to the first letter and explaining in Persian the principal words occurring in the Kurân, by Tâj bin Muḥammad bin Ibrâhîm alhâshîmî; the above title is given on the title-page. A curious incident is, that on fol. 46^b, a few lines before the beginning of the glossary, the introductory words of the preceding one are repeated, viz. این کتاب ترجمان قرآنست النِّح.

Beginning: سپاس بی قیاس خدایرا جل ذکره و عم شکره که مَتَزَل قرآنست و رازق ثقلان و درود فراوان بر انبیاء مرسلین خصوصاً بر سید انبیاء النِّح.

Copied by Maḥmûd bin Muḥammad alhumâ'î, apparently the same who copied the preceding glossary in A. H. 858 (A. D. 1454).

No. 715, ff. 45-82, ll. 19; Naskhî; size, 8 in. by 5 in.

Khulâṣa-i-mustakhlîṣ (خلاصه مستخلص).

A third short glossary of the Kurân, explaining the principal words occurring in it, Sûrah by Sûrah, as in the ترجمان قرآن, but with this peculiar difference, that after the first Sûrah, on fol. 2^a, there follows, on fol. 2^b, Sûrah 114, and then the Sûras are taken in their opposite order from 113 backwards to 2; from fol. 25^a onwards the headings of the Sûras are left blank. There is no date nor author's name; the anonymous compiler (ابن فقیر ضعیف) simply states, that some friends, who had neglected their theological education in their younger years and now in their old age wanted to know something of the meanings and imports of the Kurân, induced him to write this little manual, which, according to a marginal note on fol. 1^a, was transcribed by Mir Haidar Khushnawis.

Beginning, on fol. 1^a: الحمد لله رب العالمین بدان الهکم الله که بعضی اصحاب ما وقفهم الله علی تحصیل علوم ربانی النِّح.

No date.

No. 504, ff. 55, ll. 13; Nasta'liq; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

2702

Two treatises on the reading of the Kurân.

I. Ḵitâb-i-kirâ'at (کتاب قراءت), on ff. 1^b-40^b.

A short tract on the proper reading of the Kurân and its composition, by a بنده ضعیف سمرقندی, who put together in a Persian compendium all he had read in Arabic works on this subject, and all he had heard from the lips of his spiritual teacher Shams-almillah wa-aldu Muhammad bin Khâlidî aljunaidî (see fol. 2^a), in ten bâbs:

1. در تجوید فاتحه, on fol. 3^b.
2. در رعایت حروف و معرفت حُن خفی, on fol. 8^a.
3. در رُوم و اشمام و کیفیت وی که بر کدام حرف روا داشته اند و بر کدام حرف روا نداشته اند اهل این صنعت, on fol. 15^a.

5. در ادغام حروف ساکن که از یک جنس آید از یک مخرج یا بسبب قرب مخرج ادغام میکنند و این هر سه نوع را ادغام صغیر میخوانند النِّح, on fol. 20^a.
6. در مدّات که در قرآن مدّ بر چند نوع است و هر مدّی را چه نامست و شرح آن النِّح, on fol. 21^a.
7. در مخارج حروف, on fol. 25^b.
8. در بیان آنکه نون ساکن و تنوین را چند حالتست در قرآن و کلام عرب, on fol. 30^b.
9. در بیان حدّ و تحقیق در قراءه و قراءه گرفتن سنت, on fol. 32^b.
10. در معرفت همجاء مصحف و تألیف قرآن و جمع کردن در مصحف, on fol. 35^b.

The last bâb is incomplete and breaks off on fol. 40^b.

Beginning: الحمد لله رب العالمین اعلم هداک الله النِّح.

II. Tarjuma-i-Shâtibî dar 'ilm-i-kirâ'at (ترجمة شاطبی در علم قرائت), on ff. 41^a-146^b.

A Persian commentary on the famous kaşîdah on the correct reading of the Kurân, by Abû-alkâsim bin Firruh bin Khalaf bin Aḥmad Ru'ainî Shâtibî, who died A. H. 590 (A. D. 1194), comp. H. Khalifa iii. p. 43; Nöldeke, Geschichte des Qorâns, p. 337 sq.; J. Aumer, Arabic Cat., p. 20; Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 8. This copy is incomplete at the beginning, opening in the middle of the preface. The Persian commentator's name is not mentioned.

Dated end of Rajab, A. H. 907 (A. D. 1502, Febr.).

No. 1473, ff. 146, ll. 13 (on ff. 1-40 and 139-146), ll. 11 (on ff. 41-138); written by two different hands in Naskhî and Nasta'liq, fol. 8 added in Shikasta; size, 6½ in. by 4½ in.

Kawâ'id-alkurân (قواعد القرآن).

A third treatise on the proper reading of the Kurân, or the علم القرائت, compiled by Yâr Muḥammad bin Khudâdâd of Samarkand, who had frequented the lectures of the best teachers of this discipline in Transoxania and Khurâsân. It is dedicated to Abû-alghâzi 'Ubaid-allâh Bahâdurkhân (who reigned in Transoxania A. H. 939-946 = A. D. 1532-1540), and divided into the following twelve bâbs:

1. در بیان استعاذه و بسملة, on fol. 2^b.
2. در بیان مخارج حروف, on fol. 3^b.

‘Alâmât-i-nujûm-alfurkân (علامات نجوم الفرقان).

A concordance of the Kūrân, arranged alphabetically with reference to the sections (جزو) and the places of رکوع in each of them, by Ibn Muḥammad Sa’id Muṣṭafâ, of Afghân extraction, A.H. 1103=A.D. 1691, 1692 (the title is a chronogram, see fol. 4^b, ll. 4 and 5), and dedicated to the emperor ‘Ālamgīr (fol. 3^b, ll. 9 and 10). After the preface (on fol. 1^b) and the muḥaddimah (در بیان ضوابط و قواعد استخراج) the real concordance begins with a general enumeration of the thirty sections of the Kūrân, and the places of رکوع in each of them (on fol. 9^a sq.), after which the special and main part of the whole follows, in alphabetical order (on fol. 18^a). After each word a cipher indicates the number of the section, and one or more letters the number of the رکوع in the respective section where it is found, for instance, ید ۲۷ = 27th section, 14th رکوع (Surâh 56, 18), etc.

Kawânin-i-Ḥaṣṣiyyah (قوانین حفصیّه).

A sixth, very modern, treatise on the proper reading of the Kūrân, principally on the difference between the seven legitimate readers (قراء سبعه) in general, and the particular views of ‘Umar Ḥaṣṣ in particular, made at the request of Tipû Sultân, see fol. 2^a, lin. penult., and fol. 45^a, l. 3, A.H. 1208 (dated the 11th of Jumâdâ-alawwal of that year (A.D. 1793, Dec. 15). The compiler’s name does not appear. The title is mentioned on fol. 2^b margin, and on fol. 44^b, last line. It is divided into the following fourteen bâbs:

1. در احوال حفص, on fol. 2^b.
2. ... در بیان خواندن قرآن (heading omitted in the text and partly cut off in the index), on fol. 3^b.

Jawâhir-alkurân (جواهر القرآن).

A complete index to all the رکوعات or times of bowing in reading the Kūrân, arranged alphabetically in 254 bâbs, according to the first two letters of the words at which the رکوع is due, compiled by request of the same Tipû Sultân (see fol. 9^a, lin. penult.) by Ghulâm Aḥmad (the author of the المجامدين زاد and the خلاصه سلطانی see Nos. 2621–2623 above) and Sayyid ‘Ali Kâdi (see fol. 9^b, l. 4 ab infra) in the year 1223 since Muḥammad’s birth (see fol. 9^b, ll. 4 and 5, (در سنه يکهزار و دو صد و بیست سه مولود محمد). If this date was literally interpreted, it would be about A.H. 1170, long before Tipû’s accession; but as Ghulâm Aḥmad uses in his other work the المجامدين زاد, the era of Muḥammad’s prophetic mission, it is very likely that مولود, birth, is taken in a symbolical sense and means the same as بعث there; in this case it would be about A.H. 1211 (A.D. 1796, 1797).

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لله الذي انزل على عبده الكتاب و جعله آية الهداية الخ

After the preface and a long encomiastic poem on Tipû Sultân follows a muḥaddimah in three faṣls: 1. در ذکر قوانین استخراج, on fol. 10^a, first line; 2. در بیان رکوعات هر سوره, on fol. 10^a, lin. penult.; 3. فهرست کتاب, on fol. 21^b (an index of the 254 bâbs). On fol. 26^a the first bâb (باب الالف مع الالف) begins.

Copied, as it seems, in the year 1225 of the same era.

No. 491, ff. 245, ll. 9; Naskhî; size, 8 in. by 5½ in.

Rukû’ât-i-Kurân (رکوعات قرآن).

Another, very short, index to the رکوعات, or times of bowing in reading the Kūrân, compiled from a larger work, the نجوم القرآن (which might perhaps be the same as noticed in No. 2707 above), by order of the same Tipû Sultân. It amounts to 574 رکوعات.

Fihrist-i-Sûrahâi Kitâb-allâh (فهرست سوره‌ای) (کتاب الله).

A third, likewise very short, index to the Kurân, stating with regard to each Sûrah, whether it is revealed in Makkah or Madinah, how many verses, words, and letters, how many رکوع, and what peculiarities it contains besides. After that there follows, on fol. 13^b, a غزل در تفصیل آیات کلام الله; on fol. 14^a a short chapter on the correct reading and pronunciation of certain words and phrases in the Kurân (taken from the جامع الجوامع, perhaps Tabarsi's تفسیر جامع, see Loth, Arabic Cat., p. 12^b); and on fol. 15^b an indication of the fifteen passages where the سُجُود or prostration is required (بیان سجدهات تلاوة در تمام کلام الله).

This little book was prepared for the same Tipû Sultân as the three preceding ones.

Ṣuḥuf-i-Ibrâhîm (صحف ابراهیم).

The alleged books or revelations of Abraham, which are mentioned in the Kurân (comp. Sûrah 87, last verse) as the oldest testimony of Islâm, appearing here in a Persian garb and consisting of thirteen short kitâbs.

Beginning of the first kitâb:

بنام آنکه هستی نام ازو یافت - فلک جنبش زمین
آرام ازو یافت - جواهر بخش حکمت‌های باریک - بروز
آزنده شهای تاریک - این تفسیر صحیفست که بحضرت
ابراهیم صلی الله علیه و سلم نازل شد الخ.

The thirteenth kitâb ends on fol. 64^b. The remaining leaves (ff. 65-69) are filled with fragments of a psychological treatise, etc., in a different handwriting.

Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1835 and 1836. The present copy is a modern transcript, dated by Muḥammad Ashraf Zamân the 23rd of October, 1798 = A.H. 1213, 12th of Jumâdâ I. Both the introduction to the reading of the Gospels and the study of Christ's life and death, and the detailed index, which are found in No. 1835 of the Bodl. Cat., are wanting here; the copy begins at once with the Gospel according to St. Matthew:

6. Hinduism.

Hujjat-alhind (حجة الهند).

A controversy between Hindû mythology and Muḥammadan religion, in the form of a dialogue between a parrot (طوطی) and a starling (شارک), alleged to be a translation from an Indian original, written for the daughter of Nal Râe, king of Naldrug (نل درگ) or Nuldrug (see Hunter, Imperial Gazetteer of India, vii. 41, a fortified town in Haidarâbâd), with the name of Damiyati (دمیتی, W. Pertsch in the Berlin copy reads دیمینی). The story deals with the conversion of the princess by means of the questions and answers exchanged by the two birds, and showing the superiority of Islâm over Hinduism, and her final marriage to the young Muslim, who having fallen in love with the princess had trained these birds and brought about their purchase by her. The present work is the Persian translation of that rather fabulous story, made by 'Alishah Mihrāhi (علی‌شاه محرابی), or as he is called in the following copy, 'Umar Mihrābi (عمر محرابی); in the British Mus. copy the name is given as Ibn 'Umar Mihrābi; in the Berlin copy Ibn 'Umar Mihrānī (محرابی), see Rieu i. p. 29; and W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 111.

Tarjuma-i-dharmshāstr (ترجمه دهرم شاستر).

The law of the Hindūs, drawn up at the request of the Governor-General of India, Warren Hastings (see fol. 3^a, ll. 1 and 2), by a number of learned Pandits (whose names are given here on fol. 3^a, last line, and fol. 3^b, ll. 1-3, see Halhed's translation, p. 6), in Fort William, Calcutta, from the best Sanskrit sources, and translated from Sanskrit into Persian by Zain-al-din 'Alī Rasā'i (the translator's name does not appear in this copy, but is given in full in the immediately following one, on fol. 4^b, l. 3 ab infra); according to fol. 3^a, ll. 9-11, the work was commenced in May, 1773 (A. H. 1187, Rabi' II), and completed in February, 1775 (A. H. 1188, Dhū-al-hijjah), corresponding to the Bangālī era, 1180-1182; comp. Rieu i. pp. 62 and 63; and N. B. Halhed's English version: 'Code of Gentoo Laws, from a Persian translation, made from the original, written in the Shanscrit language,' London, 1776.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: بر آگاه خاطران روشن ضمیر . . . ومعنی شکافان حقیقت پذیر که دل را الخ.

On fol. 3^b the same two introductory chapters, noticed in Rieu, loc. cit., follow, headed حقیقت سرست (in the following copy حقیقت سرشت), beginning:

مبدع حقیقی اول زمین و آسمان و آب و آتش و هوا پیدا کرد الخ, and on fol. 17^b sq., the index, with the list of the Sanskrit works used (see Rieu, loc. cit.); on fol. 21^b the translation of the Sanskrit work itself begins: ترجمه پوتھی بیستهای پندتان. The title, given to this book above, is taken from No. 2719 below; here it is merely styled پوتھی, and in the following copy, on fol. 5^a, اسرار نهان شرع هندی.

No date.

No. 1291, ff. 179, ll. 13; Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispieces on ff. 1^b and 21^b; each line surrounded by a gilt frame; splendid eastern binding; size, 11½ in. by 6½ in.

Another copy of the same.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: بر آگاه خاطران روشن ضمیر . . . و معنی شکافان حقیقت پذیر سجنجل دل را الخ.

The wording of the preface differs slightly from that in the preceding copy, and there is moreover a substantial addition, viz. the name of the translator, on fol. 4^b, and three chronograms, on fol. 5^a, for the completion of the work, which take the place of the more detailed statement in the preceding copy. Unfortunately one or two of these ta'rikhāt are apparently as incorrect as in the British Museum copy; they are (a) the chronogram for the year of the Hijrah گفتا که (which, if the 10 is counted, will give the correct date, A. H. 1188); (b) the chronogram for the Bangālī era: کلام شرع هند است (which gives only 1181 instead of 1182, as the preceding copy has); (c) the chronogram for the English (i. e. Christian) era, حل راز شریعت هندی است (which in its present form would only give 1756; in order to make it 1775, it ought to be corrected into هندست شریعت هندی, and, contrary to general usage, the tashdid of حل ought to be taken into consideration, giving for the first word the numerical value of 68).

The introductory chapters begin, on fol. 5^a: مبدع حقیقی اول زمین الخ, the index on fol. 24^b, first line; the work itself on fol. 28^b.

No date.

Falconer, who had previously translated the same work into the Jentoo language, i.e. the language of Tiling or Tilinga (see No. 2529 above), as the following letter, written by the author to the Hon. Sir Charles Oakeley, Bart., Governor in Council, on fol. 81^a, shows:

Honorable Sir,

When I had the Honor of addressing you on the 3rd of October last, I promised to prepare, from the Bengal Code of Regulations for the Courts of Justice, a Persian Translate, agreeably to the Alterations of the Board of Revenue —, and having now accomplished that Work, I have the Honor herewith to lay it before the Board.

When I gave in my Jentoo Translation of these Regulations, your Honorable Board were pleased to express your approbation of my Zeal—and your Satisfaction in my Labors—recommending me also to receive one Thousand Pagodas, in Consideration of my Trouble.

At the same Time that I am desirous of expressing my best Acknowledgments for your kind Consideration of my humble Services—I beg leave to Suggest, that their object was, to recommend myself for that Promotion in the Service, which, while it will compensate for my late Exertions, will encourage my future Assiduity.

Honorable Sir,

Travels in Upper Hindūstāu by Ghulām Muḥammad-khān (sec fol. 6^a, last line, and fol. 14^b, l. 6 sq.), who may be identical with the author of the نوادر القصص or anecdotal memoirs (described in Rieu iii. pp. 981 and 982). They were undertaken at the request of the Governor-General, Warren Hastings, in A. H. 1196-1201 (A. D. 1782-1787); and the present work, which is unfortunately incomplete at the end, contains both a journal of his journey, especially from Shāhjahānābād (Dihli) to Kābul and Kaudahār, and reports of all the contemporary historical events, together with the various observations he made on the road. The title given to it is simply رسالة تصنيف غلام محمدخان.

Beginning: سبحان الله این چه گوهر گرانمایه و اختر بلندپایه است که آشنایان زمان وحی و الهام بسخنش موسوم کرده اند و نسخه حل و عقد مصالح انام بنام نامی او مرقوم ساخته الخ.

Bayān-i-hālāt-i-manāzil-i-Kābul az balda-i-Shāhjahānābād (بیان حالات منازل کابل از بلد شاهجهان آباد).

Diary of a journey from Shāhjahānābād (Dihli) to Kābul in A. H. 1211, 1212 (A. D. 1796-1798), undertaken by Shaikh Rahm 'Alī for the East India Company, in order to ascertain the different stations on the road and the state of things in the territory of the Amir (here called partly والی, partly شاه) of Kābul, his army, his generals, officials, etc. His dispatches were sent to one of the officials of the East India Company, Bahādur 'Abd-alkādirkhān, who revised and edited this diary, which contains the description of seventy-five manzils or stations between Dihli and Kābul. 'Abd-alkādirkhān appears to be identical with the author of the حشمت کشمیر (A. H. 1245=A. D. 1829, 1830), who was staying A. H. 1212 with John Lumsden in Lucknow, see Rieu iii. p. 1016, where a short biographical sketch of 'Abd-alkādir is given.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: بعد از حمد شاهنشاهی که اتاقیم حدوث . . . اما بعد کمترین ملازمان سرکار فیض آثار کمپنی انگریز بهادر عبد القادر خان گذارش مینماید که در شهر الخ.

Attached to this diary there are twenty-two special questions and answers relating to the same topics, on ff. 29-52.

Masīr-i-Ṭālibī fi bilād-i-afrañji (مسیر طالبی فی بلاد افرنجی).

Abū Ṭālib bin Muḥammad Begkhān Tabrizi Iṣfahānī Londoni's journey to Europe in A. H. 1213-1218 (A. D. 1798-1803), compiled by the author immediately after his return, and completed, according to the chronogram in the British Museum copy (Rieu i. p. 384), A. H. 1219 (A. D. 1804); for other copies comp. Bodleian Cat., No. 1855, and E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 194. The chronogram in our copy (last line in the last page) runs thus: معطی علم و دانش افرنج, which would give the date A. H. 964—a bad joke of the copyist, no doubt—who prided himself on having substituted a genuine Persian word, دانش, for the correct Arabic صنعت. The author is identical with the compiler of the famous tadhkirah خلاصة الافکار, completed between A. H. 1206 and 1207 (A. D. 1791-1793), see above, No. 696, and the author of the دیوان طالب (edited with English translation by George Swiuton, London, 1807), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1994.

Beginning: بعد حمد خداوند عالم که بخشنده هم الخ.

The narrative of this journey was translated into English by Ch. Stewart, London, 1810; the text has been edited by the author's son, Mirzā Husain 'Alī, Calcutta, 1812, and in an abridged form by Dr. Macfarlane, Calcutta, 1827 (a copy of this abridgement is preserved in the Berlin Library, see W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 377).

No date. This copy belonged formerly to Mr. W. H. Bayley.

No. 2955, ff. 296, ll. 15; clear and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 10½ in. by 8½ in.

Cat., No. 1858; Rieu iii. p. 982, and Supplement, p. 97^b.

Beginning: احوال سفر بخارا و تفصیل منازل از آنک تا کشمیر من کشمیر الی تبت من تبت الی بارکند الخ.

This interesting and minute account of the various stages on the road from Attock to Bukhārā and back has been partly translated into English by H. H. Wilson in the Calcutta Quarterly Magazine and Review, vols. iii and iv, 1825, and retranslated into French and German (Magasin Asiatique, Juillet, 1826; Ritter, Geographie von Asien, ii), comp. also 'Travels in the Himalayan Provinces of Hindustan and the Panjab, etc., by Mr. William Moorcroft and Mr. George Trebeck, prepared for the press by H. H. Wilson, London, 1841, vol. i, preface, p. xviii. A complete translation of these travels into English was published in Calcutta, 1872, by Captain Henderson, 'Travels in Central Asia, by Meer Izzut Oollah.'

2. Historical Dates and Chronograms.

Historical tables, showing the prominent events of every year since the creation of the world. The anonymous compiler of this book states that A.H. 1075 (A.D. 1664, 1665), when being in Baghdād, he saw a chronological compendium written by a savant of Constantinople, in Turkish, and at the request of some friends he at first translated it into the language of the Arabian 'Irāk, that is into Arabic, afterwards into Persian. The latter paraphrase, with some additions made by the translator, is contained in the present copy.

The introduction deals with the different eras, particularly with the تاریخ قبطی, تاریخ ترکی, تاریخ هجری, تاریخ فارسی, سکندری, تاریخ جلالی (that is the era of Sulṭān Jalāl-al-din Malikshāh Saljūki).

On fol. 9^b the ante-Muhammadan tables begin with the creation of Ādam.

The Muhammadan tables begin on fol. 19^b and go down from A.H. 1 to A.H. 1085, A.D. 622-1674 (on the margin they are even carried on to A.H. 1091 = A.D. 1680). On ff. 88^b-94^b special tables are added, showing the duration of the different Muhammadan and ante-Muhammadan dynasties; the last and most detailed are those of the 'Uthmāni Sulṭāns.

It was compiled at the request of Tipū Sulṭān (see above, Nos. 2024-2032, 2616-2623, and 2708-2711) by Muḥammad Sharif (according to a note on the fly-leaf) and styled صحيفة الاعراس or تاریخ وفات بزرگان or عرائس بزرگان.

A second copy of the same work, but very incorrectly written, is noticed in W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 474, No. 1; the compiler is stated there to have been an inhabitant of Salîmâbâd in Bangâlah. Other statistical works of the same title (but all referring to special reigns or particular provinces of India) are described above, No. 432; Bodleian Cat., No. 268; Rieu i. pp. 403-405; W. 2755

Another incomplete copy.

This copy contains portions only of the Fath-almujâhidin; bâb I, on fol. 9^b, comprising about two-thirds of the usual contents, the end, on fol. 32^b, corresponding to fol. 41^a, lin. penult. in No. 2468 (2757 below in this Cat.); bâb II is entirely missing; bâb III begins on fol. 33^a; IV, or part of it (headed here احکام بخشی و متمّدیان قشونات, see No. 2738 above), on fol. 54^a. Beyond this the copy is a mere labyrinth; on ff. 73^b-77^b there appear Rekhta ghazals for the various times of the day, with reference to soldiers' duties; on ff. 78-90 miscellaneous matters referring to the same, written by other hands in almost illegible Shikasta.

College of Fort William, 1825.

No. 2513, ff. 90; clear Nasta'lik, mixed with Shikasta in some pages on ff. 1-77, Shikasta alone on ff. 78-90; size, 7¾ in. by 4¾ in.

2756

A third incomplete copy.

Portions of bâb I occupy ff. 9^a-34^b, as the following miscellaneous headings show: مسائل و نحو, on fol. 12^a; مسائل و نماز and فرائض غسل, on fol. 12^b; مسائل جهاد, on fol. 14^a, etc. On fol. 35^b a chapter, styled قواعد سوار تعلّق عسکر, begins, evidently corresponding to bâb VII of the complete copies; on fol. 47^a a chapter, ضابطه حریفان عسکر; and on fol. 53^b a chapter, ضابطه تفریض خدمات, agreeing in substance with bâb V. On fol. 59^b sq. some Rekhta verses. There is obviously a large lacuna on fol. 34^b, where suddenly quite a new handwriting commences.

Extracts from the Faṭḥ-almujāhidīn.

Ff. 2^b-8^a: the introduction, beginning, فتح ملك سخنوری الخ.

Ff. 8^b-26^b: on the dutiful observances of Muslims, entitled الحمد لله مسائل چند از روی فقه; the beginning, الحمد لله; taken from the first bāb.

Fol. 27, written by a different hand and on different paper, seems not to have belonged originally to this copy, as the catchword on fol. 26^b corresponds to the initial word on fol. 28^a; it is a short tract on disloyalty (نمک حرامی) in four قسم, as practised either by the hand, the tongue, the eye, or the ear, and taken from the same first bāb (see the index in No. 2738 above).

Ff. 28^a-79^a: continuation of the extracts, beginning with the third bāb, here headed تدبیرات حرب. The first two leaves of this copy (ff. 1^b and 2^a) contain a short tract on the measure called کُر شرعی, beginning:

(ضوابط سلطانی) Dawābiṭ-i-Sulṭānī.

Royal usages, that is regulations for the proper shape and form of royal insignia, as the orbs or disks at the top of banners, seals, official signatures, etc., drawn up under the direction of Tipū Sulṭān and dated the 19th of Rabi'-al-awwal, A.H. 1211 (that is the year 1224 since Muḥammad's birth, or rather, since his prophetic mission, see No. 2709 above and No. 2762 below, and compare it with No. 2621 = A.D. 1796, Sept. 22). It is divided into four bābs and subdivided into faṣls, all of which are illustrated with more or less numerous models and specimens. The blankness of many intervening leaves, as well as the abrupt manner in which the copy comes to a close, indicates that this was the first sketch, a mere brouillon, to be properly arranged and completed afterwards.

5. Arts, Technical and Practical Pursuits.

- a. Music (for special works on Indian music, see above, Nos. 2008-2033).

Kanz-altuhaf (کنز التحف).

An anonymous treatise on music (رساله در فنّ موسیقی), in a muḥaddimah and four maḳālas (index on ff. 6^a-7^a):

Muḥaddimah: در بیان شرف این صناعت بر سائر صناعات (the pre-eminence of music over other arts), on fol. 7^a.

Maḳālah I: در علم موسیقی (the theoretical side of music), in two kisms, (a) در حدود تعریفات موسیقی, on fol. 8^a; (b) در علت اسباب حدّ و نقل و عوارض, on fol. 8^b.

Maḳālah II: در عملی موسیقی (the practical side of music), in two kisms, (a) در تعریف عود و تسویه اوتار, on fol. 11^b; (b) در آن و استخراج ادوار و آوازه از آن, تشریح ایقاعات سبعة مشهوره و انتقال مستحسن, on fol. 15^b.

Maḳālah III: در تصنیع سازات (ساز index) و تعدیل, on fol. 17^a.

Maḳālah IV: در وصیتی که طالبان این فنّ را بکار, on fol. 22^a and 25^b. (read تألیفات) (valuable hints to students of the art, and verses appropriate to the compositions), in two kisms, on ff. 22^a and 25^b.

Beginning: شکر و سپاس بی حدّ و قیاس سزاوار حضرت آن پادشاهی که در سرایده الح.

The date of composition is contained in the following ta'rikh at the end of the treatise:

آن روز کز احداث جهان مهمل بود

در آخر این رساله ام مدخل بود

اندر سنه الح ذ دو بو

بیست و دوم جمادی الاول بود

that is the 22nd of Jamādā I, A. H. 756 = A. D. 1355, June 4 (if we read ذ دو بو); or A. H. 764 = A. D. 1363, March 9 (if we read بو instead of بو).

Other copies of the same treatise are noticed in Rieu, Supplement, p. 115^b (where the letters of the date are given as و بو الح, which, however, does not agree, as stated there, with A. H. 741 or 749, but rather with A. H. 752 or 760), and in Cat. Codd. Or. Lugd. Bat. iii. p. 302 (where A. H. 746 is given, which agrees neither with the one nor the other combination of letters). The third alternative, to read نو, as Rieu suggests, is out of question, as it would make the date of composition considerably later than the date of our copy, which was finished the 1st of Dhū-alka'dah, A. H. 784 (A. D. 1383, Jan. 6). Library of Richard Johnson, A. H. 1194 (A. D. 1780).

H. 1211 = A. D. 1796), by order of Tipū Sulṭān. It is divided into twelve رسم or modes, and to each a smaller or longer song is allotted, consisting partly of one bait only, partly of longer qaṣidas, with one rubā'i for the fifth رسم. The majority of the songs are written in Hindūstānī, the minority and the whole of the preface in Persian.

Beginning of the preface: سبّاس ببقیاس مر خالق قدسی اساس را از مکّن بطون الح.

The sixteenth folio bears the signature of Sulṭān 'Alī almuwashshadi, the famous calligrapher, who died in Harāt, A. H. 919 (A. D. 1513), compare Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1896 and 1900, Rieu ii. p. 573^a, iii. p. 1089^a; the second that of Shihāb-aldīn Muḥammad Shāhjahān Pādishāh ibn Jahāngir Pādishāh ibn Akbar Pādishāh, i. e. the emperor Shāhjahān.

Ādāb-almulūk u Kifāyat-almamlūk (آداب الملوك و كفاية المملوك).

A work, chiefly on the art of war, with a number of introductory chapters on the proper characteristics of a king and his duty to select fit officers of state. It was composed by Muḥammad bin Mansūr bin Sa'id bin Abū-alfaraj Kuraishī, with the epithet Fakhr Mudabbir, who traced his pedigree back to Abūbākr (see fol. 3^b, ll. 5-3 ab infra), and dedicated by him to Shams-aldunyā wa-aldu Abū-almuẓaffar Ītāmish al-Sultān Nāsir Amir-almu'miniū (see fol. 4^a, l. 1 sq.), who reigned in Dihlī from A. H. 607 to 633 (A. D. 1210-1236); the title as given above is found here on fol. 4^a, ll. 8 and 9; in Rieu ii. pp. 487 and 488 (the only other copy extant) it is styled آداب الحرب والشجاعة; it is divided into forty bābs (Rieu's copy has thirty-four, the introductory chapters on regal duties being there only six, whereas the present MS. numbers twelve). An index, on ff. 4^a-5^a; a diwān, on ff. 5^a-6^b. The headings in the index differ frequently from those in the text (which are always fuller), but, unfortunately, in bābs 13, 14, 16-30, and 33-40 these latter are left blank and therefore afford no help in giving a more detailed summary of the contents.

The forty bābs are headed as follows:

1. اندر کرم و حلم و عفو پادشاهان, on fol. 6^b, on the generosity, gentleness, and forgiveness of kings.
2. اندر نیت و text اندر عدل و نیت نیک پادشاهان, on fol. 18^b, on the justice, good intention, and other laudable qualities of kings.

38. اندر آنچه از اجل بجنک برهنر بیشتر و مهتر شود, on the better chance a courageous man has with regard to death in battle (in Rieu's copy the wording of this heading must be different, as Major Yule sums up its contents in this way: 'on the fact that, whether you flee like a poltroon, or face the enemy like a hero, you will not die till your day come,' which would require at least نبود instead of شود and some additional words, which the blank in our text makes it impossible to supply).

Kitāb-i-Ni'matnāma-i-Nāṣirshāhi (کتاب نعمتنامه ناصرشاهی).

A large and curious, but unfortunately defective work on Indian cookery, preparation of sweetmeats, spices, etc., without author's name and date of composition. It seems to begin on fol. 162^b, where a frontispiece appears together with a kind of title or heading, which runs thus: کتاب نعمتنامه ناصرشاهی و عطرنامه و ترکیب خوشبوئیها و ترکیب چووه (جوا) چووا i. e. or (a fragrant paste of four ingredients) و ترکیب تیلهای خوشبوی و ترکیب پختن کافور الخ fol. 194, after which must be added ff. 161^b-161^b; there are some leaves missing between fol. 194 and fol. 1, the latter opening abruptly thus: a wide-پاتیلی

(mouthed cauldron) بیارند خواه از زریا از نقره یا از
برنج الخ.

The proper place of ff. 195^b and 196^a is doubtful; they evidently belong to the same work, but are detached from it by an intervening blank page. Besides the lacuna already mentioned, there are several others, for instance, one leaf is missing after ff. 16, 17, 19, 37, 46, 56, 60, and 67; two leaves after ff. 80 and 151; several pages are moreover badly injured. According to a note on fol. 1^a this copy must have been written before A. H. 1044 (A. D. 1634, 1635).

No. 149, ff. 196, ll. 10; very large Nasta'lik; illuminated frontispiece on fol. 162^b; illustrations on ff. 4^b, 5^a, 6^b, 8^b, 11^a, 14^a, 18^a, 23^a, 25^b, 29^a, 32^a, 35^b, 40^b, 44^b, 51^a, 54^a, 66^a, 71^b, 76^a, 79^b, 83^b, 88^b, 91^b, 94^a, 98^a, 100^b, 103^b, 111^b, 115^b, 118^b, 121^b, 124^b, 129^b, 133^b, 136^b, 144^b, 147^a, 153^b, 157^a, 159^b, 165^b, 168^b, 171^b, 174^b, 177^b, 180^b, 183^b, 186^b, 189^b, and 192^b; size, 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 8 in.

Tables of alphabets, for the greater part purely imaginary, as it seems; they begin with the قلم برناوی, that is the alphabet of the Egyptian Pharaohs at the time of Moses, in five different kisms; after that follows a so-called Greek alphabet (قلم یونانی), then a Hebrew one (قلم عبرانی) in various kisms, a Syriac one in two kisms, and many more, among which some very fantastic ones appear, for instance, the alphabet of Solomon, with which talismans were written, a Zoroastrian one (قلم زردشتیان), which is entirely cuneiform, a Coptic one, a very funny alphabet of the Franks, with the additional statement, that these people write from the left to the right, a secret alphabet (قلم الاسرار), and many similar oddities.

This little MS. was presented by Lord Teignmouth.

Ardāi-Virāfnāma in prose (اردای ویرافنامه نثر).

A Persian prose-version of the Pahlavi original of the Artā-Virāf-nāmak, beginning, on fol. 1^b: چون اردشیر بابکان بهادشاهی بنشست نود پادشاه را بکشت و جهان

را از دشمنان خالی کرد و آرمیده شد و دستوران و موبدان
که در آن روزگار بودند آنچه

This beginning differs only very slightly from that in MS. 28 of Haug's Collection and the two versions are no doubt identical, see another copy of the same in Bodleian Cat., No. 1950. The Pahlavi original was published, with an English translation and introduction, by Dr. M. Haug, Bombay and London, 1872 (comp. on our prose-version the Introductory Essays of that edition, pp. xv-xx); French translation by Adrien Barthélemy, Paris, 1887; see also F. Spiegel, Die traditionelle Literatur der Parsen, pp. 120-128. This version is probably the same on which the poetical paraphrase of Dastūr Zartusht bin Bahrām bin Pazhdū (see the immediately following copy) was based.

As title appears here: آغاز داستان ویران‌نامه و قصه
شاه اردشیر بابکان انوشیروان.

No date.

No. 830, ff. 1-50, ll. 11; large and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 8 in. by 5 in.

Ardāi-Virāfnāma in verse (اردای ویران‌نامه نظم).

The Persian poetical version of the same Artā-Virāfnāmak, probably based on the preceding prose-version, by Zartusht bin Bahrām bin Pazhdū, who composed it immediately after the completion of the Zarātushtnāma or Zartushtnāma (a translation in Persian verse of the life of Zoroaster, written originally in Pahlavi), in the year 647 of the Yazdajird era (=A.D. 1277, 1278), comp. Rieu i. p. 47 sq. On this poetical paraphrase the English version of J. A. Pope, 'Ardai Viraf Nameh or the revelation of Ardai Viraf, translated from the Persian and Guzeratee versions,' London, 1816, is principally based; see also J. Wilson, Religion of the Parsis, pp. 435-444; Anquetil, Zend-Avesta, ii. p. xxxii; Sachau, Contributions to the knowledge of Parsee Literature, Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, 1870, p. 279, etc.

The author's name appears here, on fol. 77^a, l. 4:
کنون زرتشت بن بهرام پزْدو بیاور شرح حال قصه برگو.
The Zartushtnāma, here called مولود زرتشت, and its poetical paraphrase, are mentioned on fol. 75^a, l. 13; the Ardāi-Virāfnāma itself, and the heavenly voice which bade the author write a poetical version of this work too, on fol. 75^b, l. 9 sq.

Beginning (different from that in Rieu):

سر دفتر بنام پاک زندان
نگهدار زمین و چرخ گردان

The present copy, which is not dated, seems more an abridgement of the book than a complete representation of it. Another poetical version of the Ardāi-Virāfnāma, by Kā'ūs, Herbad of Nausāri, is noticed by Anquetil, Zend-Avesta, ii. p. xxx.

No. 2506, ff. 47-78, 2 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'liq, the last page supplied later; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Sad Dar (صد در).

A popular exposition of the Zoroastrian law, called the Hundred Gates from the hundred sections into which it is divided, in Persian prose, derived in its contents from the Avastā, Zand and Pāzand, and beginning, on fol. 51^b: سپاس و ستایش مر خدایا ایح.

It is, no doubt, the basis of the better-known poetical version, made by Īrānshāh bin Malikshāh at the request of the illustrious Dastūr Shahriyār bin Dastūr Ardashir bin Bahrāmshāh, in the year 864 of the Yazdajird era (A. D. 1495=A. H. 900), comp. Rieu i. pp. 48 and 49; Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1945 and 1946; translated into Latin by Th. Hyde in 'Veterum Persarum, etc., religionis historia,' Oxford, 1760 (second edition), pp. 431-488; Anquetil, Zend-Avesta, ii. p. xxxiv; Sachau, Contributions, p. 280, etc. The present prose-version has been translated into English by West, S. B. E., xxiv. pp. 253-361, Oxford, 1885.

No date.

No. 830, ff. 51-155, ll. 11; large and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 8 in. by 5 in.

2821

Kitāb-i-shāyist u nāshāyist (کتاب شایست و ناشایست).

Exposition of the chief doctrines and religious ordinances of the Parsees, in Persian prose, intermixed with some pieces in Zend, and beginning: این کتابیست که در شایست و ناشایست که از دین ایح.

On account of its being divided, like the صد در (see the preceding copy), into 100 sections, it is called here کتاب صد در, just as in the Paris MS., where it appears as Sadder Bundeshesh; other copies are noticed in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1952 and 1953, and in Rieu iii. p. 1067, No. II; comp. also Spiegel, Die traditionelle Literatur der Parsen, p. 168 sq., where extracts are given; and J. Wilson, Religion of the Parsis, pp. 444 and 445.

This copy was presented by Mr. Romer, August 31, 1837.

No. 2506, ff. 1-46, ll. 15; Nasta'liq; ff. 41-46 greatly injured; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Parsee mathnawis.

A curious collection of mathnawis, written apparently by a disciple of the Zoroastrian creed who may be identical with the author of the poetical version of the Sad Dar or the Hundred Gates, Īrānshāh bin Malikshāh, who wrote about 864 of the Yazdajird era (=A.D. 1495), see No. 2820 above. We conjecture this, from one of the last chapters of the third mathnawi (fol. 180^a sq.) where the author enumerates with similar praises, as in the Sad Dar, a number of illustrious Dastūrs, among others Ardashir and Shahriyār, and repeatedly mentions Malikshāh and Īrānshāh, the latter of which might very well be his own name. The principal Dastūr who encouraged him to write these mathnawis was Dastūr Nûshîrwân, see fol. 74^b, l. 8: بمن گفت دستور نوشیروان and in many other places.

The first mathnawî, a poetical version of an older prose-treatise (see fol. 74^a, lin. penult.: بمن این نسر: کنم نظم: زیبا به نظم آورم (read نسر); and 74^b, l. 1: (امشاسفندان روا), is styled امشاسفندنامه, and gives a poetical account of the duties and performances of the thirty-one (not thirty-three سی و سه, as both the preface and epilogue state) Amshâspands, viz.: 1. بهمن; 2. خرداد; 3. شهریور; 4. سِفندار مَزَد; 5. خورشید; 6. دی باذر; 7. مَرَداد; 8. آذر; 9. آبان; 10. خورشید; 11. ماه; 12. تیر; 13. گوشرنگ; 14. دَتی بَهر; 15. مَهر; 16. سَروش; 17. باد; 18. قَرورَدین; 19. دَرهَرَام; 20. رام; 21. دی بدین; 22. دی بدین; 23. دین; 24. آرد (in the heading of the chapter ارشوانگ); 25. آشتاد; 26. آسمان; 27. دامیاد; 28. مانتره; 29. انارام; 30. هوم; 31. بُرز; and begins, on fol. 73^b:

بنام خداوند روزی رسان — که هست آگه اندر دل بندگان

The second mathnawî looks like an extract from the Shâhnâmâ and contains the story of Rustam and Isfandiyâr, beginning, on fol. 114^a:

بنام خداوند دستار زند — خداوند دارنده ارجمند
The first chapter-heading is: آغاز داستان رفتن اسفندیار بنزد رستم زال بزابلستان بنزد رستم زال.

The third mathnawî is styled حکایت شاه نظام and treats of the killing of several Dastûrs by order of Shâh Nizâm in the year 724 (of the Yazdagird era, we suppose), see fol. 174^a, l. 4 ab infra. Beginning:

بنام یکی داور غیب دان
که او هست بر بندگان کامران

To one of these martyrs, بهرام بِنَدار, and his offspring, the pedigree of the three Dastûrs, mentioned above, viz. Nûshîrwân, Ardashîr, Shahriyâr, etc., is traced in the epilogue, beginning on fol. 180^a, last line.

A more detailed investigation into these mathnawîs and especially into the very elaborate genealogy of these Parsee Dastûrs would be of great interest and importance for the history of the Zoroastrian creed in Khurâsân and Kirmân.

No date. Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2786, ff. 73-186, 2 coll., each ll. 13; Nasta'lik; size, 8½ in. by 6½ in.

2823

Another copy of the same three Parsee mathnawîs.

1. The Amshâsfandnâma, on fol. 1^a, beginning:

بنام خداوند روزی رسان
که هست آگه اندر دل بندگان

For the mention of Dastûr Nûshîrwân and of the older prose-treatise which has here been put into verse, see on

2. Rustam and Isfandiyâr (first heading: آغاز داستان (رفتن اسفندیار بزابلستان بنزد رستم زال), on fol. 45^b, beginning: بنام خداوند دستار زند الخ.

Kiṣṣa-i-Sanjân (قصه سنجان).

The history of the settlement of the Parsees in India, told in Persian verse by Bahman bin Kaiqubâd bin Hurmuzâr Sunjâni (see fol. 19^a, l. 8 sq.) at Nausâri in the year 969 of the Yazdagird era = A. D. 1600 (see fol. 19^b, lin. penult.). It begins:

بنام ایزد دانای سبحان
بهر دم می سرایم نکته از جان

This poem, which was translated into English by E. B. Eastwick, with notes by John Wilson, in the Journal of the Bombay Branch of the Asiatic Society, vol. i. pp. 167-191, has been noticed by Rieu i. p. 50; comp. also W. Hamilton, Description of Hindostan, vol. i. p. 613; Dosabhoj Framjee, The Parsees, London, 1858, pp. 7-21; Anquetil, Zend-Avesta, Discours Préliminaires, pp. 318-324; ii. p. xxxiv; and J. Wilson, Religion of the Parsis, pp. 210-213. The present copy is apparently a transcript of that in the British Museum, as the name of the copyist, Rustam ibn Mobad Bahrâm (see fol. 21^b, ll. 3 and 4, and fol. 23^b, l. 1), as well as the date 1107 of the Yazdagird era, month of Bahman = A. H. 1151, Jumâdâ II (A. D. 1738), and the place, viz. Sûrat (see fol. 20^b, ll. 7, 8, and 11), are exactly the same. In a versified epilogue of the transcriber, on fol. 23^a, last line, the date appears once more in this form :

سنه از یزدجردی گرنهانی - میان غرق را با نقطه خوانی that is غرق = 1107.

Dasâtir (دساتیر).

A complete but unfortunately very worm-eaten copy of the Dasâtir or words of the ancient prophets, twelve before Zartusht and three after him, written in a kind of fictitious language, which most likely formed the secret medium of communication between the members of a particular theosophical sect, nearly related to the Parsees, and accompanied with a Persian paraphrase, see for fuller information the description of this work in Bodleian Cat., No. 2402, and compare De Sacy in Journal des Savans, Jun. 1821, p. 16 sq.; Dabistan, translated by D. Shea and A. Troyer, Paris, 1843, vol. i. pp. xix-lxv, and p. 20 sq.; Spiegel's review of this work in 'Jahrbuch für wissenschaftliche Kritik,' Aug. 1844; J. Darmesteter, Le Zend-Avesta, i. avant-propos, pp. xv and xvi; and A. Chodzko, Le Deçatir (no date). The text with English translation and glossary was published by Mullâ Firûz bin Kâ'us in 2 vols., Bombay, 1818, new edition of the translation only, Bombay, 1888, with a reprint of the 'Discussion on the Desatir' from the introduction to the Dabistan; a Gujerati version appeared in Bombay, 1848.

Beginning: هوزامیم فہ مزبان ہزما ہرس و ز ماس ہر
شیور ہر دیور ہنام بہ یزدان الخ

The first chapter (not marked by a special heading) deals with Mâhâbâd, on fol. 1^b or 2^a; the second is headed افرام حی (? جی) شت وخشور, on fol. 20^b; the third, شت شای کلیو, on fol. 28^b; the fourth, شت وخشور گلشاه, on fol. 34^a; the fifth, نامہ سیامک, on fol. 39^b; the sixth, نامہ شت وخشور ہوشنگ, on fol. 42^b; the seventh, نامہ شت وخشور ہومورس, on fol. 45^a; the eighth, نامہ شت وخشور ہومورس, on fol. 47^a, first line; the ninth, نامہ فریدون, on fol. 50^a, first line; the tenth, نامہ منوچہر, on fol. 56^a, lin. penult.; the eleventh, نامہ کیخسرو, on fol. 59^a; the twelfth, نامہ زرتشت, on fol. 60^b; the thirteenth, نامہ سکندر, on fol. 63^a; the fourteenth, نامہ پنجم, on fol. 80^a, first line; the fifteenth, نامہ نخت, on fol. 81^a; the sixteenth, نامہ ساسان, on fol. 108^b.

According to a note on fol. 1^a this copy had come into the possession of Mullâ Kâ'us, the father of Mullâ Firûz (who afterwards edited and translated it), in A.H. 1180 (A.D. 1766, 1767), and was finally presented to Major John Malcolm (afterwards Sir John Malcolm) by the same Firûz. A commentary on the Dasâtir (شرح دساتیر) by Najaf 'Ali, son of Muhammad 'Azim-aldin, which was dedicated to Sir Henry Elliot, is mentioned in Rieu iii. p. 1038^b, No. I.

ADDITIONAL MSS.

I. GENERAL HISTORY.

2828

Jâmi'-altawârikh (جامع التواريخ).

A very valuable (despite some occasional misspellings) and, comparatively speaking, one of the most complete copies of Rashid Tabib or Rashid-aldin's rare general history, see above, No. 17, almost identical in its contents with the British Museum copy, Add. 7628 (Rieu i. p. 74 sq.), and arranged in the same peculiar manner, viz. beginning with the second volume and concluding with the first. It is the same MS. which Mr. W. Morley has described in the J. R. A. S., vol. vii. pp. 267-272, and to which he refers in his Descriptive Cat., p. 5, No. ii.

Contents:

General preface of the whole work, on ff. 403^b-407^a, headed: هذا کتاب جامع التواريخ, and beginning: فهرست کتاب داستانها و فذلک حساب بیانها حمد و ثناء و آفرین حضرت مقدس جهان آفرین الخ.

On ff. 405^a, l. 11, and 406^a, l. 10, the title is given incorrectly as جوامع التواريخ. According to the statement on fol. 406^a sq. the whole work was originally divided into three volumes (مجلد); the first volume, containing two bâbs, on the origin and history of the Turkish tribes, and on the history of C'ingizkhân, his ancestors and descendants, down to the accession of Uljâ'itû Sultân respectively, the first subdivided into a dibâca and four faşls, the second into two faşls; the second volume, containing likewise two bâbs, on the life of Uljâ'itû to the time of the composition of this work, and on the general history of the world, from Ādam to A. H. 700 (A. D. 1300, 1301) respectively, the second bāb being subdivided into two kisms, the first of which contains two faṣls; the third volume containing a geographical description of the world.

First volume, on ff. 408^b–599^a, composed by order of Ghāzānkhān (A. H. 694–703 = A. D. 1295–1304) and therefore styled تاریخ غازانی (see fol. 410^b, l. 2), beginning: حمد و ثنای فراوان و شکر و سپاس بی پایان
مرآفیدگار بیچون و مبدع الخ

Bāb I, on the Turkish tribes, etc.:

Dibāca, on fol. 411^b: در ذکر حدود بعضی مواضع اقوام
اتراک و تفصیل اسمی هر شعب

Faṣl 1, on fol. 413^b: در تاریخ و حکایات اقوام اغوز
و بیست و چهار شعبه مذکور از فرزند زادگان او (و) بعضی
برادران و عترتدگانش که با او متفق بوده اند الخ

Faṣl 2, on fol. 417^a, l. 3: در ذکر اقوام از اتراک که ایشان
را این زمان مغول گویند لیکن در قدیم هریک قوم از
ایشان علی الانفراد به لقبی و اسمی مخصوص بوده اند الخ

Faṣl 3, on fol. 425^a: در ذکر اقوامی از اتراک که ایشان
علی حده پادشاهی و مقدمی داشته اند لیکن ایشان را
با اقوام اتراک که در فصل سابق یاد کرده شد و با اقوام
مغول زیادت نسبتی و خویشی نبوده اما بشکل و زبان ایشان
نزدیک بوده اند الخ

Faṣl 4, on fol. 431^a: در ذکر اقوامی از اتراک که در زمان
قدیم لغت ایشان مغول بوده و از ایشان اقوام بسیار
پدید آمده اند الخ

Bāb II, on the history of Čingizkhān, etc.:

Faṣl 1, on fol. 443^a: در بیان داستان آباء و اجداد
چنگیزخان بما فیه حکایات احوال خویشان ایشان و آن
ده داستان است و بیشتر دیباچه در بیان کیفیت ظهور
ایشان گفته میشود الخ

Faṣl 2, on fol. 456^b, first line: در داستانهای چنگیزخان
و اوروق (اروغ or اوروغ) نامدار (او که) بعضی پادشاه
(قآن or) هر عهدی شده اند و بعضی پادشاه الوس معین
بما فیه مجمل حکایات پادشاهان اقالیم عالم که معاصر
ایشان بوده اند تا شهر سنه خمس و سبعائنه هجری

According to the last words of this heading the second faṣl should go down to A. H. 705 (A. D. 1305, 1306) in Uljā'itū's reign, but in the present copy it ends with the death of Abākākhān, A. H. 680, the 20th of Dhū-alhijjah (A. D. 1282, April 1), so that the reigns of Takūdār, Arghūnkhān, Kaikhātūkhān, and Ghāzānkhān, corresponding to ff. 283–394 in No. 17 above, are entirely wanting here, a fact which is not stated in Mr. W. Morley's account in the J. R. A. S., loc. cit. The main portion of this first volume, including the general preface, is edited with French translation and copions notes by Et. Quatremère in his 'Histoire des Mongols de la Perse,' Paris, 1836. This part is dated the 6th of Sha'bān, A. H. 1082 (A. D. 1671, Dec. 8), by Ṭāhir ibn 'Abd-albākī 'Alā'ī.

Second volume, on ff. 1^b–402^a, beginning: حمد و مدح
و آفرین حضرت جهان آفرین را که صانع صنائع غریب
و مبدع بدائع عجیب است الخ

Bāb I, on the life of Uljā'itū Sulṭān, is missing here altogether.

Bāb II, on the general history of the world to A. H. 700 (A. D. 1300, 1301), with the following subdivisions (which differ in many respects from the original scheme indicated in the general preface above):

Mukaddimah, on fol. 1^a: در ذکر آدم و فرزندان نوح
و اولاد و پادشاهی گیومرت که اول پادشاهان فرس بود الخ

Kism I, on fol. 4^b, first line: در ذکر ملوک فرس و احوالی
که در عهد هریک واقع شده از ظهور انبیاء و دیگر حوادث
از زمان گیومرت تا آخر عهد یزدجرد شهریاری که آخر ملوک
فرس است, in one faṣl and four ṭabakāt, on ff. 4^b,
16^b, 28^a, and 36^a, first line.

Kism II, on fol. 55^a (here the wrong title زبدة التواریخ is given to the جامع التواریخ, comp. Rieu, Supplement,
p. 15^b, and Rosen, Persian MSS., p. 82 sq.): در ذکر
سید الاصفیاء محمد المصطفی علیه افضل التحیات
و التسلیمات و خلفاء او تا آخر روزگار المعتمص بالله و لک, likewise in four ṭabakāt (which, however, from the second onwards are called maḳālah), on ff. 55^a, 99^a, 118^a, and 140^b. These two kisms, which are dated on fol. 183^a, in the month Shawwāl, A. H. 1081 (A. D. 1671, Febr.– March), evidently correspond to the first faṣl of the first kism only in the original scheme of the general preface, and all the following sections, which have no systematic numbering at all, represent the second faṣl of the same first kism. The original second kism, a continuation of Uljā'itū's history, is entirely wanting here.

History of Sulṭān Maḥmūd bin Sabuktāgīn, his ancestors and descendants, with many particulars referring to the Sāmānide, Būyide, and Dailami dynasties (styled in the colophon سلطان محمود بن تاریخ سلطانی محمود بن), on ff. 184^b–212^a, beginning:
این تاریخ مختصری است مشتمل بر شرح مقامات سلطان محمود الخ
The detailed account of the Ghaznawides goes down to the death of Sulṭān Abū-alfath Maudūd bin Mas'ūd bin Maḥmūd (A. H. 432–441 = A. D. 1041–1049), after which a very concise summary of his successors follows, down to Khusraushāh who ascended the throne in A. H. 547
(A. D. 1152); W. Morley's statement, loc. cit., that Maudūd died A. H. 547, must be due to an extraordinary oversight. This part is dated by the same scribe as the foregoing sections, in the month Dhū-alhijjah, A. H.
1081 (A. D. 1671, April–May).

History of the Saljūks, on ff. 213^b–234^a, beginning:
سپاس و ستایش خدایا جل جلاله و تقدست اسماء الخ and ending with the death of Sulṭān Abū Ṭālib Toḡhrul bin Muḥammad bin Malikshāh, i. e. Toḡhrul III, the last Saljūk ruler, in A. H. 590 (A. D. 1194, not 589, as is stated here, which is in disagreement with the statement in the immediately following appendix). To this part is added, on ff. 234^b-236^a, a ذیل or appendix from the pen of Abū Ḥamid Muḥammad bin Ibrāhīm, who composed it in Rabi' II, A.H. 599 (A.D. 1202, Dec., to 1203, Jan.), eight years and two months after Toghrul's death, containing an account of the last years of Saljūq rule.

History of the Sultāns of Khwārizm (تأریخ سلاطین), (خوارزم از ابتداء دولت تا انتها مملکت ایشان), on ff. 236^a-246^b, beginning: سلاطین خوارزم که جلّ اعلیٰ: ایشان نوشتگین الخ, and going down to the last independent ruler of Khwārizm, Sulṭān Jalāl-al-dīn (A.H. 617-628=A.D. 1221-1231); but the account of his last years is wanting here, as the copy comes to an abrupt end on fol. 246^b; the last distinct date that appears is A.H. 625 (A.D. 1228), on fol. 245^b, l. 16. W. Morley, loc. cit., represents this history of the Khwārizmshāhs as belonging to Abū Ḥamid's appendix—an impossibility, considering the date of the latter, viz. A.H. 599.

History of Ughūz, his descendants, and the rulers of the Turks (styled according to the colophon تأریخ (اغوز و شرح احوال او و دیگر سلاطین و ملوک ترک مؤرخان اترک و روایات چالاک), on ff. 247^b-258^a, beginning: چنین تقریر میکنند که نوح علیه السلام الخ. The two sections mentioned in Rieu i. pp. 75 and 76, as occurring in the British Museum copy between the histories of the Khwārizmshāhs and Ughūz, viz. the history of the Salghuris of Fārs and that of the Isma'īlis, are missing here.

History of the Kings of Cīn (or Khatā, i. e. China) and Mācīn (تأریخ ملوک (و) خانات چین و ماچین), down to the final conquest of China by Uktāi Kā'ān in A.H. 631, Jumādā I (A.D. 1234, Febr.), on ff. 259^b-282^a, beginning: ممالك اقوام مذکور چند پاره ولایت: معظم است الخ.

History of the Jews (تأریخ بنی اسرائیل), on ff. 283^b-307^a, in six faṣls, beginning: سپاس بیقیاس خداپرست: که آفریننده عقل و جان و بدید کننده زمین و آسمان است الخ. This part is dated Safar, A.H. 1082 (A.D. 1671, June-July).

History of the Franks (تأریخ افرنج و قیاصه) from the creation to A.H. 705 (A.D. 1305, 1306), on ff. 307^b-368^a, beginning with a detailed index (فهرست اقسام ابواب تأریخ افرنج از ابتداء ظهور آدم صفی علیه السلام با (تا) read) این زمان که شهور سنه خمس و سبعائنه (هجری است).

Kism I. از ابتداء ظهور آدم علیه السلام تا زمان ولادت مسیح علیه السلام, in four bābs, on ff. 308^a (first and second), 309^a, first line, and 309^b.

Kism II. از مبداء ولادت عیسی علیه السلام الی یومنا هذا الخ, likewise in four bābs, on ff. 310^b, lin. penult., 311^a, 311^b, and 313^b. The last and longest of these bābs contains extensive lists of emperors and popes, often in a very curious and misleading form of spelling.

This part is dated the first of Rabi' I, A.H. 1082 (A.D. 1671, July 8).

History of India (احوال سلاطین هند و هندیان), on ff. 368^b-396^a, beginning: ازین جهت طول و عرض: ممالك هندوستان بغایت وسیع و فسیح است الخ.

Extracts from this section in English have been published by Sir Henry Elliot in his 'Bibliographical Index,' pp. 28-47, and reprinted in the 'History of India,' i. pp. 44-73. It is divided into the following two kisms:

Kism I. در معرفت حساب قرون و ادوار و استینابت (و استبانت) (read) خبر خوک و کلب و کمیت مساحت زمین عموماً و اعداد کوهها و رودها و شهرها و قری و ضیاع و جزائر زمین هند خصوصاً in ten (read ده instead of دو) faṣls, on fol. 369^a, first line. According to the detailed account of this section in the Arabic MS. of the Royal Asiatic Society (W. Morley, p. 8), the first kism ought to contain eleven faṣls; the first five of our copy agree with the corresponding numbers there, but the sixth here is the seventh of that MS., and so on. This discrepancy is simply due to the fact that the copyist left out the heading فصل ششم on fol. 377^b, l. 4 before the words ذکر ولادت باسادیو و پادشاهان هند که پیش از سلطان محمود بوده اند, and consequently got wrong in all the following numbers.

Kism II. در کیفیت ولادت شاکمونی و حالات و مقالات, dealing, وضع تناسخ از نسخ و مسخ و فسخ و رسخ exclusively with Buddha's life and teachings, in twenty faṣls, on fol. 385^b; here again the MS. of the Royal Asiatic Society contains twenty-one, but one of these, viz. that containing a list of Indian books, is omitted in all the Persian MSS. of the تواریخ and only found in the Arabic version, see W. Morley, pp. 9 and 10, foot-note. Appended to this section, on ff. 396^b-402^b, is the treatise on metempsychosis, or rather, in refutation of metempsychosis, extracted from the کتاب of توضیحات رشیدی, as stated in the colophon of the previous section, and beginning: بدانکه اعتقاد اهل تناسخ آنست که نفوس قدیم است و هر نفسی که از بدنی مفارقت کرد ببدنی دیگر غیر آن بدن متعلق شد الخ.

This part is dated the 25th of Rabi' I, A.H. 1082 (A.D. 1671, August 1), by the same Ṭāhir ibn 'Abd-albāki 'Alawī.

The third volume or geographical part is not found in this nor in any other copy extant.

A great number of smaller blank spaces, partly perhaps for the insertion of illustrations, but in many cases denoting real lacunas in the original from which this copy was transcribed, are found on ff. 156^b, 161^a, 161^b, 209^b, 210^a, 373^b, 374^a, 374^b, 378^a, 378^b, 381^a, 452^b, 455^a, 455^b, 456^a, 494^b, 495^a, 524^b, 536^a, 536^b, 538^b, 539^a, 540^a, 557^a, 568^b, 569^a, 569^b, 570^a, 572^a, and 572^b; besides many slight omissions of words and phrases.

To the references given above in No. 17 must be added Rieu, Supplement, pp. 15 and 16.

A conglomerate of incoherent pieces in an absolutely bewildering disorder, with endless lacunas; so far as the contents can be ascertained, they divide themselves into the following two classes:

Ẓafarnâma (ظفرنامه).

Another copy of Sharaf-al-din 'Alî Yazdî's history of Timŭr, without the Iftitâḥ or Introduction, see above, Nos. 173-186.

Beginning, on fol. 3^b: حمداً كثيراً مبارکاً لمن یوتی الملك الخ.

A break in the narrative, indicated by تَمَّت and a small blank, on fol. 72^b, denotes the beginning of Timŭr's accession to the throne; the heading, which is omitted here, appears in the following copy, on fol. 69^a, last line: گفتار در جلوس حضرت صاحبقرانی بر سریر سلطنت و جهانبانی.

Dated the 7th of Rabî' I, A.H. 1026 (A.D. 1617, March 15), on fol. 426^b, where the text ends. Worm-eaten throughout, especially in the first half of the MS. Additional references, W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 445-447; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 143 and 144; Nallino, Manoscritti etc., Torino, 1900, No. 93. It was edited in the Bibliotheca Indica, 1885-1888.

No. 3448, ff. 428, ll. 21; small, neat Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispiece on fol. 3^b; ff. 3^b and 4^a splendidly adorned; larger and smaller pictures on ff. 1^b, 2^a (both full size), 51^a, 60^a, 103^b, 157^a, 219^a, 241^b, 279^a, 288^a, 292^a, 301^a, 343^a, 358^a, 427^b, and 428^a (the last two again full size); gorgeous Eastern binding; size, 10½ in. by 6 in.

Another, slightly incomplete, copy of the same.

Beginning as usual. The statement on fol. 1^a, that it is the second volume of the Timŭrnâma (جلد دوم), is incorrect, as there exists only one volume of this work; perhaps the Iftitâḥ, which is wanting in this as well as in the preceding copy, was sometimes reckoned as first volume. This copy breaks off on fol. 437^b in the middle of the concluding poem. The last verse corresponding to fol. 425^b, l. 5 ab infra in the preceding copy. The right order of ff. 94-103 is: 94, 101, 102, 97-100, 95, 96, 103. It was presented to the Library June 8, 1893. Slightly worm-eaten.

No. 3543, ff. 437, ll. 18; very clear Nasta'liq; illuminated frontispiece; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Ta'rikh-i-Muḥammad bin Mu'tamadkhān (تاریخ محمد بن معتمدخان).

The memoirs of Mirzā Muḥammad bin Mu'tamadkhān bin Diyānatkhan (the original names of his father and grandfather were Rustam and Kubād respectively, the latter having died in A.H. 1083 = A.D. 1672, 1673, the former in A.H. 1117 = A.D. 1705), from the death of 'Ālamgir to that of Farrukhsiyar (A.H. 1118-1131 = A.D. 1707-1719), with a short summary of events in the last three years of 'Ālamgir's reign, whose service he had entered the 25th of Jumādā II, A.H. 1115 (A.D. 1703, Nov. 5). This copy is identical with and a duplicate of the عبرت نامه, described in No. 392 above, beginning: الحمد لله على الطاعة و افضاله
و صلى الله على محمد . . . اما بعد چنین گوید بنده
امیدوار رحمت پروردگار محمد بن معتمدخان بن دیانتخان
که اینچند ورقی است در تذکره احوال خود الخ.

The same wrong date of the author's birth, viz. A.H. 1070, instead of 1098 (A.D. 1687), is given here as in No. 392. Muḥammad bin Mu'tamadkhān is frequently alluded to in contemporary chronicles; see, for instance, Rieu i. p. 181^b, where a note of his, dated A.H. 1160 (A.D. 1747), is quoted; iii. p. 895, where his later and larger work, the تاریخ محمدی, is described; iii. p. 944^b, where the present memoirs are mentioned as one of the sources for the preface of Muḥammad Bakhsh Āshūb's history of the life and reign of Muḥammadshāh; Rieu, Supplement, p. 53^a, where another note of the author's, dated A.H. 1157, Dhū-alḥijjah (A.D. 1745, Jan.), is quoted; and E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 167 and 168, where a seal of his, with the date A.H. 1120 (A.D. 1708, 1709), is spoken of. These memoirs were translated by Captain Jonathan Scott, 1786.

Ta'rikh-i-Mamālik-i-Hind (تاریخ ممالک هند).

A modern compendium of general Indian history, compiled chiefly from Firishta's گلشن ابراهیمی (see Nos. 291-302 above), with a short continuation of the Moghul emperors from Akbar to Shāh 'Ālam, and occasional additions in the minor dynasties, by Ghulām Bāsiṭ (see fol. 8^b), A.H. 1196 (A.D. 1782), at the request of General Giles Stibbert (see fol. 9^a, ll. 6 and 7), who was commander-in-chief of the Bengal army 1777-

1779 and 1783-1785, and whom the author served as Munshi in Calcutta, comp. Elliot, History of India, viii. p. 200. Two other copies of this work are noticed in Rieu i. p. 237, and in Rehatsek, Mulla Firuz Library, p. 76, No. 15; extracts from it in Rieu, Supplement, p. 56^a, No. ii. A Persian heading, on fol. 1^a, states that this copy was transcribed from the Mullâ Firûz Library, that is no doubt from Rehatsek's MS., the 28th of Shawwâl, A.H. 1296 (A.D. 1879, Oct. 15). Compared with the British Museum copy the present MS. contains only the shorter second half of the work, all the earlier chapters on Hindû cosmogony, the early Hindû kings, the early Muhammadan invasions, the dynasties of the Ghaznawides, Ghûrides, Khiljîs, and Lûdis, the rulers of Sind, Tatah, Multân, Kashmir, Bangâlah, and Jaunpûr being omitted. There is also a frequent incorrectness both in spelling and dates.

Contents :

2. The author's preface, on ff. 7^b-9^b, beginning: حمد و سپاس آن خالق بیهمتا که عالم را از پرده مخفی بظهور آورده الخ; fol. 10 is again left blank.

(f) The Baridiyyah Sultâns of Bidar, on fol. 81^b, from Kâsim Barid to Mirzâ 'Ali Barid, called Amir Barid II.

This chapter corresponds to the third maḳâlah of Firishta's history.

A somewhat curtailed edition of Rafī' Shirāzi, i. e. Rafī'-al-dīn Ibrāhīm bin Nūr-al-dīn Taufīq Shirāzi's تذکرة الملک or history of the 'Ādilshāh's of Bijāpūr, together with an account of some contemporary minor dynasties in India, especially the Bahmanis, the kings of Gujarāt, the Nizāmshāhs and the Kutbshāhs, and a comprehensive history of the Moghul emperors Bābar, Humāyūn, and Akbar. The Bodleian copy contains a muḥaddimah, twelve faṣls, and a khātimah, whilst in that of the British Museum the last four faṣls together form the ninth and last. The present copy has the first ten of the Bodleian and the main portions of the twelfth; the eleventh, i. e. the history of the Ṣafawi kings of Persia, as well as the khātimah, is entirely wanting.

Kuṭbnumâi 'âlam (قطبنامای عالم).

This work, which (with a few exceptions, mentioned below) agrees word for word with the preceding history, and is nothing but another copy of the same, is ascribed in the preamble (which has been noticed before in No. 465 above, col. 180 of this Cat.) to a certain Mir Abû Turâb ibn al-Sayyid Ahmad alridâwî, who claims to have been commissioned by Mir 'Âlam to write a history of the Kuṭbshâhs on the basis of extracts from the تاریخ قطبشاه (see Nos. 456-462 above) and other historical sources. This is clearly a specimen of barefaced plagiarism, so much the more so, as the original preface of Mir 'Âlam has been quietly omitted and the present preamble, which begins, on fol. 1^b: سپاس و ستایش گوناگون مر قادر بیچون را: که آفریننده جهانست و بخشنده نخت الخ, put in its place. The only points of difference between this copy and the preceding one are: (1) the exchange of one preface for the other, and the invention of a new title (see fol. 2^a, first line); (2) the omission of any reference to the division of the work into two makâlâs; (3) the addition of a khâtimah at the end, giving an outline of Mir 'Ālam's life and a description of the splendid buildings, gardens, caravanserais, etc., which Haidarābād and its surroundings owe to that great minister; and (4) the mention of the current year, viz. A. H. 1221 (A. D. 1806), on fol. 2^a, l. 9. In all other respects it is identical with the حديقۃ العالم.

Dated by 'Alikhān of Nārnaul the 25th of Ramadān, A. H. 1222 (A. D. 1807, Nov. 26).

No. 3453, ff. 144, ll. 20; Nasta'liq; small illuminated frontispiece; worm-eaten and mutilated by big holes throughout the pages; size, 12½ in. by 6½ in.

4. Bangālah.

2841

Topography and history of the fortress of Gaur or Gaurh (گورہ), as it is spelt here, the ancient capital of Bangālah, also called Lakhnauti and the township of Pandwah, compiled by Shiyām Parshād Munshi in November and December, 1810, at the request of Major William Franklin (see fol. 1^a, ll. 3 and 6, and l. 4 ab infra), and divided into the following four fasls:

فصل اول در ذکر مکانات و عمارات بنا ساختہ سلطان شجاع واقعہ شہراج محلّ، on fol. 2^b.

فصل دوم در ذکر مکانات مساجد و عمارات و حویلی و دولتخانہ پادشاہان قلعہ گورہ لکھنوی، on fol. 4^a.

2842

Tuhfa-i-tāza (تحفۃ تازہ).

A fragment of the third bāb of the Tuhfa-i-tāza or Balwandnāma (see above, No. 483), containing the latter portion of the history of Rājah Cait Singh (A. H. 1185-1195 = A. D. 1771-1781), with whose deposition in A. H. 1195 the work (as usually) concludes. At the end of the last page the same remark is found as in No. 483 above and in the British Museum copy, that the author intended in a second volume to relate the history of Rājah Mahipat Narā'in and Rājah Ūdit Narā'in from A. H. 1196 (Fasli year 1189 = A. D. 1780, correctly 1782) onwards—a task which he seems never to have accomplished.

This fragment begins abruptly, on fol. 1^a: گوشت... نکرده قدم پیش نہاد بر قید از آن فریاد آوردند الخ.

No. 3545 (olim 3521), ff. 45, ll. 15; careless Nasta'liq, sometimes resembling Shikasta; size, 10½-9½ in. by 6½-6¾ in.

6. Carnatic.

Sa'idnāma (سعیدنامہ).

Another complete copy of the history of Sa'adat-allāhkhān, the ruler of the Carnatic from his birth in A. H. 1061 (A. D. 1651) to 1135 (A. D. 1723), styled سعیدنامہ (see, for instance, fol. 5^a, last line, and the colophons on ff. 63^b and 130^b, not سعادتنامہ, as it is called on the first fly-leaf and in the first line of the second daftar on fol. 64^a), see No. 500 above. Like Rieu's copy it is divided into three daftars, the second and third of which begin respectively on ff. 64^a and 131^a. The author's name is also given in full here on fol. 6^b, l. 3 ab infra, sq., Jaswant Rāi bin Bhagwant Rāi bin Sundardās bin Malik Haridās, etc., with the takhalluṣ Munshi (see fol. 7^b, lin. penult.).

Beginning, on fol. 1^b: این نامہ کہ از نام سعید است سعید الخ.

The last date mentioned is the same as in Rieu, viz. the 16th of Ramadān, A. H. 1135 (A. D. 1723, June 20), see fol. 183^b, l. 9, and compare ff. 183^a, l. 11, and 181^a, l. 2.

This copy is dated A. H. 1265 (A. D. 1849).

No. 3177, ff. 1-184, ll. 17; clear Nasta'liq; size, 10½ in. by 8 in.

Waḳā'i-i-Sa'adat (وقائع سعادت).

A condensed history of the rulers of the Carnatic, both the Nawwābs of Arkāt and the Jāgirdārs of Vellore (ویلور), from Sa'adat-allāhkhān (see the preceding work) to Ghulām Murtaḍākhān, by an anonymous author (to whom on the fly-leaf of the following copy the name Sa'd-allāhkhān seems to be given), compiled A. H. 1218 (A. D. 1803, see fol. 194^b, l. 3) from Khāfikhān Nizām-almulki's منتخب لباب

(see above, No. 396 sq.); Bâkir 'Alikhân, the Jâgirdâr of Vellore's نکات الکائنات; the various literary compositions of Muḥammad Amin, the Munshi of Sa'adat-allâhkhân; and some traditional information. It is divided into three fasls, the first (on fol. 193^b) dealing with the Nawwâbs of Arkât, Sa'adat-allâhkhân, 'Alî Dûstkhân, the son of Sa'adat-allâhkhân's brother Ghulâm Šadîk 'Alikhân (commonly called Ghulâm 'Alikhân), and Šafdar 'Alikhân, who was murdered A.H. 1155, the 15th of Sha'bân (A.D. 1742, Oct. 15), with their offspring; the second (on fol. 200^a) treating of the Jâgirdârs of Vellore from Ghulâm 'Alikhân to Ghulâm Murtaḍâkhân's death in Trichinopoly, A.H. 1176 (A.D. 1762, 1763); the third (on fol. 203^b) relating other extraneous events. Unfortunately of the third fasl only two-and-a-half lines are left, but the remainder can be supplied from the following copy.

Beginning, on fol. 193^b: وقائع (وَتَائِع) سعادت (read سعادَت) و محتوی ذکر قوم و مسکن و دیوانی و صوبداری و قلعداری و جاگیرداری و مدت ریاست و انتقال الیہ.

No. 3177, ff. 193-204, ll. 17; clear Nasta'liq; size, 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 8 in.

Another copy of the same.

This copy is complete, but very unsatisfactory in point of correctness; many of the most important items, for instance the date of composition, are left out, other dates are wrong; the text is often curtailed, and nothing is said of a division into three fasls, although, with the help of the preceding copy, their beginnings can easily be traced, viz. on ff. 1^b, 12^b, and 32^a. On the other hand, this copy contains on ff. 23^b-32^a a continuation of the history of the Jâgirdârs of Vellore from Ghulâm Murtaḍâkhân to 1803, the date of composition of this historical treatise, which is wanting in the preceding copy. Beginning the same as there.

No. 3061, ff. 37, ll. 7-10; Nasta'liq; size, 9 in. by 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

7. Kashmir.

Ta'rikh-i-Kashmîr (تَارِیخِ کَشْمِیر).

Another copy of Haidar Malik bin Hasan Malik bin Kamâl-aldin Malik Muḥammad Nâji (so the author's name here on fol. 3^b sq.) of Cârwarah's history of Kashmir, based on the old Sanskrit work Râjataranginî, and completed under Sulṭân Jahângir, A.H. 1030 (A.D. 1621), see above, No. 510. The present copy contains the history of Kashmir only, as all the other copies do with the exception of the one described above, loc. cit.

Beginning: ای آنکہ جهان بوحدت نُست گواه الیہ.

Dated the 20th of Rabî'-alawwal, A.H. 1046 (A.D. 1636, Aug. 22).

No. 3517, ff. 188, ll. 10; Nasta'liq; a little worm-eaten; size, 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

2847

Ta'rikh-i-Kashmîr (تَارِیخِ کَشْمِیر).

Another copy of Narâyan Kûl 'Âjiz' history of Kashmir, see Nos. 511 and 512 above.

Beginning the same as there: سپاس بیرون از مقیاس قیاس سزاوار جناب پادشاهی الیہ.

Dated the 24th of Jumâdâ II, A.H. 1263 (A.D. 1847, June 9). Additional references: W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 491; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 177-179.

No. 3523, ff. 163, ll. 10; very large and distinct Nasta'liq; size, 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. by 5 $\frac{7}{8}$ in.

V. SPECIAL HISTORY OF JATAH AND KÂSHGHAR.

Ta'rikh-i-Rashidi (تَارِیخِ رَشِیدِی).

An excellent copy of the rare work of Muḥammad Haidar ibn Muḥammad Husain Gûrgân, commonly called Mirzâ Haidar (see fol. 3^a, l. 11), who was born A.H. 905 (A.D. 1499, 1500, see fol. 108^a) and was killed A.H. 958 (A.D. 1551), containing the history of the Khâns of Jatah or Moghûlistân and the Amirs of Kâshghar, and the detailed memoirs of the author himself, which form the longest and most important part of the book. It is styled تَارِیخِ رَشِیدِی (see ff. 3^b, last line, and 4^a, l. 8), extends from the time of Tughluḳ-timûrkhân (whose history begins on fol. 6^a, last line) to A.H. 953 (A.D. 1546), which is mentioned as the current year on fol. 96^b, l. 6 ab infra, and is divided into two daftars (not three, سه, as is written on fol. 4^a, l. 9), the first of which deals with the general historical accounts of the Khâns and Amirs, the second with Mirzâ Haidar's own life and its stirring events. A detailed description of this work is given in Rieu i. pp. 164-168, and our copy agrees with it throughout, with the exception of a number of dates which have been left out. The contents of the first daftar have also been given in W. Erskine's 'History of India under Baber and Humâyun,' i. pp. 38-192, and Appendix B, pp. 537-539; an abridged translation of the whole by Mr. Erskine, made 1840 and 1841, is preserved in the British Museum; and a complete English version has been published by E. Denison Ross, London, 1895; see also Elliot, History of India, v. pp. 127-135; Veljainov Zernov, Researches on the Tzars of Kasimof, ii. pp. 130-232, etc.; and the Haft Iklim, where an abridged account of the Amirs of Kâshghar, taken from the تَارِیخِ رَشِیدِی, is inserted (see above, colls. 496 and 497), which has been translated by Quatremère in Notices et Extraits, xiv. pp. 474-489.

Beginning of the preface of the first daftar, on fol. 1^b: افتتاح تَارِیخِ جهاننداری و ابتدای ظفر و بختیاری الیہ.

Beginning of the first daftar itself (تَارِیخِ رَشِیدِی), on fol. 5^a, l. 8. It goes down, as stated above, to A.H. 953 (A.D. 1546), and concludes with an account of

VII. ROMANCES, TALES, AND LEGENDARY HISTORIES.

Tūtināma (طوطی نامه).

Another copy of Diyāi Nakhlshabī's 'Tales of a Parrot,' see above, Nos. 743-751, of a very uncouth appearance, damaged here and there, and difficult to read in many places. Of the fifty-two stories, only the second, third, fourth, and fifth (on ff. 11^b, 15^b, 20^b, and 26^a) are numbered and have a proper heading; the beginning of all the remaining stories is simply marked by a blank.

Beginning, on fol. 2^a: مناجات بحضرت رازق التّعباب
فی عشه الخ.

Dated the 22nd of Dhū-alhijjah, A.H. 1165 (A.D. 1752, Oct. 31), at Aurangābād. Additional reference, E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 392 and 393.

On fol. 1 a short treatise on the preparation of Senna (سنا), and its medicinal qualities.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2740, ff. 1-231, ll. 15; written by many different hands in various styles of careless Nasta'liq and Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

2852

Gulriz (گلریز).

A rare Persian romance by the same Diyāi Nakhlshabī, styled 'the rose-embroidered carpet,' and dealing with the love-story or fairy tale of Ma'sūmshāh, Nūshlab or Nūshāba, and 'Ajabmalik, see W. Pertsch in Z. D. M. G. xxi. p. 511, and the notice in Ch. Stewart, Descript. Cat., p. 85^a, No. X. It is unfortunately defective at the beginning, and opens abruptly thus:

صفت کمال او بی زبان لا یضّرّ عیمان العباد برهر
مصنوعی که چشم اندازی بر صنع سابق الخ.

Author and title are mentioned on fol. 6^a, ll. 10 and 13. The romance is interwoven with numerous and large poetical pieces.

No date.

Worm-eaten in several pages.

Many valuable and interesting marginal glosses and additions, especially in the beginning of the copy.

Dated the 3rd of Jumādā II, A.H. 1189 (A.D. 1775, Aug. 1).

No. 680, ff. 292, ll. 15; careless Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

2854

Another copy of the same.

Beginning (with the omission of the first words of the preceding copies): الحمد لله نحمده و نستعینه و نوّمن به و نتوکل الخ.

The notice, on fol. 1^a, that this work was delivered (sic!) in Harāt, in the reign of Sultān Shāh Husain, agrees very well with the date of its composition, A.H. 904 (A.D. 1498, 1499). The title, given to it here, is رباب الواعظین, which bears a curious resemblance to that of another work of the same author, viz. the روضة الواعظین, on forty traditions, in four volumes (see H. Khalfa iii. p. 513, No. 6695; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., p. 525; Rieu i. p. 149^b, and ib. p. 16^a, where it is quoted as an authority of the محاسن الآداب by Nāṣir-al-din Muḥammad, a translation of Rāzī-al-din Abū 'Alī alḥasan bin Abū-Naṣr alfaḍl bin alḥasan al-Ṭabarsī's Arabic work, the مکرم الاخلاق; and Horn, Persische Handschriften in Constantinople, No. 45 in Z. D. M. G. vol. 54, p. 289). To the list of Mu'in Miskin's literary productions, given in No. 605 above, must be added بحر الدّرر (see H. Khalfa ii. p. 17, No. 1658).

No date.

No. 463, ff. 145, ll. 21; Nasta'liq; the last twenty leaves seem to have been supplied later; a little worm-eaten; size, 9½ in. by 6¾ in.

Another copy of the story of Kām rūp and Kāmlatā, see Nos. 821 and 822 above.

D. 994), appears as marking the completion of the Shâhnâma (see Rieu ii. pp. 534^b and 535, and compare with it Nöldeke, das iranische Nationalepos, p. 151, note 4), when the poet was approaching seventy, viz.:

بنام جهانداور کردگار

On ff. 491^b-501^a an account of Firdausi and his epopee is added, giving a prose-résumé of the chief incidents related in the poem, beginning: اکابر و افاضل متفق اند که شاعری در مدت روزگار مثل فردوسی از کتب عدم پا بمعموره وجود نهاده الخ

A strange blunder of the copyist is the date assigned to this preface, on fol. 3^a, ll. 3 and 2 ab infra, viz.: درین ایام که بتاریخ هجری نهصد و بیست و نه رسیده (A. H. 929 instead of the correct 829).

No. 2888, ff. 33, ll. 9-10; Shikasta; size, 12½ in. by 6½ in.

2861

Genealogical tables of the various kings and dynasties of the world, in the form of vignettes, each containing a famous historical name, with chronological notes, somewhat similar to the genealogical roll in No. 2045 of the Bodleian Cat. (among the Turkish MSS.). In its earlier part it is based on the Shâhnâma (therefore styled on a slip of paper, lying inside, مختصر شاهنامه), but along with the old Persian kings, arranged according to the usual four طبقه (beginning with the Pishdadians in the طبقه اول), the ante-muhammadan prophets, saints, biblical patriarchs, and kings are given; the Kayânians begin on fol. 6^b, the Ashkânians and Sâsânians on fol. 11^a; Iskandar Dhû-alkarnain appears on fol. 10^b. On fol. 14^b the Muhammadan period begins with the prophet and the first four Khalifs, after which follow the Umayyades, the Sâmanides, the Abbâside Khalifs, the Bûyides, Ghaznawides, Khwârizmshâhs, Çingizkhân and his descendants, and finally the 'Uthmânî dynasty. The last Turkish Sultân (in the final vignette) is Alîmad I, the successor of Muhammad III (A. H. 1012 = A. D. 1603). As compiler is mentioned at the end Mir 'Alî.

Kāşidas in alphabetical order, on fol. 1^b, beginning:

دوش در روی گنبدی (گنبد) خضرا
مانده بود این دو چشم من عمدا (عمیا) Sprenger

The catchword of fol. 91^b does not agree with the first word on fol. 92^a, but there may be only one verse omitted, as metre and rhyme are the same.

Ghazals, intermixed with kit'as and a few musaddasât, on fol. 269^a, beginning:

نوبهار عروس کردگار است
سرو بالا و لاله رخسارست

They are arranged alphabetically from fol. 270^b, l. 3 ab infra to fol. 307^b; in the poems preceding and following this portion there is no systematic order; moreover there is a lacuna after fol. 269.

Rubá'is, arranged alphabetically, but only comprising the rhyme letters م to ی, on fol. 315^b, beginning:

گفتم کین دل بداغ نام توکنم
گوئی که دو دیده جای کام توکنم

There is another lacuna after fol. 327.

A great-grandson of Aḥmad Nāmaki, viz. Khwâjah Saḥî-al-din bin Khwâjah Sirâj-al-din Aḥmad bin Diyâ-al-din Yûsuf bin Aḥmad al-Jâmi, is quoted on ff. 67^b, last lines, and 68^a, first line.

Another copy of the same.

This copy of Anwarī's works is excellent, and very rich in contents too, but the leaves are badly misplaced, and there are several lacunas; the proper order seems to be: ff. 1-16, 193-198, 17-184, lacuna, 247-254, lacuna, 185-192, 215-246, lacuna, 199-214, and 255-356. Another copy of Khāḡānī's mathnawī on the two 'Irāqs, see above, No. 950, 1; and Nos. 952-959.

Beginning of the prose-preface, on fol. 1^a: خیر ما اعتصم المرؤ بحباله کلمة التخبیر (العجز) بقصور باله الخ.

Beginning of the poem itself, on fol. 3^b, first line:

مائیم نظارگان غمناک زین حقّه سبز (و) مهره خاک

This copy, dated the 12th of Dhū-alka'dah, A.H. 810. (1080? = A.D. 1670, April 3), is supplied throughout with interesting glosses, both marginal and interlinear.

Additional references, Rieu, Supplement, p. 151^a, I; H. Ethé, Neupersische Litteratur, p. 264.

No. 3072, ff. 75, 3 coll., each ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

2867

Sharḡ-i-Tuḡfat-al'irākain (شرح تحفة العراقيين).

An anonymous commentary on the preceding mathnawī, different both from Shaikh 'Abd-alsalām's (see No. 960 above) and Ghulām Muḥammad's (see Bodleian Cat., No. 580). There is no preface to it, the commentary beginning at once with the first bait of the poem: مائیم نظارگان غمناک.

Not every verse is explained, only the more difficult ones, and these in rather an elaborate way. Usually a certain number of verses is enumerated together and then paraphrased and commented upon; for instance, the first four verses of the poem are given without interruption in ll. 2-4 of fol. 1^b, and then the commentary begins thus: حقّه سبز کنایت از فلک و مهره خاک اشارت زمین الخ.

The copy ends on fol. 121^b, where it is stated to have been completed at Dihli, on behalf of Malik Sayyid

Muhammad ibn Sayyid Nâr; but ff. 122-126 belong to the work too and must be inserted somewhere between the leaves immediately preceding fol. 121, but where, is impossible to say, as all the catchwords in the latter half of the MS. are missing; there is moreover a lacuna after fol. 125, and there may be many more which easily escape discovery through the missing of the catchwords as well as through the want of strict continuity in the explanation of verses. The last hemistich explained on fol. 121^b is طبعم بقمطرهای شکر, corresponding to fol. 74^b, l. 8 in the preceding copy; the last hemistich that appears on fol. 126^b corresponds to fol. 70^b, last line in the same copy.

No. 3059, ff. 126, ll. 15; written very irregularly in different styles of Nasta'lik; the original brown leaves have been carefully pasted upon white paper; but in many places the text has been slightly damaged; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

f. Nizâmî.

Four mathnawis by Nizâmî.

1. مخزن الاسرار, on fol. 1^b, beginning خداوند در خسرو و شیرین; the date, A. H. 576 (A. D. 1180, 1181), appears in the last verse but two. The praise of Toghrul is found here on fol. 4^b; that of the Atâbeg-i-a'zam Shams-al-din Muhammad Abûbâkr on fol. 5^b; and that of the Atâbeg-i-a'zam Muza'ffar-al-din Kizil (i.e. Kizil Arslân) on fol. 7^a.

2. مخزن الاسرار, on fol. 101^b, beginning هست کلیدی در گنج حکیم (read کلید); it contains, as usual, twenty makâlas; the date is given here, on fol. 135^b, l. 10, as A. H. 582, 24th of Rabi' I (A. D. 1186, June 14).

3. هفت بیکر, on fol. 136^b, beginning ای جهان دیدہ بود خویش از تو آلâ-aldin Shâh Arslân is praised on ff. 140^a and 211^b. The date is given here, on fol. 212^b, l. 10, in the corrupted form (!) از پس و نود سه, instead of پانصد و نود قرآن (A. H. 593, 14th of Ramadân, 1197, July 31).

4. نام تو لیلی و مجنون, on fol. 213^b, beginning بهترین سر آغاز ای the ruler, to whom Nizâmî has dedicated this poem, is styled on fol. 278^a, ll. 5 and 7, Malik Akhtashân Shâh Abû-almuza'ffar; on fol. 219^a, last line, Akhtashân bin Minûçîhr, and on ff. 220^b, l. 5, and 221^a, l. 8, Arslân Akhtashân bin Minuçîhr. On fol. 222^b an introductory chapter, in which the poet gives fatherly advice to his son Kurrat-al'ain Muhammad, fourteen years old.

No date.

Additional references to Nizâmî and his works (see above, No. 972 sq.) are, Rieu, Supplement, pp. 154-156; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 303-309; I. Pizzi, Storia della Poesia Persiana, i. pp. 217-219 and 254-258; ii. pp. 178-197 and 252-273; H. Ethé, Neupersische Litteratur, pp. 241-244. Edition of the Khamsah, Teheran, A. H. 1301. The designation, given to this copy on the inside of the binding, Panj Ganj-i-Nizâmî, is misleading, as the اسکندر نامه is entirely left out. Received March 29, 1878.

No. 3189, ff. 279, 4 coll., each ll. 17; small, but clear Nasta'lik; ff. 136-159 written by another hand; very plain frontispieces at the beginning of each mathnawî; slight damages here and there; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

Two mathnawis by Nizâmî.

1. مخزن الاسرار, in twenty makâlas, slightly defective at the beginning; it opens, on fol. 1^a, with the ninth verse of the preceding copy (the eighth in the two following ones): مهرکش رشتہ یکتای عقل الغ.

The date, given here on fol. 87^b, l. 9, is A. H. 552: پانصد و پنجاه و دو شد از قرآن, as in No. 990 above. This mathnawî is dated the 27th of Jumâdâ II, in the twenty-second year of Muhammadshâh's reign (= A. H. 1153; A. D. 1740, Sept. 19).

2. خسرو و شیرین, on fol. 88^b, beginning as usual; the date is left out at the end; the praise of Toghrul is found here on fol. 95^b, and that of Kizil Arslân (so written in full here), on fol. 99^a, lin. penult.; but that of the Atâbeg Muhammad Abûbâkr is missing, the whole chapter relating to him (fol. 5^b, l. 9, to fol. 6^b, l. 2 in the preceding copy) being left out (see here, fol. 97^b, ll. 2 and 3). This mathnawî is dated by the same hand as the first (about one year and a half sooner), the 20th of Muharram, A. H. 1152 (the twenty-first year of Muhammadshâh's reign = A. D. 1739, April 29); the name of the copyist and first owner is Muhammad Hasan (or Husain, no diacritical points being added) ادکاری.

On the margins of ff. 1 and 2 the fragment of a commentary on some philosophical or mystical treatise.

In a few places blanks are left, probably for the insertion of pictures. Occasionally various readings and short glosses on the margin.

No. 3035, ff. 313, 2 coll., each ll. 13; somewhat careless Nasta'lik; good Eastern binding; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

مخزن الاسرار (Makhzan-alarâr).

Another copy of Nizâmî's مخزن الاسرار, on fol. 4^b, beginning as usual. An immense amount of marginal and interlinear glosses throughout. A strange incorrectness is the spelling of مقالة مقالات in the headings of the twenty chapters. As date appears here on the last page, l. 3, A. H. 572 (A. D. 1176). It is dated the 27th of Muharram, A. H. 1070 (A. D. 1659, Oct. 14), and belonged formerly to Lieut. W. Miles at Neriad, who acquired it 1803.

Ff. 1 and 2 contain an anonymous mathnawî, beginning: بای جانمن این قصہ بشنو الغ. Fol. 3 is left blank. This MS. was received May 29, 1878.

No. 3193, ff. 77, 2 coll., each ll. 17; Nasta'lik; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

2871

Another copy of the same.

Beginning as usual. The date is here, in the last verse but two, A. H. 559, as in Nos. 977, 983, and 994 above: پانصد و پنجاه و نه افزون از آن. Throughout an interlinear paraphrase and explanation of the text in red ink. Fol. 24^a is left blank by oversight, the text running on without interruption.

No date. Received April 13, 1877.

No. 8184, ff. 93, 2 coll., each ll. 13; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Sharḥ-i-Makhzan-alasrār (شرح مخزن الاسرار).

A commentary on Nizāmi's مخزن الاسرار, beginning, without a preface, at once with the first bait of the poem, on fol. 1^b. The first words of the commentary are: افتتاح کتاب بتقدیم مصراع اول بر تسمیه بسبب آن کرد که بسم جار و مجرور است و در کلام عرب جار و مجرور البتة مذکور بود یا مقدر الخ.

According to the date of this transcript, viz. Jumādā I, A. H. 51 (i. e. 1051 = A. D. 1641, Aug.), this commentary is considerably older than the only one, otherwise known, viz. that of Muhammad bin Kiwām bin Rustam Bakra'i or Karkhi (see above, No. 998). The date of the poem itself is given here, on fol. 241^b, l. 4, as A. H. 552 (see No. 2869, 1 above). The copyist (perhaps identical with the compiler of the work itself, as he styles himself کاتب الکلمات) was Muḥammad ibn alkhālī Sa'd-aldin.

A lacuna after fol. 39, indicated by two blank leaves (ff. 40 and 41); fol. 171^a is left blank too, but here the text is uninterrupted (صحیح البیاض).

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2977, ff. 241, ll. 19; very uncouth Naskhi; the first six leaves supplied by a later hand on whiter paper, ll. 13-18; water-stained and worm-eaten in the last pages; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

2873

Khusrau u Shirin (خسرو و شیرین).

Another copy of Nizāmi's خسرو و شیرین, beginning as usual.

No date. The spaces for the frontispiece and several pictures are left blank, likewise the chapter-headings from fol. 11^b onwards. A prose adaptation of this poem, styled سرود خسروی, was composed 1815 by Ghulām Husainkhān Munshi.

No. 2911, ff. 20, 4 coll., each ll. 21; small, but distinct Nasta'liq; large waterspots throughout; size, 11 in. by 7½ in.

Sâghar-i-bazm âshûb (ساغر بزم آشوب).

A mukhammas by Muḥammad Faîd, i.e. Muḥammad Muḥsin, bin Shâh Murtaḍâ, called Faîd, who was a great favourite of Shâh 'Abbâs II of Persia, and died A.H. 1091 (A.D. 1680), see Rieu, Supplement, p. 253^b; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 399 and 400; and Âtashkada, No. 585, Bodleian Cat., col. 282. It was composed A.H. 1090 (A.D. 1679), see fol. 12^b, ll. 2 and 3, where title and chronogram appear:

چو شد این سواد مخمّس تمام
شدش ساغر بزم آشوب نام
ز ساغر بکش باده بی کف بدام
ز کیفیت سال شو شادگام

(i.e. take away from ساغر = 1261, the words باده بی کف بدام = 171).

Beginning:

بنام خداوند ملک وملل
که در دست او هست صلح و جدل

Copied by Fakîr Ghulâm Muḥammad; in No. 2902 below, which is written by the same hand, A.H. 1270 (A.D. 1853, 1854 = Samvat 1911) is given as the date of transcription.

No. 3549, ff. 13, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'liq; size, 7¼ in. by 4 in.

Ta'rikh-i-Jân Muḥammad (تاریخ جان محمد).

A very puzzling elegy on the death of Jân Muḥammad, with the honorary epithet Sardârkhân (see fol. 2^b, l. 8), son of Mûsâkhân تلوندی, in the form of a long kasidah, composed by a poet with the name Muḥammad Afḍal (see the takhalluṣ Afḍal on fol. 6^b, lin. penult., and in the colophon). The date of the lamented Jân Muḥammad is conveyed in a riddle (بوجه معما), in the last verse of the poem, which runs thus:

که در خاطر افتاد درد مجدد
فرو ریخت از چشم اشک روان

The overlined words (indicated by a red stroke above) are undoubtedly meant to form the chronogram, those of the first hemistich giving 1069, that in the second 321, but, when poured out from the eye (چشم = 343), i.e. deducted from it, 22, which added to 1069 would represent A.H. 1091 (A.D. 1680); but whether this is a correct interpretation, is very doubtful. However, the date would well fit into the lifetime of the best known poet and writer with the name Muḥammad Afḍal, that is Mirzâ Muḥammad Afḍal Sarkhwash, the author of the کلمات الشعرا (commenced A.H. 1093 = A.D. 1682, see Nos. 670-672 above), who according to Muḥammad Ṭâhir Naṣrâbâdî (see No. 669 above) resided between A.H. 1083 and 1092 (A.D. 1672-1681) in Lâhûr, comp. A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 107, l. 7 ah infra; and the present poem mentions the Panjâb several times, so fol. 2^b, ll. 3 and 9, etc.

Beginning:

پس از حمد پروردگار جهان بی نعت سرکردهٔ مرسلان

Copied by the same Ghulâm Muḥammad who transcribed the preceding copy (about A.H. 1270 = A.D. 1853, 1854).

No. 3551, ff. 7, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'liq; size, 6½ in. by 3½ in.

2902

Farrukhnâma (فتح نامه).

A mukhammas in honour of the emperor Farrukh-siyar (A.H. 1124-1131 = A.D. 1713-1719) by Ikhtiyâr-ghan (or ghana), son of Muḥammad Panâh Sunbahriyâli (سنهريالی), beginning:

بنام خداوند شمس و قمر شهنشاه شامان فتح سیر

Dated by Fakîr Ghulâm Muḥammad, A.H. 1270 (Samvat 1911), see the two preceding copies.

No. 3552, ff. 18, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'liq; size, 7 in. by 4½ in.

2903

A double poetical paraphrase of the first ghazal in Ḥâfîz' diwân, by the same Ikhtiyâr, here called in the colophon Ikhtiyârsingh Sunbahriyâli, in mathnawî-baits, which have the same metre as the ghazal, viz. هزج; each section, consisting of 12-14 baits, of the poem begins with one half of a hemistich and concludes with the other half. The first paraphrase begins, on fol. 1^b, thus:

الا یا ایها الساقی بده ته جرعهٔ باقی
ز جام شاه محی الدین بهار گلشن تمکین and ends on fol. 10^a; the second begins, after a short introduction, on fol. 11^b:

الا یا ایها الساقی بعارض ماه آفاقی
نظر بر تیرهٔ روزان کن چراغ ما فروزان کن and ends on fol. 23^a. The title given to this strange pair of poetical glosses on fol. 1^a, viz. بحر طویل, which also appears in the prose-introduction of the second paraphrase, on fol. 10^b, l. 4, cannot refer to the metre which is, as said above, هزج, and not طویل, but must imply the idea of a lengthened explanation or poetical expansion of an original text. Copied by the same Fakir Ghulâm Muḥammad.

No. 3553, ff. 23, 2 coll., each ll. 11; Nasta'liq; size, 7 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. by 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Anwarnâma (انورنامہ).

A heroic mathnawî on the exploits of Nawwâb Anwar-al-dīnkhan of the Carnatic, who died A.H. 1162 (A.D. 1749), together with a summary of subsequent events under his son and successor, Nawwâb Muḥammad 'Alī 'Umdat-almulk (not 'Umdat-alumarâ, as Sprenger and Pertsch call him, since that was the epithet of his son, see No. 502 above), who reigned A.H. 1162-1210 (A.D. 1749-1795), down to the very year of the completion of this poem, A.H. 1174 (A.D. 1760, 1761), by Mir Isma'ilkhân, with the takhalluṣ Abjadi; see above, No. 501; A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 307 and 308; W. Pertsch, Berlin Cat., pp. 944 and 945. The date appears on fol. 243^a, l. 6; on fol. 8^b, l. 5, the poet states that he was engaged five years in the composition of this mathnawî.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b:

خدایا توئی شاه فرمان روا
توئی آفریننده ما سوا

The title انورنامہ (not انوارنامہ, as it is wrongly spelt on fol. 1^a and in the lettering on the back of the binding) appears in the heading on fol. 9^b; two chapters towards the end, on ff. 224^a and 225^b respectively, deal with the correspondence of the Nawwâb Muḥammad 'Alī 'Umdat-al-mulk with King George III of England in 1760; see a copy of the original letter of the Nawwâb (with its English version), in Rien i.p. 403^a (where the 1st of October, 1760, is assigned as date to that document).

No date.

No. 3178, ff. 244, 2 coll., each ll. 17; splendid Nasta'liq; fine Eastern binding; size, 10 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. by 8 in.

Risāla-i-'Ishkiyyah (رساله عشقیه).

A work on the doctrines of Sūfism from the Naksh-bandī standpoint, by a member of that order, 'Uthmān (styled on fol. 1^a Shāh 'Uthmān), who is no doubt identical with that Khwājah 'Uthmān, on whose death in A.H. 1005 (A.D. 1596, 1597) the poet Hāshim, himself a zealous champion of the Nakshbandī creed and pupil of the great Shaikh Aḥmad Fāruqī (see his diwān above in No. 2898), composed a chronogram. Among many famous men the author quotes Shaikh Yahyā Munyārī (died A.H. 782=A.D. 1380, 1381, see above, No. 1843 sq.), on ff. 24^b and 123^b; Jalāl-al-dīn Rūmī, on fol. 37^a; Jāmi (died A.H. 898=A.D. 1492), etc.

It begins: الحمد لله . . . سبحان الله آن قادری که خاک را از لطف عیم جان بخشید الخ, and is divided into the following four *ḥaṣl*s:

1. در بیان فقر و تسلیم و توکل و ذکر الخ, on fol. 5^b.
2. در نهایت سلوک و در خصال درویشان و در ریاضات و اهل الله و نصائح و در تحمّل و رضای خالق الخ, on fol. 16^a.
3. در خاموشی و عزلت و نادیدن خود را با وجود کمالیت و خوردن حسرت و ندامت و غم قیامت و در ذوق محبت و عشق و در اشتیاق و جوانمردی و در تواضع و مهربانی و در سوز و محنت و شب بیداری الخ, on fol. 90^b.

4. در تصرّف و شکستگی بعجز و نیاز و در جانبازی و عاشقان و در نصیحت و در غیره و در احوال عاشقان و خاتمه کتاب, on fol. 97^a.

Dated in the twenty-first year of Muḥammadshāh's reign (= A.H. 1152, A.D. 1739, 1740).

Two Sūfī tracts.

1. Ff. 1-46, ll. 25; Naskhī.

Risāla-i-Sultān Muḥammad Shāhī (رساله سلطان محمد شاهی), a very strange tract on the ma'ad and cognate topics, written in a mixed Arabic and Persian by Muḥammad bin Jalāl Shāhī Ridāwī (who flourished about A. H. 1042 = A. D. 1632, 1633, see the following tract). The full title, as it appears on fol. 2^a, ll. 6 and 7, runs thus: استقامة الشريعة على منهج الحقيقة.

Beginning: بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم جلّ شأنه وعظم برهانه، الحمد لله والصلوة على محمد وآله واخوانه واتباعه اجمعين قوله فصل معاد الخ.

It is incomplete at the end.

2. Ff. 48-62, ll. 15; careless Nasta'lik.

Alaswilat wa alajwibat (الاسئلة والاجوبة), seventeen questions and answers, relating to important dates in the lives of eminent Sūfī Shaikhs. The questions were sent by Sayyid Muḥammad Bhuvah (بهوه) to the same Muḥammad bin Jalāl Shāhī Ridawī, who is the author of the preceding tract. The latter received these questions the 7th of Dhū-alka'dah, A. H. 1042 (A. D. 1633, May 16), and answered them in this short treatise.

Beginning: الحمد لله حمد الشاكرين والصلوة على عبده سيد العالمين وآله الطاهرين وصحبه اجمعين، اما بعد ميگويد خانزاد خاندان نبوی محمد بن جلال شاهی رضوی نصره الله الخ.

Sharḥ-i Rukn-alyaqīn (شرح ركن اليقين).

The theosophical and mystical speculations of the great Afghān conqueror Aḥmadshāh Durr-i-Durrān (A. H. 1160-1186 = A. D. 1748-1772, see above, Nos. 588 and 589, and Rieu i. p. 213 sq., who excelled in high spiritual gifts, and wrote besides a diwān of ghazals, and rubā'is in the Pushtū language, see extracts in Raverty's 'Selections,' London, 1860, and comp. Z. D. M. G., vol. xvi. p. 788), with a very elaborate and extensive commentary by a certain Muḥammad Ghauth ibn Turkman ibn Tājkhān, with the epithets Mullā Bāshī and Khān'ulūm, see fol. 4^a, ll. 1-3. The name of the royal author appears on fol. 5^b, l. 6. The title of the original collection, ركن اليقين, is found on ff. 6^a, l. 3 ab infra, and 433, l. 5, the title of the commentary, viz. عين اليقين, on fol. 6^a, last two lines.

This unique work, of which no trace is found anywhere else, begins with a preface of the commentator, on fol. 1^b: بعد از استشمام گلدسته بهارستان نیایش: بوقلمون داوری را که از بوی گلهای بوستان سرای کبروی جبروتش مشام ارواح قدسیان معطر ساخته الخ ends with a panegyric poem on Aḥmadshāh Durrānī (ff. 6^b-9^a). After that follows the introduction containing general prolegomena on the most important points of the mystic creed, on fol. 9^b, beginning: مقدمه ایست در بیان چند اموری که واجب است تقدیم آن بر مطالب کتاب الخ.

The original text of the ركن اليقين begins on fol.

IND. OFF.

15^b, headed قال المصنف خلد الله تعالى ملكه. It opens with a number of rhymed lines, the abstruse character of which can be gathered from the first, which runs thus: هيم عاشقان شديح وميم, after which a long manājāt follows, consisting mainly of quatrains (without any fixed metre) with the ever recurring refrain, فریادرس یا مصطفی; this ends on fol. 88^a به اتمام رسيد مناجات ملك المحققين والحال اوان شروع (در شرح مطالب کتاب ركن اليقين آمد والستلم, and then the main portion of Aḥmadshāh's mystic writings begins, the مطالب کتاب ركن اليقين, which contains the author's speculations in the form of a dialogue between himself and an allegorical interlocutor, the جان جهان, to which afterwards a third symbolical personage is added, called ریحانه. The extent of the commentary can be ascertained from the fact, that the explanation of the first line, quoted above, fills fifteen pages (ff. 15^b-22^b).

No date. Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2714, ff. 434, ll. 11; large Naskhi; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

2923

Fifteen Parvas of the Mahābhārata from the fourth to the eighteenth, in another translation.

This translation of Parvas IV-XVIII is stated on the fly-leaves of both Nos. 3012 and 3013 to be that of Faidi; but the absence of any poetical pieces, like those found in the beginning of Parva I as well as of Parva II in the authentic version of Faidi (see the previous copy), and the agreement in the beginning of Parva XIII (on fol. 185^b in No. 3013) with that of the same Parva in No. 1944 above, make it more likely that we have got here the rare translation of Ibn 'Abd-allatif alḥusaini Naḥibkhān, the collaborator of Abū-alfadl, who seems to have made a preliminary version of his own, which was afterwards embodied in the larger translation that goes under Abū-alfadl's name. Besides, it is very doubtful whether Faidi ever wrote more than the first two Parvas.

Parva IV, on fol. 1^b, بیراته پرب (Virāta-parvan); dated the 23rd of Dhū-alka'dah, in the forty-eighth year of Shāh 'Ālam's reign (A. H. 1220 = A. D. 1806, Febr. 12).

Parva V (here called فتن), on fol. 17^a, اودم پرب; dated the 11th of Dhū-alhijjah in the same year (= A. D. 1806, March 2).

Parva VI (likewise called فتن), on fol. 54^b, بهيكم پرب; dated the 1st of Jumādā I, in the forty-ninth year of Shāh 'Ālam's reign (A. H. 1221 = A. D. 1806, July 17).

Parva VII (again called فتن), on fol. 80^b, درونه پرب; dated the 14th of Jumādā I in the same year (A. D. 1806, July 30).

Parva VIII, on fol. 102^a, كرن پرب; dated the 29th of Jumādā I in the same year (A. D. 1806, Aug. 14).

Parva IX, on fol. 128^b, سل پرب (in the colophon شل پرب); dated the 2nd of Jumādā II in the same year (A. D. 1806, Aug. 17).

Parva X (called فتن, like all the following Parvas), on fol. 130^b, سوپك (!) پرب; dated the 3rd of Jumādā II in the same year (A. D. 1806, Aug. 18).

Parva XI, on fol. 133^b, استهري پرب; dated the 6th of Jumādā II in the same year (A. D. 1806, Aug. 21).

Parva XII, on fol. 139^b, سانت پرب (Sānti-parvan); dated the 26th in the same month (A. D. 1806, Sept. 10).

Parva XIII, on fol. 185^b, ساتك (!) پرب; dated the 12th of Rajab, A. H. 1221 (A. D. 1806, Sept. 25).

Parva XIV, on fol. 227^a, اسميد پرب; this section is incomplete; it breaks off on fol. 232^a, first line; and on the next page a different hand begins.

Parva XV, on fol. 233^a, called here in the heading بياس سرن پرب (!); but in the colophon the correct title appears آسرم پرب; dated the 21st of Muḥarram, A. H. 1222 (Samvat 1864 = A. D. 1807, March 31).

Parva XVI, on fol. 266^a, موسل پرب; not dated.

Parva XVII, on fol. 280^a, پرستان پرب, better in the colophon مهاپرستان پرب; not dated.

Parva XVIII, on fol. 284^a, سرگ آروهن پرب; not dated.

The proper order of ff. 129-137 is: 129, 134, 130-133, 136, 135, 137.

Kiṣṣa-i-Rûḥ (قصّة روح).

A short allegorical romance, with mystic tendency, in rhymed prose and evidently modelled on the famous prototype of this class of symbolical writing, Fattâhî's حسن و دل. It was composed by Afḍal Khâksâr, see fol. 49^b, l. 5. The hero is called روح (the soul); his birthplace is عالم جبروت (the world of omnipotence); his dwelling-place فضای لاهوت (the plain of divinity); he suddenly gets a desire to travel and alights in عالم ناسوت (the world of human kind), where he finds a land called بدن (the body), the seven climates of which are the seven اندام (members or parts of the body), and four brothers join him there, خون (blood), صفر (bile), بلغم (phlegm), and سودا (melancholy), etc.

Hâshiya-i-Kâfiyah (حاشیة قافیه).

Short glosses to the مقطع or last chapter of 'Atâ-allâh bin Maḥmûd alḥusainî's (died A. H. 929 = A. D. 1523) larger work on poetry and metrical art, the تکمیل الصنائع در فن شعر, from which Nos. 2052-2054 above contain an extract, styled رساله در علم قوافی or 'treatise on the art of rhyming,' see also Fleischer, Dresden Cat., No. 333. According to the beginning of these glosses, on fol. 32^b: تکمیل الصنائع مرتب است بر مطلق و سه بیت و مقطع مطلع در بیان معنی شعر و اقسام او بیت اول در صنائع بیت دوم در معما بیت سوم در عروض مقطع در قافیه و اقوال عرب و عجم بتفصیل در آن کتاب مسطورست و مطلع بمشابه مقدمه است و سه بیت بمشابه سه مقاله و مقطع بمشابه خاتمه آید.

the تکمیل الصنائع was divided into an introduction (مقدمه or مطلع) on the meaning of poetry and its various species, three treatises (مقاله or بیت) on tropical figures, riddles, and metres, and a conclusion (مقطع or خاتمه) on rhyme, with specimens taken from Arabic and Persian poets.

On fol. 33^a, l. 6, the rare work by Maulawî Ḥusain Wâ'iz (died A. H. 910 = A. D. 1505, see above, Nos. 2188 and 2680), styled بدائع الافکار فی صنائع الاشعار, is quoted (see a full description of its contents in E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., pp. 267-271), which must be added to the list of his works, given above, loc. cit.

Dated by the same Muḥammad Naṣîr, who copied No. 2053 above, in the same year, A. H. 1140 (called the tenth year of Muḥammadshâh's reign instead of the ninth which would be more correct) = A. D. 1727, 1728.

Khaṭṭ u sawâd (خط و سواد).

A treatise on the rules for writing Naskh and Nasta'liq, by Maulânâ Majnûn bin Muḥammad (in Rieu, Maḥmûd) Rafîkî, who is commonly identified with the great Nasta'liq writer Mir 'Alî al-Kâtib, flourished in Sulṭân Ḥusain Mirzâ's time, and was still alive in A. H. 945 (A. D. 1538, 1539), see Bodleian Cat., No. 1369; Rieu ii. pp. 531 and 532. The title given to this little treatise in the heading of fol. 84^b, viz. کتاب رسم الخط, is misleading, since another, poetical treatise on the same subject and by the same writer, rightly bears that name. The proper title appears here, on fol. 88^a, lin. penult. A second poetical treatise by Majnûn Rafîkî, likewise dealing with the art of writing Persian characters, is the رساله وضع نسخ و تعلیق, see Rieu ii.

p. 532^a, No. III; and Bodleian Cat., No. 1370, comp. also Krafft, p. 5, No. XII. He is besides the author of the رساله ناز و نیاز, described in No. 2118, 7 above.

5. در شکل هر یک از حرف (? حروف), on fol. 102^a, beginning with الف.
6. در حسن خط آید, on fol. 106^a, first line.

This treatise ends in the middle of fol. 106^b, without a date; the remainder of that page and fol. 107^a are filled with a detailed prescription for making ruby-coloured ink (ترکیب مناد یاقوت), comp. No. 2977 below.

2947

Two treatises on the art of letter-writing, with specimens.

1. رساله در فنّ انشاء or مجموعه اناشی, by Shaikh Muḥammad bin Shams-al-din (see fol. 141^b, l. 2), on ff. 140^b-215^a, beginning: عنوان نامه سعادت ابدی و دیباچه منشور دولت سرمدی حمد و سپاس مبدعیت که مخلوقات عالم علوی و سفلی را جهت حصول رتبه معرفت الخ. The date on fol. 215^a is very strange; the words تمت فی شهر سنه خمس و تسعين و تسعمائة denote A. H. 995 (A. D. 1587), the figures ۱۰۰۴ A. H. 1004 (A. D. 1595, 1596); perhaps the former is the date of composition, the latter that of the copy.

2. رساله در فنّ انشاء, on ff. 216^b-236^a, portion of a larger work of similar import, containing the third and the fourth kism, the former on the proper style of congratulations at various joyful occasions (القسم الثالث فی التهنانی بمواقیت المسرة والامانی), in five faṣls; the latter on the proper style of condolences (القسم الرابع فی التعازی), likewise in five faṣls.

The third kism begins on fol. 217^a; the fourth on fol. 226^a; the five faṣls of the former are: فی تهنية فی تهنية العروس; فی تهنية التختة; والولادة فی تهنية العود عن السفر والاعیاد; والفتح والمناسب; those of the latter: فی تعزية الاولاد; فی تعزية العلما; فی تعزية الملوك; فی تعزية النساء; and فی تعزية الاحياء.

No date.

2955

A large part of an elaborate work on tested cures by a certain Muḥammad Ḥusainī Nūrbakhshī, about whose lifetime nothing can be ascertained. It consists of twenty-eight bâbs, of which the first seven and part of the eighth are missing; the copy opens abruptly in the eighth bâb, which deals apparently with the conditions and diseases of the head.

The headings of the following bâbs are:

Two medicinal glossaries.

1. A glossary of the Hindi terms occurring in the Materia Medica, with their Arabic and Persian equivalents, forming an alphabetical index to the مخزن الادویه (see above, No. 2362), on ff. 1^b–85^b. It is styled in the heading: فهرست ادویه هندی ولغت عربی از کتاب: مخزن الادویه بموجب شمار هندسه, and consists of three columns, the one on the right side for the Hindi words, the middle one for the Arabic and Persian ones, and the one on the left for the pages or folios of the respective copy of the مخزن الادویه (which is not that in the India Office referred to above). The English equivalents are occasionally added on the margin, mostly in ink, sometimes in pencil. Frequently, where special Hindi terms are not forthcoming, only the Arabic and Persian words are given. Ff. 86–88 are left blank.

2. A glossary of similar Hindi terms, occurring in a medical work, styled بهار پرکاش, with their Sanskrit equivalents, arranged in the same way, the Sanskrit words in the right column, the Hindi ones in the middle, and the folios in the left column, on ff. 89^b–131^a.

It is styled in the heading: فهرست ادویه هندی از: کتاب بهار پرکاش بموجب شمار هندسه, and is on the first pages, like the previous glossary, occasionally accompanied with the English equivalents on the margin. The Sanskrit words are written in Devanāgarī characters. On fol. 1^a there is given a Sanskrit title to the first glossary, viz. Dravya Gaṇa, Hindi and Persian.

No. 3526, ff. 131; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

Tarjuma-i-firang dar bayān-i-amrād-i-pīcīsh (ترجمه فرنگ در بیان امراض پیچش).

A Persian translation of an English medical treatise by William Cockburn (اوولم کاک برن), M.D. of London, the title of which is represented here in Persian transliteration as دی نیترا نت کیوزس او فلك شیز, which seems to mean 'the nature and cures of fluxes,' explained in Persian by بیشهای اقسام. There are two books of Dr. W. Cockburn (1669–1739) mentioned in English works of reference (see, for instance, Dictionary of National Biography, vol. xi. pp. 192–193), which are very likely different editions of one and the same treatise from which the present translation is made, viz. 'Profluvia ventris,' London, 1701; and 'Account of the nature and cure of looseness,' sec. ed., London, 1710. The learned English doctor wrote it partly on the basis of former investigations, partly on the results of his own medical experience. It is divided into nine صورت.

No date.

No. 1452, ff. 62, ll. 9; simple Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 6 in.

XV. LEXICOGRAPHY AND GRAMMAR.

1. Arabic-Persian.

a. Vocabularies and Dictionaries.

2958

Three metrical Arabic-Persian vocabularies.

1. Niṣāb-i-badī (نصاب بدیع), on ff. 1^b–6^b, see above, No. 2386, beginning: مصر شهر وشهر ماه و ماه آب و خوف سهم الخ.

2. Niṣāb-al-shibyan (نصاب الصبيان), on ff. 7^a–27^a, see above, Nos. 2375–2381, beginning here:

همین گوید ابو نصر فراہی
کتاب من بخوان گر علم خواہی

This part is dated the 9th of Ramaḍān, A. H. 1229 (A. D. 1814, Aug. 25).

3. Mantik-alsibyān (منطق الصبيان), on ff. 27^b-36^a, a versified tract of the same kind as the two preceding ones, in eighteen kit'as, prefaced by ten mathnawi-baits, beginning:

بعد توحید خالق بیچون کز عدم کرد خلق گوناگون

The title appears on fol. 27^b, l. 9.

The MS. belonged to 'Anand Row's Collections in the ceded districts.'

No. 3018, ff. 36, 2 coll., each ll. 15; large Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

2959

Niṣāb-alsibyān (نصاب الصبيان).

The same versified vocabulary of Abū Naṣr Farāhī, beginning in the following way: قال الحمد لله الشيخ الامام الاجل العالم بدر الحق والدين الخ (comp. the last line here corresponding to fol. 27^a, first line, in the preceding copy.

No. 2377 sq. above); this copy is slightly defective at the end; the last line here corresponding to fol. 27^a, first line, in the preceding copy.

No. 2754, ff. 149^b-174^b, ll. 13-16; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

2960

'Umān-i-ma'ānī (عمان معانی).

The Persian gulf of fine thoughts, an Arabic-Persian glossary with occasional intermixture of Hebrew, Pahlavi, Syriac, Turkish, and other words, by Amirak of Balkh, who compiled this little work at the request of Shaikh Nizām, A. H. 859 (A. D. 1455), see fol. 1^b, last four lines, and fol. 2^a, first five lines.

Beginning: حمد بینهایت قادر بر که از صنعت قدرت خوش الخ.

It is arranged alphabetically according to the first and last letters, the Persian paraphrase is interlinear and sometimes marginal, and written as far as fol. 43^a in red ink; from fol. 43^b to fol. 81^a in black (except half of fol. 74^a which is again in red); from fol. 81^b to the end the paraphrase ceases altogether and only strings of words are left.

No date.

No. 1989, ff. 120, a number in diagonal lines; first two pages slightly effaced; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

2961

Another Arabic-Persian glossary, arranged like the preceding one according to the first and last letters. There is neither title nor author's name given, as the copy lacks the introduction and begins abruptly in the midst of the explanation of an affix (probably the simple l) thus: ساکن اسم مضمع مرفوع متصل بود برای: تنبيه غائب در ماضی و مضارع و امر الخ.

From fol. 8^a onwards the Arabic words are written in red ink. Copied by Muḥammad Zain-al-dīn.

No date.

The title given to this glossary on the fly-leaf, viz. لغات ترکی, has no sense whatever.

No. 1755, ff. 85, ll. 15; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

2962

A defective copy of a large Arabic-Persian dictionary, which is wrongly designated as كشف اللغات both on the fly-leaves and at the top of fol. 1^a. The كشف اللغات is a Persian-Persian dictionary, and therefore absolutely different in character from the present work, which resembles very closely the كنز اللغات (see above, Nos. 2392-2396), although its abrupt beginning cannot be traced in any of those copies, and the order of words seems not to be quite the same. At any rate, it may be either an earlier or a later redaction of that famous dictionary.

Beginning: دوم پناه گردانیدن سیوم در پناه کسی بودن الخ.

According to the Arabic paging six leaves are wanting at the beginning, and eight between ff. 249 and 250. Ff. 247-250 are slightly damaged, but carefully repaired in some (not all) places. The proper order of ff. 394-411 is: 394, 403-410, 395-402, 411.

No date.

The copy belonged formerly to Mr. Richard Johnson.

Dastūr-i-a'sār u Dastūr-i-amṣār (دستور اعصار و دستور امصار).

Another large Arabic-Persian dictionary, compiled on the basis of and in conformity with the تاج المصادر (see Abū Ja'far Aḥmad Albaihaḳī's work of this title in Bodleian Cat., No. 1635) and the صحاح (see above, Nos. 2388-2390), by Bahā-i-'Abbās Aḥmad Ḥusaini 'Alawī (see fol. 1^b, ll. 8 and 9), and beginning: الحمد لله و نستعين به وما لنا ان لا نتوكل على الله الخ.

The title appears on fol. 2^b, l. 10; on fol. 1^a it is styled, through a confusion with its prototype (see the above statement), تاج المصادر. The introduction comprises a faṣl: در اعداد ابواب و مصادر آن, on fol. 3^b, with the following subsections: خاصية الابواب, on fol. 4^a; كيفيت مصادر مزید فيه, on fol. 5^a; and معرفت مصادر در هر فعل, on fol. 5^b. The dictionary itself begins, on fol. 5^b, with the باب الالف; the arrangement is this, that the first letter forms the bâb and the last the next subdivision; after that comes the middle one.

Dated A. H. 1176 (A. D. 1762, 1763).

No. 1328, ff. 360, ll. 19; Nasta'lik; size, 9½ in. by 5½ in.

b. Grammar.

2964

Three Persian treatises on Arabic grammar.

1. Kitāb-i-mizān (کتاب میزان), i.e. the میزان فی علم الصرف, on ff. 1^b-20^a, see above, Nos. 2415-2417, beginning: الحمد لله... بدان اسعدك الله تعالى في التارين كه جملة افعال متصرفه بر چهارگونه است ماضى و مستقبل وامر و نهى الخ. This part is dated the 8th of Rabi' II, A. H. 1218 (A. D. 1803, July 28).

2. Nuskha-i-munsha'ihah (نسخه منشعیه), on ff. 21^b-28^a, only a fragmentary piece, defective at the end, see above, Nos. 2411, 2; 2412, 2; and 2418, beginning: الحمد لله... اسعدك الله تعالى في التارين كه جملة افعال متصرفه و اسماء متمكنه از روى تركيب حروف الخ. Ff. 29 and 30 left blank.

3. Dastūr-i-mubtadā (دستور مبتدا), or Kitāb-i-jadvali (کتاب جدولی), or Sarf-i-afāl (صرف افعال), on ff. 31^b-90^b, see above, Nos. 2425-2427, beginning: الحمد لله... بدانكه اين كتابيست در بيان صرف افعال و اعلال آن كه جملة افعال بر دو گونه است ثلاثى و رباعى الخ.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2741, ff. 90, ll. 9-10; Nasta'liq; size, 9 in. by 6½ in.

2965

Muntakhab-alnaḥw (منتخب النحو).

A treatise on the application of the rules of Arabic syntax to Persian, with poetical illustrations, by Amir Ḥaidar Ḥusaini Balgrāmi (see fol. 1^b, last two lines), with the takhalluṣ Amir, a grandson of the famous Mir Ghulām 'Alī Āzād Balgrāmi, compiled A. H. 1214 (A. D. 1799, 1800, see fol. 2^a, l. 5), comp. another copy in Rieu ii. p. 857^b, No. I.

Beginning: حمد فاعل اشياء حق جل و علا را کدام (بکدام Rieu). نحو بيان الخ.

At the end of the mukaddimah (which begins on fol. 2^a) it is stated (see fol. 4^a, last line, and fol. 4^b, first line) that this treatise is divided into three bābs, dealing with the nouns, the verbs, and the particles respectively:

باب اول در بيان اقسام اسم, in seventeen faṣls, on fol. 4^b, l. 2.

باب دوم در بيان اقسام فعل و هر چه متعلق بآن, in nine faṣls, on fol. 41^a, last line.

باب سوم در بيان اقسام حروف, in three faṣls, on fol. 48^a; but in the text itself the beginning of a fourth bāb is found on fol. 51^b, on the sentence در ذكر جملة, which was to contain two kisms, each of which subdivided into faṣls; but already in the first faṣl of the first kism the copy breaks off.

Earlier works of the same Amir Ḥaidar are: سوانح اکبری, a history of the emperor Akbar to A. H. 987

(A. D. 1579), written at the request of Mr. William Kirkpatrick, see Rieu iii. p. 930^a, Blochmann in his translation of the آئين اكبرى, p. 316, note, and Elliot, History of India, viii. p. 193; منتخب الصرف, on the formation of Arabic words used in Persian, Rieu ii. p. 857^b, No. II; and تحقيق الاصطلاحات, a glossary of rare words and idioms, with poetical illustrations, Rieu iii. p. 1070^b, completed A. H. 1189 (A. D. 1775).

No. 3001, ff. 53, ll. 12; Shikasta; size, 9½ in. by 6½ in.

2. Persian-Persian.

2966

Laṭā'if-allughāt (لطائف اللغات).

Another copy of 'Abd-allatīf bin 'Abdallāh al-'Abhāsī's special glossary to Jalāl-al-dīn Rūmī's mathnawī, see above, Nos. 1091-1097, beginning: اين فرهنگيست مشتمل بر حل لغات غريبه عربيه الخ.

Dated the 24th of Jumādā I, in the fortieth year of 'Ālamgir's reign (which would be A. H. 1108, a year that actually seems to be hidden in the strange combination of figures appearing here, viz. ۸۱۱۰ = A. D. 1696, Dec. 19), by Husain 'Alī bin 'Alī Murtaḍā Ghulām. Slightly worm-eaten.

No. 3004, ff. 219, ll. 15; Nasta'liq; size, 10½ in. by 5½ in.

Baḥr-alfadā'il fi manāfi'-alafādil (بحر الفضائل في منافع الافاضل).

A fuller copy of Muḥammad bin Kiwām bin Rustam bin Aḥmad bin Maḥmūd Badr-i-Khizāna albalkhi's Persian dictionary, which has been described above in No. 2512. The author's epithet is given here (on fol. 2^b, l. 7) as Nikū'i, instead of Karkhi. This copy contains thirteen out of the fourteen bābs of the second kism (a complete index of which is given both on ff. 4^b-5^b and 224^a-226^a), viz.:

Bāb I, on fol. 226^a, second line, headed here: در اسمائى بعضى از اهل اولاد و عماد (و عمال و غزوات index) و اسپان و اسباب بیغمبر الخ.

Bāb II, on fol. 228^a, headed here: در لغات الدعوات (در الفاظ ادوات index) و غیر آن الخ at the end.

Bāb III, in four faṣls (kunyaas, beginning respectively with ابو, ام, ابن, and بنت), on fol. 246^b.

Bāb IV, in seven faṣls, on fol. 248^b.

Bāb V, in three faṣls, on fol. 252^b.

Bāb VI, in seven climates, on fol. 256^a.

Bāb VII, on fol. 257^b.

Bāb VIII, on fol. 262^a (number here omitted).

Bāb IX, in six faṣls, on fol. 264^b.

Bāb X, in nine faṣls, on fol. 278^a.

Bāb XI, on fol. 289^a, lin. penult.

Bāb XII, in three faṣls, on fol. 293^b.

Bāb XIII, in three faṣls, on fol. 298^a.

The number of faṣls is therefore thirty-seven, as correctly stated on fol. 3^b, l. 8 (whereas on ff. 4^b, l. 5, and 224^a, l. 7 it is given as thirty-six). The first kism, containing the dictionary proper, begins on fol. 5^b, last line.

Beginning, on fol. 1^b, thus: حمد و سپاس بپند مر: خدای را که ملائک و اناس در نعت اوست بالسنة مختلفه و لغات متنوعه اورا ثنا گوید (sic!) الحمد.

An English note on fol. 1^a describes this copy as an abridgement of the بحر الفضائل, whose author is unknown; this statement is altogether misleading, and would rather apply to the much shorter copy in No. 2512 above; moreover the Persian title, written on the same page, runs اصل کتاب بحر الفضائل, and proves that we have got here the original work. The fourteenth bāb of the second kism is not found.

Dated the 7th of Shawwāl, A. H. 1199 (A. D. 1785, Aug. 13).

No. 2970, ff. 302, ll. 13; Nasta'liq; size, 10 in. by 6½ in.

3. Persian-English.

2968

The first sketch of a Persian Lexicon (including all the Arabic words, commonly used by Persians), with their English equivalents, by Haughton, i. e. Sir Graves Champney Haughton, 1788-1849, who was from 1817 to 1827 professor in the East India College at Haileybury, see Dictionary of National Biography, vol. xxv. pp. 166^b-168^a. It is very rich and accurate, but goes down to the middle of the fourth letter only, ت; the last word being تعميم.

No. 3182, ff. 303; European handwriting; size, 13 in. by 8½ in.

XVI. THEOLOGY AND LAW.

2969

Kurân (قرآن).

A copy of the Kurân, with interlinear Persian paraphrase, which derives a unique interest from the fact that (according to a note appended at the end by Mr. A. Rattnay) it 'was picked up in the streets of Lucknow, on the occasion of the entry of the Brigade under General Franks into that city, in 1857, by one of his Aides de Camp (Captain Henderson, I believe). It was found under the body of a Mahomadan priest, who was evidently attempting to escape with it at the time he was killed.'

The copy is, of course, in a very precarious state, despite the careful mending of most of the old leaves, which have been put into a modern margin; and although the text has been supplemented, wherever pieces had been torn off, the first and last leaves especially—which were lying quite loose in the copy and have now been arranged in proper order—are greatly damaged. Part of the original colophon is preserved, stating that the copy was written in A. H. 995 (A. D. 1587), by بن احمد انصاری المديني.

No. 3402, ff. 387, usually ll. 14 in the fully preserved pages; splendid Naskhi; the Persian paraphrase in Nasta'liq; size, about 13 in. by 8½ in.

2970

Another copy of the Kurân.

This copy has a special interest too; it was one of Tipû Sultân's Kurâns, and is provided with a Persian index of the Sûras: فهرست سورة های کتاب الله المجید الخ, on ff. 1^b-22^b.

The Kurân begins on fol. 25^b, and ends on fol. 520^a; an Arabic prayer on ff. 521^b and 522^a.

No. 3562 (Glass Case), ff. 522; Naskhi; gorgeously illuminated throughout; two splendid vignettes on ff. 23^b and 24^a; excellent Eastern binding; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

Fatâwa-i-Karâkhânî (فتاوی قراخانی).

Legal decisions with regard to the various branches of Muḥammadan ecclesiastical and civil law, which begin, without any introduction, at once with the first kitâb; the title can therefore only be derived from the colophon. The book is divided into kitâbs, and, occasionally, subdivided into bābs, with some faṣls here and there. An index on ff. 1^a and b.

XVII. VARIA.

I. Arts, Technical and Practical Pursuits.

a. Music.

Aṣl-al-uṣūl (اصل الاصول).

A treatise on the theory of music by Muḥammad Naṣir Muḥammadi, with the takhalluṣ Ranj (mentioned as grandson of Khwājah Mir Dard, and a young man about A. H. 1221 = A. D. 1806, in A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 280, l. 7 ab infra), beginning, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لله خالق الخلائى والملائى الصلوة والسلام على محمد المصطفى و آله الخ

In the introduction, on fol. 2^a, the author traces his descent to the great Shaikh and Saint Khwājah Muḥammad Naṣir Muḥammadi, the author of the ناله and the بازى هوش افزا, who had two sons, the elder Khwājah Mīr Muḥammadi, with the takhalluṣ Dard, the greatest mystic poet in Hindūstāni literature (see A. Sprenger, Catal., pp. 218 and 605, whose death is fixed by the various authorities in A. H. 1195, 1196, 1199, and even 1202 = A. D. 1781-1788), the grandfather of the compiler of this musical treatise and author of the following nine works: 1. Persian diwān (ديوان پارسی); 2. Rekhta diwān (ديوان ريخته); 3. رساله; 4. اسرار الصلوة; 5. علم الكتاب, a commentary on the preceding one; 6. رساله ناله درد; 7. آه سرد; 8. درد دل; 9. شمع محفل (all these seven being mystical treatises); the younger, Hadrat Muḥammad Mīr Muḥammadi, with the takhalluṣ Athar (see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 207, l. 16 sq.), the author of (1) Persian diwān (ديوان فارسی); (2) Rekhta diwān (ديوان ريخته); (3) مثنوی بيان واقع; (4) مثنوی خواب; (5) The son of the former (Mir Dard) was Ṣāhib Mir Muḥammadi, with the takhalluṣ Alam, undoubtedly the father of the author of the present treatise (see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 200, last four lines, where he is represented by some tadhkirah-writers as the son, by others as the nephew of Mir Dard).

The present treatise was written under the auspices of the author's patron Miyān Himmatkhān, the younger brother of Miyān Nūrkhān, with the takhalluṣ Nūrrang, and son of Miyān La'ikhān, with the takhalluṣ Parh La' (پرب لعل), who himself was the elder brother of Miyān Firūzkhān, with the takhalluṣ Adārang and son of Miyān Bhūpatkhān, the brother of Miyān Nīmatkhān, with the takhalluṣ Sadārang, see fol. 1^b.

The title of this treatise appears on fol. 2^b, l. 4. It is divided into two فن; the first fann در بيان حقيقت (on musical time and measure) contains two mukaddimas, two bâbs and a khâtimah; it begins on fol. 2^b, but breaks off already, on fol. 35^b, in the beginning of the second bâb with the heading of the first fasl; the remainder of this bâb, the khâtimah of the first fann, and the whole of the second fann در بيان لي (on tune, air, or melody) are missing.

The remaining portion of the MS., ff. 36^b-55^a, is filled with the Rekhta poetry of Mu'min (probably Muḥammad Mu'minkhān, who died 1852, see A. Sprenger, Catal., p. 266, l. 6 ab infra sq.), consisting of short mathnawis and one ghazal, beginning with this Persian bait:

Panj Bāznāma (پنج بازنامه).

A collection of five treatises on falconry, of which, however, only the first and the third are complete, while the other three are fragmentary; they are all written very carelessly and often incorrectly.

1. An anonymous بازنامه, on ff. 1^b-34^a, in fifty-two short bābs and a khātimah, beginning: اما بعد این رساله ایست موسوم به بازنامه مشتمل بر پنججاه و دو باب و يك خاتمه اول در معرفتی (معرفت) گلابچشم الخ (the meek-eyed).

2. Fragment of another treatise on falconry, on ff. 41^a-105^b (ff. 35-40 left blank), without title and author's name; the leaves are cruelly misplaced, but all the catchwords are right notwithstanding; it comprises bābs 2-5 complete, part of bāb 6, bābs 8-9 complete, and part of bāb 10. The second bāb begins on fol. 55^a, headed: باب دوم در صفت باز و شناختن: رنگ و بست او و گیرندن (!) او, in thirteen faṣls (the sixth of which is not marked, but an additional unnumbered faṣl, فصل دیگر, is inserted on fol. 69^a, between the twelfth and thirteenth); the third bāb, on fol. 74^a, in eight faṣls; the fourth, on fol. 85^a, in eight faṣls; the fifth, on fol. 92^b, in seven faṣls; the sixth, on fol. 103^b, breaking off on fol. 105^b; the eighth, on fol. 42^b; the ninth, on fol. 43^b; the tenth, on fol. 44^b; a fourth and a fifth faṣl, belonging, as it seems, to some other bāb, not marked, appear on fol. 53^a.

Beginning, on fol. 41^a: بزرگترین شکار کلام که: شکار ناطقه انسانی را در فضای هوای حمد گستری و ثناخوانی هزاران هزار صید الخ

3. Mirāt-al-said (مرآة الصید), on ff. 107^b-136^b (fol. 106 left blank), by Allāhyār Jāmī, who was in the service of the Kausbegi of prince Muḥammad Mu'azzam Bahādurshāh (afterwards the emperor Bahādurshāh), see fol. 110^b (the title appears there too, in the last line). It is divided into five bābs, on ff. 111^a, 114^b, 118^b, 123^a, and 134^a, and was compiled A.H. 1111 (A.D. 1699, 1700), according to the chronogram at the end, and the direction given there with regard to the finding of the date: تند پر جانور ببرزند از عددهای مصرع چهارم شست و چار از میان برون کن و کم؛ بنگر بعد از آن چه می ماند.

Beginning, on fol. 107^b: حقیقت اشیا پیدا کند و: شکره قوت نظری را چشم بینا گشاد تا از صید طائران الخ

4. Shāhbāznāma-i-Firūzshāhi (شهبازنامه فیروزشاهی), on ff. 139^b-173^b (ff. 137 and 138 left blank), compiled at the request of the emperor Akbar by a certain Firūzshāh (see fol. 140^a, ll. 1-4), beginning, on fol. 139^b: شهباز اندیشه شکاربان سخن و شاهن: خیال الخ

It is divided, according to the index on ff. 140^a-141^a, into fourteen bābs, of which, however, only the first (on fol. 141^a), the sixth (on fol. 165^a), and the seventh (on fol. 166^b) are marked; it is incomplete at the end, and there seems not much more than the first half of the treatise extant.

5. Fragment of the Shikārnāma-i-Īlkhānī (شکارنامه), on ff. 179^a-215^a (ff. 174-178 left blank), compiled by 'Alī bin Maṣṣūr alḥalwānī in the reign of Tughātīmūrkhān (A.H. 737-753 = A.D. 1336-1352), see fol. 183^b, l. 5 sq. It is defective both at the beginning and end; the treatise itself, after a long and tedious introduction, commences with the index on fol. 188^b. According to the heading of the index it is divided into two mukaddimas and twenty-seven bābs, but only twenty-five are given in the index itself, and in the text none at all is marked.

No. 3173, ff. 215, ll. 13; Nasta'liq; size, 9½ in. by 7½ in.

Farasnāma (فرسنامه).

This work is in substance identical with the فرسنامه, described in Bodleian Cat., Nos. 1864-1866, Hindu ii. p. 482, and F. Mehren, p. 16, No. XXXIX, but it differs, like the second British Museum copy, from the common version, made under the superintendence of 'Abdallāhkhān Bahādur Firūzjang, in Shāhjahān's reign, in this most important point, that it was translated (from the old Sanskrit work Sālihotra) more than 200 years before that time, viz. A.H. 926, Jumādā II (A.D. 1520, May-June), see fol. 5^b, ll. 3 and 4, by Ibn Sayyid Abū-alḥusain, with the epithet Hāshimī, see fol. 5^a, last line, at the request of Shams-al-din Muẓaffarshāh, i.e. Muẓaffarshāh II, king of Gujarāt (who reigned from A.H. 917 to 932 = A.D. 1511-1526). As we now possess two copies with the same earlier date, and have, moreover, in the present copy further details as to the names of the translator and his royal patron (which are wanting in the British Museum copy owing to the absence of the preface) we must come to the conclusion that either 'Abdallāhkhān Bahādur Firūzjang himself, or at least the Pandits he employed for the translation, committed a flagrant plagiarism, by reproducing almost verbatim this older translation, without acknowledging their indebtedness to it in any way. The introductory part, containing extracts from the older Persian book فرسنامه فارسی, is wanting in this copy (it is the one little addition the later translators have added on their own account); but the preface opens with exactly the same verse:

اسب فکرت چو زین کند دانا
به که گوید نخست حمد خدا

This preface, containing the praise of God, of Muhammad, and of Sultān Muẓaffarshāh (the last section naturally being left out in the latter version), as well as a part of the chapter سبب نظم کتاب (on ff. 5^b-6^b), and the short epilogue at the end, are written in mathnawī-baits, all the other parts in prose. The two kisms are arranged exactly as in 'Abdallāhkhān Bahādur's version; the first, on fol. 6^b, is headed: در معرفت افراس و بیان علامات نیک و بد که در اسب است (on the knowledge of horses and their good and bad signs), and contains twelve bābs; the second, on fol. 28^a, is headed: در علاج فرس بھر علت (on the treatment of horses in every kind of disease), and is subdivided into thirty-eight bābs.

No date. College of Fort William.

No. 2250, ff. 64, ll. 14; Nasta'liq; size, 8½ in. by 4½ in.

3. Miscellaneous.

Almujallad althānī min alkashkūl (المجلد الثاني من الكشكول).

The second book of Shaikh Bahā-aldin Muḥammad 'Āmilī's collectanea, called الكشكول, a Persian translation of which has been noticed in No. 2797 above. Beginning, like that in the Vienna copy: قد يقال أن جمع القرآن لا يستحق تصنيفاً إذ الظاهر (read الظاهر) أن التصنيف ما كان كلام المختف إليه.

Dated A. H. 1044 (A. D. 1634, 1635).

2982

This copy contains:

1. On ff. 1^a-15^a: a metrical treatise on the science of Ḳiyāfat, i.e. predicting a man's fortune from certain signs in his outward appearance, represented as coming down from Plato (رسالة علم قیافة نظم بگفته افلاطون), see another copy in Bodl. Cat., No. 1883, beginning:

هست روایت ز فلاطون خبر
علم قیافة بر اهل خبر (هنر)

It was written by order of Ghulām Muḥammad and is dated the 10th of Šafar in the sixth year of Aḥmad-shāh's reign (= A. H. 1167, A. D. 1753, Dec. 7).

2. On ff. 16^a-39^b: a fragment of Munir of Lāhūr's Indian story of Wālā Akhtar, called کارنامه or کارستان, see above, Nos. 2083-2087. It is defective both at beginning and end, with a lacuna after fol. 31.

No. 3084, ff. 39, ll. 10 (on ff. 1-15), ll. 11-12 (on ff. 16-39); Shikasta, by various hands; size, 7½ in. by 4½ in.

Petition against a Kāḍi.

A highly interesting and instructive MS., containing the petition of the Sunnite Muḥammadans of the village (قسمه) of Elloor (ایلور), so spelt in the beginning of the documents referring to the trial, on fol. 7^a, l. 3, but ایوایلور in the petition itself) in the district (ضلع) of Masulipatam (spelt on fol. 7^a مچھلی بتن), against their Shī'ite Kāḍi, with the name of Mir Sajjād 'Alī (see fol. 7^a, l. 9). This petition, in two distinct memoranda, both fully signed by the inhabitants of that place (headed by Rājī Raḥmat-allāh, Munshi Isti'ānat-allāh, Muḥammad Asad-allāh, and others of the more influential members of that community), sets forth the numerous grievances they had against the said Kāḍi, among others, that, being an idolater and an ignorant man, unfit for the performance of his duties, he had obtained, as they assert, his situation by misrepresentation, had used for his own house the timber he had received for the repair of the mosque, and had thus forced them to keep in repair another mosque and to appoint another person for the duties of divine service, who in his turn had been greatly annoyed and falsely accused by the same Kāḍi. It ends with a prayer for the removal of this obnoxious man, and is dated the 5th of Dhū-alka'dah, A. H. 1246 = A. D. 1831, 18th of April; it was received by the English authorities of the district on the 9th of May in the same year. From various English notes appended to this petition, both on fol. 1^a and fol. 6^b (dated 1839), we learn that Mr. C. P. Brown, Assistant Judge, tried this case at Masulipatam in September, 1831, and clearly proved the charge to be entirely false. This decision, however, although wholly approved by the Judge of the Provincial Court, was reversed by the Court of 'Sudr Udaulat' (correctly Šadr-adālat, or rather Šadr-diwānī-adālat, the High Court of Justice for civil suits in India).

Beginning of the petition, on fol. 1^b: جمع مسلمانان سنت و جماعت ساکنون قصبه ایوایلور واجب العرض خودها بعرض عالی میرسانند که الخ.

After the two memoranda of the petition, which are written in Persian, there follows a number of collateral documents and legal items referring to the same trial, written throughout in Hindūstānī, bearing various dates in September, 1831, on ff. 7^a, 42^b, etc. On the first fly-leaf there is an exposition in English of the difference between the Sunnite and the Shī'ite creed; and on the last two fly-leaves (1) a communication from a captain of the Bengal retired list, expressing 'astonishment at the blindness of the rulers, who would not see that the poor people who got up this case, did so, not really as a quarrel with the Qazee or Imam, but as a reference to their masters, made in the hope, that some sacred spot should be established for Mahomadans, as a place to love and to revere, to which they might ever turn as we do to our churches on the first day of the week, as rallying points, and so forth. (2) A note by the same Assistant Judge, Mr. C. P. Brown, who tried the case, dated Nov. 30, 1832, and containing the following statement (which may serve as a clue to the final results of the trial, set forth above): 'The report I made to the Prol. (Provincial) Court on this case, was considered satisfactory, and here the matter rested. But Asad Alla Beg (no doubt the same Muhammad Asad-allâh quoted as one of the signatories above) being dissatisfied, went to Madras and made a complaint to the Foujdarry Adaulat (i. e. Faujdâri-'adâlat or subordinate criminal court), the result of which was that they directed, that all village cazees should be tried before their court at Madras. The enmity at Elloor, however, has continued without much moderation, and the Cazy is still continually obstructed in the performance of his official duties.'

XVIII. PARSEE LITERATURE.

Kitâb-i-Minokhirad (کتاب مینوخراد).

A Pârsi-Persian translation of the Pahlavi text of the Mainyo-i-Khard (a facsimile of that text was edited by Andreas, Kiel, 1882, English translation by E. W. West in S. B. E., vol. xxiv, pp. 1-113, Oxford, 1885; the Pâzand-Sanskrit text of the same, transliterated, with English translation and glossary, was published by E. W. West, Stuttgart, 1871; see also Spiegel, Grammatik der Pârsi-Sprache, Leipzig, 1851, pp. 128-155, 161-173, and 185-189; and Die traditionelle Literatur der Parsen, Wien, 1860, pp. 138-144 and 147-150; and compare Grundriss der iranischen Philologie, Strassburg, 1896, Band 2, pp. 107 and 125, where the present copy has been noticed).

It begins, after the usual initial phrase, بنام ایزد بنام الخ بنام, with these words: بنام الخ بنام ایزد که همه کسان را منفعت اوست و هم اورا شناسند الخ.

Šad Dar (مد در).

The same popular exposition of the Zoroastrian law, called the Hundred Gates, in its prose-form, which has been noticed in No. 2820 above, and which Dr. West is inclined to ascribe to a certain Irânshâh Yazdiyâr, written in Zend characters, in imitation of Pâzand, with a Gujarâtî translation, and dated by Padam Râm Kanhaksha (=Kânhanân), at Bharûtsh, the 18th of May, 1575 (=Samvat 1631, Yazdajird era 944), see Grundriss der iranischen Philologie, Band 2, p. 123. where the present copy has been noticed. It was presented to the Library by Mr. Romer, August 31, 1837.

No. 3043, ff. 143; Zend and Gujarâtî characters; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Shikand Gumânîk Vijâr.

A fragment of the 'doubt-dispelling explanation,' an old Pahlavi work on controversial religion and philosophy, which was composed (according to the Grundriss der iranischen Philologie, Band 2, pp. 106 and 107) by Martân-farukh, son of Aûharmazd-dât, probably in the latter half of the ninth century, in a polyglot form, that is to say, in Pahlavi-Pâzand-Sanskrit Persian. The original Pahlavi text has not been found as yet; instead of that we have Nêryôsang's Pâzand-Sanskrit version, the oldest complete copy of which was written in 1569, whilst a fragmentary one goes back to the fifteenth century; an English translation of this work was published by E. W. West in S. B. E., vol. xxiv. pp. 115-251, Oxford, 1885; the Pâzand-Sanskrit text with vocabulary, by Hoschang and West, Bombay, 1887. Now, the present polyglot fragment, which was originally given by Mr. Romer to Prof. Wilson and Mr. Norris, and came through them afterwards into the India Office Library, contains pp. 32-143 of the original MS., which, as we learn from a letter of Dr. West to Dr. Rost (the late Librarian of the India Office), dated October 15, 1883, and enclosed in this MS., was transcribed from an older copy still extant in Sûrat, where Dastûr Hoshangji had some recollection of seeing it in 1864. Enclosed in this MS. is also Dr. West's own transcript of those sixteen pages (pp. 16-31) which must have immediately preceded the beginning of this fragmentary copy, from No. 10 of Prof. M. J. Müller's Collections in the Royal Library of Munich (Cod. Zend 10); these sixteen pages were sent to Prof. Müller by the same Mr. Romer, through Mr. Poley, but with the mistaken statement that they contained a Pahlavi-Persian Bundelesh, comp. on this error, and its causes, Dr. West's introductory remarks to his transcript, dated München, June, 1883. These happily restored pages, 16-31, which legitimately belong to our copy, contain, according to the same introductory remarks just quoted, the Pahlavi-Pâzand texts of Sg. i. 28-50, and the Sanskrit-Persian texts of Sg. i. 25-46; and pp. 32-143 of the India Office MS. carry on the Pahlavi-Pâzand texts as far as Sg. v. 61, and the Sanskrit-Persian texts as far as Sg. v. 56; and the whole 128 pages of the two parts combined, contain about one-sixth of the whole extant text of the Pâzand-Sanskrit of the Shikand-gumânî. As Dr. West furthermore remarks, the Pâzand text, as prepared by Nêryôsangh, son of Dhaval, is the leading one in this polyglot MS., the Pahlavi one being evidently transcribed from the Pâzand (and therefore not the original one); the Sanskrit text is likewise that of Nêryôsangh, and the Persian one a modern paraphrase.

There are two more enclosures found in this most precious MS.: (1) three pages of the prose Sad-dar in Zend and Pahlavi characters, together with the Persian text (see the preceding copy), of which an appended English note says, 'This paper is connected with the Shikand-gumânî Vajâr MS. which is sent to the binder to-day, January 11/77; when the MS. is returned bound, this MS. is to be put in it loose' (it ought of course to have been enclosed in the preceding copy); (2) an envelope with the address 'Herrn Oberbibliothekar Professor R. v. Roth, Tübingen, Germany,' in Dr. Rost's handwriting, stamped London, Nov. 7, 1883, received Nov. 9 in Tübingen, and endorsed (no doubt, by Prof. v. Roth) with this remark: 'Eingegangen, 9 Nov. 1883 von Dr. R. Rost mit der Anweisung die Inlage dem betr. MS. beizufügen und bei der Catalogisirung zu berücksichtigen.' Evidently our copy had been sent for inspection to Roth in Tübingen, and when Dr. West's additional sixteen pages arrived, they were dispatched to the same scholar in this envelope.

No. 3583, ff. 56 x 10 (of West's transcript); size, 12½ in. by 8 in. (13 in. by 8½ in. in West's transcript).

APPENDIX.

I. HISTORY.

2989

Wāk'ât-i-Bâbari (واقعات بابری).

Another excellent, but undated, copy of Mirzâ Khân 'Abd-alrahîm hin Bairâmkhân's Persian translation of Bâbar's autohographical memoirs, made at Akbar's request, A. H. 998 (A. D. 1590), see above, Nos. 216-218. It agrees, both as to beginning and end, completely with No. 216.

Beginning: گوالیار: در ماه رمضان هشتصد و پنج
را بایشان سپرده.

This copy was presented by Mr. H. George Keene to his friend James Ballantyne, East India College, December 8, 1831. The following note, taken from the 'Memoir of John Leyden (the translator of this Persian version) by Sir Walter Scott,' is appended to this MS.: 'It is a work of great interest to those who love the study of Indian antiquities, being the autohography of one of the Mogul emperors of Hindostan who, like Caesar, recorded his own conquests, but, more communicative than the Roman, descended to record his amusements, as well as to relate deeds of policy and arms. He recapitulates his drinking-bouts which were, in spite of Koran and Prophet, both deep and frequent; and the whole tenor of the history gives us the singular picture of a genuine Sultan of the ancient Tartar descent, in his strength and his weakness, his virtues, his follies, and his crimes.'

For further references see Rieu, Supplement, p. 528; E. G. Browne, Cambridge Cat., p. 162; and Mrs. Beveridge's 'Notes on the MSS. of the Turki

Text of Bābar's Memoirs' in J. R. A. S., July, 1900, pp. 439-475. As to the critical remarks contained in the latter, about Nos. 214 (the Caghatāi original) and 216 (the Persian translation), we may state, that the Turki text, referred to in the latter, is Ilminski's, not that of No. 214, which, by an unfortunate mistake, has been pronounced 'complete,' whereas, as Mrs. Beveridge has proved, it is, on the contrary, very incomplete. A reference to Ilminski's continuation, the 'fragments,' was clearly not needed in the description of No. 216, which ends, like the present copy, with the Gwāliyār passage.

No. 3405, ff. 321, ll. 17; splendid Nasta'lik; size, 9 in. by 5 in.

2990

A fragment of the highly interesting memoirs of Tipū Sultān, written by himself, defective both at the beginning and end. A note on the fly-leaf says: 'For an account of this MS. see preface to "Select letters of Tippoo Sultan" (comp. above, No. 525; we believe the reference is to W. Kirkpatrick's "Diary and letters of Tippoo Sultan," London, 1804).

'N.B. The first three pages, accidentally destroyed since the MS. came into my possession, were occupied chiefly with an account of the Sultan's ancestors. W. Kirkpatrick.'

Presented to the Library by the same Lient.-Col. W. Kirkpatrick, 13th April, 1811.

No. 3565 (Glass Case), ff. 45, ll. 11; Shikasta; size, 8½ in. by 5½ in.

Shir Singh nāma (شیر سنگھ نامہ).

Another copy of the history of the Panjāb from the death of Ranjit Singh in A. H. 1255 (A. D. 1839) to the assassination of Shir Singh and the proclamation of Dalip Singh in A. H. 1259 (A. D. 1843), by Muhammad Naki of Pashāwar, the son of Mullā Khwājāh Bakhsh (see here, fol. 4^a, ll. 4 and 5), which has been described in No. 505 above.

Beginning: برہوشمندان خیر و آگاہ دلائل روشن ضمیر
کہ تجریت آموز امور عالم کون و فساد و عبرت اندوز الٰہ

Copied A. H. 1270 (A. D. 1853, 1854) = Samvat 1911, by Fakir Ghulām Muhammad (see above, Nos. 2900-2903 and 2940). It was received from Dr. Royle, July, 1856.

No. 3584 (Glass Case), ff. 58, ll. 11; Nasta'lik; size, 7 in. by 4½ in.

Contents:

Bāisnngar's preface, on fol. 2^b: افتتاح سخن آن بہ
تمت الرسالة المسمی: کہ کند الٰہ

III. ORNATE PROSE.

2998

A collection of Inshās, written by a great number of different hands, and mostly without title; even the majority of letters bear no headings. The first fragmentary Inshâ, on ff. 1^b-48, begins : مرجع غربا و اغنيا خداوند مخلص ارادت انتما سلامت فيض يابان خوان and contains notes of various kinds; among the few correspondents and persons incidentally mentioned are Hâjî Muḥammad Fâdil (on fol. 8^a); Shaikh Muḥammad Ashraf (on fol. 12^a); Mir Muḥammad Rafi' (on fol. 37^a); Mir 'Alî Nakî (on ff. 38^b and 46^a, l. 3 ab infra); Shaikh 'Abd-alḥayy (on fol. 40^a, l. 2 ab infra); Hâjî Muḥammad Naṣîr (on fol. 46^a, l. 4 ab infra); Shaikh Ghulâm Muẓaffar (on fol. 46^b, l. 5 ab infra); etc.; the town frequently mentioned in these notes is Jahāngirnagar.

The second Inshâ or rather number of Inshâs is headed, on fol. 49^a: ديباجة احقر فقير واجد (that is no doubt the same who is called on fol. 144^a, l. 10, Muḥammad Wâjîd and designated as the owner (مالك), of the Inshâ, ending there, in the reign of Muḥammadshâh; his son, Luṭf-allâh ibn Fakhr-altujjâr Muḥammad Wâjîd, appears on fol. 1^a, evidently as the first owner of the whole MS.), and begins : بر دانشوران دشخوار بسند و فيض گستران پایه بلند مخفی و متعجب نماند among the few correspondents mentioned by name are Mirzâ Bidil (on fol. 59^b); Muḥammad Asad-allâhkhân (on fol. 67^b); Mirzâ Sa'âdat-allâh (on fol. 68^b); Muḥammad Kâmil Shâhib (on fol. 82^b); Mirzâ Ridâ (on fol. 86^b); Mir Zain-al-'âbidîn (on fol. 89^a); Nawwâb Ḥaidar Kulikhân (on fol. 95^a), the emperor 'Âlamgîr (on fol. 96^a); Mirzâ Shâ'ib (the poet, a letter on tobacco, در صفت تنباکو, on fol. 97^a); Pâdishâh Rafî'-aldarajât (on fol. 101^a); Nawwâb Ja'farkhân Muḥammad (bin) Aḥsan-allâhkhân (on fol. 102^a), etc. There are besides some letters of condolence (رقة ماتم) found on ff. 60^b, 61^a, 61^b, etc., and various notes by Mirzâ 'Abd-allatîf Shahrastâni (on ff. 76^a, 79^b, etc.), whose own Inshâ (انشاء مرزا عبد اللطيف شهرستاني) begins on fol. 103^b and ends on fol. 144^a. Immediately after this Inshâ there follows Ni'matkhân 'Âlî's وقائع حيدرآباد (see above, Nos. 1659, 2; 1661, 1; 1662, 2; 1663-1668, etc.), beginning : می که مدرّس کتّاف صبح الخ.

No. 3585 (olim 1020), ff. 155, written by many different hands, partly in Nasta'lik, partly in various styles of Shikasta, ll. 10-25; some pages in diagonal lines; size, 10 in. by 6 in.

IV. PHILOSOPHY.

Risâlah dar pand (رساله در پند).

Ethical and psychological maxims, represented (a) in the story of a Bedouin asking Muḥammad successively, how he could become the wisest, the richest, the best, the most pious, etc. etc., of all men, with appropriate answers by the prophet, beginning, on fol. 1^b: الحمد لله

این روایت کنند که اعرابی بخدمت حضرت رسالت صلی الله علیه و سلم گفت الخ (b) is an allegorical story about the three pādishāhs with the three wazīrs in the human body, viz. روح and عقل and نفس and شیطان and زبان, beginning, on fol. 5^b, with a rubā'i:

ای تازه جوان بشنو ازین پیر کهن
یک نکته که هست در جهان مغز سخن

(c) in a tradition of Hâtim the deaf (حاتم الاصب), who died A. H. 237=A. D. 851, 852, see col. 293 in this Cat., No. 173). On fol. 5^b appears as heading ترجمة الاحادیث (which only fits the last piece).

No. 3586 (olim 1920), ff. 269, ll. 21; very distinct Nasta'lik; the original text in red ink; size, 10½ in. by 6½ in.

VI. INTERPRETATION OF DREAMS.

3001

A most curious book, the register of Tipû Sultân's dreams, with an interpretation in his own handwriting, together with a few other memoranda, written in a fearful Shikasta on sixteen leaves at the beginning of the MS., and eleven others at the end of it; all the numerous leaves between these two sets are left blank.

It was presented in the name of the Marquis Wellesley to Hugh Englis, Esq., Chairman of the Court of Directors, by Major Alexander Beatson, late Aide de Camp to the Governor-General. This register was discovered (as a note by the same Major Beatson on the last page states) by Colonel William Kirkpatrick amongst other papers of a secret nature in an escritoire found in the palace of Seringapatam. Of these extraordinary productions six only have been as yet translated and inserted by Major Beatson in the Appendix of a 'View of the Origin and Conduct of the War.' This note is dated London, April 23, 1800.

No. 3563 (Glass Case), ff. 1-16 and 17-27; Shikasta; size, 7½ in. by 5½ in.

VII. BALŪCĪ LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.

Lughât-i-zubân-i-Balûcî (لغات زبان بلوچ).

A list of Balûcî words, as spoken in Kech and Makrân, without any order or explanation. It is a mere string of vocables, 17-18 in a page, which the compiler no doubt drew up in order to add afterwards the Persian equivalents—a task he never carried out. Comp. on the Balûcî language Geiger, Die Sprache der Belûtschen, in 'Grundriss der iranischen Philologie,' Band 1, Abtheilung 2, pp. 231-248, where the whole bibliography is given; see also No. 2530, 2 above; and Bodleian Cat., vol. 2, No. 2374.

Bibliotheca Leydeniana.

No. 2532, ff. 96; Naskhî; size, 11¼ in. by 8 in.
